THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER,

BY ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B.

Published at "The Era" Offices, 49, Wellington-street, Strand, W.C.

"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer, by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as "the Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright," and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright" is dedicated to Mr A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman, July 31st, 1901

Those who are interested in "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" will derive much valuable intelligence by reading Mr Albert Strong's book bearing the above title, published at "The Era" Office.—Pelican, Aug. 3d, 1901.

PANTOMIME ARRANGEMENTS FOR 1904-5.

Last Year's Exceptionally Low Offer for Cleaning Pantomime Costumes in Quantities, being determined not to be beaten either in Price or Quality of Work.

XMAS PANTOMIMES.

WE ARE NOW GETTING BUSY CLEANING DRESSES FOR THE ABOVE,
but have plenty of room, and, like Oliver Twist,
WE ASK FOR MORE.

We are still Cleaning and Renovating Tableaux Curtains and Draperies from London and Country Theatres and Music Halls.

We continue to hold the field as Cleaners and Dyers to the Theatrical and Music Hall Professions. This fact is clearly proved by the unsolicited testimonials we are continually receiving.

Professional Work takes Precedence over all other orders.

By Special Arrangement,

TOURING MANAGERS

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1904.
"The Era" Annual, 1904, contains, as usual, many items and statistics of use and interest to all connected with the stage, and, in addition, a number of sketches and short stories by leading artistes, managers, and others. Among the contributors are J. L. Toole, Dan Leno, George R. Sims, George Robey, Huntley Wright, Harry Randall, Bransby Williams, A. W. Pinero, Louie Freear, Little Tich, George Mozart, and Douglas Crichton. The publication is cheap at a shilling.—Birmingham Daily Gazette, Jan. 16th, 1904

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1904.
"The Era" Annual for the current year preserves all the features which have made it popular among actors and actresses in the past—short stories, some of them very good and some of them not so good, by well-known entertainers, countless photographs, and a list of plays produced during the year which should make it useful to students of stage history. It is a sign of the times that Omar Khayyam should be quoted on the first page of the almanack.—Morning Post, Jan. 23d.

AMUSEMENTS IN PITTSBURGH.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PITTSBURGH, PA, SEPT. 17.—BIJOU THEATRE.—Mr A. H. Woods' company, under the direction of Mr Sam Myers, presented Martin Hurley's melodrama in four acts, entitled Dealers in White Women. The play deals with the wicked doings of a Hindoo doctor named Salsya (Mr Edward Walters), who, with the assistance of an American sailor (Mr Lawrence Merton) suffering from a derangement of the mind (the result of a wound received during the battle of Manila Bay) and some other villains, entraps and robs innocent white girls and sells them to the highest bidder. He chances to find out that Hilda Murivale (Miss Clara Knott), as well as a cripple named Elsie Dean, is coming in for a fortune, and he decides upon selling one and murdering the other in order to get possession of the money. His attempts are repeatedly foiled by Barney Branton, king of cracksmen, a notorious safe-robber, who for the love he bears for Hilda Murivale, decides to reform and marry her. A deep laid plot enables Salsya to get the two girls into his power, and he is about to sell them when he discovers that he is also smitten with Murivale, and asks her to become his mistress. This proposal the girl scornfully rejects, and Salsya therefore decides to force his love upon her, when Branton and his friends, who have been doing their best to save the girls, break into the house in time to take them out of the clutches of the miscreant, and bring the latter to book. There is a very realistic scene in the second act, when Murivale is induced to get into a cab under a pretext and is driven off at full gallop to Salsya's den. The play proved very interesting to the numerous audience and was continually applauded. A minor character, that of Isie Cohen (Mr Harry Fields), supplied all the fun.

NIXON THEATRE.—Henry W. Savage's company occupied this theatre performing the comic opera in two acts entitled The Yankee Consul, from the pen of Henry Blossom, jun., music by A. Fred G. Robyn. Mr Raymond Hitchcock in the title-rôle proved a great attraction, and was much appreciated.

DUQUESNE THEATRE.—Flo-Flo, a musical comedy, in two acts, by Collip Davis and Howard Whitney, was presented by Messrs E. D. Stair and George H. Nicolai's company on these boards. Thanks to the delightful performance of Miss Stella Mayhew the play proved very successful, and small wonder, when one considers the cleverness, charm, grace, archness, and brimful humour of Stella. The plot, which is very thin and deals with the sale of a certain coral-reef somewhere in the Pacific, gives her sufficient opportunities of showing the many-sidedness of her talent, and she is not slow to avail herself of them. Albert Farrington, as Lieutenant Barry, of the battleship Teddy, was also well received.

EMPIRE.—New York Day by Day, a comedy-drama, in four acts, written by W. J. Thompson and revised by Charles P. Rice, was effectively produced by a company under the management of Mr George W. Winnett. It tells of the misfortunes that befell a poor blind girl who was known to the villain to be an heiress, and therefore persecuted by him. With the aid of her sweetheart, Jack Waters, a young American sailor, and Rags, a street gamin (Miss Mamie Lincoln Pixley), she is saved from the various traps that are laid for her by the villain, a broker called Richard Blakely (Mr Charles P. Rice) and his accomplices, and finally succeeds in bringing him to book and marrying her lover. Miss Grace Welby as the blind flower girl, Polly Horne, was very pathetic, and spoke her lines tellingly. Miss Ivan Cravan as Mother Cantwell, a footpad's wife, was convincing in her cruelty, whilst Mr John Morris as Dennis Fogherty, Policeman 1854, was very amusing.

ACADEMY.—Al Reeves' big beauty show company was seen at this place of entertainment in a one-act skit entitled Otto Kubelic's Troubles, which proved very attractive. Wm. Cherry and M. Q. Bates did some clever trick cycling. Fanny Thatcher and Belle Williams sang and danced. Andy Lewis and company presented an original character creation entitled Tout, which gave the audience an opportunity of enriching their vocabulary of "turf slang." Al Reeves himself delighted the habitués with his excellent banjo performance and witty songs. The performance concluded with a spirited rendering of the burletta Whirl-I-Fun, in which Miss Louise Auber as Flossie Fleeceum took first honours.

AVENUE.—Harry Davis's stock company produced Madeline Lucette Ryley's four-act comedy The Altar of Friendship, with William Courtenay as Richard Arbuthnot and Jane Kennark as Sally Sartoris.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Miss Mabel M'Kinley, a niece of the late President, headed the list on Monday, and sang feelingly, among other songs, one of her own composition, namely "I can but think of you," and "Karama." The Mansfield-Wilbur company in a vaudeville called The Shadow received warm applause. The Brobst Trio sang and danced. The Chameroys did some clever acrobatic work. John Geiger, the trick violinist, proved deserving of his name (Geiger means violinist in German). Swan and Barnbard did some eccentric drilling. A very enjoyable number was Marcel's living art studies and bas reliefs. Jack Norworth, Zeno, Carl and Zeno, Matthews and Ashley, and Cooper and Robinson contributed pleasing items.

THEATRICAL PATENTS.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS

ABERDARE.

NEW THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Z. Andrews.—Mr Edward Neville's company is here this week in The Anarchist Terror. Mr J. Nelson Turner is good as Silas Washington Goldstraw; Mr T. E. O'Connor makes a manly Lieut. Armstrong; Mr Edward Neville in his many rôles is all that can be desired; the part of Ishmael is portrayed in an able manner by Mr Gus Bowerman; Mr Will White is amusing as Mikey Doolan, being ably seconded by Miss Lois Esmond as Kitty Malone; Miss Cecile Byrne does well as Zara; Miss Annie Brunette makes an excellent Marita; and Miss Frances Waring as Columbia Goldstraw shows ability.

ABERDEEN.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; General Manager, Mr Eade Montefiore; Acting-Manager, Mr H. C. Cavanah.—The Girl from Kay's, by Mr George Dance's company, has proved very popular this week. Mr H. C. Barry plays most amusingly as Hoggenheimer, and Miss Simeta Marsden shows much talent in her presentation of Winnie, while Miss Alice Russon makes an excellent appearance in the part of Nora Chalmers. Miss Maisie North is successful as the Maid, and Mr Fred Rolph achieves a decided success as Joseph, the hall porter. All the other parts are capably played. The chorus throughout was strong and well balanced, and the orchestral work was also effective.

PALACE THEATRE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Ernest Sheldon.—The versatile Sisters Sprightly are warmly appreciated, and the Vernon Troupe show conspicuous talent as vocalists, dancers, and instrumentalists. The Tokio Trio also make a distinct success, and Mr George W. Fyvie, an old favourite, dances and sings as effectively as on his former visits. A pleasing element of variety is introduced by Captain Devereaux with his sagacious and highly trained dogs, and among the other artists who appear with success are Mr Frank Cumminger, a popular comedian and dancer, and the Swift Trio, in an extremely dexterous cycling turn. The Palace Bioscope retains its popularity as a notable feature of the entertainment. Miss Jenny Belmore, who is billed for this week, was unable to appear on Monday on account of her luggage having gone astray.

ABERTILLERY.

THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessees, Messrs Arthur Carlton and Sam Duckworth; General and Resident-Manager, Mr Geo. W. Ventom.—This week there is an entire change of programme, the bill of fare being supplied by a variety company. The Sylvines Trio, triple trapeze artistes, and the Manzanares in their horseshoe balancing speciality fairly brings down the house. Miss Fanny Humber, soubrette and instrumentalist, is a charming and clever turn. Mr Frank Tyrrel, speciality dancer; Miss Nellie Vance, serio; and Urquhart, foot balancer and juggler, are pleasing in their respective turns. Mystery Gauze completely mystifies the audience, and receives rounds of applause. Baby Lloyd, the child vocal star, is another clever little artiste who adds considerably to the evening's enjoyment. Sandy and Carl please greatly with their comedy knockabout business.

ACCRINGTON.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr J. E. Barnes.—Mr Frank Lindo and company opened here on Monday with Home, Sweet Home. Mr George F. Black gave an excellent reading of Steven Armitage; Mr Frank Lindo submitted a good performance as David Armitage; Mr Dalton Robertson must be complimented on his acting as Solomon Keary. Miss Marion Wakeford gave a capital rendering of Joan; Miss Ellaline Thorne was at home as Sybil Fay; Miss Fanny Thorn good as Lady Summerton, and Miss Ivy Rochfort an Ideal Dora.

ALDERSHOT.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Clarence Saunes; Resident-Manager, Mr George E. Williams.—There have been one or two amendments in A Chinese Honeymoon since the last visit, which still further add to the attractiveness. In the dressing, too, there is brightness everywhere, and the excellence of the many musical parts of the performance is noticeable. Miss Gwennie Harcourt as Fi-Fi is exceedingly funny, and she sings a new song about "Methuslem" which is well received. Mr Helier Le Maistre's is a fine impersonation of the Emperor, his powerful voice being heard to advantage. Mr Gus Wheatman's is a capital piece of acting as Pineapple, his funny rendering of "In that happy land" provoking much amusement. Mr Rudolph Kloss gives an excellent enactment of Chippie Chop; a charming Soo-Soo comes from Miss Nellie Wigley; and Mrs Pineapple has a winsome and capable exponent in Miss Dot Stephens. Mr Lennox Barry does well as Hi-Lung. A meritorious impersonation of Tom Hatherton is given by Mr Clifford Morgan; whilst as the official mother-in-law Miss Elsie Carew's efforts are acceptable.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr Armstrong Fairbairn.—Mr Bert Coote is revisiting here this week with his company in The Fatal Wedding. Miss Gwynn Herbert as the wrongfully divorced wife acts with much tenderness. Miss Gertrude Harrison finds admirable scope for the portrayal of the worst trials of woman's nature as the adventuress, and quite succeeds. Mr Creagh Henry is sufficiently heartless and callous as the villain, and the drollery of Mr E. Morgan as a French butler, Mr W. Westwood as a German lodging-house keeper, and of Miss Marie Hassell as Bridget, an Irish cook, is irresistible. As the child actress, Jessie, known as the little mother, Miss Rosie Dane plays with remarkable confidence and exceptional intelligence.

ASHTON HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr Chas. Revill; Director of Entertainments, Mr F. Willmot.—The Bros. Artois, in their comedy bar act, are the main feature of the programme here this week. Very amusing are the ditties of Eric Graham; the Weirs are expert vocal duettists and dancers; Almon, the hand jumper, is remarkably clever in his novel act; Susie Harris charms as a descriptive artiste; the Albano Troupe furnish a most interesting item with their refined musical speciality act; Mollie Doon warbles her songs with evident delight to her admirers; Johnny Holland and company take the audience greatly with a screaming absurdity entitled My Friend the Boots; and the Hippodrome Bioscope projects some interesting pictures.

AYR.

NEW GAIETY THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry W. Day.—With his London successes thick upon him, the Scottish miracle-worker and electrical wonder, Dr. Walford Bodie, inaugurated a six nights visit on Monday most auspiciously, both as regards the welcome from the front of the house and his own work, for he was successful in curing a little girl of a paralysis of four years' standing. Her right leg and arm were quite limp, useless, and shrunken, but in the course of a very few minutes, and in full view of the audience, he had the limbs so far restored as to enable the little one to swing her arm round and move her foot. The cure was completed by the application of electro-magnetism, or, as the Doctor styles it, Bodic force, whereby electricity was transmitted to the affected limbs through the doctor himself. All the time in which the cure was being effected the little girl's face was radiant with pleasure, and after the first few steps, aided by Dr. Bodie, she broke from him in her joy and ran to her father, who was waiting in the wings. This climax brought down the house, and enhanced the reputation of Dr. Bodie as a miracle worker. During his séance he had some fifteen persons under the mesmeric influence, and much amusement was got out of them, particularly one, whom the Doctor made to believe he was no less a personage than Lord Rosebery. As the Doctor says, he gives full value as an entertainment before he appears himself, and for this variety show he has a very capable company with him. Tom Dewar, comedian, was refreshingly novel in his style, and his songs were well received. The same may be said of Norman Mills, who has a hearty, breezy manner, and is smart and neat in his patter and business. The Sisters Lyle were well received, and their dancing was very clever. La Petite Bella sang her action songs with vigour and go, and received an enthusiastic recall. Little Dolly Robson, the Coatbridge child wonder, sings like a thrush—a truly wonderful voice in one so young—but she has over and above a delightful presence, and can dance daintily. The Garden Troupe of pipers and dancers were well received, and a novelty, as far as this town is concerned, was found in Les Fontaines' marionette palace, where on a stage upon the stage, with full scenery and settings, the dolls were cleverly manipulated, and the smart work of those handling the strings was cheered loudly on the drop of the miniature curtain.

BACUP.

NEW COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr Richard Nightingale.—Mr Ian Maclaren's company commenced a week's engagement here on Monday with A Fatal Crown. The part of Lord Guildford Dudley is taken by Mr Ian Maclaren, who submits a powerful interpretation of the leading rôle; Mr Leonard R. Montgomery as Herne, the wizard, gives a capital delineation of the character; Mr Max Jerome as the Earl of Northumberland is acceptable; Simon Reynard is capably portrayed by Mr Henry Howard; Mr Harold Batt as Izzod Clay supplies the comic element; and Mr Willie Atom as Xit is amusing. Miss Margaret Savill undertakes the rôle of Lady Jane Grey with telling force; Miss Maude Anderson is sufficiently dignified as Mary Tudor; Miss D. Mackenzie makes a pleasing Barbara; and Miss Maud Esmond gives an amusing rendering of Dame Placida.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.

ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr George Stone.—Messrs E. H. Knight and George Denham's company is paying a return visit with The Grip of Iron. The Jagon of Mr Fred Powell is again a most distinguished and masterly performance; Mr George Denham is a very good Paul Blanchard; and Mr Charles Grant a fine Lorentz De Ribas. Mr Harry Agar-Lyons as Alphonse De Coucou and Mr John Brittain as Dodot play with much verve and agreeable contrast in style. Miss Annie Thomas as Mdlle. Delaney, Miss Georgie De Lara as Cora Simmonet, Miss Nellie Grant as Sophie Blanchand, Miss Hilda Baynton as Marie Guerin all play with grace and spirit, and Miss Mabel Middleton is an acceptable Babbette.

TIVOLI.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Stage-Manager, Mr Tom Whiting.—Henri Abdis, with his canine circus, tops the bill here this week, and his dogs go through an amusing performance; Marvello's cockatoos and macaws perform some clever feats; Atroy gives a good show as a juggler; Viola submits a refined musical entertainment, which is well received; and Ray Stella, comedienne; Cattle and Shadow, with amusing patter, and Will Hubbard, comedian, also contribute.

BATH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr Lewis A. Long.—Mr Mouillot's company is here in Old Heidelberg. Congratulations have been showered upon Mr George F. Tully for his admirable presentment of Karl Heinrich. Mr Clifford Bown as Dr. Jüttner was excellent; Mr Lionel Gadson was amusing as Lutz; and Mr Ivan Mavis played well as Schölermann. The officials of the Court were carefully portrayed by Messrs Eric Phillips, Frank M. Cross, Alexander Shinnie, and W. Prince Wells. Others who deserved praise were Mr Alec Murray (Kellermann) and Mr A. M. Moore (Rudler). Kathie had a pleasing and vivacious representative in Miss Irene Lavington.

PALACE THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Trussell.—The Seltina Troupe of acrobats do their daring feats here with ease and finish; the rope dancing of the Australian Twin Sisters Anderson proves very entertaining; Gwennie Hasto is a bewitching comedienne; the vaulting of the Bros Levett is watched with interest; the Sisters Jonghmann's harmonised singing is above the usual standard; Fred Dunstone, eccentric comedian, is a "big" favourite; Steeley and Dowton cause amusement by their acrobatic comedy act; and Blanche Haddon sings a couple of ballads with success.

BARNSLEY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr A. C. Mitchell.—Messrs Carson and Granville's company in Defending his Honour is here this week. Mr John Davidson as Douglas Bryce submits a fine delineation; Mr Clifton Boyne is good as Stephen Graid; George Duncan is ably played by Mr Charles H. Herbert; Jack Damish is safe in the hands of Mr John Hignett; Mr F. L. Arthur is responsible for Richard Verison; and Mr Kenneth Black, jun., appears as Dick Verison. Miss F. Melrose-Millet plays excellently in the rôle of Ethel Bryce; Mrs Verison is embodied with much success by Mrs Edmond Lyons, and Miss Lilian Matthews is at home as Trixie Lucien.

PUBLIC HALL.—Manager, Mr Jasper Redfern.—In addition to the pictures at this hall the following artistes contribute:—Sleath and Aldin, in a refined sketch, entitled Dashing Duval; Sisters Volbecque, duettists and dancers; John Callan, comedian; Miss Helene Stewart, soprano vocalist; Charlton Howarth, in illustrated songs; Tom Green, vocal comedian. "The Relief of Pekin," a juvenile military spectacle, in which fifty local children take part, completes the programme.

BIRKENHEAD.

THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessee, Mr W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Pell.—Mr C. Lubbock's company is here, in The Flood Tide. Madame De Naugaze is prominent with a clever rendering of the Baroness Pitchioli, and Miss Kathleen Russell as Marie Pitchioli is also admirable. Captain Jack Champion is spiritedly performed by Mr William Seguin, the Earl of Sutton is creditably enacted by Mr Conrad Franklyn, and Mr Alec Flood is a typical Dick Champion. A competent cast also includes Mr Maitland Marler, Mr E. W. Maule Cole, Miss Marie Wright, and Miss Seymour Hodges.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Pell.—George Harris and Fred Terriss's company, in Why Woman Sins, is meeting with success here. Mr William Campbell plays Lieut. Harry Maxwell with much skill; Captain Herbert Carlton is well embodied by Mr Fred Terriss; and Jim Rainbird is in the capable hands of Mr Lionel Ellis. Miss Gussie Everett is a realistic and efficient Ida Valetti, and other parts are in good hands.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr D. J. Clarke.—Bella and Bijou, the popular and entertaining vaudeville artistes, are fulfilling one of many engagements here, and well maintain their excellent reputation. Mr Percy Honri, a talented concertina soloist and a versatile artiste, is a decided acquisition, and the Glenroy Troupe of dancers present a most acceptable turn. Mr and Mrs Finden are well received in their sketch, A Desperate Remedy, and the New Macs, capital knockabouts; the Dorrells, duettists and dancers; Mr A. G. Spry, comedian; Miss Frances Haskoll, in the "Vocal Chameleon;" and Mr E. J. Sheldon, comedian, also contribute materially to the programme. Mr Ernest Denney is musical director.

BEDFORD.

ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter R. Wilson.—For the first three nights of this week Mr Frederick E. Philpott's company is presenting The Girl from Japan, by Wilfred Carr. Mr Colet Dare, the composer, is acting as musical director. Mr S. Lockridge is well suited to the part of Lord Allenbury, Mr Alfred Wood capably undertakes the rôle of Sir Mulberry Flippington, the difficult part of General Baugh is well sustained by Mr Percy Baverstock, and the Rev. John Smith finds a good exponent in Mr Ernest Spalding. Mr Tom E. Sinclair makes an excellent Horatio Blinks. Miss Nellie Jackson ably impersonates Polly Perkins, and Miss B. Deane as Countess De La Rue leaves nothing to be desired. Miss Nellie Valentine is a decided success as Violet Meadows. The Belle of New York came on Thursday.

BELFAST.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr James M'Cann.—We are favoured this week with a visit from the charming actress Miss Nina Boucicault and her company in the play entitled A Man and His Wife. Miss Boucicault appeared in the rôle of Mrs Ainslie, and achieved much success by her remarkably clever acting. Mr C. Aubrey Smith furnished a very skilful impersonation of Roger Ainslie. It would indeed be difficult to excel Mr C. M. Hallard in his impersonation of Sir Noel Drage, and he deservedly shared the honours by his finished study of the wealthy young baronet. Mr E. H. Kelly submitted a humorous impersonation of Lord Francis Hillyer. Miss Blanche Wilmot and Miss Beatrice Coleman acquitted themselves with distinction as Lady Wickham and Violet Antrobus; and praise must be accorded Miss Enid Spencer Brunton's conception of the rôle of Adela Antrobus. Other rôles were capitally sustained by Miss Annie Hill and Messrs Reginald Dance, Charles Ware, and George Silver. Jerry and a Sunbeam, a capital little curtain-raiser, was played with much success by Miss Annie Hill and Mr Reginald Dance.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing Director, Mr Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr John P. Beardmore.—Mr Charles Matthews heads the bill at this popular theatre, and his extraordinary jumping feats have been hailed with enthusiasm. The Caledonian Boys' Orchestra has been very successful in this its second week, the various selections being vociferously encored. The cycling performance by Lotto, Lilo, and Otto is certainly marvellous. Mr Nat Travers, in his unique coster creations, is worthy of much commendation, and the Brothers Lang, funny knockabouts, evoke roars of laughter with their boxing act. The acrobatic act provided by the Brothers Lavelle pleases immensely, and a fine exhibition of dancing has been submitted by Miss Bouverie Pleydell. Others in this first-class bill are Miss Ada Cerito, a vivacious comedienne, and Miss Katie Weston, comedienne.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Brock.—The bill here is headed by Selma Braatz, whose wonderful juggling performance has been most successful. The fine baritone voice of Mr Hamilton Hill has been heard with great pleasure in his various songs, and Carl and Carmanelli appear in their clever musical transformation act. The Olive Trio command success with their vocalism, and a big hit has been made by that droll comedian Mr Ernest Rees. Mr Harry Bickley's eccentric songs are also a feature, and the bill is completed by the Sisters Oswald, duettists and dancers; and Miss Georgina Leonard, burlesque actress. Mr Brock's benefit took place on Thursday, a well-deserved compliment to his courtesy and efficiency.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General Manager, Mr Henry T. Downs.—The chief attraction at this old-established hall is provided by the Okito Family, who appear in their wonderful act, which has been remarkably successful. Miss Ada Marjutti is a clever contortionist, her feats being graceful and finished; and the comic songs of Mr Harry Grey are decidedly amusing. The acrobatic performance of the Brothers Ferras forms an immense attraction, and Mr Shirley Leggins's tuneful voice has been heard to great advantage. The wonderful pyramid and spar performance by Messrs Marti and Juliette creates enthusiasm, and Carr and Rose are unquestionably a most entertaining duo. Also appearing with every element of success are Miss Lena Banff, a vivacious comedienne, and Mr Fred Cairburn, comedian.

BILSTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Harry Battersby; Manageress, Miss Grace Battersby.—Fiends of London, presented by Mr Herbert Fuller's company, is the attraction here, Mr Fuller himself cleverly undertaking the part of Bob Archer. A good portrayal of Laurie Christie is given by Miss Agnes Collier, Mr D. C. King's Captain Crawley proves interesting, capital service comes from Mr H. Evan Gibbon as Peter Shaik and Mr Hugh Carmichael as Joe Ormerod, and as the gipsy Sophie Slade Miss Nelson Ramsay wins golden opinions. On Friday The Sorrows of Satan was underlined for presentation.

BLACKPOOL.

HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General Manager, Mr J. R. Huddlestone.—A welcome visitor here is Mr Edward Terry, whose presence this week along with an able company is attracting large audiences. The House of Burnside was selected for Monday night, and Mr Terry supplied a masterly portrayal of Richard Burnside. He was well supported by Mr Arthur Cornell as Robert Parminter, Miss Daisy Murch as Marion Burnside, Miss Beatrice Terry as Margaret, Mr A. Hylton Allen as Jack Morrow, and Miss Beatrice Selwyn as Betty. Sweet Lavender was played on Tuesday, when Mr Terry was seen at his best as Dick Phenyl, and Miss Beatrice Terry was sweet and charming in the title-rôle. The Passport, Love in Idleness, The Telephone, and Bardell v. Pickwick have also been played.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr T. Sergenson.—Madame Sherry, played by Mr George Dance's company, is the fare provided here this week. Mr J. Robert Hale plays the part of Andrew M'Sherry with considerable success, and Mr F. W. Ford does well as the gallant Colonel M'Sherry. Miss Georgina Delmar sings sweetly as Catarina, whilst Miss Mabel Sealby acquits herself well as Mistigrette and Miss Lily Elsie makes a suitable Barbara. Mr Ivan Berlyn (Gustave) and Mr Arthur Stroud (Leonard) do as much as possible with their respective parts. The chorus is exceptionally powerful.

HIPPODROME.—Lessees, Signor Pepi and Co.; Manager, Mr T. P. Duignan.—Fred Ginnett with his amusing sketch, Rejected Remounts, tops the bill here this week. Another clever sketch is supplied by the Three Missouris; Cribb and Cribb appear in an original burlesque, entitled After the Ball; the Vivians contribute a musical travesty; and Les Belles Americaines are a charming quartet of vocalists and dancers. Edie Maddison, comedienne; Resford and Hunt, comedians; Hurman, juggler; Rose Waller, vocalist; Katawela, cycle expert; and Wat Tyler, character vocalist, are also in the bill.

PALACE.—General Manager, Mr G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr Fred Waller.—A programme of all-round excellence is supplied here this week. Edwin Barwick, in his scenas, is retained another week. Florence and Lillian give a clever musical turn. Arthur Albert sings well, and Henri Cazman does not belie his comprehensive description as "the one man music hall." Venie Clements, comedienne; Florence Yeaman, comedienne; Brothers Onda, acrobats; Lanton and Lane, singers and dancers; Brothers De Wynne, athletes, and Will Onda and Co., in a sketch also appear.

BIRMINGHAM.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs Rodgers, Limited; Manager, Mr J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr Henry Johnston.—The Orchid, with its rich colouring and clever, capable cast, naturally came in for a hearty welcome on its reappearance here on Monday. Miss Coralie Blythe is dainty, mellifluous, and always delightfully charming as Lady Violet. Miss Gertrude Gillian as Josephine acts and sings in a captivating manner. Miss Irene Verona is richly humorous as Caroline Vokins, and Miss Ethel Griffies is successful as Zelie, the adventuress. Mr George Gregory purveys the humours of Meakin in a rich and irresistible fashion. Mr Sidney Vincent as Zaccary wins himself a high place in the cast. Mr Ellis Ogilvie as Mr "Chesterton" is cordially recognised, and Mr Lawrence Grossmith as the Hon. Guy adds considerably to the humour.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr V. Turner.—Joseph Entangled is viewed with much favour here, and the excellent character studies contained therein have afforded true delight. Mr H. B. Warner as the "innocent suspect," Joseph, acts his part blamelessly, and Miss Mona K. Oram is no less perfect as Lady Verona. Other true types are found in Mr and Mrs Harry Tavender, respectively played by Mr Horace Lane and Miss Shelley Calton with much attention to detail; Jermyn Pycroft, excellently rendered by Mr Lawrence Grant; Gerald Fanmere, the "go-between," acted with much success by Arthur Bell; Prof. Tofield, well enacted by Mr Cecil Brooking; and Hardolph Mayne, played by Mr Stanley W. Ashworth, who could scarcely be excelled in the part. Mr Everard Digby and Miss Claire Cavendish shine in their parts, and the curtain-raiser, As Played Before His Royal Highness, is much relished.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Lester Collingwood.—The Temptress, which is played by Messrs Gordyn and Gelling's company, has stirred and beguiled the patrons of the Alexandra to the utmost degree. Miss Violet Craufurd as the beautiful but unscrupulous Stella moves the audience to admiration as well as indignation by her powerful acting. Miss Vashti Wynne is sympathetic and popular in the rôle of Marion. Miss Ada M. Ryder gives a powerful presentment of the mad wife. Mr Percy Ballard arouses much resentment by his clever acting as Lucas Denbigh, and Mr George Dalper as the hero is heartily cheered. Mr Henry W. Hatchman presents the lion-tamer in a picturesque manner, and Messrs Herbert Williams, Allen Charles, Johnny Chippendale, and Miss Mattie Everett provide the lighter and brighter moments.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Walter Melville; Resident-Manager, Mr J. Hindle Taylor.—A Disgrace to Her Sex proves fully as engrossing a production as any of Mr Melville's previous studies, and received the full support and applause of a crowded house. As Hilda Valley, the "disgrace to her sex," Miss Grace Heywood is not altogether despised; on the contrary, great admiration is expressed for the clever actress. The Misses Winnie Tempest and Nellie Lucas are charming in their respective rôles of Mabel and Mildred. Mr Phil Harper well sustains the part of Jack Dawes, Mr Augustine Knight ably acts the part of a blackmailing French tutor, and Mr Eugene Santley is successful as David Carrington. Some clever comedy is supplied by Miss Madge Yates and Mr A. Byron as Bella and Barnaby respectively.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Owner and Manager, Mr Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr Ben Sydney.—Mafeking thoroughly justifies the good report that preceded it, a report probably based on Mr Henry Bedford's other good works. As Colonel Playden Howell, commanding at Mafeking, Mr Bedford makes a powerful impression, and is enthusiastically cheered. Mr Robert Seymour as the spy, Van Haag, gains a full measure of success. Miss Bessie Bedford idealises the part of Alice Leigh with her delightful acting; and Mr Sid Bedford in a comical rôle, that of Tommy Atkins, wins much applause. The piece is excellently staged.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr Charles Barnard; Manager, Mr Dan Barnard.—The Best Must Win, which is now being played here with the utmost success by Messrs Draycott and Peppin's company, affords exciting sensations. Mr Charles Draycott essays the leading part of "the Panther," and the volume of hisses which greet his nefarious deeds are a tribute to his powers of dissimulation. The "Panther's" satellite, Juan Minos, is cleverly delineated by Mr Oliver Round, vice Mr H. B. Peppin, who now acts in front of the house. Mr Robert Watson plays the hero Paul with sterling ability. Miss Lilian Loyde as the heroine Denise acts with a charming grace that begets much sympathy, and Mr Harry Harrop as Jacques and Miss Maude Elliston as Suzette divert the audience with some clever comedy scenes.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr A. W. Matcham.—Chung Ling Soo, the Chinese conjuror, who is well-known in Birmingham, mystifies large audiences here. The sketch presented by the Desmores is highly amusing; Carrie Lawrie and her Juveniles are paying a return visit; Dan Crawley and Frank Seeley are amusing comedians; Tambo and Tambo, in their musical entertainment, are much admired, as also are Ford and Hanson. Some smart Creole dancing is performed by the Pueblo Bros. Lilian Bishop, male impersonator, and Harry Sheldon, tenor, are also worthy of mention.

GAIETY THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr Albert Bushell.—Ray Wallace is repeatedly encored for impersonations of various artistes; De Dio in her creation, "Terpsichore's Dream," is greatly admired; the George Bonhair Troupe of Risley acrobats are among the best we have seen; and Bobby and Blank, in their musical act, are entertaining. Charles Austin, W. H. Clemart, ventriloquist; May Henderson, Fred Lincoln, Ted Lambert, and a series of animated pictures complete the programme.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr Thos. Barrasford.—An attractive programme is submitted this week, the most prominent turn being Rosina Casselli, with her Chihuahua dogs. De Gracia's elephants are most interesting; George Gilbey and the Waldrons are loudly applauded; Marie Gibson has an excellent soprano voice; the Sisters Silcott appear with their usual success; some smart acrobatic work is performed by Sibb and Sibb; and the Three Dagmars, D. W. Watson, posthorn player; and Grahame and Harrington in a dramatic episode are also in the bill.

BORDESLEY PALACE.—Resident Manager, Mr Edw. Foster.—George Fuller Golden is the star turn this week, his humorous stories being greeted with applause. A smart acrobatic and musical turn is supplied by the Two Tees; Pauline Cook and May Clinton perform some clever sharp shooting; the dances by the Three Cape Girls are far above the average; and Bert Dansie, comedian; Williams and Brown, Phyllis Harewood, Ethel Ra Leslie, Ruth Dorris, and Fred Neiman's animated ventriloquial minstrels are all excellent turns.

BLYTH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr George E. Good.—Mr Edmund Tearle, supported by Miss Kate Clinton, has once more paid a successful visit here. Opening on Monday with The Three Musketeers the well-known tragedian was seen to great advantage as D'Artagnan, Miss Clinton ably undertaking the rôle of Miladi. On Tuesday Ingomar was played, and drew a large audience. The Merry Wives of Windsor, Jeannie Deans, Macbeth, and Virginius are included in the week's bill. Prominent in the company are Miss Mary Campbell, Messrs T. W. Benson, Frederick Barlow, Edward Grogan, and William J. Miller.

BLACKBURN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr Harry Yorke; Business-Manager, Mr Reginald Yorke.—After a long absence, The New Barmaid is paying a return visit here. The fine voice of Mr Harrison Brockbank is heard to advantage in the part of Captain Lovebury; as Bertie White Mr J. B. Montague is the life and soul of the piece; Mr Alexander Loftus as Bertie's brother, William, is also very good; and as Bonsor Mr Albert Weston contributes some eccentric dancing, in which he is ably seconded by Miss Violet Osmund as Dora Heather. The New Barmaid finds an efficient representative in Miss Gladys Elvey. Miss Hilda Blanche (Brenda Louth) and Miss Jean Gilmore (Lady Moulton) are deserving of praise. The company is under the direction of Mr Alexander Loftus.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr Page.—The London Fireman is the attraction here. The names of Arthur Shirley and George Conquest are sufficient guarantees for a well-constructed drama, which is presented by a well-selected company, amongst whom may be mentioned Mr Albert Pringle, Mr E. L. Garside, Mr Frank Hertlie, and Mr Forbes Knowles. The comedy interest is well sustained by Mr Charles Preece and Miss Nellie Garside. Miss Violet Temple and Miss Adeline Raby are also excellent in their respective parts.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr F. Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr Will Murray.—Charles Lee's monkeys and Jake Friedman, the one-man opera, are the principal attractions here this week. The other turns are supplied by Bicknelle, clay manipulator; Ted Young, Ada Twibell, Lily Black, the Bros. Ashley, and Ruby Winston.

BOLTON.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Hermann.—A return visit of Mr C. P. Levilly's company with the comic opera Amorelle is being made here. Mr Eric Thorne, in his impersonation of Dr. Napoleon Bonaparte Crow, keeps the house in continual laughter; Miss Stella Gastelle successfully appears in the part of Amorelle (Ripples); Miss Kitty Cavendish is a dainty Lesbia; Miss Madge Avery gives a clever and amusing impersonation of Marina; and Mr F. Seymour is very good as old Father Dotard. Other characters are in the hands of Messrs Robert Fairbanks (the Count of Cideaux), William Griffin (Boissey), John Doran (Jules), Newton Ide (François), Gerald Clifford (Lupin), Maurice Carlton (Alphonse), and Miss May Bradbury (Jeanette).

GRAND THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry Kenyon.—On a strong bill the principal turn is Miss Julie Mackay, who is on a return visit with a new répertoire of songs, as well as some old favourites; and supporting her are W. J. Churchill, comedian; Will H. Fox, in his satire "Paddy-whisky;" the Dainton Girls, refined character comedians; Frank Staley, actor-vocalist; the Brothers Redmond, knockabouts; Daisy Morell, vocalist and burlesque artiste; Rowland Hill, curious comedian; the Picquays, in their unique and picturesque acrobatic display; and the Imperial Bioscope.

BOSCOMBE.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr F. Mouillot; Manager, Mr Rowland Stewart.—A great event for local playgoers has been the visit here this week of Miss Ellen Terry and her company in a répertoire, of which Much Ado About Nothing was chosen for Monday. As it is quite impossible to say anything new in praise of Miss Terry's inimitable rendering of the rôle of Beatrice, one can only record that she cast the spell of her charming presence over the audience no whit less surely than she has always done by her vivacious embodiment of the character. Miss Terry, too, was well supported by her company. Mr Charles Thursby made an excellent impression as Don Pedro, and Mr T. A. Shannon's sinister Don John was in admirable contrast. Mr E. Harcourt Williams was a capital Claudio, and Mr Matheson Lang's Benedick was a great success. Mr George Fitzgerald gave a good rendering of Leonarto. Mr John Willes raised many a hearty laugh with his Dogberry, and excellent also were Mr J. S. Hamilton as Antonio and Mr Alfred Bucklaw as Borachio. Mr Pendred Price sang well as Balthazar. The quiet sincerity of Miss Hutin Britton's impersonation of Hero showed her to great advantage, and a word of praise must be given to the beautiful scenery and rich dresses with which the production is provided. The Merchant of Venice, The Good Hope, and Nance Oldfield are also billed.

BOURNEMOUTH.

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs David Allen and Sons; Lessee, Mr Mouillot; Manager, Mr Rowland Stewart.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison's company is paying a first visit with The Money-Makers. Mr Allen Thomas gives a capital impersonation, and is characteristically Scotch as Matthew M'Dougall; Mr Frank Lacy plays easy and self-possessed as Captain Archie Fitzgerald; Mr Edward Bonfield acts with excellent effect the rôle of Charles Clifton; Mr Edward Sidney is highly amusing as the sporting Fred; Mr Townsend Whitling scores in the character of a Butcher; and Mr C. H. Hartley as Inspector O'Hara, Mr George L. Wilson as Sergeant-major Dolan, Master L. Lock as a Messenger Boy, and others in the male cast contribute to the general success. Miss Muriel Ashwynne is natural and charming as Dot; Mabel is acted with spirit and verve by Miss Lorna Lawrence; Miss Frances Davie's Bella is instinct with mischief-making spirit and gaiety; and Miss Mary Griffiths is well suited as the housekeeper, Mrs Bannerman. Miss Violet Ley as Baby Berkeley delivers her long speech in the second act with elocutionary effect.

SHAFTESBURY HALL.—Mr T. J. West's "Living Pictures" have entered upon their last week, and much regret is felt at their approaching departure. New subjects have been again added of local and general interest.

BROUGHTON.

VICTORIA, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr C. Smith-Wilkes.—Mr C. Emlyn-Jones, tenor, and his Emerald Ladies' Quartette had a flattering reception on Monday from a large and appreciative audience. Plenty of amusement was provided in the sketch, Billy's Blunders, by the Schallers. Frank Caffrey, Irish character vocalist; Les Sprays (Marie and Minnie), Continental dancers; Billy Tucker, ball puncher; Amy Elvira, burlesque actress; Robert Gilbert's troupe of dogs and cats; Esme Gordon, comedienne and dancer; and Walter Gurney, comedian, also do well in their various turns. The new series of films on the Matagraph are excellent.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.

NEW THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr John Waller.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr Mark Blow's company is presenting A Sailor's Sweetheart here this week. Lieutenant Chas. Clive, R.N., is represented in a manly and telling manner by Mr Alfred Goddard; Mr Chas. Stafford is a decided success as Admiral Sefton; and Mr Wm. Stoneham does well as Captain Mayland, R.N.R. Philip Pemberton, the villain of the piece, is played effectively by Mr Robert Faulkner; Tim Kelly, A.B., is suitably placed in the hands of Mr Edwin Millins; and Mr C. Douglas Carlile as Stephen Lucas thoroughly realises his responsibilities. Mr C. A. Johnstone is pathetic as the Rev. Robert Clive; Mr A. C. Blunt as John James and Mrs J. W. Braithwaite as Mrs Penbury are both the cause of much mirth; Miss Evelyn Shaw is good as Phœbe Pembury; and nothing but praise can be given to Miss Adah Barton for her finished and winsome acting as Grace Mayland. The scenes are striking and effective.

BRADFORD.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr John Hart; General Manager, Mr T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Richardson.—Mr George Dance's company is paying a return visit here this week with A Country Girl, and the popular musical comedy had a capital reception on Monday. Mr St. John Hamund as Mr Raikes gives an excellent rendering; as Barry Mr Chas. R. Walenn is diverting, and with Miss Maud Prenton in the part of Madame Sophie he makes a hit in the "Chick" duet. Miss Daisy Le Hay, with much brightness, fills the part of Nan; Miss Maud Boyd renders the charming songs allotted to Marjory Joy with excellent effect; Miss Ethel Negretti is charming as Princess Melaneh; Sir Joseph Verity is a capable effort on the part of Mr Joe Nightingale; Mr Robert Michaelis is capital as Geoffrey Challoner; and the other characters are satisfactorily filled.

Prince's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Francis Laidler.—Mr John Wainwright is appearing here once again as Tom Robinson in the evergreen drama It's Never Too Late to Mend. Mr Alfred Calver ably fills the part of the hero, George Fielding; as Susan Merton Miss Kitty Carew is charming and convincing; Jackey is a clever impersonation by Mr Fred Owen; and Miss Millie Milton wins sympathy as the waif. As the Rev. Francis Eden Mr Hornby Warburton is effective; and the tyrannical Hawes is well represented by Mr W. R. Wilson.

Empire.—Moss' Empires, Limited; Resident-Manager, Mr E. Crawford Swann.—The Werner-Amoros Troupe in An Artiste's Studio introduce some smart juggling and acrobatic work. Good turns are also submitted by Juan and M'Que, and the Parros Brothers, smart equilibrists; Cassie Walmer, in clever sand-dancing; Ida Brophy, comedienne; the Wartenburg Brothers, double-foot experts; George Reeves, comedian; Brett and Orford, in their well-acted sketch, Love Birds; a monologue by Mr R. H. Douglass; the Welburns, with "patter" and humour; and the Oallaw Trio, who are on a return visit.

Palace Theatre.—Lessee, Mr Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr E. Harrison.—Lottie Lennox, the smart and clever comedienne, has made a hit here this week with her well-chosen and well-rendered songs. Grey and Welford, comedians, give a merry turn as burlesque boxers; Dubois, the "man-monkey," is distinctly clever; and Lily Lassah is a dainty comedienne. The St. Johns are seen to advantage in a comedy musical act and speciality dance; and capital turns are submitted by Lauri Wylie and George Prince, the Clayton Twins, and E. B. Seener's Charkassan Troupe of vocalists and dancers.

BRIDLINGTON.

Royal Victoria Theatre.—Manager, Mr Charles Palmer.—The patrons of this theatre have had a treat this week by the visit of the Moody-Manners' opera company, who opened on Tuesday night with Gounod's opera of Faust. The company is an excellent all-round one, and fully sustains the reputation which has been deservedly gained by Mr Manners for his thorough attention to every detail of the works he presents to his patrons. The chorus is well up to its work, and the scenery and the orchestra, under the direction of Herr Frankenstein, has been well rehearsed. Mr Beulah Cox gave an admirable rendering of Faust, both singing and acting with artistic effect. Mr Frederick Clendon was good as Mephistopheles, his fine voice being heard to advantage. The character of Valentine found an able exponent in Mr Wilfred Heath, and Miss Gertrude Alexander gave full effect to the part of Siebel, her singing being greatly admired. Miss Grace Nicholl was a charming Marguerite, and received quite an ovation at the conclusion of the opera, as did also Mr Coe and Mr Clendon. Miss Lyle scored as Martha, and Mr Sandbrook was a good Walter. On Wednesday that favourite opera The Bohemian Girl was played, with Mr Harry Thornton as Count Arnheim, Mr James Macklane as Thaddeus, and Mr F. Clendon as the Devilshoof. Miss Ethel Cadman was the Arline, and Miss Eileen Hope the Queen of the Gipsies. On Thursday Il Trovatore was the attraction, with Mr Coe as Manrico, Mr Heath as the Count, Miss Grace Nicholl as Leonora, and Miss Alexander as Azucena.

Royal Prince's Parade.—Manager, Mr Charles Palmer.—The Royal Viennese Orchestra, under Herr Winternitz's bâton, commenced the last week of its season's engagement on Monday, when large audiences assembled to listen to their excellently rendered programmes, and to the songs so capitally sung by Mr Herbert Brown, whose musical baritone voice quickly established him as a favourite.

New Spa and Gardens.—Manager and Secretary, Mr Henry Hague.—Mr Sydney James and his Strolling Players are again the attraction here, and their varied programmes of songs, dances, and sketches are capitally rendered; Miss Madeline Rossiter's songs and dances are always redemanded, and she is an accomplished banjoist; Mr G. Desmond's songs and dances are excellent; Mr Oldbury Brough's musical sketches are well done; and Miss Seymour James is a great favourite.

People's Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr Wm. Morgan.—The Waterloo Pierrots having finished their season at the Summer Gardens are appearing here this week with success. They give some clever turns. George Hyam is a very eccentric comedian; Charles Danton gives a really good speciality act called Night Duty; J. Bath is a clever paper manipulator; Syd Hinds' character songs are well rendered, and J. W. Ellison is an admirable descriptive vocalist. That really original comedian, Charles Beanland, gives some amusing items, and the company appears in a round of laughable farces. The Edison George Cinématograph shows some well taken pictures; and prizes are given nightly for persons who recognise their own features in a series of snap-shot pictures thrown on the screen.

BRIGHOUSE.

Albiet Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr T. Morton Powell; Business-Manager, Mr M. Manley.—Mr Horace Stanley and his powerful company in the sensational drama entitled The 10 30 Down Express are again the attraction here. Mr Stanley is as funny as ever as Sam Wagstaff, and excellent also are Messrs Harry T. Wood, Scott Leighton, and Misses Adelaide Clare and Evelyn M. Walton.

BRIGHTON.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr Harcourt M. Beryl.—Mr Laurence Irving and company are here this week with Richard Lovelace. Mr Laurence Irving gives an excellent impersonation of Richard Lovelace; Miss Mabel Hackney is a charming Lucy Sacheverell; Mr W. E. Ashcroft acquits himself effectively as Col. Martin Hawley, Mr Michael Sherbrooke makes a capital Mr Porter; Miss Campbell Bradley is successful as Mistress Porter; while Mr Henry Brocker renders good service as Alderman Sacheverell. The play is preceded by Daisy's Escape.

Grand Theatre.—Under the control of Mr Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr W. F. Crowe.—Mr Ernest Carpenter may be warmly and deservedly congratulated upon the improvement he has effected in this theatre. Good houses are the rule; and there is no exception this week, where Under the Russian Flag occupies the boards, and is represented by Messrs Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's No. 1 Company. Mr Walter Howard gives a masterly impersonation of Captain Demetrius; Mr F. W. Freeman is a vigorous Ivan Romanoff; Mr George Arthur is forcible and realistic as the villainous Michael Romanoff; Miss Ada Champion is a refined and sympathetic Vera Vassiloff; Miss Agnes Howard makes a bright and charming Ogarita; and Miss Ellen Snow displays finished acting as Luka Marischka. Mr Frederick Harker's Wolf Marischka is well played, and much amusement is afforded by Mr Hal Ford as Peter Poluski and Mr Alfred Bennett as Alexis Skopolopki.

Aquarium.—Manager, Mr W. J. Hardy; Secretary, Mr S. H. Andrews.—The I.D.K. Minstrels are fulfilling a return engagement here this week, and are attracting large audiences. The varied and pleasing programmes are sustained by Mr W. W. Whitlock, Mr Walter J. Stevens, Mr Wally Scott, Mr Herbert Norton, Mr Arthur Withers, Mr Paul Gallois, Mr Warren Lawson, Mr Harry Watson, and Mr W. Clements.

Alhambra.—Managing-Director, Mr J. L. Graydon; General Manager, Mr Ernest Lepard.—The following are here this week:—Miss Winifred Hare, charming burlesque actress; Charles Lilburn, eccentric comedian; Edie Rivers, comedienne and dancer; J. W. Rickaby, character comedian; Queen and Le Brun, comedy artistes and dancers; Belle Davis, assisted by her trio of "Pickchick actors;" Katie Butler, character comedienne; Gintara, juggler and top-spinner; Kloof and Ram; sey, comedy artists; Melot Hermann, French conjuror; and the Alhambra Pictures.

Hippodrome Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, Messrs Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—The following are here this week:—Arthur Roberts and company, in Where's the Count? Marie Blythe, vocalist; Monks and Wood, in a musical duologue, Mr Nobody; the Lombarts, in their gymnastic speciality; Miss Amy Augarde, the burlesque actress, in her Napoleon scene; A-Ba-Be, child poseuse; Wills and August, comedy jugglers; Russell Wallett, society entertainer; the Four Sisters Merkel, graceful gymnasts; and animated pictures.

New Palace Pier.—General Manager, Mr C. Thompson Ford; Entertainment Manager, Mr Drew Mackintosh.—Still Waters Run Deep is performed here this week. Mr Matthew Brodie gives an admirable portrayal of John Mildmay; Miss Annie Stalman (Mrs Drew Mackintosh) is distinctly successful as Mrs Sternhold; Miss Nancy Harding's Mrs Mildmay is a pleasing impersonation; Mr Riddell Robinson makes a capital Captain Hawksley; while Mr Tom Macfarlane's Dunbilk and Mr Coningsby's Mr Potter are well played. The comedy is preceded by A Queen's Messenger, in which Mr Drew Macintosh and Miss Annie Stalman are highly effective.

West Pier Pavilion.—Secretary and Entertainment Manager, Mr A. D. Norman.—Mr Leonard Pagden's company is here this week with John Dunford, Bachelor. Mr Leonard Pagden achieves conspicuous success as Mr Dunford; Miss Madge M'Intosh makes an admirable Cynthia Mallowes; Mr Alfred Holles is highly successful as Robert Oxberry; Miss Katie Johnson makes a pleasing Maud Embden; and other characters are ably sustained by Miss Gladys Bartle-Frere, Mr Jas. P. E. Hussey, and Mr Edward H. Bowen.

Concert Hall, West-street.—Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope exhibition of animated pictures is still here, and proves very attractive.

BRISTOL.

Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr James Macready Chute.—Mr Forbes-Robertson and company are here this week. On Monday evening Mice and Men was played. Mr Robertson presented a fine exposition of Mark Embury, and Miss Gertrude Elliott distinguished herself by a clever and interesting impersonation of Poggy. Mr George Simner was blunt and hearty as Roger Goodlake; Mr Frank Gillmore acted well as Captain George Lovell; Miss Auriol Lee played with much care and consistency as Joanna Goodlake; and Miss Ada Milton was capital as Mrs Deborah. The smaller parts were carefully sustained by Mr Leon Quartermaine, Mr J. H. Ryley, Mr Ernest Cosham, Mr Guy Lane, Miss Minnie Griffin, and Miss Dorothy Paget. For Thursday and Friday The Light that Failed was billed.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Ernest Carpenter.—Hardie and Von Leer's company is here with Two Little Vagabonds. The play is well staged, and it is also well played. Miss May Hart and Miss Dorothy Marsden both distinguish themselves by their clever impersonations of Dick and Wally. Mr J. W. Henson gives a good performance of George Thornton; Mr W. Forster is successful as Captain Darville; Mr Alfred Russell is sufficiently aggressive as Bill Mullins; Mr Basil Hillier is successful as John Scarth; and Dido Bunch and the Cough Drop are ably taken by Mr Frank Gordon and Mr Fred Archer. Miss Laura Hansen acts well as Marion Thornton; Miss Nell Oliver does full justice to the rôle of Barbara Scarth; and Miss Marie Pritchard is capitally placed as Biddy Mullins. The parts of lesser importance are all carefully played.

Palace.—Managing Directors, Messrs Livermore Bros.; Resident Manager, Mr Horace Livermore; Secretary, Mr Welchman.—Arthur Lennard, vocal comedian, tops the bill this week. He has some good songs and is much appreciated. The Three Romas present a fine gladiatorial exposition; "The Little Colonel," a musical and dramatic scena, is nicely played by Ernest Montefiore and company; Charles Vincent comedian, obtains applause; the M'Connell Trio are successful with a musical sketch 4 0 a.m.; the Sisters Dacre, duettists, do a pleasing turn; Miss Lizzie Fletcher, comedienne, obtains appreciation; Miss Eily Adair is a capable and vivacious comedienne and dancer; Burnett, quick-change character musician, is successful; and Miss Georgie May sings ballads in good style. The performance concludes with a fine display of Vernon's animated pictures.

Empire.—Proprietor, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—Miss Ethel Arden and Mr George Abel are presenting here a capital sketch, Three of a Kind, supported by a competent company. Mr and Mrs Edward H. Lucas highly distinguish themselves in character sketches from Dickens; Ned Sinclair and Gracie Whiteford have an amusing comedy sketch, Getting Even; Jules Keller does some clever feats, including a sand dance on his hands; Vansart performs several strong acts in the way of bending tenpenny nails, &c., and also presents some fine poses to display his muscular development; Edward Clode sings baritone songs in approved style; Dion Wade, comedian, has some quaint songs; and Miss Marie Elsie is a pleasing serio and dancer. The performance concludes with some interesting animated pictures.

Drill Hall.—There is a good and extensive exhibition of home appliance here, including many interesting novelties. Excellent programmes are arranged by the Royal Artillery Mounted Band, under the direction of Mr Henry Sims; and the Cecilian Glee Singers provide a number of songs and quartets.

BURY (LANCS.)

Theatre Royal and Opera House, Limited.—General Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling.—Mr Fred Karno's company is playing the musical comedy From Saturday to Monday here this week. The company is a strong one, and includes several good comedians. Mr Tom Wallace is good as John Willie Jaggs, and is ably assisted by Mr Austin Lenton as John Willie Jaggs, jun. Mr W. Bentley, Mr Douglas Fox, Mr Percy Parkins, Miss Aggie Morris, and Miss Gladys White. The Daisy Dancing Girls give several good exhibitions of their art.

COATBRIDGE.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietress, Mrs Mary Watson; Manager, Mr C. B. Fountaine.—Miss Marie Dagmar and Mr Fred C. Somerfield's company opened here on Monday with A Life's Revenge. Mr John F. Traynor manfully portrays Paul Starovitch; Mr Somerfield powerfully enacts Prince Boris; Mr Walter Roberts displays ability as Michael Orloff; and Nicholas is ably presented by Mr Sidney Ernest. Miss Dagmar excels in the rôle of Princess Vanda; Miss Katherine Eckhart makes a scheming Marcia Vittoria; Miss May Davis is a clever Daphne Dashaway; and the remaining characters are well cast.

CAMBRIDGE.

New Theatre.—Managing Director, Mr W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—A further attraction for the vacation was presented here on Monday by the appearance of Miss Mary Austin and Mr E. Vivian Edmond's company, in The Golden Ladder. Mr Harry Cullenford as the Rev. Frank Thornhill made an excellent exponent of the straightforward clergyman; Miss Mary Austin played the part of Lilian Grant naturally and gracefully; Mr E. Vivian Edmonds as Michael Sevour made a handsome villain; Mr John Owen was amusing as Samuel Peckaby; Miss Nellie Graham made the most of the small part of Mrs Peckaby; and Mr Graham Winsford was successful as M. Peranzo. The scenery was excellent.

CARDIFF.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Robert Redford.—The Belle of New York is paying its farewell visit here this week. The musical comedy is presented by Mr George Musgrove's company, as on previous visits, and is as attractive as ever. Mr Harry A. Meymott proves an able comedian, and gets plenty of fun out of the character of Ichabod Bronson; Miss Beatrice Lamotte as the Belle sings well and acts charmingly; Mr Philip Leslie plays Harry Bronson in easy style; Mr Frank Lawton as Blinky Bill has a flattering reception in his whistling scene; Mr Max Copland as the polite lunatic is full of quaint humour; and Messrs Selby and Sealy are amusing as the Portuguese Twins. Miss Winnie Browne is a dashing Cora Angelique, and Miss Lillian Digges daintily impersonates Fifi. Mr Cecil Burt is capitaly suited as Doc Sniffkins.

King's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Frank Bateman; General-Manager, Mr Robert Sawin.—As a change, the management has secured the engagement of A Trip to Rum-Fum company, which presents that musical comedy with great success. The company is under the direction of Miss Cissie Moxon. Mr Willie Garvey as Larry O'Hooligan, a son of Erin, is a first-rate Irish comedian, while Mr W. S. Hutchinson as Biddy O'Hooligan acts a difficult rôle with much credit. Miss Moxon as Flossie Kixie has a part which particularly suits her. The rest of the cast is in capable hands.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Lea.—Mr Ernest Shand's songs were fully appreciated and applauded here on Monday. Tom Edwards, the modern Valentine Vox, provided an excellent turn. The Harvey Boys are as smart as ever with the gloves, and prove a decided "hit." The programme is of unusual strength, and includes the Three Laurels, in their orignal speciality on the ping-pong table; Nina Martino, chanteuse; O.H.M.S., in a novel and pleasing performance, introducing their cleverly trained animals; Lio Lill, American-Indian coon artiste; Miss Maud Mortimer, in her ably rendered scena entitled "Destiny;" the two Brothers W. and W. Ethairien, with songs and patter; and Andy Burn, character comedian and high-class dancer.

CASTLEFORD.

Royal.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr Chas. Gadsby; Business Manager, Councillor Henry Masterman.—The Indian Mutiny is being played here this week by Mr Frank E. Burdett's company. Mr H. Ryeland Leigh undertakes the part of Lieut. Manley, and wins much applause for his vigorous and clever portrayal. Mr H. G. Brandon represents Captain Manley, and does well in the rôle. Major Ingleby is ably impersonated by Mr W. S. Tindall. Miss M. Digby has a trying part as Ghuznah, and acquits herself in a powerful and artistic manner. Kate Ingleby is played by Miss Agnes Kingston, who is excellent in the part, while Mrs Major Ingleby is cleverly acted by Miss Kate Bruce. Mr Villier Stanley vividly draws the desperate and unscrupulous character of the traitorous Nebu Singh. From Mr Ernest Keand comes a telling portrayal of Ra Goonga. Abul Khan is well played by Mr J. S. Shedden. Mr Fred Denman's genial humour is very popular as Terry O'Brien.

CHELTENHAM.

Opera House.—General Manager, Mr H. Oswald Redford.—This week The New Clown pays a return visit. Mr Stanley Cooke in the title-rôle gives an accomplished performance; Mr Herbert Greville submits a clever study of the bewildered and vulgar circus proprietor; Miss Kate Yates is a graceful equestrienne; Mr Fred Lake a bibulous clown; Mr Fred Paul as the boisterous human animal is excellent; and Mr James Benwell as the lovelorn Modern Hercules is good. The other parts are in capable hands. The Test is an effective curtain-raiser.

Victoria Rooms.—Lessee and Manager, Mr E. B. Shenton.—Miss Dorothy Oswald's company in East Lynne is a strong attraction this week. Miss Oswald enacts Lady Isabel with every appreciation of the pathetic situations; Mr Herbert Barrs as Archibald Carlyle is good; and Mr Pascoe Bioletti as Francis Levison does well. Mr George Beel as Lord Mountsevern, Mr H. Kennedy as Lawyer Dill, Miss Maggie Stewart as Joyce, Miss Tilly Stewart as Barbara Hare, and the other members of the company are appreciated.

CHESTER.

Royalty.—Proprietor, Mr Milton Bode; Resident-Manager, Mr H. Burgess Harries.—This week an Indian drama entitled Wep-ton-no mah, is being staged. It is full of exciting incidents of Indian life. The leading lady, Go-Won-Go-Mohawk, an American Indian, besides being a very capable actress, is also the authoress of the play. She is supported by a good company.

CHORLEY (LANCS).

Grand Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr G. T. Sante; Secretary, Mr J. Clay.—Mr Henry Furnival is presenting here The Harvest of Sin. Mr Charles H. Lester appears in the dual rôle of Harold Mainwaring and his half-brother Arnold, and his acting is marked by exceeding cleverness. Paul De Brisionere is powerfully rendered by Mr E. Valentine and he is ably assisted by Mr J. F. Millard as Silas Logan. Miss Louisa Peach is very successful as Grace, Paul's wife, and May Mainwaring is charmingly portrayed by Miss P. Hastings. The respective characters of Harold and Gladys Mainwaring are well sustained by Miss Maggie English and Miss K. Willoughby. Mr S. Compton is good as George Mainwaring.

COLNE.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Gerald Harding.—The attraction here the first four nights of this week was the thrilling play At Twelve Midnight, played by Mr and Mrs Charles Clifford's company. Mr Clifford sustains the part of the Wolf in a creditable manner, and as Dick Holland, the detective, Mr H. Griffiths deserves a word of praise. Mr Harry Cooke is amusing as Sammy Bimbo; Miss Maud Camfield in the rôle of Hazel Dene is well received; and as Gertrude De Sage Miss Trevalyan plays well. On Friday and Saturday nights the play On Circumstantial Evidence was staged.

COVENTRY.

Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr Wm. Bennett.—The old favourite Two Little Vagabonds is being played by Hardie and Von Leer's company at this house, and is still a great source of attraction. George Thornton is well represented by Mr Talbot Homewood, and Captain Darville finds a capable exponent in Mr Douglas Cecil. Bill Mullins, alias the Gaffer, is in the hands of Mr H. Hesselgrave. Miss Elene Lonsdale is very sweet and pathetic in her rendering of Marion Thornton, while Miss Edna Eden is responsible for Barbara Scarth. Miss Eleanor Papera makes a capital Biddy Mullins, and Miss Kate Hesselgrave appears as the hospital nurse. The two little vagabonds, Dick and Wally, are represented respectively with great credit by Miss Freda Ettrick and Miss Violet Carr.

CONSETT.

New Theatre.—Lessee, Mr Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr Lloyd Clarance.—Messrs Darcy and Little's company is here this week with On the Stroke of Twelve. Mr Fred Rivers and Mr Fred Guinness as Jack Rutledge and George Bainbridge respectively are most creditable in their respective parts, and as James Horton, the villain of the piece, Mr Creagh Hunt plays well. Mr Harry C. Robinson is good as Henry Rutledge, and as Moses Levi Mr Karl H. Edwards is an excellent Jew. Mr Fred J. Little is the life and soul of the piece as Jasper, and is well supported by Mr Will Bass as Pat Cahill. Miss Nellie Moore is most pleasing as Jess Bainbridge, and Miss Bertha St. Ruth is satisfactory as Doris Rutledge. Miss Elma C. Turner is successful as Marie Bergerre. The variety turns introduced in act three by Mr Fred J. Little, Messrs Bass and Guinness, and Mr Karl H. Edwards are a feature in the play, whilst the singing of Miss B. St. Ruth and the dancing of Miss Nellie Moore is deservedly applauded.

CORK.

Opera House.—Manager, Mr John Horgan.—Mr Silvanus Dauncey and Mr Charles V. France's company opened here in the new comedy, Whitewashing Julia. As Julia Miss Ruth Maitland won great favour and applause in her rendering of the part. Miss Kate Bishop as Lady Pinkney was successful, and gave a good portrayal of the part. Miss Marie Lohr was successful as Trixie Blenkinsop. As William Stillingfleet Mr H. Asheton Tonge gave a clever impersonation. As the Hon. Edwin Pinkney Mr Willox Cadogan pleased, and Mr Carter Bligh filled the part of the Hon. Bevis Pinkney with distinction, and Mr Archibald M'Lean as Mr Samways, the lawyer, was successful. The minor parts were well sustained.

CREWE.

Lyceum Theatre.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr Henry Taylor.—Mr J. Gar Kiddie's company has presented this week, for the first time in Crewe, the musical comedy entitled A Chinese Idyl, and it has met with a cordial reception. The author, Mr Fred Danvers, is exceedingly well placed as the Viceroy, and performs the duties of stage-manager very satisfactorily; Mr D. Dewick as Tang-a-Lang joins to the full in the rollicking fun in which the comedy abounds, and his humorous patter causes much amusement; Mr F. H. Dundas makes a dashing sailor, Lieut. West; the character part of Ching-Foo is powerfully portrayed by Mr J. G. Maine; Pitti Pat is well presented by Miss M. Mainwaring, who is the fortunate possessor of a sweet voice; Miss B. Frank gives an up-to-date picture of Belle Brighton; and Princess Stephanie is embodied by Miss E. Milsted in an exceedingly vivacious manner. The orchestra is ably conducted by Mr Bevan.

CROYDON.

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr Lawson Lambert; Acting-Manager, Mr Reginald Lawrence.—A welcome visit is being paid here by Mr George Dance's company in The School Girl, which is full of melody and interest. The dresses are bright, and the chorus is attractive. Mr Leslie Holland is full of animation, and submits a whimsical rendering of Sir Ormesby St. Leger; Mr Charles Adeson gives a grotesquely amusing portrayal of General Marchmont; Mr Alfred Leslie is an active and humorous Tubby Bedford; Mr Cameron Carr makes the most of his chances as Peter Overend; Mr Frank Sutton is a quaint Corner; Mr Lister Morrah sings with good effect as Edgar Verney; and a meed of praise is due to Messrs Frank Lennard, F. M. Rickards, and Ernest Milward as Jacques De Crevert, George Sylvester, and Adolphe Delapols. Miss Ethel Beech, an enchanting Lilian Leigh, sings and dances in exquisite style: Miss Gracie Sinclair has a pretty method as Cicely Marchmont; Miss Grace Winon is a commanding Mrs Marchmont; Miss Nell Hope is a buxom Saafreda; Miss Molly Walbran looks charming as Mamie Rockfeller; Miss Eleanor Seveal is refreshing as Marianne; and Miss Mildred King's voice is heard to advantage in the rôle of the Mother Superior. The augmented orchestra is under the direction of Mr Edward H. Whitehall.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr H. D. Lyle.—Dare-Devil Dorothy is being staged here by Mr Henry Swinerd's company. Miss Kathleen Garnon is charming as Ruth Montrose; Miss Marjorie Cecil is all that can be wished as Dorothy Montrose; and Misses Mabel Blake and Lillie Blake are excellent as Rosy Ann and Polly. Mr Walter Boyce capitally enacts the rôle of General Carston; Mr W. F. Green acts and sings creditably as Captain George Fielding: Mr Henry C. Ward is praiseworthy as Captain Edward Dudley; Mr A. Stretton does well as Hawkins; Mr Arthur Verne creates plenty of fun in the character of Silas Crump; and Mr Frank L. Oliver deserves a word as Featherstone Haugh. The varieties introduced in the piece are a pleasing feature.

Palace Theatre of Varieties, Limited.—Resident General Manager, Mr Eustace H. Jay.—The entertainment here is excellent. Miss Flo Melville is a burlesque artiste who is making rapid strides to the front rank; Dezmonti and Mora, in their triple bar act, are exceedingly smart; Harry Champion is a comedian of resource; Jessie Preston is an accomplished comedienne; Sable Fern, serio, is much liked; Cyrus and Maude and donkey Bess are well worth seeing; Harry Cotton, comedian, hits the mark; Terry and Lambert, in comedy turn, are applauded; Christo is a clever illusionist; Grove and Chalmers are an untiring comedy pair; Los Granadas are eccentric gymnasts; and Marie Burdell is a taking comedienne.

DARLINGTON.

Royal.—Manageress, Mrs T. W. S. Jennings.—Mr George Dance's excellent company is here again in the popular musical play A Chinese Honeymoon. As Mr Pineapple Mr Harry Brayne is exceedingly humorous. Very excellent representations of their respective parts are given by Mr Frank A. Wood, Mr F. Allerton Turner, Mr Lougard May, and Mr Percy Yorke. As Mrs Pineapple Miss Jesse Collins soon establishes herself a favourite with the audience; whilst as Soo-Soo Miss Marie Adair acts with grace and sings in a pleasing manner. Miss M. Sadie in the character of Fi Fi is a great success, and Miss Alice Drummond as Mrs Brown and Miss Annie Crisp as Mi-Mi add considerably to the success of the production.

DARWEN.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr E. Ormsby.—The Two Little Sailor Boys is being admirably played here by Mr W. H. Hallatt's company. Miss Blanche Steele makes a strong part of Lola Grey, an adventuress; an admirable contrast is the Mildred Grey of Miss Marie Daventry; Lucy Wilson, Mildred's maid, is spiritedly played by Miss Hilda Taylor; Mr W. H. Hallatt as Commander Treguthen has a good part, of which he makes the most; Lieutenant Redstone has a good exponent in Mr Leonard Booker; and Mr George Cecil Murray as Admiral Grey is very successful. The Two Little Sailor Boys are capitally played by Miss Ethel Francess and Miss May Day.

DONCASTER.

New Grand Theatre and Opera House, Limited.—Managing-Director, Councillor J. W. Chapman.—A great success has been scored by Mr E. St. Alban's opera company, in Les Cloches de Corneville. The Marquis de Corneville was played with great acceptance by Mr George A. Fox, who sang well. Mr E. St. Alban as Gaspard secured the plaudits of the audience; Mr George Delaforce gave a masterly touch to his representation of the Baillie; and Mr Fowler Thatcher was quite at home in his assumption of Gobo. Miss K. Farrell was a fascinating Germaine, and possesses a rich, mellow, soprano voice. Serpolette was daintily embodied by Miss Lucy Fitzroy.

DERBY.

New Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr Chas. Denley.—The Cherry Girl, played by Mr C. Lubbock's company, by arrangement with Messrs Gatti and Frohman, is the attraction here this week. Mr Frank Lincoln as Moonshine and Happy Joe displays remarkable versatility, and scores heavily all round. As the Queen Miss Elsie Molloy, a gifted and graceful artiste, plays and sings admirably, and Miss Ethel Hart is a delightful Pansy. Miss Dorothy Frostick does some excellent work as Pas-Bas; Mr Hew Walker is quite successful as Starlight and the Squire of Homewood Hall; and some capital fun is provided by Mr Albert Fellno, who appears as Esau, the monkey, in the first act, and in the second as a gee-gee. Miss Rita Ravensberg as Sylvia in the first act, and as Millicent in the second, also acquits herself with gratifying success, and sings several good songs. The Steinway Quartet richly merit special mention for their excellent vocalism, as also do Miss Lottie Stone's troupe of dancers, figuring as the Four Chameleons, for their clever terpsichorean illustrations and burlesque cake-walk. Children's parts are wonderfully well taken by Master Harry Williams as Snowball, the sweep, Miss Rosie Campbell as Dimples, his sweetheart, and Master Sidney Grata as the Rose of the Riviera. Messrs C. A. James and Alfred Ibberson are highly diverting in both acts, and, indeed, the company in every detail is one of first-rate excellence. The dresses are exceedingly effective, and the scenery is of an unusually high-class character.

Palace.—Lessee and Manager, Mr T. Allan Edwardes.—The Three Ferganas form the star turn here this week, and their acrobatic novelty, Tumbling on a Car, is very well received. American speciality artistes in the persons of Winona and King submit a unique entertainment, Winona presenting some remarkable rifle-shooting. The Three Sisters Selwyn are charming vocalists and dancers, and meet with hearty approbation. Charles Somers, a quaint comedian, is a success. Matt Wilkinson and company, who appear to advantage in an amusing sketch entitled That French Woman, are well worthy of commendation. Fred Horsfall, Yorkshire comedian, is very entertaining; Betma is a skilful magician and illusionist, and the Padleys are diverting in a comedy act, A Private Lesson.

DEWSBURY.

Theatre Royal.—Resident-Manager, Mr J. Herbert Asquith.—The Milton Rays are here paying a third visit with their Hot Night company. The artistes are again carefully selected, and the whole performance is one of incessant humour. As Whiffles Mr Rolando Martin, an excellent comedian, is the mainstay of the performance; Mr Arthur Milton continues a warm favourite as Frank Frith; the parts of Mark Maybury and Fontenoy Flutterwig are cleverly portrayed by Messrs H. T. Butler and H. Hope; and Mr Alfred Wellesley is to be commended for his excellent delineation of Sheerman. The Sisters Madge and Jessie Wrae play the rôles of Fanny Frith and Mary Maybury with their accustomed charm; Miss Susie Beaven as Polly Drake and Miss Clara Reid as Lucy Lorimer are energetic in their efforts to please; and a notable feature is the vocalisation of Mr Herbert Morgan, who is deservedly encored.

Hippodrome and Varieties.—General Manager, Mr G. Weldon.—The bill here continues to be of sterling merit. Miss Katie Holloway is a dainty comedienne, and a refined comedy act is that of Grey and Grace. Tom Stuart, actor-mimic, is good; and Goliath and Walford are strong attractions. The Abadaroffs in a comic acrobatic turn render good service; and Franz A. Crisp is a capital baritone. Paddy, in a new venture, is still popular.

DOVER.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, the Dover Theatres, Limited; Managing-Director, Mr Fred C. Dew.—The Naval Detective, a new dramatic musical comedy, presented by Mr Fred J. Kirke's company, has proved an undeniable attraction this week. Mr Arthur Hickman, a remarkably versatile actor, plays the hero, Jack Beresford, in a most able manner, and is repeatedly encored. Mr Robert Gilbert is in every respect an effective Dr. Schreiner, and Mr J. Noble as Hans Winklepump is exceedingly amusing. Captain Hustle portrayed by Mr Sid Hearns, in a capital make-up, is a clever performance, and Mr Walter Langford as the Hon. Bertie Fairlox is responsible for some excellent banjo songs. Miss Louie Fountaine, a sympathetic Phyllis Leslie, renders her songs with much expression, Miss Edith Claris (Mrs Fred J. Kirke) gives an amusing impersonation as Susan Scrubbs, and Miss Iris Banfield, the possessor of a charming voice, is heard to advantage in the pretty musical numbers of Lulu Kaufmann. The Quakeress, Rebecca Gentle, finds a good exponent in Miss Lily Seymour, and Miss Mamie Walsh and Miss Elsie Paul display remarkable cleverness in their graceful acrobatic dances. The play is well staged, the orchestra being under the able control of Mr Omar Dene.

DUNDALK.

Town Hall.—Proprietor, the Urban Council.—Mr Norman Macowan's company, under the management of Mr Payne Seddon, is presenting Monsieur Beaucaire. It is one of the best all-round companies we have had in Dundalk for a long time. As Beaucaire Mr Norman Macowan is most successful. Miss Violet Sterne is very good indeed as Lady Mary Carlisle, and proves herself a talented actress. Mr Stewart Wilson as the Duke of Winterset and Mr P. R. Forman as Captain Badger are all that can desired; and Mr H. A. Young as Beau Nash is capital. The remaining parts are well played, and the play is finely mounted, the costumes being very beautiful.

DUNDEE.

Her Majesty's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; General Manager, Mr Eade Montefiore.—A Country Girl pays a return visit here. Miss May Glen made a vivacious Nan, Miss Maud Harvey as Marjory Joy sang her solos excellently, Miss Veronica Brady, an old pantomime favourite, shone in the character of Sophie, Miss Aimee Roberts as the Princess Melaneh sang well. Mr Johnny Osborne as Barry kept the fun going all the time, Mr Vincent Bowyer as the Rajah acted with good effect, Mr Cyril Thompson as Geoffrey Challoner created a most favourable impression, and Mr George Mudie as Sir Joseph Verity was very amusing.

People's Palace.—Acting-Manager, Mr Will Parker; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr Alf Ross.—A great attraction this week is the appearance for the first time in Dundee of Chirgwin, "the White-eyed Kaffir." His performance fairly took the immense assemblage by storm on Monday, especially in his rendering of "My fiddle is my sweetheart." The Five Foys scored an unmistakable success with their sketch, A Yorkshire Lad in London, and their well-known sketch, A Tourist Agent. The Bros. Obo pay a return visit, and again meet with much approval. Louie Hurman and Violet Wilton score with their song and dance business, and Jack Foley concludes a fine show.

Empire.—Proprietors, Dundee Empire Company, Ltd.—The Biggest Scamp on Earth is the production on the boards here this week. Mr P. Carne Waram as Derrick Knight is the acme of villainy. Miss Frances Delaval proves herself to be a skilful artiste, and Miss Dorothy Mahomed makes a success as the heroine, Irene May.

Gaiety.—Proprietors, Messrs Dundee Gaiety Company, Limited.—The Bank of England is being staged here this week. Mr Hubert S. Chambers shows ability in the character of Sherlock Holmes; Mr Edwin Walton makes a capital Sir Sydney Barraclough; and others in the company include Mr Alfred Hilliard as Eric Dane, Mr Juan De Alberti as the Bank Director, and Miss Ada Collins as Sylvia Barraclough.

DOUGLAS (ISLE OF MAN).

GRAND THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr Alfred Hemming; Acting-Manager, Mr T. R. Wood.—This week is the closing period of a too-short season at the Grand. Mr Walter Melville's play, The Worst Woman in London, is the attraction. The part of Frances Vere is treated by Miss Constance Medwyn with artistic audacity and success. The Jack Felton of Mr E. J. Collins has all the requisites of dashing appearance, elocutionary power, and a sense of proportion which enables the hero of such plays to maintain his importance. Miss Lilian Ross was pleasing and pathetic as Ruth Milford. The comedy relief was well taken care of by Miss Helen Rigby as Matilda Parker and Mr George Asquin as Bob Goldfinch. Mr Roy Byford was dignified as the man of affairs somewhere in the City. Vincent Lyle is played sincerely and with vraisemblance by Mr Paul Lewers. The scenery is a marvel of mechanical adroitness.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Palace and Derby Castle, Limited; Secretary and Manager, Mr Charles Fox, jun.—The value of Mr Fred Karno's company of comedians, in the pantomimic farce entitled His Majesty's Guests, has been duly estimated by the portion of the community they desire to please. The sole end and aim of this particular vehicle for the amusement of the public is to induce laughter. The Sergeant Lightning of Mr Harry Roxbury shows he possesses a vein of comedy entirely his own. He is quaint and adroit. Mr George Claremont is well placed as Mr Miffin. The Harry of Mr L. Sterling makes for popularity. Mr Victor Thomas causes Bunker to be of service. Mr Frank Morton has a capital manner, and sings, acts, and dances with effect. His Lord Easem evokes wholesome laughter. Mdlle. Edith Agor, Julie Renals, and Nellie Richard on play useful characters with prettiness, and Miss Florence Burns endows Lady Easem with charm, and renders her songs effectively. The audiences appreciate the company, the songs, the dances, the cleverly conceived pantomimic business. The scenery and appointments are all that could be desired, and the Empire Quintet made a distinct success.

THE programme at the Palace this week, which is concerned with cake-walks for local amateurs to which prizes are attached, has attracted large audiences.

DUBLIN.

GAIETY THEATRE. — Lessee, Michael Gunn, Limited; General Manager, Mr Charles Hyland.—Mr Louis Calvert's company commenced a six nights' engagement here on Monday with Sunday. Miss Nita Faydon in the title-rôle gives a charming portrayal; Colonel Brinthorpe is rendered by Mr J. Edward Pearce in a highly satisfactory manner; Miss Elizabeth Watson submits a pleasing impersonation of Mrs Naresby; Mr Ernest A. Douglas as Tom Oxley acquits himself with credit; and as the Nun Miss Olive Adair is effective. The part of Arthur Brinthorpe is adequately played by Mr Charles B. Vaughan, and Mr Frederick Powell is successful as Towzer.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr Arthur Armstrong.—The Darling of the Gods was presented here on Monday by Mr Tree's company. Miss Frances Dillon gives a clever portrayal of the rôle of Yo-San, and as Zakkuri Mr Robert Pateman is highly successful; as Kara Mr Douglas Gerrard displays much ability; Mr Ivan F. Simpson presents a careful study of the part of Saigon; Mr Arthur Vezin capably fills the rôle of Tonda-Tarji; and Miss Eve Muriel is seen to advantage as Rosey Sky. As Madame Asani Miss Rhoda Ray is effective, and Mr Douglas Payne is creditable as Inu. Miss Edith Deverill is excellent as Setsu (Yo-San's maid), and as Hassebe Soyemon Mr Alexander Haviland is capital.

QUEEN'S ROYAL THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. W. Whitbread; General Manager, Mr Kennedy Miller.—A full house was present on Monday to witness Napoleon the Great by Mr Frank M. Thorne's company. Mr Hugh Montgomery in the rôle of Napoleon scores a distinct success; as Mdlle. Leonie Marboeuf Miss Maud Russell is excellent; Colonel Lavarennes is ably played by Mr Henry Earlesmere; and Miss Florence Thorne makes an effective Mère Doumont. The part of Pierre Pomponnet has an able exponent in Mr Frank M. Thorne; Mr C. W. Spencer is capital as Sergeant Choupin; Mr Charles Halling makes an acceptable Colonel Jules Mewron; and Miss Marie Harcourt is good as Marcelle Choupin. As Paul Lackinska Mr M. Morley Carroll is satisfactory, and Miss Crissie Dunbar is pleasing as Marie Walewska.

EMPIRE.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr A. S. Figgis.—The strong bill presented here this week is headed by Harriett Vernon, whose clever songs are encored nightly. Nellie Coleman, styled the only lady comedian, is a clever turn; Brown and Le Clerq in their Negro absurdity, A Dark Night Before Us, cause roars of laughter; Tatten Hall is a smart burlesque comedian; the Two Graces are a vivacious pair of duettists and dancers; and Dome, the clay modeller, is a capital show; Stave is an acceptable comedy artist, and the Empire Pictures are also good. Pat Rafferty also appears.

TIVOLI THEATRE —General Manager, Mr Chas. M. Jones; Secretary, Mr H. A. Murphy.— Ara, Zebra, and Vora and the Squaw Buffalo, in their novelty act, "Indian Pastimes," top the bill here this week, and are well received. Lily Morris, who makes her first appearances here, is a chic comedienne, and Charles Coverdale is quaint. Royal Best, facial expert, in his impersonations of celebrities, is an entertaining turn; Princess Lulu is a graceful transformation danseuse; Belrose and Develin are excellent operatic duettists; and Tell and Tell, comedy acrobats, are highly amusing. Mephisto, society contortionist, and the Lebars, comedy gymnasts, are also in the bill, and the Bioscope pictures are attractive.

DUDLEY.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. Maurice Clement; Acting Manager, Mr J. W. Tilley.—Mr Auguste Van Biene, supported by a powerful company including Miss Lena Burnleigh, is here in A Broken Melody. Mr Van Biene once more enthralled his audience by his powerful portrayal of Paul Borinski. Miss Burnleigh is refined and pathetic as Mabel; Miss Ida Chapman assumes with stately grace the rôle of the Duchess De Verviers; Mr T. P. Haynes deserves unqualified praise for his humorous impersonation of Dudley Mortimer; Mr Chas. A. Morgan is pompous and dignified as Dixon, being ably assisted by Miss Avis Graham as Mrs Dixon; Mr Arthur Bawtree is distinctly good as General Invanoff; and two amusing characters are furnished by Mr E. Laceby and Miss Morton as the Honourable Richard and Mrs Spinacker. Mr Edward Van Biene is the capable and courteous business-manager.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Tom Prichard.—The turns here this week include Johnson and Bert, in a novel act entitled A Queer Customer, in which some very clever and amusing work is done. The Howards, comedy artists, are smart, and the Three Novels, society acrobats, are again delighting Dudley audiences. Wilson Hallett is exceptionally clever in his imitations of little children; Larry Lewis, comedian, sings good songs; and Arthur Forrest, comedian and dancer; Rose Newport, comedienne; and Olive Armidale, descriptive vocalist, are also in the bill.

DUMFRIES.

THEATRE ROYAL —Lessee and Manager, Mr W. E. Pott.—W. Payne Seddon, with Mr Charles Macdona's company, in Are You a Mason? was here the first three nights of the week. Mr Edward Thirlby as Amos Bloodgood gives a good portrayal of the character. Mr Arthur Claremont scores as Frank Perry. Mr William Pringle as George Fisher shows conspicuous ability. Mr Stanley Bell is a very creditable Ernest Morrison. Miss C. Groves as Mrs Caroline Bloodgood is all that could be desired. Miss Leila Russell as Eva is extremely natural. Miss Levens as Annie and Miss Pearl Keats as Lulu are charming. Miss Nell Douglas as Lottie, the maid, is smart The piece was well received. Good houses.

EASTBOURNE.

DEVONSHIRE-PARK THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr A. Standen Triggs.—Mr Louis Calvert and Mr Herbert Ross's company has been appearing here, in Sunday. Miss Marie Polini, who as the heroine, is sweet and charming, is always equal to the many demands made upon her. Miss Maude Henderson is a very good Mrs Naresby, and Miss Dorothy Gordon does all that is necessary as the Nun. Mr W. Edwyn Holloway does capable work as Colonel and Arthur Brinthorpe; Mr Arthur Willoughby is a distinct and effective Tom Oxley; and Mr David Curtis is a capital Davy. Mr Arthur Somers gives a strong, capable performance as Jacky, and he grips the audience throughout; and able exponents of Towzer and Lively are Mr Henry Stephenson and Mr Alfred Phillips.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr Samuel Lloyd.—The Bells of Haslemere has been presented here. Mr Leonard Yorke gives a fine, manly portrayal of Frank Beresford, and gains unstinted applause for his admirable efforts; Mr Montague Turner is a polished and effective John Silkstone; Mr Charles A. Chandler gives a good account of the rôle of Captain Vere; Mr C. Cecil is a favourite as Reuben; and Mr Douglas Hamilton and Mr Fred F. Allen do good work as Matthew and Joseph Thorndyke, Miss Mary Hardacre is a refined Evelyn; Miss Lilian Rignold is a bright, lively Dorothy; Miss Stafford Smith is a subdued and earnest Mary; and Miss Florence Chambers does all that is necessary as Nora. The drama is well staged.

PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr George Hayes.—A good variety programme is given here. Mason and Bart supply an exceedingly clever and daring gymnastic performance, which well deserves the hearty applause it obtains. The Wallys are skilful comedy jugglers; Mr Cyrus Dare does an original turn with his child-studies, and proves popular; the Sisters Anderson are expert feet equilibrists; Mr Nelson Hardy does a clever ventriloquial act; Mr J. D. Hunter scores with his songs; Maxwell and Frances are bright singers and dancers; Mdlle. Alencon gives a good conjuring exhibition; the Brothers Harrison are funny singers and smart dancers; and Mabelle May, a pleasing artiste, completes the company. At a matinée on Wednesday Mr Laurence Irving and his company appeared in Richard Lovelace. A very polished and appealing performance of Richard was contributed by Mr Laurence Irving, Mr William E. Ashcroft was a powerful and dramatic Colonel Hawley, and Miss Mabel Hackney was a tender, sweet Lucy.

TOWN HALL. — Manager, Mr W. Kennard.—A refined, varied, and interesting entertainment is being given here during the week by Madame Lloyd's choir. Miss Mary Young has an excellent voice and appearance, and her songs are admirably given. Il Floretta, with the aid of coloured sand and smoke, rapidly produces pictures in a clever, novel way. The cornet solos of Miss Ida Macqualter prove very popular; Miss Cissie Senior is a sweet double-voiced vocalist; Miss Jess Thorne amuses with her songs, and Miss Myra Bennett and Herr Gustave Tobler contribute Swiss duets in an effective manner. Excellent violin solos are played by Mr H. W. Galpin, Mr Gilbert Childs sings comic songs well, and attractive animated pictures conclude the performance.

EBBW VALE.

KING'S.—Lessees, Messrs Arthur Carlton and Sam Duckworth; Manager, Mr Arthur Knight.—Last week, during the concluding three days, Mr W. Penrhyn Tester's company was accorded a hearty welcome in At Break of Day. Mr James English as Richard Thorneycroft was responsible for a fine impersonation, and Miss Annie Thomas, a popular favourite, as Henrietta Stubbs and Mr T. E. Conover in the pleasing part of Jeremiah Stubbs were the life of a very smart performance. On Monday Mr Beresford Innes's company, with The Black Mask, opened to good business. Mr Beresford Innes gave a weird performance of Henri Lenoir, and the other parts were all well sustained.

ECCLES.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Hague; Acting-Manager and Treasurer, Mr P. Ryan-Smith.—Mr George Kirk and Miss Mary Neil's company is here this week in Judy. Mr Kirk gives an impressive and original rendering of Grip, the detective. In the dual-rôle of Alice and Polly Miss Neil proves herself an accomplished actress, and is loudly applauded. Miss Florrie Groves is vivacious in the title-rôle and Miss Muriel Thompson is thoroughly efficient as Blake. Mr Carlton Wallace as the villain Duburg is villainous enough for anything, and Mr Wm. Vane is good as the hero Sterling. Mr Will Casey should not be forgotten for his portrayal of Jim.

EDINBURGH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs Howard and Wyndham, Ltd; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter Hollister.—The last play written by the late Mr Wilson Barrett is the welcome attraction at this theatre this week, and on Monday evening Lucky Durham, as presented by Mr William Greet's company, was received with every mark of favour by a well-filled house. Mr William F. Grant appeared with great success as the hero John Durham, his acting throughout being full of strong dramatic feeling and restrained power. Mr Henry De Solla gave a careful and finished rendering of the unsympathetic part of Lord Mountfallon, while Mr Paul Belmore introduced some bright touches of comedy as the Hon. Reginald Steighton in a happy and effective manner. Mr Stanley Harrison was a gentlemanly Arthur Walcomb, and Mr Daniel M'Carthy made a clever study of Richard Vallerton. Other parts were all in capable hands. As Helen Vallerton Miss Phyllis Ralph won all hearts by her charming and unaffected acting, her graceful presence and sweet voice adding greatly to the success of her performance. Another winsome personation was the Margaret Steighton of Miss Jessie Winter, while Miss Nellie Bonser displayed much tenderness as Mrs Durham. Misses Mary Relph and Gertrude Robins were capital exponents of Lady Mountfallon and the Duchess of Hovecourt. The play was completely and beautifully staged, and the rich and handsome costumes were quite a feature of the production.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs Howard and Wyndham, Limited; General-Manager, Mr G. T. Minshull.—On Monday a large audience welcomed Mr John Hare and company in Mr J. M. Barrie's latest comedy, Little Mary. It is needless to say the play had an admirable rendering, and the author's marvellously clever and witty dialogue was followed by attention and appreciation by the audience. Mr John Hare, who had a most cordial reception, had a congenial rôle in the Earl of Carlton, and his rendering was marked with that completeness of artistic detail and suavity of manner so characteristic of that celebrated actor; the vein of tenderness which underlies the character of the Earl was also effectively displayed by Mr Hare in his scenes with Moira. Mr Carter Pickford acted in a natural and earnest manner as Lord Rolfe, and Mr Eric Maturin showed promise as the schoolboy Earl of Plumleigh. Mr Fred Grove gave a realistic picture of the old chemist, Terence Reilly, while Messrs Rudge Harding and Clifford Brooke were dignified and satisfactory as Sir Jennings Pyke and Dr. Topping respectively. Mr Edgar B. Payne completed the cast as Mr Deighton. Among the ladies the chief honours of the evening fell upon Miss Hilda Trevelyan, who at once proved herself an actress of many gifts. She was eminently suited to the rôle of Moira Loney, and whether as the child-mother in the prologue, or the girl healer in the play, her acting was replete with girlish charm. Miss Helen Rous played the Countess of Plumleigh with much dignity and repose, and Misses Kathleen Gordon-Lee and Beatrice Kelstone appeared to advantage as Lady Milly and Eleanor Gray. The scenery and appointments were all that could be desired. The one-act play 'Op o' me Thumb preceded, in which Miss Hilda Trevelyan essayed her original part of Amand Afflick.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr H. E. Moss.—Mr R. A. Roberts, the Protean actor, heads a strong company this week, and on his appearance in his dramatic sketch, Dick Turpin, had a warm reception. By his versatility and clever ability as a quick change artist Mr Roberts caused much interest, and was the recipient of loud applause. The famous coster comedian Alec Hurley was well received in The Coster's Friendly Lead, a sketch in which he was seen to great advantage. He also delighted the house with one or two of his coster songs. Gertrella, the charming gymnast, proved herself a graceful dancer, and "In Cupid's Garden" also did a clever trapeze act. Leo Tell gave a capital turn as a mimic, and Howard and St. Clair, American comedy artistes, appeared with much acceptance. The Devona Sisters gave a daring exhibition in the air; while Ben Albert, a smart comedian; Harry Coates, the singing navvy; Phil Hermann, character comedian; and Woodhouse and Wells, clever comedians and dancers, complete the company.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Tom Ellis.—The stirring melodrama Sins of a City, by Miss Nita Rae, was presented here on Monday by Miss Winifred Maud's company. There was a capital house, and the piece was well received. Mr Royce Carlton was a manly and stirring Sandy M'Donald; while Messrs Norman V. Overton, Du Cane, and J. W. Baxter gave admirable support. Miss Winifred Maud played the heroine, Seaweed, with naive sweetness and much power, being enthusiastically applauded. The drama was realistically staged.

EXETER.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Secretary and Manager, Mr Fred Pollard; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy M. Dunsford.—Miss Emma Hutchison's company occupies the boards here this week with Cousin Kate. Miss Lillias Earle takes the title-rôle with considerable success; Mr Yorke Stephens handles the part of Heath Desmond with much ability; Mr Walter Ringham makes an excellent Rev. James Bartlett; Master Vyvian Thomas is commendable as Bobby; Miss Helen Leyton gives a pleasing rendering of Mrs Spencer; Miss Hilda Honiss is well suited as Amy Spencer; and Miss Betty Castle deserves praise as Jane. A Case for Eviction, an agreeable curtain-raiser, is played exceedingly well by Mr W. Ringham, Miss Betty Castle, and Miss Hilda Honiss.

FALKIRK.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr Horace W. Ebbutt —For the first three nights of the week here the drama was The Still Alarm, by Mathew H. Glenville and Fred Osmond's company. Mr Glenville in the character of Jack Manley made a heroic lover. As Elinore Fordham Miss Mary Lovett realised the part of the loyal daughter. John Bird, the villain, was particularly well taken by Mr Paul Lovett; Miss Mabel Verlton was well placed as Mrs Manley; Miss Hettie Zillwood was a pronounced success as Carrie Wilber, and she and Mr Tom Beasley as Willie Manley provided much entertainment. The Doc Wilber of Mr Fred Osmond was well worthy of special praise. Quality Street was staged on Thursday.

FOLKESTONE.

PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—Manager, Mr H. W. Rowland.—Mr and Mrs Kendal and company in A Scrap of Paper, The Elder Miss Blossom, and Dick Hope were here for the first three nights of the week. On Tuesday The Elder Miss Blossom was played. Mr Kendal gave a capital rendition of Andrew Quick; Mr Ernest Hendrie cleverly portrayed Christopher Blossom; Mr Bassett Roe was excellent as Major Twentyman; Mr Leonard Hubert acted the Rev. Arthur Leacroft in a most capable manner; Miss Elise Clarrens was a charming exponent of Sophia Blossom; Mrs A. B. Tapping made a capable Cooper; Miss Lola Duncan was a satisfactory Mrs Wells; and Mrs Kendal as Dorothy Blossom acted the part in her well-known clever manner. Mr Charles Frohman and company in Little Mary were billed for the last part of the week.

VICTORIA PIER.—Lessees, Messrs Keith Prowse and Co., Limited.—A capital programme includes Miss Lilian Gardner, a pleasing soprano; Mr Lawrence Crisfield, a baritone who is much appreciated; Mr Gurney Russell, a clever humourist; Mr Preston Woods, ventriloquist; and Mr Harry Hemsley, a versatile entertainer.

LEAS PAVILION.—Manager, Mr Frank Seabrook.—Miss Mildred Jones, contralto, and Mr F. T. Studd, ventriloquist, are paying a welcome return visit here this week. Their vocal and ventriloquial efforts bring much applause. The ladies' band and the animated pictures are pleasing features.

GAINSBOROUGH.

ALBERT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Robt. Kirk —Mr Finch-Hatton's company reappeared here for three nights last week in From Scotland Yard, Mr Hatton again giving his impersonation of Jack Dale, the detective. He was well supported by Mr C. H. Matthews as Dean Fordyce, the forger; Miss Marion Forrester as Mabel, Mr Jack Armitage, Mr F. C. Glenville, and Miss Renee Glendower. Songs and dances were introduced by Mr Jas. Hirste, Mr Jas. F. Fifth, Mr Mike Johnson, and Miss Nelly Hook.

GATESHEAD.

METROPOLE THEATRE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Straughan.—A strong variety bill, headed by the amusing sketch Sensations, is being submitted here. The Sisters Russell (Ida and Lil) provide an interesting turn; Bliss and Bliss are responsible for much amusement; Flo Villar, male impersonator, gives a really good turn; and Steel and Leing, the versatile couple, keep the house in roars of laughter; The musical motorist, Gus Barra, gives a good turn, and the Gladenbecks are a pair of exceedingly clever hand-balancers and ring experts. Dan Conroy, comedian; and Madame Louie, in a second-sight entertainment, also provide good turns.

GOOLE.

THEATRE ROYAL —Lessee, Mr John E. Tomlinson.—Miss Rose Faith and company opened here on Monday in the romantic play No Cross, No Crown. As Lady Clare Miss Faith plays a difficult part admirably. Miss G. Stewart, with womanly feeling and devotion, cleverly acts the dual rôle of Lady Margaret and Mistress Gray. The villainies of Austin Blake are depicted with much force by Mr L. Darra. Mr J. M'Bride is exceptionally good as Sir Francis Luttrell; his acting is marked by earnestness and sincerity. Mr H. Chapman does well as Professor Nebb. Mr H. Clifton causes much merriment as Dr. Ashby. Mr C. George plays the part of Rawson Haines with marked success. Little Mary Warden is delightful as Dorris, and Miss M. Elliott amusing as Dame Priscilla.

GUERNSEY.

ST. JULIAN'S HALL.—Lessee, Mr C. Robert Perkins.—If I were King, well staged and admirably acted by Mr Frank Fenton's excellent company, is the attraction here. Mr Fenton holds the audience intensely interested by his fine impersonation of Francois Villon. Another cleverly studied and finished performance is the Louis XI. of Mr Clive Currie. Mr Ernest Marsh is effective as Oliver le Dain, Mr Fred Garrett efficient as Tristran l'Hermite, and Mr Noel M'Gucken is a successful Noel le Jolys. Miss Marion Grey gives a dignified and stately delineation of Katherine De Vaucelles, Miss Una Gilberte is the Mother Villon, and Miss Louise Vanssiter submits a bright and spirited rendering of Huguette De Hamel.

GLASGOW.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy Humphrys.—As Marguerite, in La Montansier, Miss Lena Ashwell has carried her audiences heartily with her this week. Mr Frank Mills as Neuville gives an excellent rendering, and shares the honours. Mr Charles Groves as St. Phar is well placed, and is heartily welcomed. As Barelle Mr Harry Halley makes a decided hit. Mr Thos. Holding as the Marquis De Pommeuse and Messrs Edward Knox, H. Pelden, and C. P. Peel as his aristocratic friends lend able support. Mr Charles A. Doran as St. Just acts ably. Miss Marie Hudspeth as Madame Brunet, Miss Beryl Mercer as Gertrude, and Miss Sydney Fairbrother as Mdlle. Senedar are noteworthy. The play is staged with much attention to detail.

ROYALTY, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr Wm. M. Downie.—The Duke of Killiecrankie is here this week, played by Messrs Charles Frohman and Arthur Chudleigh's company. Mr Langhorne Burton is admirable in the title-part, and very successful is Mr Arthur Grenville as Pitt-Welby. Miss Doris Templeton is a charming Lady Henrietta. Miss Aida Jenoure succeeds well as Mrs Mulholland. As the Countess of Pangbourne Miss Ellen Standing is capital. Mr Howard W. Cochrane ably fills the part of Hicks, and good acting is done by Mr Guy B. Watson and Miss Helen Kay Robertson as the M'Baynes, the other servants being well represented by Misses Clarke and Ilene Hamilton and Messrs Guy Newall and J. F. Anson. In A Case for Eviction the characters are amusingly sustained by Miss Margaret Damer, Mr Howard W. Cochrane, and Miss Helen Kay Robertson.

KING'S THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr H. Macfarlane.—Mr Lewis Waller's company is here in Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner. As Captain Peyton Mr Thomas Kingston is undoubtedly successful, and the Major is finely represented by Mr Hilliard Vox. Mr George Mallet is a courtly Mr Valentine, and Mr J. Attfield makes much of the part of Edwards. As Black Sam and Cuff Messrs Tom Taylor and F. Perry, with Miss Edith Elton as Molly, contribute quite the requisite amount of fun. As Mrs Williams Miss Alys Rees makes much of the rôle. Miss C. Valetta as Brenda in the prologue is commendable. Miss Elly Malyon as Miss Elizabeth is charmingly attractive.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor, Mr Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr Hugh Murdoch. —Laughter Land proved just the entertainment for holiday week, and the marvellous Craggs in their acrobatic and funny business won much hearty applause from large audiences.

GRAND, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr A. Mascard.—Mr J. Car Kiddie's company is here with A Little Coquette. Miss Lizzie Payne's Celia and Miss Flo Warner's Robin make a bright and engaging pair of lovers, and the Ann Teeke of Mr J. W. Groves, the Constable of Mr George Hestor, and the knock-about soldiers of Messrs Joe Bell and Jim Clarence keep the house in constant merriment. The Gabriel Grabbe of Mr Forsyth Bruce is a realistic study, and in their respective parts of Nevermind, Crowquille, and Longpull, Mr E. H. Bertram, Miss Nellie Butt, and Mr L. J. Headlam prove themselves singers of ability. The Milsted Quartet of dancers is still popular, and good work is done by the chorus and orchestra, under the direction of Mr E. C. Brierley.

METROPOLE, LIMITED.—Managing Director, Mr Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr John Dunbar.—The Voice of the People is being presented here by Messrs Harris Fineberg and John F. Preston's company. The rôle of Walter Meredith is well portrayed by Mr Ernest R. Allen. Mr George R. Mountford does well as Steve Morris, and is ably supported by Mr Frank A. Osborne as Jem Butterworth. Mr John F. Preston appears to advantage as Barry Phelps. Mr Roy Thomas enacts Adolphus Green with great success, and the parts of Morris Morris and Captain Goodman are ably sustained by Mr Arthur Hartley and Mr Hardy Macro. Miss Gertrude Godart as Liz and Miss Hilda Shirley as Mary Maynard show ability. The acting of Miss Mabelle F. Barlow as Maggie Miggs and Miss Polly Taylor as Sal Jenkins is very natural, and the Tim Toosh of Mr Harry Benson is praiseworthy. The part of Lady Longthorpe is in the able hands of Miss Gladys Davidson, and Messrs Ernest Waghorne and Albert Wade are excellent as the sanitary inspector and the superintendent of police.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr J. H. Oakden.—Mr Charles Mackey is paying us a visit with The Shaughraun. His Conn is a fine impersonation, instinct with humour and racy of the soil. Excellent support is given by his company, including Miss Adele Liddon, Miss Kathleen L. Russell, and Mrs Chalmers Mackey, and by Messrs Reginald Garland, Harry Danson, Conway Hastings, and H. Sainsbury.

WHITEVALE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr George Green.—On Monday Mr James Stillwell and company presented Queen of the Night here. Mr Stillwell does good work as Philip Stoneleigh, and is ably assisted by Miss V. St. Lawrence as Pauline. Mr A. C. Campbell does justice to the rôle of Frank Cavendish, and Miss Katherine Burnett as Maud Sylvester is exceptionally good. Old Briskett has a good exponent in Mr F. Thorpe-Tracey. The comedy parts are well looked after by Mr Bert Atherton as Adolphus Briskett and Miss Polly Denville as Kitty White. A fine character sketch was Mr Paul E. Teulon's David Pentreath. Miss Marie Moore is judiciously cast as Mrs Briskett, as also is Miss Irene Tracey as Dick. The scenery and appointments are effective.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Limited.—Miss Vesta Tilley is again delighting Glasgow audiences by her varied repertory, and all her songs are heartily appreciated. The Haytors contribute one of their lively sketches, which goes smartly; the artistic dancing of My Fancy is enjoyable; Arthur Reece has several "catchy" songs; and Little Ganty's quaint "funniments" are highly popular. The M'Kays repeat their smart painting and comedy business; Brothers Damm are clever acrobats; Frank Hemming and Marie Free do an enjoyable double turn. Good items are contributed by Stewart and Morgan, the Three Sisters Chester, the Lannons, and Clown Ferreros.

TIVOLI, LIMITED —Managing Director, Mr Barney Armstrong; Acting-Manager, Mr Fred C Ewing.—Katie Lawrence, in all her latest ditties, including "Oh, Charlie!" is very welcome here. Astley's American Circus provides much amusement, and the mule, pony, and revolving table keep up the excitement; Chas. Bignell is here with many new ditties; Grell and Grey do a clever lawn-tennis and athletic act; Slade Murray, J. A Cassells, George Barron, and Cullen and Carthy all score heavily as comedians; and Harry Zetter and Bendon's Bioscope contribute to a varied programme.

PALACE.—Proprietors, Messrs Rich Waldon and Thos. Barrasford.—Minni Letta's novel turn on the moving track is still the principal item on the bill here. Radford and Valentine are clever American comedy acrobats; Lottie Siegenberg's scena "The Lazy Slavey," with its quick-changes, goes well; Cullane Trio give a lively sketch, The Dude's Dilemma; the Arthur Saxon Trio display marvellous strength; Mdlle. Dora is a graceful young gymnast; the Three Prestons do a comedy turn of much humour; and Baker Belphor, baritone vocalist, is much appreciated.

QUEEN'S, LIMITED.—Manager, Mr T. J. Colquhoun; Acting-Manager, Mr B. M. Armstrong, Jun. —Leonard Barry, in his smartly worked-up scena, "The Moocher's Walk," is "going strong" here. The Jansons give a daring gymnastic display. Jack Charman, boy vocalist, is a sweet singer; Dainty Daisy Dormer again pleases the audiences by her neat and graceful dancing; Walter Stockwell is a comedian who always takes well here; Shavo, juggler; Linton, Harry Weldon, the Walkers, and Bendon's Bioscope complete a first-rate bill.

HARMONIC CONCERTS.—Musical Secretary, Mr William Biggam.—Henderson and Stanley, in their musical act, are clever, and have made themselves favourites; the Dunvilles are loudly applauded for their musical duologe, "Mansion Domestics." Miss Lena Brunton in her imitations shows exceptional talent; and J. H. Harris made a hit. George Wexland is responsible for much merriment. Roberts, dancers, are popular; Shavo's juggling meets with approval; Little Barney, comedian; J. M. Louie, tenor, and Clara A. Butler, complete the programme.

GLOUCESTER

THEATRE ROYAL.—Owners, Messrs C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr W. H. Weller.—The Cherry Girl, played by Mr C. Lubbock's company, is here this week. Miss Katie May gives a charming and artistic performance of the Queen, singing and dancing in first-class style, Mr H. Herbert is an excellent Moonshire, his Datas burlesque going capitally. Starlight is well sustained by Mr C. St. John Medley. As Grab and Snatchem Messrs Charles Seymour and Fred Delane are very droll. Miss Dorothy Frostick deserves high praise for neat dancing and acting as Mdlle. Pas Bas, as do Master Harry Williams as Snowball and Little Decima Brooke as Dimples. Miss Nina Gray plays admirably as Pansy; Master J. Saxo, with his horse (Mr Fred Le Franc), adds materially to the comedy; the Avondale Quartet (Messrs N. Ballard, Ford Robinson, E. Gordon, and F. Bentley), are responsible for some humorous and tuneful part-songs; and Miss Lottie Stone's Troupe of dancers score with graceful dances. Mr Clement Locknane presides over the orchestra, and the chorus is highly satisfactory.

GREAT GRIMSBY.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—A new American drama, An Actor's Romance, has been presented here this week by Mr Cecil Barth's company, and its many novel features have drawn crowded houses nightly. Mr Guy Hastings fills the part of Harold Davenport, the actor, most successfully; as the wife, Louise Davenport, Miss Bertha Northam admirably realises all the requirements of the part. The exacting rôle of Florence Hastings is undertaken by Miss Beatrice Bevan with distinction, and as the gentleman burglar Mr Ernest Ruston is quite satisfactory. Some excellent light comedy is provided by Miss Charteris as Dottie Dillingham and Mr E. H. Dobell as Charlie Cummings. Commendation may also be accorded to Mr Percy Marmont as Jack Woodford, Mr John Detliv as Isidore De Valois, Mr Carl Lyle as Ikey Isaacs, Mrs Louise L'Estrange as Sal Wiggins, and little Marie Ada Dowsing as Phyllis.

HIPPODROME.—The performing animals owned by Mdlle. Luba De Sarema have provided a turn quite out of the ordinary at the Hippodrome this week. Her troupe includes midget ponies, dogs, a donkey, and an educated bull. Asra's juggling speciality, "A Juggler in a Billiard Parlour," has been very favourably received. Mdlle. Pollo Jerome has given an exhibition on the trapeze that was remarkable both for gracefulness and skill. The Marblesque Trio have presented some effective statuary tableaux, whilst other good turns have been contributed by Ethel Loftus, double-voiced vocalist; the Two Eltons, knockabout comedians; Johnny Gilmore, Australian comedian; and the Countees, humorous duettists.

GREAT YARMOUTH.

ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. W. Nightingale.—In the Ranks is paying a return visit, and is admirably interpreted by Messrs Arthur Carlton and H. Armitage's company. Mr Edward Lloyd gives an earnest and manly rendition of the rôle of Ned Drayton; Mr Herbert Cecil is very successful as Gideon Blake; Ruth Herrick is sympathetically portrayed by Miss Edith Blair-Staples; Miss Ella Wilmer is excellent as Barbara Herrick. Other members of a long cast render adequate assistance.

HIPPODROME.—The last week of the season here is a time of benefits, and special attractions are provided each evening. The ordinary programme includes the Franz Family of acrobats; Julo Salmo, the Golden Mephisto; Helen and Emilon, Continental gymnasts; Jalvans, Oriental entertainers; Barker's performing dogs, monkeys, &c.; Downs, coloured ballad vocalist; and Maud Vera, the miniature Marie Lloyd.

BRITANNIA PIER PAVILION. — Managing-Director, Mr J. W. Nightingale; Acting-Manager, Mr Edward Gray.—Miss May Sieber gains unstinted applause for the melodious and sympathetic rendition of her songs; Miss Maud Dewey gives a clever exposition of whistling; the Sisters Gatti amuse as American humourists; Phroso, the mechanical doll, puzzles and mystifies the audience; Tony Iveson causes plenty of laughter; and Madame Angless' Band plays excellent selections of music.

GREENOCK.

THEATRE ROYAL —Lessees, the Executors of the late Mr Alex. Wright; Managers, Messrs A. B. Wright and J. J. Wright.—Mr Julian Malvern's company is here this week with the drama I Defy the World. Mr Lewis Gilbert gives an excellent impersonation of Leon Darville; Mr Joseph W. Worley is a capable exponent of Count De Beaulieu; Mr Chas. Conway enacts Laroche with success; and the part of General Delaporte is well played by Mr N. Denning Mr Horace E. Herbert is effective as Andre, and as Samuel Wozzle Mr Charles M. Julian is a general favourite. Miss Guinevere Shilton gives an excellent portrayal of Pauline Delaporte; Miss Lina Nazeby submits a powerful piece of acting as Blanche Darville; Miss

Odol is the first and only preparation for cleansing the mouth and teeth which exercises its antiseptic and refreshing powers not only during the few moments of application but continuously for some hours afterwards.

Maud Lillian fills the rôle of Marie Wozzle acceptably; and Little Vera Guyon is interesting as Fanchette.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr H. L. Skivington.—This week's company here includes the Dunvilles, smart vocalists and instrumentalists; Magna, in her statuesque tableaux; Onda and Leon, comedy triple bar experts; Percy Maye, a first-class lady impersonator; the Bransbys, comedy duettists; Rodin, eccentric cyclist; Sam Thomson, Scotch comedian; and Marcello Sanchez, in some amazing dental feats.

HALIFAX.

GRAND THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr W. Robinson; General Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling — Mr George Edwardes's San Toy company, which is here this week, is giving universal satisfaction. The principals are all well up to their parts, the chorus is numerous and efficient, and the staging and dressing leave nothing to be desired. Chief honours rest with Messrs John Humphries (Yen-How), E. S. Staples (Li), Colin Coop (Emperor), Reginald Kenneth (Bobby Preston), and Misses Fanny Dango (a sprightly and attractive San Toy), Maud Darling, Louie Collier, and Alice Lethbridge.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr Steuart Cecil. — The latest American mystery, "Electro," is causing much curiosity here. It is a lay figure, over 6ft. high, which is produced from a small wooden box, and which goes through a series of evolutions and movements. G. H. Elliott, a particularly effective singer of coon songs, is very well received; Wood and Bates, musical comedians, give a good show; Burg, Haud, and Wise, comedy acrobats, do their work well; Walton and Lester are a funny couple, their burlesque conjuring being distinctly humorous; Mark Anthony is smart, versatile, and amusing; Sybil Montague sings her songs with taste; and Ray Maskell, comedienne, is chic and smart.

HANLEY.

ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. Elphinstone.—Quality Street is being presented this week to capital audiences. Mr J. M Barrie's comedy is admirably enacted by Messrs A. and S. Gatti and Charles Frohman's company. Miss Grace Armytage Noble contributes an artistic reading of Phœbe Throssell; Miss May Whitty as Susan Throssell acts the part admirably; and Miss Lizzie Scobie as Patty is most successful. Miss Willoughby is well portrayed by Miss Rollo Deas; Miss Bertha Woolcote is a smart representative of Miss Fanny Willoughby; Miss Henrietta Turnbull finds a capable exponent in Miss Eveleen Mills; and Miss Alma Reeves Smith is a capital Charlotte Parrat. Mr David Glassford as Valentine Brown displays much ability; Mr A. Carlaw Grand as Ensign Blades is well placed; Lieutenant Spicer is capably acted by Mr Arthur H. Hill; and Mr Gordon Tomkins as the Sergeant is excellent.

GRAND.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr James Wynes.—Troba heads the bill this week in his marvellous juggling performance; Sam Mayo is once more a huge success in his funny songs; the Borghetti Troupe are excellent in their acrobatic turn; Cora Casselli is a smart comedienne and dancer; Rex Fox on the wire is much appreciated; the Four Trees are an artistic success; the Phydoras in their musical act are smart and clever; Harry Taft scores a huge success; the Lupino Brothers are well received; Stella Stanley sings her songs admirably; and the Grand pictures are always interesting.

HARTLEPOOL.

EMPRESS.—Proprietors, Messrs Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr Harry Burns.—Fred Karno's company of comedians in the pantomimic absurdity, Hilarity, heads the bill here. The barrel jumping by the Mozondas is a wonderful act. Hanvarr and Anna Lee are old favourites, as are also Mona Macdonald, a charming comedienne; Bert Weston, the swell comedian; and Joe Humphreys, character comedian, and all are having a hearty welcome. The Scotch funniosities of Wal Croft are irresistible, and a good all-round programme is completed by Hicks' Clerks and Burns' Bioscope.

HARROGATE.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr Wm. Peacock.—On Monday Mr Geo. Edwardes's company, in The Toreador, opened here for three nights and a matinée. The company is an excellent one, and the scenery and dresses were very smart. Mr Lional Victor as Sammy Gigg was exceptionally clever; the part of Sir Archibald Slackitt, Bart., was well played by Mr T. W. Volt; Mr W. H. Powell as Pettifer was good; and Mr John Donald as the Toreador acted and sang well. Miss Daisy Wallace made a charming and effective Dora Selby; the Susan of Miss Daisy Stratton was likewise a clever and graceful performance; and the dance by Miss Bessie Maddox was a pleasing item.

KURSAAL.—Manager, Mr H. J. Dacre.—The Municipal Orchestra has now been reduced for the remainder of the season, but the concerts continue to be well attended. Mr Nelson Jackson is the entertainer.

HASTINGS.

GAIETY THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr Geo. H Gaze.—On Monday a return visit of Mr Frank Fenton's company in the romantic play, If I Were King, found abundant favour at the hands of a large audience. Mr Frank Fenton played forcefully the important rôle of Francois Villon. The part of Louis Onze was impressively acted by Mr Clive Currie, Mr Ernest Marsh scored as Olivier Le Dain, and good work was done by Mr Leonard Maxwell as Thibaut D'Aussigny and Mr Lawrence Grove as Noel De Jolys. Miss Marion Grey's embodiment of Katherine De Vaucelles was very interesting, and Miss Louise Vansittber did excellently as Huguette De Hamel. The Mother Villon of Miss Una Gilbert was also a notable performance.

HASTINGS PIER PAVILION.—Pier Master, Mr R. Turner; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles H. Hawker.—The season's engagement of Ashton's Italian orchestra is drawing to a close, but judging from the attendance the interest is still maintained. Miss Gertrude Snow, soprano, sings with much sweetness and expression, whilst a Welsh vocalist, Mr Dan Thomas, contributes some fine tenor songs to the programme.

ST. LEONARDS PIER PAVILION.—Local Manager, Mr Elvey Thomas; Entertainment Manager, Mr Drew Mackintosh.—Mr F. S. Gilbert's opera company is the attractive feature here. In the selected operas Mr F. S. Gilbert takes the principal character. His rich, clear tenor is a treat to listen to His rendering of the part of Tony, in The Daughter of the Regiment, is a capital performance. Equally successful is Miss Vera Vizard as Marie in the title-rôle. This lady possesses a voice of considerable power and sweetness. The Countess is a natural representation by Miss Ella Ross. Mr Karl Mora gives a decidedly military bearing to the part of Sergeant Sulpice. The interpretation of the other operas, Il Trovatore, The Bohemian Girl, Faust, and Maritana, in the hands of Mr Gilbert's company, is in every way adequate.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General Manager, Mr Harold Penny.—A well-selected company is attracting good houses here. The programme is varied and original. Miss Rose Cabani, comedienne and graceful dancer, is well received. Mr Hector is clever on the slack wire. Great amusement is caused by the eccentricities of Mr Harry Conlin, comedian. Meir and Mora give a skilful exhibition of ball punching. The vaudeville artists Spry and Austin afford great fun in their comic sketch. Some excellent representations of characters from Dickens are shown by Mr E. Forss. The Three Sisters Slater, vocalists and dancers, score a decided success. Larola, the funny man, has established himself a general favourite. Great laughter is caused by Mark Melford and company's farcical sketch entitled Non-Suited. Some excellent up-to-date pictures are shown by the Bioscope.

HEBBURN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr W. A. Jackson.—Mr John Cassidy's company, in the farcical absurdity The New Muldoon's Picnic, is proving an attraction here this week. As Michael Mulcahy Mr Edwin Garth plays the part with tact and ability; Mr W. G. Wesley leaves nothing to be desired as Denis Muldoon; and Miss Madge Cassidy as Kitty Muldoon is excellent. Mrs Muldoon is in the capable hands of Mr Leo Whambould; Johnny O'Brien falls to the lot of Mr W. H. Montgomery; and Gussie Tearle is successfully represented by Mr G. Cromwell. A pleasing impersonation of Captain Mishla is given by Mr H. Gilbert; Mr A. Selwood does well as Dr. O'Rafferty; Juno Smith is embodied by Mr Reg. Kloof; and the Jack Donovan of Mr H. Halliday is also very good. Ada M'Loughlin is admirably portrayed by Miss Grace Woodleigh, and Cora Muldoon finds an agreeable exponent in Miss Norah Waylet.

HORWICH.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Arthur Sandiford; Acting-Manager, Mr Alfred Holles.—Miss Marie Menzies' company, in A Rogue's Daughter, is the attraction this week. Mr Richard Ferris as Colonel Foster, a most unscrupulous scoundrel, looks and plays the part to the life. Mr A. Willis's representation of Sir George Mynard is decidedly good. Mr Wilfrid Blair's Frank Tyler is a capital performance, Mr Will Wilson fairly revels in the part of Ebenezer Dunnem, Jack of all trades, his songs and eccentric dancing being highly applauded. Mr A. Hall Menzies as Ercules creates roars of laughter, his weight-lifting business being extremely funny. Miss May Wyniard as Lady Mynard plays a difficult part admirably. Miss Marie Menzies gives an artistic and sympathetic rendering of Letty Gray. Dicky the Waif is cleverly represented by Miss Mabel Hall, her songs receiving unstinted applause. Priscilla Jenkins, Ebenezer's sweetheart, is excellently embodied by Miss Millie Doris, whose comedy business and singing and dancing are decidedly clever. The minor parts are in good hands.

HOYLAND.

THEATRE METROPOLE.—Owner, Arthur Carlton; Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr G. S. King.—Mr Hugh Osborne's company occupies the boards here this week in the sensational melodrama, The Sins of the Fathers. Mr Max Coutts as Sebastian Brandt is very good. Mr Arthur Traill as Mr Harmsworth, and Mr Wallace Eastlake as George Armitage are also deserving of praise. Mr Cecil Ravinswood sustains with ability the part of Jim Hewitt. Miss Dorothy Routh as Edith Harmsworth and Miss Beryl Ravenswood as Camille Leblanc are both good.

HUDDERSFIELD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting Manager, Mr Percy G. Arthur.—The attraction for the local feast is provided by Mr Arnold Bell and his company with Ben-My-Chree, The Shaughraun, and The Octoroon. In the first-named piece, with which the week opened, Mr Bell gave a vigorous rendering of the part of Dan; Miss Francis Campbell was a sympathetic Mona; Mr F. C. Robson, a capable Ewan; Mr Frank C. Robson, a satisfactory Deemster; Mr H. M. Clifford, a dignified Bishop; Mr Wm. Reid, a smart Davy Fayle; and Mr Joe Bardsley, a quaint Hommy Begg. Miss Violet Campbell as Kitty and Miss Lilian Carle as Liza were adequate in their support.

HULL.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr W. Morton; General Manager, Mr W. F. Morton —Mr Arthur Bourchier's company in The Fairy's Dilemma is the attraction this week, and one welcomes with pleasure the cleverness of the dialogue, which is so distinctly Gilbertian. As Colonel Mauleverer Mr C. V. France has a part to which he does the utmost justice. The part of Lady Angela finds an excellent interpreter in Miss A. Horner, and Mr F. Collins does capitally as Mr Justice Whortle.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr John Hart; Local Manager, Mr Wyn Miller.—The Earl and the Girl pays its first visit this week, and is one of the finest productions yet seen here. With Mr Wm. Stephens as Jim Cheese the fun runs fast and furious. Miss Aimée Grey nightly sings herself into public favour, and Miss Dot Carey, favourably known in Hull, scores very heavily. The chorus is as strong as it is pretty.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Sole Owner, Mr W. Morton; General Manager, Mr Geo. Morton.—The Convict's Daughter is appealing to the patrons this week, and when last here met with great success. Mr J. K. Watton is the Fred Neville, and acts with force and consistency. The piece meets with a favourable reception.

PALACE THEATRE. — Moss Empires, Limited; Local Manager, Mr A. Graham.—Harry Randall, ever welcome, is once more in our midst. Rafayette gives a very good dog show; and Les Brunins are good in a speciality act.

ALHAMBRA —Resident-Manager, Mr C. J. Bartleet Perry.—Warden Reed and Dora Glenny top the bill in a farcical duologue, Married or Photographed, whilst the Brothers Donar bottom in a smart equilibristic acrobatic act. Ben Nevis scores as a step-dancer, and Merton and Rydon make a big hit in a vocal and dancing speciality act. Ed. Avon and Ethel Crest appear in a comedy act, and others supporting include Harry Meir and Gilbert and May.

CIRCUS.—Manager, Mr E. Emerson.—Dr. and Madame Vint, supported by a strong company, are concluding a successful two weeks' stay here.

HYDE.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Joseph W. Maloney.—Mr Harry Starr's company opened here on Monday to a capital audience with Otto the Outcast. As Otto Mr Harry Starr displays distinct originality, and is the life and soul of the piece. As a vocalist he is a great success, his yodel and descriptive songs being vociferously applauded. Lara has a charming and clever exponent in Miss Ethel Danbury, who has no difficulty in ingratiating herself into the hearts of the audience. The craft and subtlety of Roderique D'Estalier, a kind of French Jonathan Wild, is graphically depicted by Mr Richard Harris, who scores with his song "Glittering gold." Mr William Miller submits an ingenious and well studied sketch of the miser, Daddy Bruneau, and Mr Conrad Clerke gives a finished performance of the Marquis Marcella De Laporte. Corinne has a capable impersonator in Miss Rita Rosslyn; Mr J. Turner is excruciatingly funny as Augustine Carrotte; and Miss Edna Lester is a bright and vivacious Susette.

ILKESTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr L F. A. Rogers.—Mr Bert Coote's company is here with The Fatal Wedding, which is received nightly with great enthusiasm. Mr Ernest Outtrim is an able exponent of the easy-going Howard Wilson, Mr Oliver Rogers is mildly villainous as Robert Curtis, Mr W. R. Chewd gets in some good work as Toto, and Mr John Wheatman as the genial German, Peter Schwartz, is highly amusing. Miss Helen Russell plays the pathetic part of Mabel Wilson with sympathetic power, Miss Doris Gilham as Cora Williams portrays the adventuress to perfection, and Miss Maud Locker gives an excellent character sketch of the Irish cook, Bridget. As Jessie Miss Maidie Andrews is natural and pathetic.

INVERNESS.

THEATRE ROYAL — Managing Director, Mr Cameron Burgess.—Mr Chas. Macdona's company is here this week in A Country Girl. Mr Jack Fortescue does well as Sir Joseph; Mr Jack Parson is very successful as the Rajah; as Geoffrey Chaloner Mr Percy Davison sustains his part in excellent style; and as Barry Mr Harry Emerie is as lively as can be desired. Miss Clara Judge acts admirably as Marjory Joy; Miss Lily Shaw makes a captivating Nan; and the part of Madame Sophie has a charming exponent in Miss Marjory Moore.

IPSWICH.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. G. Fisk.—A company under direction of Mr F. H. De Quincey and Miss Simo Seruya commenced a week's engagement here on Monday, The Twin Sister being played on the opening night. Richelieu and The Red Lamp have also been presented.

HIPPODROME.—The following are the attractions in this week's programme:—The Brothers Dryon in a burlesque musical act; Messrs Keen and Wallad, acrobats; Ray and Calden, comedians; Frank Weatherby and May Ellis, duettists; Haig and Novel, Miss Winnie Scott, serio; Hughes and Ellis, dancers; Marie Winsee, male impersonator; Miss Croft, vocalist; and the Hippograph with new films.

JARROW.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Hugh Robertson; Secretary, Mr William Y. Oakes.—Mr W. Greet's company is here this week with The Sign of the Cross. Mr F. B. Woulfe gives an admirable rendering of Marcus Superous, while Mr A. B. Turner is well placed as Nero. Mr Charles Aldred gives a powerful portrayal of Tigellinus; Mr J. Wetherall is good as Lucinius; Miss Evelyn D'Alroy is excellent as Mercia; and Miss Ivy Millais is effective in the part of Stephanus. Mr Robert Hare is a manly Favius.

KEIGHLEY.

QUEEN'S THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs Carson and Granville; Acting-Manager, Mr Frank Barnes.—Mr C. St. John Denton's company, in Kitty Grey, is proving a strong attraction here this week. The performance of Mr Leslie Harris as Lord Plantagenet is exceptionally clever. Mr Robert Selby enters thoroughly into the rollicking fun of the piece. Mr Robert Whyte, jun., is amusing as the King of Illyria. Miss Hilda Guiver worthily fills the title-rôle. Mrs Bright is in the able hands of Miss Emily Stevens, who scores heavily. Miss Constance Hamilton also deserves praise.

KENDAL.

ST. GEORGE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr R. F. Chorley; Manager, Mr J. W. Butler.—Mr W. T. Rushbury's company occupied the boards Saturday and Monday with In the Ranks. Mr Bradford Crosby acts admirably as Ned Drayton Captain Holcrott as played by Mr Wilson Roberts is all that can be desired. Miss Madeline Hurst in the part of Ruth Herrick is seen to advantage. The company is a capable one, the other prominent members being Mr Edwin Firth, Mr C. H. Seaton, Mr Fred Luard, Miss Kitty Norton, and Miss Lillian Murray.

KETTERING.

AVENUE THEATRE —Proprietor, Mr Frank Payne.—Messrs Moule and Nicholls' company is here this week in The Life that Kills. Mr Hugh Metcalfe gives a manly interpretation of the hero, Hector Rodney, and Mr E. D. Nicholls is responsible for some good acting as the Rev. Theodore Rodney. Mr H. Sidney presents a powerful rendering of Kendal Croat, and Mr Morris Maud is sufficiently villainous as Valentine Telford. Jack Jolliffe is admirably played by Mr Harry Howe, and the comicalities of Mr Wilton Drury as Samuel Flatfoote are well received. Miss Vivian Montgomery is a sympathetic Laura Linden, Miss Cathleen Cavanagh is successful as Brenda Croat, and Miss Mabel Kessler portrays the dual characters of Tom and Johanna Dicks most artistically, her cornet solos being heartily applauded.

KIDDERMINSTER.

NEW OPERA HOUSE.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr R. C. Gudgeon, jun.—The attraction here this week is Mr Ernest R. Abbott's company, who on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday appeared in the naval drama entitled The Mariners of England, while on Thursday and Friday East Lynne was staged. In the first mentioned play Mr Ernest R. Abbott as Lord Nelson was very realistic, while Miss Ada Abbott as Mabel Talbot faithfully portrays her part.

LANCASTER.

ATHENÆUM —Proprietor and Manager, Mr Hy. Wilkinson.—Mr Howell Webb's company in The Convent Bell, paying a return visit this week, proved a big attraction on Monday. Mr Howell Webb gave a capital impersonation of Henri Casella, and was ably supported by Mr Oliver Birrell as Philip Vautier, Mr Charles E. Howell as Colonel Vautier, Mr Lewis Thompson as Captain Drummond, and Miss Ella Sennett as Marguerite Courier. The staging was excellent.

LEAMINGTON.

JEPHSON GARDENS —Messrs Adeler and Sutton bring their short autumn season here to a close this week. Charlie Harvey, the comedian, stars the troupe, and with him are Miss Elsie Steadman, comedienne; Miss Emille Talt, soprano; Mr John Green, baritone; Mr J. Scotland, bass; and Mr Peter Flitcraft, pianist.

LEIGH.

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Dewhurst; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Dewhurst.—The management of this cosy place of amusement has again returned to the drama, and has for this week secured the services of Mr Robert Perris's company in the American drama entitled A Fight for Millions Mr Robert Perris gives a capital impersonation of Tom Manley; Mr J. Newton Cowling in the character of Hudson Rivers is excellent; Mr W. S Stevenson does fine justice to the part of Richard Dudley, the villain of the play; Mr Larry Clements is successful as Willie Neverwork; and Mr Fred Acton scores as Solomon Moses, whilst Mr Nicholas Conway is well suited as Harold Hobbs. Miss Eva Purcell is charming as Pearl Rivers, and as Mrs Hudson Rivers Miss Fanny Williams plays the part in a satisfactory manner. Miss Evelyn Robson is very sympathetic as the deserted wife, Helen Dudley, and as Little Madge Miss Winnie Acton deserves praise.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr T. H. Dunlop.—A good bill is topped by Geo. White's Arabs, who are well received for their singing and acting, as are also Turner and De Gray, in their comedy and dramatic episode, Down on his Luck. Mdlle. Haydee, with her Magical Electric Mannikin Theatre, is very pleasing; Mr Harry Glynn, with his company of comedians, still keeps the house in roars of laughter; La Belle Sylvia, child vocalist and dancer, Katie Le Blanche, vocalist, &c., are good; Andy Kerr, coon comedian, is well received; and the Hippodrome pictures complete a good all-round programme. To add to the attractions there is a local cake-walk competition for some valuable prizes.

LINCOLN.

ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr Frank King —Mr Douglas Bruce's company in A Girl's Cross Roads created a good impression here on Monday. Miss Lily Hammersley as Barbara Wade presented a terribly realistic picture of the dipsomaniac; Miss Ethel Bracewell is a sweetly pathetic Constance; Miss Kate Walfred puts fire into the rôle of Nellie Meadows; and Miss Gladys Newcombe is very amusing as Tilly. Mr W. E. Griffiths as Farmer Meadows supplies a fine piece of character acting, especially in his closing scene. Mr G. Glasford is good as Livingstone, as is Mr E Eardley-Howard as Dr. Weston; and Mr Will Currie arouses and sustains the merriment of the audience as Toby. Mr W. Fraser Brunner is well cast as Lumley, and Mr John Rogers merits appreciation as Ramsden.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr Sydney Arthur.—J. W. Rowley, the well-known comedian, is on a visit here, and his clever songs create much merriment. The Leggett Combination, with their sketch The Maid of Athens, present an entertaining turn; and a pair of eccentric comedians appear in Nell and Torp. Howe and Ardie are as funny as of yore; Harrigan and Holt earn the same encomium; and the talented Watson Family, the Cecils, and R. W. Russell complete a smart programme.

LEEDS.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr John Hart; General Manager, Mr Fredk. Vincent.—That most prominent of recent successes, The Cingalee, opened here on Monday, and Mr George Edwardes' star company gave a capital interpretation of a charming play. Mr Frank Danby, a great favourite here, is a continual source of hilarity in his comical portrayal of the native lawyer, Chambhuddy Ram; and Miss Florence Smithson is a dainty Nanoya. Excellent vocal work characterises the Lady Pat of Miss Anna Hickisch; and Miss Mabel Russell is a charming and attractive Peggy Sabine. Mr F. Pope Stamper does all that is possible with the somewhat meagre part of Harry Vereker. Mr W. J. Manning has a rôle well to his liking as the peppery Sir Peter Loftus; whilst one of the best successes of the show is Mr Jack Cannot's Bobby Warren.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; General Manager, Mr R. Ernest Liston.—An enthusiastic welcome was extended at Monday's performance to the new and sensational drama, In the Shadow of Night, from the pen of Mr James Willard. The author's company is a strong one. Mr Hamilton Deane does some powerful acting as Clifford York, and Mr Howard L. Tracy is no less effective in the rôle of Gordon Allington. The heroine of Miss May Richardson is a charming portrayal. Miss Nellie Sheffield evinces high ability in her delineation of Molly Woodstock, whilst other leading rôles are ably acted by Mr George Harvey and Mr Chisholm Taylor and Miss Millie Gordon.

QUEEN'S THEATRE. — Lessees, Messrs Dottridge and Longden; General Manager, Mr C. H. Longden; Acting-Manager, Mr Chas. Bush. — A Woman's Pluck is the attraction at this theatre. The author, Mr James Willard, is a member of Dottridge and Longden's capital company, and makes an effective central figure in his clever creation of Dick Darrell. Miss East Robertson has the leading feminine part of Grace Daremont, and her spirited acting evokes great enthusiasm. Mr Charles P. Wentworth is to the fore with good work as Sir Noel Fordyce, the acting of Mr J. P. Dryden in a difficult dual-rôle is likewise of a very high order, and of a company of all-round excellence Mr Edward Ashby, Mr William Hayward, and Miss Helen Elmar are also particularly prominent.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Moss Empires, Limited; Resident-Manager, Mr T. Gerald Morton.—A clever pair of comedy artistes, Clark and Hamilton, are at the top of the bill, whilst at the other end we have the Kellinos, with an expert acrobatic and Risley act. The Tribune Trio are here again with their familiar act The Cheerful Idiot. Of the comedians, Josh Dixon is doing very well, as are also those old favourites, the Brothers Elgar. The clever Lilliputian act of the Mayvilles is well received; Lee and Kingston subscribe comedy business; the dancing speciality of Espinosa and Neilson is cleverly executed; and Stelling and Revell, acrobatic comedians; and Dolly M'Calla, a juvenile artiste, are responsible for the remainder of the programme.

TIVOLI.—Proprietor, Mr Thos. Barrasford; General Managers, Mr Charles Weldon and Edgar O. Waller.— The most enjoyable turn in this week's bill is done by Miss Annie Purcell, a recruit from musical comedy, whose refined and accomplished vocal work is much appreciated. Mirzah, the man in green, gives a novel and entertaining musical act; a clever sketch entitled Chums is given with great success by George Leslie and company; the contributions of Dorothy L. Clark, vocalist, are most enjoyable; that clever juggler, Walter Bellonini, makes a welcome reappearance; Alice Lorette presents her remarkably fine statue dog; and Madge Grey, an accomplished dialect comedienne; George Foyle, comedian; and Ward Bros., a pair of amusing eccentrics, also contribute.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr F. W. Wood; General Manager, Mr J. C. Whiteman; Acting Manager, Mr S Jones —The wonderful illusion "Lilith" is presented here by Fred Harcourt, and this most mysterious act is arousing great interest. Those popular comedians Rich and Rich are also here, and enhance a big local reputation. Another favourite artiste, F. B. Fayne, scores his usual big success. A good reception is accorded Elsie Roby, a clever comedienne; Francis and Melli subscribe a novel musical act; comedy business by Cline and Clark is decidedly successful; Dan Karnell makes a big hit as an eccentric comedian; and Lilian Warren, the pictorial songstress, gains much favour.

LEICESTER.

ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor, Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley; Acting-Manager, Mr C. D. Leigh.—The Never-Never Land, the last play written and produced by the late Wilson Barrett, is the attraction here this week. The company presenting the play is Messrs John Hart and H. Armitage's. Miss Carry Barrett is in every way excellent as Sybil, and Miss Blanchette Grand is also well placed as Lorna Mannerley. Miss Julie Kennard is clever as Sal Berker, and both Miss Marion Fawcett as Lady Walgrove and Miss Margaret Parker as Smudge are to be complimented. Mr Edmund F. Kennedy gives a telling and clever performance as Jack Mowbray, and Mr Edward Rochelle is conspicuous with a good sketch of Nat Rudder. Mr Arthur Bolton is capital as Tom Hewley. Mr John Hart as Brudds, Mr Simon D. Ord as Raphael Moses Wolff, Mr Selby Burrell as Caerwon Moody, Mr Cecil Elgar as Lord Thurland, and Mr Stephen Bancroft as Spurdy should also be singled out for well-played embodiments. The play is staged in good style, and is being accorded a hearty reception.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Sole Lessee, Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley; General Manager, Mr John H. Clarke —A warm reception awaited Miss Olga André's No. 1 company on Monday, when it presented for the first time in Leicester the new and original drama The Mockery of Marriage. Included in the company are the clever acrobats the Four Aces, who, besides giving a smart display, arouse great enthusiasm when they rescue the heroine from the railway lines before an approaching train by making a human rope of themselves from the parapet of a bridge. This scene is cleverly contrived and well carried out. Miss Florence Zillwood is conspicuously successful as Alva Kenyon, and Miss Lydia Audrey as Rose Vernham is very good. Mr Arthur Wimpenny as the evil genius Dick Kenyon and Mr Harry Stebbing as Jack Stanley, the hero, play most effectively. Mr Frank Dalton is capital as Seth Pearce. In a lighter vein Mrs Sidney Halling as Mary Ann Barnicoat and Mr Will Skelton as Toby Wright are responsible for much hearty laughter. The drama is well staged.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Leonard Vidal. —At the top of this week's excellent bill are the Colibri Midgets, whose unique and sensational performances evoke unstinted applause. These little people give a "show" that is really remarkable. At the other end are the Two M'Naughtons, as funny a comedy team as visits Leicester. They keep the audience in a continual roar of laughter. Alice Lloyd is a vivacious comedienne who is always well received, her songs, "Louie didn't know" and "Another pair of stockings on the line," being rendered in a captivating manner. Herr Fritz nightly astounds and bewilders the audience with his remarkable illusions, which are done in a neat and deft manner. J. W. Hall returns, and scores his usual big success with his funny songs. The British Quartet of speciality vocalists and glee singers are good, and other turns that gain the favour of the audience are Marie Weston, vocalist, banjoist, and dancer; J. A. Wilson, the "black oracle;" and Bijou Russell, sand dancer.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter Lapworth.—Aldridge, who possesses a good tenor voice, stars this week. The Four Jumels are very popular in their musical act. Mr and Mrs Blake Adams score a success in a dramatic episode entitled The Last Pitch. Fred Herbert, topical vocalist, receives his usual hearty welcome. Walter H. Pallister shows some entertaining films on his American Bioscope. Other turns are submitted by Alicia Mayne, song illustrator; Marcelle Maurys, lady illusionist; and Teddy Denham, a funny comedian.

LIMERICK.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr Robert Fogerty. —We have a musical treat this week in the reappearance of the Hilton St. Just grand opera company. On Monday Il Trovatore was well received, and Tuesday was set apart for Maritana, with Mr G. Hilton St. Just as Don Cæsar De Bazan, a rôle in which he scored most unmistakably. The music of Don José was capitally rendered by Mr Frank Land, and as the King of Spain Mr George Neilson was heard to advantage. As Lazarillo Miss Fannie Emmerson's rich contralto met with applause, and the title-rôle was in the hands of that sweet soprano Miss Louise Van Dalle.

LIVERPOOL.

ROYAL COURT THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE — Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr Arthur Lawrence.—The Bread of the Treshams is being presented here, for the first time in Liverpool, by Mr Martin Harvey and company, The part of Karesby the Rat, a fortune-hunting soldier, almost seems to have been written round Mr Martin Harvey, it suits him so well; and he handles the character with wonderful skill. Mr Harvey is also capably supported, praiseworthy enactments being offered by Mr A. E Raynor as Lord Dorington; Mr Chas. Glenney as Col. Hungerford; Mr Milton Rosmer as Francis Tresham; and Miss Coleridge as Margaret Hungerford. The play is staged admirably, every regard being paid to completeness in detail. As might be expected, Mr Harvey has been accorded most flattering receptions, and at the close of the initial performance he briefly expressed his thanks, remarking that he had never met anywhere more kindly criticism and more sincere and responsive feeling than in Liverpool.

SHAKESPEARE THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr J. M. Hardie; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Gaffney.—Mr Arthur W. Pinero's latest problem play, Letty, forms the attraction here, and the company which Mr Chas. Frohman has brought from the Duke of York's Theatre includes Mr H. B. Irving and Miss Irene Vanbrugh. Mr H. B. Irving sustains the difficult rôle of Nevill Letchmere in an admirable manner, and Miss Irene Vanbrugh presents a clever study as Letty. Mr Scott Craven appears in the part of Bernard Mandeville, the brutal stockbroker, and Miss Beatrice Forbes-Robertson gives a delightful rendering of Marion Allerdyce, and Miss Eleanor Sonray is highly amusing as Hilda Cumming. Others worthy of praise are Mr Leslie Victor as Richard Perry, Mr Vernon Steel as Coppinger Drake, and Miss May Blayney as Mrs Ivor Crosbie. The play is beautifully staged and mounted.

ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr M. Montgomery; Licensee, Mr J. G. Howard; Acting-Manager, Mr M. Montgomery, jun. — Mr Milton Bode's company is appearing here in the stirring military drama entitled Tommy Atkins, and nightly it is witnessed by delighted audiences. The production is being rendered additionally realistic by the appearance in the Church Parade scene of the band of the 1st Lancashire Artillery. All the characters are in capable hands, and the piece is elaborately staged.

LYRIC THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr Fred Coles.—A A capital programme is to be enjoyed at this popular theatre. Maggie Duggan, who tops the bill with new songs and one or two of her old favourites, quite easily captures her audience; Lanos and Montes cause roars of laughter and rounds of applause for their decidedly daring and comical acrobatic act; the Daunton-Shaw Troupe are clever trick cyclists; Tom Lloyd, in his new song "Dead of Bill Bailey," is very laughable; the Abd'el Kader Trio, lightning sketch artists in colours, are loudly applauded; Collins and Rice, in their comedy act, are amusing; Geo. Bernard is a clever actor-vocalist; Baby Violet Macfarlane is a popular little vocalist; and Davis and Davis are good dancers.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr H. Fineberg; Acting-Manager, Mr M. Simmons.—That romantic drama Why Men Love Women, as presented by a company organised by Messrs Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard (the author), is proving immensely successful. Miss Annie Saker is cast as the heroine, Violet Livingstone, which character she sustains with finished grace. Mr A. Paumier gives a capital portraiture of Gerald Fielding, the hero, and others worthy of mention are Mr S. Herbert-Humber, Mr Edwin Lever, Miss Beatrice Sinclair, and Miss Marie Glynn.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs Carson and Granville; Manager, Mr Fred Granville.—The City of Millions, a spectacular and sensational drama by Messrs William Bailey, jun., and Charles Berte, is attracting large audiences here. Miss Madge Girdlestone, who portrays Rosa De Valois with consummate skill, is supported by an excellent company. Mr Martin Sabine offers a most acceptable performance as Captain Wilfred Dread. The scenic effects are a special feature, and in the second act the band of the 1st (V.B.) King's Liverpool Regiment renders a popular selection, an item which is received with enthusiasm. The Bioscope pictures between the acts are as popular as ever.

EMPIRE THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director Mr H. E. Moss; Acting-Manager, Mr T. A Cook.—A most attractive programme is provided here, the principal turn being given by that popular comedienne Marie Lloyd, whose latest success "The Coster's Wedding" is received with enthusiastic applause. The Lukushima Troupe of equilibrists, including Otora San Lukushima, give a remarkably clever display; Mr and Mrs Gene Hughes contribute a highly amusing sketch, entitled A Matrimonial Substitute; and Jerry Hart and Beatrice Leo appear in a song-scena Follow the Croud on a Sunday. Others are Albert Christian, baritone vocalist; C. F. Best, an exceedingly funny man; Frank Lynne, comedian; the Caselli Sisters, soubrette artistes and eccentric dancers; Will Cornish, unique musical speciality; Abel and Welsh, grotesque comedians; Ella Lane, comedienne; Katie Cohen, ballad vocalist; Silent Tait the eccentric wizard; and James Grant, eccentric comedian.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—Richard Sawade again heads the bill here, and his performance with lions, tigers, bears, and dogs, is received with gusto, the manner in which the animals go through their antics demonstrating Sawade's complete control over them. Joe Almasio, the jumping juggler, is particularly good, and his funny servant highly amusing; the Bob Hanlon Troupe display marked ability as flying trapeze artistes; and the patter of Tray and Rich is mirth-provoking. Ida Gladstone, Canadian contralto comedienne; the Brothers Pim, comic gymnasts; Harry Walker, comedian; Dave Marlon, American comedian; Rhoda Paul, "the miniature Vesta Tilley;" and the Kimberley Boys, eccentric comedians and dancers, all and Miss Nellie Clare as Mrs Lydia Brock. Tonini, a Continental illusionist of great skill, is earning wide popularity on this his first appearance in Liverpool, and the Sisters Brownie, who are also now paying a first visit, have been enthusiastically received. Others include Billy Richardson, the noted stump orator; Chris Masters, character vocalist; and Alfred Poynton, a clever impersonator. The latest films are exhibited by the British Imperial Company's Bioscope.

NEW PARTHENON.—Proprietor, Mr Edwin Smith.—Mr Henry Carlton, the popular comedian, and his talented comedy team are causing no end of fun by their absurdity entitled Obliging a Lady. Excruciatingly funny is Mr Carlton's portrayal of Billy Wilks. Blarney and Kennard are also contributing a laughable comedy act, in which they introduce their waltzing dog; Prof. Hulbert gives an interesting exhibition with his life-size mechanical figures; Frank Spring is a clever boy jumper; Alice Maple is adding to her popularity as a burlesquo actress and dainty dancer; Bessie Lind is a highly pleasing comedienne and dancer; and Mons. De Lil, a clever illusionist and card expert. New pictures are presented by means of the Royal Bioscope.

PADDINGTON PALACE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr J. Kiernan.—The Vyponds (Fred and Maude) are causing merriment by their patter absurdity, Engaging the Servant. Kydd and Kydd, comedians, vocalists, and dancers, are quaint, clever, and original. Barnard's life-like marionettes are exceedingly good, and Les Prinellas (Joe and Leilee) contribute A Country Flirtation, a laughable vocal scene. Acceptable items are also given by the Brooklands (Ethel and Bella), dancers and vocalists; Lee and Arden, in the musical comedy sketch, The Watchman; and the Percys (Harry and Lillie), vocalists and dancers.

WESTMINSTER.—Proprietor, Mr M. Montgomery.—Gilbert Girard, who heads the bills here, is proving himself a marvellous animal and instrumental mimic, his performance delighting large audiences each evening. A laughable domestic absurdity In Possession; or the Trials of a Broker's Man, is produced by the Alleyn Trio, and provokes much merriment; the cake-walk competitions are immensely popular; and Frank Stephens and Madge North are highly successful in the comedy skit "Oh! the Bells, the Bells, the Bells." Others contributing to the programme are Jimmy Shields, comedian and one-legged dancer; Dingo Jack, the Paderewski of the Australian bush; Fred Curran, comedian; the Sisters Hall, vocalists; the Sisters Isabelle, characteristic vocalists and dancers; Holger, American paper manipulator; Guy Rider, boy whistler and comedian; and Mr Bob Stephenson, Irish comedian and dancer.

PARK PALACE.—Director, Mr James Kiernan.—An amusing item entitled "Is it You?" is presented here, and causes much amusement, as snapshots of people in the neighbourhood are included. The Emmersons (Will and Maggie), comedy duettists and pantomime artists, dance and sing well; Chas. Bradford renders new songs; the Two Stars (Lottie and Gerty) are charming dancers and vocalists; and others are Wallace Whitney, character comedian; Nellie Gannon, English and Irish vocalist and dancer; Harry Martell, comedian; Harry Wright, extempore vocalist; and Beattie Foster, vocalist. Up-to-date pictures are exhibited by means of the Bioscope.

LONDONDERRY.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr W. Payne Seddon.—The Message from Mars, by Mr Gordon Starkey's company is being played here this week. Mr Cyril Austen Lee as Horace Parker is very good; the part of the Messenger from Mars is capably filled by Mr William Lockhart; Miss Violet Auberies is a satisfactory Miss Parker; and Miss Edith Cuthbert is a dainty Minnie Templar. Mr Alan Birch plays Arthur Disey well, and the Tramp of Mr Percy Tyler is decidedly good.

LONGTON.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr H. S. Howard.—Edward Marris's company is here for the first time with As Midnight Chimes. Mr Melville Bickford gives a finished portrayal of Luke Dezzard; Witty Wattie Walton keeps the house in a roar with his droll rendering of Tat Spavvin; and Miss Annie Megson as Suzette ably assists him. Mr Frank E. Petley as Dave Stannard is very good; Mr Henry Beaufort plays with bluff vigour as Ezra Gamble; Miss Iris M. Ward pleasingly embodies Zamora; Miss Minnie Ethel acts with favour as Little Davy; and Miss Gertrude Price represents with feeling the part of Mary Stannard.

LOWESTOFT.

MARINA.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Ernest A. Smith.—This week we had the first appearance of Messrs Murray King and Clark's company, in Sweet and Twenty. Miss Rosalie Jacobi appears as Joan Trevelyan and submits a finished piece of acting. Others worthy of note are Messrs George Miller (Rev. Jas. Floyd), Robt. Milsted, Lionel Glenister, Murray King, Miss May Mulvey, and Miss Edith M'Clure. You and I is the curtain raiser.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr Geo. Gilbert; Manager, Mr Pearce Butler.—The bill this week includes Frank Craig, the "coffee cooler;" Miss Omega, on the silver thread; Mdlle. Angelina, the female Cinquevalli; Geo. Antil, the "evening shadow;" Three Sisters Lee, acrobats; Cruickshanks; The Onatis troupe of jugglers; Prof. M'Cann and his performing dogs; and Signor Pepi, a really clever turn, &c.

MACCLESFIELD.

ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr W. K. Gatley.—Mr Henry Hare and company opened here on Monday with The Girl from Chicago. Miss Lily Beverley as Flora Boomer acts with considerable success; Mr B. Clair is suited for the part of Judge Ananias Hussel; Mr H. Hare's General Boomer shows a good deal realism and power as Percy Montmorency; Mr D. Vigors plays with much acceptance; Mr E. Dodds scores as Billy M'Guffin; Miss Lucy Beaumont as Mrs Sweetlove does well; the part of Lucretia Flatfoot is faithfully embodied by Miss Nellie Vicott; Mr C. Ibbotson is well received as Brother Obadiah Caccles; as Sammy Tibabit Miss Nellie James is good, and in conjunction with Miss Lena Adams as Lottie Longsox and Miss Madge Shaw as Dora Doolittle is well received in some speciality dancing.

MARGATE.

GRAND THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr C. E. Bawtree.—Mr George Edwardes's company was here this week for the first three nights, with the musical comedy, San Toy. The company was an excellent one all round, Miss Don Harradine being especially noticeable in the title-rôle. Mr Alfred Beers was good as Li, and Mr Edmund Sherras made a capable Capt. Bobby Preston. Mr Alfred Clark put in some good work as Yen How, and Mr G. J. Williams was an efficient Sir Bingo Preston. Mr Cliff Davies gave a good account of himself as the Emperor, whilst Miss Mabel Lavalle was an enchanting Poppy. On Thursday evening the bill was changed for The Lady of Ostend, and for Friday evening The Cruise of the Saucy Sally was on the bill.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr E. Macknight; Business-Manager, Mr Charles E. Hardy.—For the current week Mr Eugene C. Stafford's company has been providing a fund of amusement for the patrons of this place of amusement with another visit of The Private Secretary. Mr Donald Price Evans gives a capital impersonation of the Rev. Robert Spalding; Mr W. Hargreaves plays well as Mr Cattermole; and the part of his nephew, Douglas, is an admirable presentment at the hands of Mr Austen-Leigh. Miss Cecily Wade is a typical landlady as Mrs Stead, and Miss Dora Gray is a charming Edith Marsland. Mr Raymond Chester as Mr Marsland and Mr Vivian Gilbert as Harry Marsland are good.

MANCHESTER.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr Edmondstone Shirra.—A large audience assembled here on Monday to witness the performance of Thomas Raceward's play, Sunday, by Mr Fred Terry, Miss Julia Neilson, and their London company.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr George Lee.—Mr Frederick Mouillot's company, in My Lady Molly, is giving patrons of this theatre a treat during the current week. The piece is one of the brightest of comic operas, the lyrics and the music being especially tuneful and pleasing. Mr John T. M'Callum is in the part of Mickey O'Dowd, the humour of which he is thoroughly capable of exploiting to the full. Miss Beatrice Edwardes's fine voice is heard to great advantage in the title-part, and Miss Rita Everard's rendering of Alice Coverdale is exceptionally pretty and charming. Mr Harry T. Davies as Captain Romney and Mr Ernest Mozar as Lionel Bland are capable exponents of the heroic element, and Mr Augustus Cramer gives a capital rendering of Sir Miles Coverdale. Other notable parts are in the hands of Miss Kitty Upton, Miss Amy Cooper, and Mr Frederick Silverston.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr W. H. Broadhead; Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—Mr Frederick Melville's company is here this week, in Between Two Women, after a week at the Grand Junction Theatre.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr H. M. Thorburn.—Mr George Dance's company, in A Chinese Honeymoon, is the attraction here for a second week.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—An attractive programme is submitted here this week, the principal turns being Carl Mysto, who gives an excellent exhibition of handcuff breaking, &c., and Flora Lumiere's Fairy Grotto, which is not inaptly described as "the most beautiful and charming act" of its kind on the stage. Other good and enjoyable turns are Lennie and Hast, in a musical sketch; Oliver Conroy, eccentric comedian; Annie Cohen, comedienne; Stanley and Vandyke, a capital comedy couple; Will Ellerslie, comedian and mimic; the Sisters Aindow, musical artistes; the Rosaire Boleros Troupe of comedy acrobats; Wallis and Walton, comedy artistes; Fiorrie Bray, comedienne; and Tom Hayes, juvenile comedian and mimic.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr R. Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Barry.—The attraction here this week is Mrs Lewis Waller in Zaza. Mrs Waller's depiction of the central character makes this unedifying play enjoyable, at least so far as she is concerned, the part providing her with plenty of opportunities to exercise her dramatic and emotional gifts. Mr Eric Mayne is quietly effective as Dufresne, and some good work is put in by Mr Edmund Lea as Cascart and Mr T. Spurling as the Duc De Brissac. Miss Kate Kearney is very amusing as Aunt Rosa; Miss Lena Macnaghten figures well as Florianne; Miss Minnie Rayner makes a satisfactory Nathalie; Miss Maudie Ray gives a commendable version of Toto; and a striking interpretation of the brief part of Madame Dufresne is given by Miss Ethel Warwick.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—The principal item here this week is Mdlle. Florence's globe-walking performance, which is decidedly clever, and meets with much approval. The Pender Troupe of pantomimists are excellent laughter-makers, their absurdity Hands Up being most amusing. A very novel turn is that of the Continental Troupe of ten stilt-walkers; Arthur Gilbert is a capital comdian, with good songs; Harry Maxam, the popular comedian, is as funny as ever; Cabaret introduces some cleverly-trained dogs; and smart dancing is done by the Floradora Girls. Other enjoyable items are Rappo and Ella, in hand-balancing and equilibristic feats; Forrest and King, eccentric acrobatic dancers; Barton Howard, a clever mimic; Paul Courtney and company, in short sketch The Doctor; and the animated pictures.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—A very pleasing and well-received performance is given here by Akimotos plucky Japs, a troupe of clever equilbrists, jugglers, and balancers. The dancing and comicalities of Jack and Evelyn also gain much applause, and a good reception is accorded Craig, Rose, and Craig, gymnasts and "dental" athletes. A good display of barrel jumping is given by the Wynford Brothers, and George Foster, an eccentric vocal comedian, causes much laughter. Amy Anderson and company appear in a novelty, entitled A Coster Incident, and other good fare is provided by Leo Montague, comedian and dancer; Ray and Miles, comic jugglers; Charles Denton, comedian; Tate and Tate, comedy acrobats; the Sisters Terry, duettists and mimics; and a series of animated pictures, depicting a dramatic incident, "Remorse."

TIVOLI.—Managing Director, Mr Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr Arthur B. Wilkes.—Millie Hylton provides the star turn here this week, and meets with a warm reception. Well received also are the turns of Emmie Ames, a pleasing comedienne, and Wright and Elton, in original speciality eccentricities, introducing some neat dancing. Other good turns are Walter Clyde, tenor vocalist, who sings well; Marcus Boyle, eccentric comedian; Edward Ind, comedian; Lanney and Dode, in comedy act, "The Athletic Domestics;" Will Letters, comedian; Ada Whitton, male impersonator; and Harry Bancroft, actor-vocalist.

GRAND.—Lessees, Messrs Thomas Barrasford and Will Sley; Manager, Mr H. C. Arnold, jun.—Excellent turns here this week are the Jackson Family, in their delightful refined musical entertainment; Cussac-Talma, assisted by Mdlle. Yvonne De Forge, the Protean artiste, in a surprising box trick; and N. T. Kioto, a talented Japanese equilibrist, in a most daring act. Other turns are provided by Vera Mayne, a burlesque actress with plenty of "go;" Will Godwin, actor-vocalist; Patty Yole, comedienne, who dances nicely; the Waltons, equilibrists; Len Lever, coon vocalist and dancer; and the Jurgens Trio, acrobats on the rolling globes. A series of animated pictures complete.

PALACE.—Manager and Secretary, Mr P. Watson; Assistant-Manager, Mr J. H. Stringer.—Owing to its success, Over the Sticks remains here another week, with Joe Elvin, the popular London comedian, in the chief part. T. E. Dunville, as usual, makes a great hit with his eccentric methods and amusing songs. Very good also is George Formby, "the Mon fro' Lancasher;" and Maggie Rimmer, comedienne and a delightful dancer. The Brothers Lloddge give a finished performance as modern athletes and acrobats; Evans and Lawrence, vocal and descriptive artistes, are good singers; Francis does some capital cannon ball juggling, and is ably assisted by a humorous satellite, Alfred; Rose and Calvert are entertaining comedy artistes; Phillips and Terry are seen to advantage in their latest success The Revolt of Man; and Charlie Craston is a capital comedian. A pleasing selection by the orchestra and a series of interesting pictures complete the programme.

ARDWICK EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Will Collins.—Full houses are the rule here again this week, and the programme is good all round. Horace Goldin, assisted by Miss Jean Fransida and company, present in breathless succession a series of most astounding tricks and illusions, which completely mystify the audience. Another smart turn is that of Homer B. Mason and Marguerite Keeler in a capital sketch Hooked by Crook. The Fleury Trio are extremely graceful and dainty dancers, their butterfly waltz being a most beautiful creation. Ella Retford also dances neatly and sings two songs in fine style. Peppo's Monkeys show careful and clever training; and considerable amusement is caused by Heeley and Meely, comedy acrobats and eccentric dancers. The Hoopers, in ridiculous and other juggling, are highly amusing, the hoop manipulations also being very smart. The Three Ramoniers appear in a meritorious combined bar-balancing and trapeze act; and last, but not least, the clever and dainty comedienne Minnie Cunningham sings two good songs in a most artistic manner.

MELTON MOWBRAY.

EXCHANGE HALL.—Lessee, Mr Andrews.—What promises to be an exceptionally good season was inaugurated here on Monday by Miss Maggie Morton's Two Little Drummer Boys company. Of the carefully selected company the following deserve special mention: Messrs Jules Shaw, Percy Wright, Charles Barratt, Claude Aymond, H. Rammell, Conn Allister, and the Misses Francis May, Mildred Eversleigh, Florence French, May Douglas, and M. Wright, not forgetting the splendid juvenile bugle band directed by Mr Norton.

MERTHYR-TYDFIL.

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr Will Smithson.—Laughter reigned supreme at this house on Monday, when Mr John Leopold's company made a welcome reappearance, after an absence of over nine years, in Frivolity. A special feature of the Leopold combination is the smart manner in which each and all work together for the general success. Mr John Gerant as the Stockbroker and Mr Bert Lloyd as his stepson are responsible for incessant humour. Jules Vermiglio is admirably interpreted by Mr Wilfred Vaughan; Mr Tony Leopold is a capable Professor Fumble; Mr John Leopold, jun., is good as Daniel Teething; and Miss Ruby Wyndham as Madame Cobweb, Miss Amy Hall as Lucy Buckwheat, Miss Vera Violatta as Vinnie Moreland, and Miss Queenie Bronte as Nanchette do excellent work. The Brothers Valle, clever acrobats, render valuable assistance.

MEXBOROUGH.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. H. Melton.—Mr C. Finch-Hatton's company is this week presenting When London Sleeps. Mr Tom Ronald gives a manly interpretation of David Engleheart; the Captain Rodney of Mr R. S. Trelawney is a powerful representation; Mr Horace Wheatley, jun., makes a most acceptable Furnaby Fuller; Mr P. Graydon does well as Bob Jones; Mr D'Arcy Kelway gives a capital and amusing impersonation of Sammy Blyth. Miss Ella Sennett gives thoughtful and refined treatment to the rôle of Queenie Carruthers; Miss Grace Baring skilfully depicts Hilda Carode; Miss B. Clarke does well as Carrie Jones; and Mrs B. Clarke is an interesting Signorina Jonesio.

MIDDLESBROUGH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Middlesbrough Theatres, Limited; Managing-Directors, Messrs George and Charles Imeson.—Mr E. S. Willard and his company were here for three nights, in The Cardinal, The Professor's Love Story, and The Middleman. Mr Willard, in the title-rôle of The Cardinal, was responsible for a fine portrayal; Mr Charles H. Fenton was capital as Bartolommeo Chigi; and Mrs Russ Whytal effectively sustained the character of the Cardinal's mother. On Thursday Mr Fred L. Connyngham's company appeared in The Follies of Youth.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE, LIMITED.—Mr James Welch and company are making their first appearance before a Middlesbrough audience in The New Clown. Mr James Welch in the title-rôle is very funny, Mr G. H. Snazelle is characteristic as Mr Dixon, and Captain Trent is adequately impersonated by Mr Cyril Harcourt. Miss Audrey Ford in the part of Rosie Platt is admirable. The comedy has been preceded by The Man in the Street and Angelina's Lover.

EMPIRE.—Managing Director, Mr John Brill; Manager, Mr J. W. Thornborrow.—The stars at the Empire this week include the Seven Savonas and the Cycling Elliotts, who occupy the leading positions on the bills. Owing to the length of time taken to set the stage, the Seven Savonas only give one performance a night, the Elliot Troupe doing likewise. The musical act is really magnificent, introducing some fifty instruments, and the overture to William Tell is most effectively rendered. As the Elliotts they give a most daring and clever bicycle performance. The Five Whitleys are smart acrobats; Ergotti and King Luis, Risley acrobats, elicit considerable applause; Jimson's animals create much laughter; and an amusing turn is submitted by Fred Poplar. Will Musgrave, an old Teeside favourite, maintains his popularity; Miss Kitty Wagner, comedienne, scores well; and Ian Colquhoun, baritone, sings some effective songs.

OXFORD.—Lessee, Mr Wm. Peacock; Manager, Mr William Ainsworth.—Alf Gibson, comedian, heads the bill here. Other turns include the Cabiacs, eccentric comedians; Miss Dolly Harmer, comedienne; Doody and Wright in a comedy act; Patty Bros., acrobats; Miss Bessie Willow, comedienne; Cavern and Cave, in An Early Morn Dip; and Hill, Barry, and Lang, comedians.

MOTHERWELL.

NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Resident Manager, Mr W. Gillespy.—Mr J. W. Turner's opera company opened here on Monday in Maritana. Mr Turner acted admirably as Don Cæsar De Bazan, and delighted the audience by his fine singing. Mr Tom Griffiths was very good as Don Jose, and as King Charles II. Mr Sidney Clifford could scarcely be improved upon. Miss Jessie Dennis was pleasing as Lezarillo, and the title rôle is admirably filled by Miss Alice Boaden. Benedict's charming opera, The Lily of Killarney, was staged on Thursday, and Mr Turner was a great success as Miles. Mr Chas. Le Sueur gave a good impersonation of Hardress Cregan, and Mr Griffiths' Danny Mann was also successful. Miss Constance Bellamy in the part of Elly quite captivated the audience. The other operas for the week are The Bohemian Girl, The Puritan's Daughter, and Faust.

NORWICH.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Manager, Mr Fred Morgan.—Mr George Dance's company in the musical comedy The Duchess of Dantzic occupies the boards this week. Miss Rita Presano as Sans-Gêne delighted the audience with her charming singing and powerful acting; Miss Alice Coverick was very successful as Renée De Saint-Mezard; Mr Frederick Moyes was excellent as Napoleon Bonaparte; Mr Albert Chapman as François Lefebvre was very good in singing and acting; and Mr Thos. C. Maxwell equally so as Adhemar Vicomte De Bethune. Mr Colin Mackay was amusing as Papillon; Miss Mabel Bailey made the most of the part of the Empress Josephine; Miss Edyth Carlyle as Caroline Murat and Miss May Harris as Pauline, sisters of Napoleon, were were very characteristic; Miss Amy Binton was capable as Lizette; and Mr Ralph Forster deserved mention as Captain Regnier.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr F. W. Fitt; Musical Director, Captain Selby.—A pleasing programme is presented this week. The Eight Lancashire Lads head the bill and delight all with their excellent singing and dancing; the Three juggling Geraldos are clever, especially in club manipulation; F. V. St. Clair gets a splendid reception for his extempore songs; Charles Tempest creates much laughter; Fenton Cross exhibits talent in his pictures in smoke and coloured sand; and Mabel La Blanche and Master Bert render some pleasing American songs. S. L. Spry, quaint comedian, is very successful; and Ida Fair, comedienne, is well received. Verne and Palmer appear in a skating scene; the Four Estrellas are very clever gymnasts; and Captain Selby and his band deserve compliments for their assistance during the evening.

NEW BRIGHTON.

GRAND TOWER THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr Albert Bulmer.—The star attraction here this week is the ever-popular Marie Loftus, who fairly catches the large audiences with her latest London successes. The other members of a capital company comprise Mr and Mrs Clifford Bronte, in an original comedy duologue Saucy Maid; Mignon Tremaine, dainty comedienne and dancer; Will Hebden, comedian, in his latest successes; Solari Duo, vocalists and instrumentalists; Lily Lever, ballad vocalist and burlesque actress; and the Five Bon-Bons, in their laughable pantomime trap scene, "A Hot Time for One."

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.

TYNE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr Fred C. Sutcliffe.—Miss Olga Nethersole and her company are paying a return visit. On Monday The Second Mrs Tanqueray was staged, with Miss Nethersole as Paula Tanqueray, a part for which she is eminently fitted, and her impersonation was much praised. It is as Sapho, however, in the play of that name that she appeals more particularly to her local admirers, and on Tuesday we had another opportunity of witnessing her remarkable embodiment of the unhappy woman who exercises such a baneful influence over those who fall into her toils. One of her victims is Jean Gaussin, a character acted with considerable ability by Mr Edward Fielding. Mr Harry Dodd gave a good performance as the light-hearted, genial Uncle Cesaire, while Mr G. S. Titheradge as Dechlette and Mr Berte Thomas as Flamant gave useful impersonations. Miss Francis Ivor appeared with credit as Madame Hettema; Divonne had a capital representative in Miss Winifred Pearson; and Miss Madge Field made a pleasing Irene. Magda was down for production on Thursday.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr F. Teale Lingham.—Mr Charles Macdona's company is this week appearing in the musical play Three Little Maids. Miss Janet Reeve as Ada Branscombe acts with charm and sings pleasantly, as also does Miss Nora Guy as Edna, while Hilda has a bright and engaging representative in Miss Gertrude Melville. Miss Kate Forster is, as usual, quite successful as the pompous Lady St. Mallory. Miss Laura Wright as Gretchen dons sabots, and sings and dances with a freedom which is quite exhilarating. Attractive appearances are made by Misses Jennie Edgar, Ethel May, and Ella Daincourt as titled ladies. Mr Arthur Longley presents with a good deal of humour the part of Lord Cheyne, whose "fearful past" is apparently not sufficient to subdue his capacity for present enjoyment. His confrères, Brian Molyneux and M. De L'Orme, are agreeably impersonated by Mr Haddon Cave and Mr Alec Chentrens respectively. Mr Gus Oxley as Cupid does well, and Mr Chas. Leverton as Rev. Mr Branscombe appears in a different style of part from that in which we have been accustomed to see him. He also stage-manages the production.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr T. W Rowe.—The Face at the Window is again making its appearance here, and Messrs Armadale and Warren's company is engaged in presenting the successful drama. Mr E. Hoggan Armadale continues to give full effect to the striking character of the Chevalier Lucio Delgado, a part he is stated to have played over 1,500 times. As Paul Gouffet, the detective, Mr T. W. Dunscombe gives an excellent impersonation, and the support generally is good.

NEW EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Director, Mr Richard Thornton; General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Resident Manager, Mr E. Leslie Conroy.—A very enjoyable and well-varied programme is submitted here this week. Drummed Out is again in the bill, and Mr A. C. Lilly and company present the interesting sketch with unabated success. Warm Newcastle favourites in the Poluski Brothers have given us a further taste of their qualities as humorists, and their efforts in all manner of enjoyable fooling have evoked the heartiest laughter. Manning's entertainers engage themselves in comedy business of a mirthful nature, and their acrobatic work calls for unstinted praise. A charming vocalist in Florence Esdalle leads off with the "Soldiers' Chorus" from Faust, after which she sings a medley of favourite airs, and for all of which she is applauded. Will English gives humorously exaggerated illustrations of various styles of walking, and displays much smartness generally. An expert juggler is Henry Kaiser, whose tricks are performed with neatness; and the Sisters Govell in song and dance are well appreciated. Hal Forde's abilities as a comedian meet with full recognition. Those popular entertainers, Charles Chard, comedian; and Annie Casey, comedienne, appear to advantage, as also does Beatrice Willey, vocalist. Some good animated pictures are exhibited.

GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, the Newcastle and Gateshead Theatres, Limited; Managing Director, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr Ernest W. Bacon.—This week there is a capital programme at this house. The top turn is Payne's Little Vagabonds in a refined act entitled Blue Coat Boys, in which some capital singing, whistling, and fun are introduced. The Two O'Malleys cause unbounded mirth. Another exceptionally smart turn is that of Deacon and Rankin, whose wheezes and dancing are warmly applauded. The Brothers Attilla, the well-known strong men, give a bright and entertaining performance; and other turns are given by Miss Maud Rose, an exceptionally smart dancer; Ryder Slone, a comedian with a good song; Learto and his clever dog Babs; Will Mitcham, a capital comedian; Primavesi, a smart juggler; and the wonderful performing bears of W. Permane.

OLYMPIA THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs Thornton and Bacon; General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr Nelson Barry.—When Woman Hates is being played here this week by Miss Nettie Ware and company. The lady who, in this case, is animated by feelings of strong ill-will, is Cora Daintry, and Miss Nettie Ware has her hands full in successfully realising the malevolent disposition of the character. Fred Rokeby, the object of her hatred, has a manly exponent in Mr John B. Shinton. Mr Will Percy as an Irish Prison Warder supplies some enjoyable comedy acting, and Mr Bensley Evans as an American gives a characteristically cool and sangfroid impersonation.

PAVILION THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr Thos. Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr W. H. Boardman.—The entertainment at this favourite place of resort this week is of a first-class nature, the programme being headed by Grant and Grant, American speciality artistes, who introduce several taking items, their dancing in particular being well received. Fred Cary is a comedian likely to win a leading position in his profession; his vocalism is of a high order, and he also displays much humour as a story-teller. The Valdares introduce some cycle specialities which are both novel and daring, and the Zanettos, Japanese jugglers, score in an original act. A prominent feature is Harry Edson and his canine friend, Doc. Bonnie Goodwin and her Apollo piccaninnies contribute the usual medley entertainment. Arthur Boyne, described as "the funny man;" Jenny Hartley, soubrette; and a series of animated pictures are also among the attractions.

NEWPORT.

LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Sidney Cooper.—Mr Arthur Hart's company is delighting good houses here this week with My Lady Molly. Mr Arthur Powell is a great favourite as Micky O'Dowd, acting with skill; Miss Maud Thorne makes a charming Alice Coverdale, sustaining the part with girlish grace; Miss Mabel Lait successfully portrays the title-rôle, and both Miss Lait and Miss Sybil Thorne as Hester either as boys or girls make a fascinating pair. Sir Miles Coverdale is admirably represented by Mr Walter Ashley. Mr Frank Stather as Lionel Bland sings his number very effectively. The dancing of the Misses Marie Majilton and Maud Lucy captivate the house. The costumes, floral decorations, and the scenic production are on a lavish scale.

EMPIRE.—Moss Empires, Limited; Managing-Director, Mr O. Stoll.—Quite a large house assembled here on Monday, when a pleasing bill was presented. Miss Lilian Lowe, with a sweet voice and fascinating stage presence, was accorded quite an ovation; Miss Fannie Erris, a character comedienne; and the popular favourite Miss Florrie Gallimore were also well received. Will Evans and Martin Conway were a source of much amusement with their witty sayings and songs. Miss Trixie Gilfain gave a clever rendering of Scotch airs on the bagpipe, and her little sketch in association with Mr Austin Boyd is much appreciated. Alexander, trick cyclist, and Fred Karno's Jail Birds are also strong attractions.

NORTH SHIELDS.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Arthur Jefferson; General Manager, Mr Horace Lee; Secretary, Mr Gordon Jefferson.—Mr E. Hill-Mitchelson's company with The Assassin opened here on Monday. As Prince Demetri Mr E. Hill-Mitchelson gave a clever and able representation; Mr John C. Carlyle was a satisfactory exponent of Ivan Ipanoff; Mr Theo Balfour was effective as Duke Karl; Mr Edward Swinton presented a good study of Baron Alphonse; Mr Arthur M'Cullock acted well as General Nicholai; Mr Fred Wilberforce was advantageously placed as Captain O'Neil; and Mr Fred Yarnold scored as Peter. Miss Ruth Sheppherd gained the good opinion of her audience as the Countess Wanda; Miss Grace Almers took a prominent position as Nita; Miss Dora Woodward was seen to advantage as Olga Stadt; Miss Ada Douglas was a clever Nadia; and Miss Alice Barber did well as Connie.

BOROUGH THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Arthur Jefferson.—This place of amusement was opened on Monday, and an attractive programme was headed by the Four Herberts, the Californian farmers, who scored a great success. Mr James Brady, eccentric comedian, also came in for a hearty reception, and the Brady and Johnson sketch party caused much laughter. The Atkens Trio of vocalists were greatly appreciated. Miss Florence Hilton, male impersonator; Rozello, in his comedy bar act; Mr Harry Adams, comedian; Miss Marie Santoi, comedienne; and Mr Ted Clifford, baritone, are also billed.

NEW CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager Mr William Mould.—The management here has again a strong bill-of-fare, the principal item being Messrs Nano, Leo, and Kinto, comedy trio, who introduce a clever act. Mdlle. De Rose, lady baritone, is as popular as ever; and Wee Mona, child vocalist and actress, has made a hit; Messrs Drum and Major, bâton manipulators, are smart; Wanotee, gymnast and contortionist, is loudly applauded; the Carcassi Duo, in their musical speciality, come in for a good reception; Mr J. H. Hawtrey, actor-vocalist, is well received; and the Bio-photoscope is still meeting with success.

NORTHWICH.

CENTRAL THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs S. Golden; Manager, Mr Percy Webb.—Mr Sydney Vereker's company in The Red Signal is occupying the boards of the above theatre this week. As Jack Darkwood Mr Alfred Allen makes a good impression; Mr Charles V. Sandford gives a fine reading of the difficult part of Sir Otto Darkwood; the comedy business is quite safe in the hands of Mr Sydney Vereker, who causes roars of laughter. He is ably supported by Miss Berta Hall. Miss Rosa Lehmann makes a pretty heroine, and Miss Norah Caronne gives a fine interpretation of the wronged woman, Florence Culver. A novel departure is the introduction of songs by Miss Marion Edwardes, the Welsh gold medallist, between the acts. Her beautiful voice causes the intervals to pass all too quickly.

NOTTINGHAM.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr Howard Finney.—Miss Fortescue was accorded a hearty welcome on Monday, when she appeared in the society play, Moths. The part of Fuchsia Leech is well adapted to bring out the comedy ability of Miss Fortescue, and the underlying "grit" of the character was capitally indicated, evoking hearty applause. Miss Miriam Lewes gave a fine performance of the Duchesse De Sonnaz, looking and acting the part to perfection. Miss Madeline Meredith grasped the "butterfly" nature of Lady Dolly with skill, and Miss Eugenie Vernie made a dignified Princess Nadine. The pathetic rôle of Vere Herbert had a charming exponent in Miss Gladys Jesson. Mr Conway Wingfield played Prince Zouroff with characteristic vigour, and Mr Da'ziel Heron made an excellent Lord Jura. Mr Francis Burdett was a pleasant interpreter of the Duke of Mull, and Mr Cecil Newton as Correze was convincing throughout. During the week was also presented School for Scandal, She Stoops to Conquer, and a new play, by W. S. Gilbert, Ought We to Visit Her?

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Chas. P. Cooke.—Mrs Hy. Mayhew and Mr Charles Herrick's company appear this week in The Triumph of Truth, and large audiences show themselves thoroughly delighted with the play. Mr Edward E. Louis hits the right note in his manly portrayal of Captain Jack Eversleigh, and Mr J. A. Keogh makes an agreeable representative of Sir Charles Eversleigh. The scheming and villainous Count D'Orville is capably embodied by Mr T. R. Lockwood, and Mr Frank Radcliffe as his tool plays with care and efficiency. Mr Charles Herrick skilfully treats his part as the Avenger, and Mr T. A. Ellis is successful as Inspector Danvers. Miss Marie Auckland essays the dual-rôles of Lilian and Violet Anstruthers with the best results, showing power and earnestness in her emotional scenes. Miss Lilian Ramsdale is a vivacious Coralie, and Miss Rosabel Dodd makes a callous Blanche le Croix. The comedy parts are creditably taken by Miss Lily Rogers (Katie Bright) and Mr John Clegg (Tommy Woodhead).

KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr H. W. Bull.—From Scotland Yard is being performed here. Mr C. Finch-Hatton is a great favourite, and as Detective Dale assumes disguises that are both clever and amusing. Mr C. H. Matthews excites keen repugnance as Dean Fordyce, and Mr Jack Armitage gives a careful study of Richard Drake. Miss Renee Glendower plays with striking effect as Mad Marie, and Miss Marion Forrester renders the part of Mabel with tenderness and pathos. Miss Annie Agar acts with spirit as Sybil, and the heartiest of laughter is roused by Miss V. Gould-Bourne (Mrs Ruggles), Miss Nelly Hook (Dolly Beetles), Mr James Hirste (Bliss), and Mr James F. Fitth (Joe Staggers).

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Hatton Wharton.—We have another wrestler here in the personage of Yukio Tani, a smart little Japanese, whose wonderful skill has surprised all with whom he comes in contact. The "turn" is exceedingly popular, and is drawing crowded houses. A pantomimic sketch, entitled A Zoological Comedy, by the Donaldson Brothers and Ardel, creates the utmost hilarity, and the Brothers Egbert furnish some excellent fun by their patter and amusing oddities. The vocalism of the Manhattan Comedy Four calls for unstinted praise. Brown and Robinson quite captivate the audience by their rendering of "The Village Blacksmith." The Mascotte Trio give a graceful trapeze act in a dexterous manner, and the Mackeys have struck an original item in their antics on the wire. Miss Norah Emerald contributes a dainty song and

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

THE GRAND.

On Monday, Sept. 26, the Musical Drama, in Five Acts, entitled
"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN."

Mr Charles Harrington's company is paying a return visit in the above play, a fairly good house being present on Monday to renew their acquaintance with it. The day is long since passed when anything of a critical nature need be written, it being sufficient to remember that the novel of the same name was one of those rare books which help to make history. Mr Harrington's company, which is a very large one, comprises a good crowd of coloured ladies and gentlemen, and their presence helps to a realistic picture. Mr J. Carr as Uncle Tom once again sustains the part with an air of quiet dignity that is in entire keeping with the rôle, and he made a most favourable impression on the audience. Mr Charles Harrington, too, as Fletcher gave a quietly humorous performance that was to the taste of the audience. Mr B. Lenton was commendable as Mr St. Clair, and acted with obvious sincerity; Mr Guy D. Ellis as George Harris was particularly good. We were pleased with his vigorous acting and excellent delivery. Mr John Henry Rogers once more played the repulsive part with his customary thoroughness, his make-up being excellent. Mr J. H. Renney as Dan Haley scored in a swell part, and Mr Frederick Charles as Marks caused much amusement. Miss Hettie Johnston as Eliza Harris was pleasing and satisfactory. Miss Sylvia Stella as Popsy played the rôle in a broad vein of comedy and was successful. Miss Hero Hathaway was adequate in the minor part of Mrs St. Clair. Miss Ida Fane caused some amusement by her portrayal of Aunt Ophelia, and Little Minnie was very precocious as Little Eva. Miss Zerlina Zerbini (Mrs Harrington) was responsible for a good reading of the part of Cassy, playing with intensity. In the great plantation scene Miss Sylvia Stella, Will Petitt, Shorty May, W. H. Nott, and Iky Jones appeared with great success. Mr Davey's early door programme included a topical feature of great interest, Mr A. St. George appearing in a special scena entitled "Beck; or, the English Dreyfus." The scena, which comprised a song and an eloquent verbal appeal, was delivered by Mr St. George in the costume of a barrister, and scored a great hit.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, Sept. 26, the Musical Comedy, in Two Acts, Libretto by James T. Tanner, Lyrics by Adrian Ross and Percy Greenbank, Music by Ivan Caryll, entitled
"THE ORCHID."

Times have changed at the Pavilion Theatre, Mile End, otherwise known as "the Drury-lane of the East," and now the attractions at that excellently managed house are no longer confined to melodrama which at one time was considered the only fare suitable to the theatrical palates of the masses in that teeming quarter. This week the sprightliness, musical jingle, prettiness, irresponsibility, and frivolity of musical comedy are fascinating the Mile-enders, who have been applauding very heartily from gallery to stalls The Orchid, with which capital piece, it will be remembered, Mr George Edwardes opened the new Gaiety in October last. The company shows great capability, as one would naturally expect from any combination associated with the name of Mr George Dance. Miss Ethel Bryant is conspicuous for grace, chic, and style in the rôle of Violet Anstruther, and scores tremendously in all the favourite numbers of the part, into which she infuses much archness. This is especially the case with "Little Mary." There are several amusing bits of business between Lady Violet and Meakin, and herein Miss Bryant is partnered by Mr Bertie Wright, who seems to be endowed not only with the gift of humour but with the discretion to make proper use of it. It must be confessed that the author has made of the little gardener a diverting character, but his eccentricities could scarcely be more drolly realised than they are by Mr Wright, who is au courant with every opportunity of gagging, and is up-to-date in every way. Mr G. Davey Burnaby as the Hon. Guy Scrymgeaur has all the well-bred vacuity to which we have become accustomed in stage dudes, but he has also genuine acting ability, and though his performance is apparently modelled on that of Mr George Grossmith, jun., there is no slavish imitation of that comedian's methods. He is breezy, alert, and does justice to all the numbers allotted to him. Miss Madge Lucas is not afraid of being broadly comic in her rendering of Caroline Vokins. The part demands it, and Miss Lucas gives it a liberal endowment. Mr Edmund Page increases the fun very considerably by his decidedly droll impersonation of the Count Raoul De Cassignac, who is as splenetic as one would expect a fire-eating stage Frenchman to be. The duel scene has "gone" with screams of laughter during the week. It is just one of those situations the fun of which is obvious enough for the masses to enjoy. Mr Arthur Hemsley as Zaccary, the orchid hunter, may be said to be saturated with Gaiety traditions, and gives to the lines and business of his part that animation, point, and drollery which enables him to score most unmistakably. He is particularly happy in his rendering of the popular number in the second act. There is plenty of cleverness in the performance of Mr Ernest Darrell as Aubrey Chesterton, who is made up so as to strongly resemble a famous political personage; Miss Eve Melville makes a fascinating adventuress of Zelie Rumbert; and Miss Poppy Wilkinson dances daintily as Thisbe. The fascinating chorus includes a number of pretty girls endowed with good voices, and the performance is directed most successfully by Mr Thomas Tunbridge.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, Sept. 26, for the First Time in London, the Drama, in Four Acts, by F. Brooke Warren, entitled
"MYSTERIES OF THE THAMES."

Richard Brandon	Mr Roy Fortescue
Captain James Denbigh	Mr F. Brooke Warren
Jack Hammond	Mr Gilbert Hall
Bill Bosco	Mr Elton Morgan
Peter Waggles	Mr Dan Hardie
Ben Lorrimer	Mr George Arthur
Dave Goodyear	Mr Edgar Thorne
Sol Crockett	Mr Robert Vincent
Wary Mike	Mr Tom Herne
Martin	Mr Frank White
Sergeant Powen	Mr F. C. Randall
Bertie Fitzgerald	Miss Claire O'Sullivan
Helen Price / Grace Rochdale	Miss Gwynne Warren
Kate Brandon	Miss Lallah Shelton
Little Doris	Miss Nellie Palmer
Emma Seaton	Miss Flo Norman

In the class of play which comes under the description of sensational drama, Mysteries of the Thames is distinctly above the average in point of merit, and it also enjoys the advantage of being represented by an excellent all-round company. The author has for the most part carefully avoided glaring improbabilities, the dialogue is well-written, and the comic relief is never overdone or unpleasantly obtrusive. Altogether Mysteries of the Thames, which was originally produced on July 20, 1901, at the Grand Theatre, Stalybridge, is a sound play that rivets the attention of an audience from the beginning to the final curtain fall. The first scene represents the home of Richard Brandon, a wealthy merchant's manager. Brandon is a victim to the vice of intemperance, and has unfortunately fallen under the evil influence of a scoundrel of gentlemanly appearance, named Captain James Denbigh, alias "the Hawk," the leader of a gang of burglars. Denbigh has obtained possession of the keys of the merchant's offices, which he proposes to "burgle." Brandon, now a ruined man, has fits of remorse, and in one of these resolves to end his miserable existence by means of a revolver, when his little child, Doris, enters, and prevents him carrying out his cowardly intention. The Captain and his gang break into the offices, and when Grace Rochdale, a crippled girl, bravely interferes Denbigh remorselessly kills her. Brandon appears upon the scene and attempts to prevent "the Hawk" from throwing the body into the Thames, but is overpowered and rendered unconscious. The first scene of the second act is the wine vaults of the "Black Jack," the haunt of Denbigh and his associates in crime. While a game of cards is being played—a foolish youth named Bertie Fitzgerald being the victim of the gang—Brandon enters and calls for a glass of brandy, his favourite tipple. His wife follows and begs him to return home, but in his half-drunken condition he accuses her of being faithless to him, his unfounded suspicions having been aroused by a young lawyer named Jack Hammond, who has from pure kindness of heart befriended her. After his wife's departure Brandon joins in the game of cards and wins at first, but soon throws up the cards. He quarrels with Denbigh, and denounces him as a murderer. The Captain, picking up a bottle, hurls it at his accuser, but, missing him, it strikes on the forehead Little Doris, who has come with the object of inducing her father to return home. The third scene of the act reveals Doris lying ill in bed in a wretched attic in Whitechapel. She is being tended by her mother and is visited by Helen Price, otherwise known as "Flash Nell," who is Denbigh's mistress and the twin sister of the girl murdered by the Captain. By the way, it does not seem probable that a sensible mother would give her child a dose of neat brandy to send her to sleep. In the absence of his wife Brandon, who has been suffering from delirium tremens, enters the room and struggles with imaginary demons. He sees the bottle of brandy on the table, and is about to again succumb to the temptation when his daughter, who has woke up and left her bed, intervenes, and, throwing away the contents of the glass, he vows never to touch the stuff again. Doris faints, and he fears that she is dead, but is reassured by her mother. At this moment Denbigh enters with two constables, and gives Brandon in charge for the murder of Grace Rochdale. The third act is devoted to depicting the cruel treatment of the unfortunate convicts on board the ship "Success," the captain of which is no other than the villain Denbigh. Amongst the prisoners is Brandon, and "the Hawk" tells him that his wife is living with another, and his child is dead. To increase Brandon's sufferings, Denbigh directs the unhappy youth Bertie Fitzgerald, also a convict, to be tortured and then flogged at the masthead. Brandon, unable to bear the sight, interferes, and uses the cat-o'-nine-tails upon the captain. This leads to a general rising, and Brandon and other prisoners make their escape. Brandon finds himself in London on Christmas Eve, homeless and starving. He must have food at any cost, and makes his way into the bedroom of a house in Russell-square. Little Doris, who has recovered, is lying asleep in this room, and, waking up, thinks that the intruder is Santa Claus. Brandon discovers that the little girl is his own child, and the pathos of the scene becomes even more accentuated when the mother enters and recognises her husband. Brandon is again accused of being an escaped murderer, but Flash Nell, who has sworn to be revenged on the man who killed her sister, shoots Denbigh on being convinced that he and no other was responsible for his death. Mr Roy Fortescue gave a powerful rendering of Richard Brandon. In the early scenes he graphically depicted the physical and mental results of dram drinking, and the scene where the loving clasp of his child's hand banishes the terrible phantoms of his drink-sodden brain proved most pathetic. Later Mr Fortescue showed determination and manly spirit as the convict who defies "the Hawk" to do his worst. Mr F. Brooke-Warren, the author of the play, though considerably handicapped by a cold which affected his voice, gave a sound and convincing embodiment of Captain Denbigh, whose unrelieved cruelty and hardness of heart make him a most unpopular personage with the audience. Mr Gilbert Hall played with commendable firmness and decision the part of the young lawyer Jack Hammond, who befriends Mrs Brandon. Mr Elton Morgan was excellent as Bill Bosco, a burglar who displays grim humour and eventually turns King's evidence against his leader, "the Hawk." Mr Dan Hardie also enlivened the play by his sallies as Peter Waggles, another member of the gang. Miss Gwynne Warren was successful in doubling the parts of the twin sisters. As "Flash Nell" she acted with earnestness, and made good use of her opportunities. Miss Lallah Shelton as the unhappy wife and mother had the full sympathies of the audience with her throughout, and Miss Nellie Palmer deserves much praise for her intelligent acting as Little Doris, more particularly in the scene where the child imagines that Santa Claus is her visitor. Miss Flo Norman was a sprightly Emma Seaton, a maid; Mr George Arthur was a sufficiently brutal chief warder on the convict ship; Miss Claire O'Sullivan faithfully realised the sufferings of the ill-treated Bertie Fitzgerald; and other parts were carefully impersonated by Messrs Tom Herne, Frank White, Edgar Thorne, Robert Vincent, and F. C. Randall.

THE CORONET.

On Monday, Sept. 26, Bizet's Opera, in Four Acts, entitled
"CARMEN."

The Moody-Manners grand opera company is delighting the musical public of Bayswater here this week by giving them the opportunity of hearing English opera, a treat which, judging by the crowded house on Monday, it is evident they mean to avail themselves of to the utmost. In the title-rôle Mdlle. Zelie De Lussan was in excellent voice, her acting also being very fine. It is indeed difficult to imagine a more capable exponent of an arduous part such as Carmen is than Mdlle. De Lussan. Mr Joseph O'Mara was Don Jose, and right well did he acquit himself, his singing being one of the successes of the evening. As the peasant girl Michaela Miss Kate Anderson sang with great taste and charm, and, moreover, looked exceedingly pretty. The smaller parts of the two Cigarette Girls (Frasquita and Mercedes) were well filled by Miss T. Addington and Miss E. Arnold respectively. Escamillo was capably played by Mr William Dever, who sang the world-famous "Toreador" song with great effect. The largely augmented orchestra, which was under the able direction of Herr Richard Eckhold, left nothing to be desired. The following operas have been performed during the week, and in some both Madame Moody and Mr Chas. Manners appeared:—The Jewess, Faust, Mignon, Tannhäuser.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, Sept. 24, the Play, entitled
"UNDER TWO FLAGS."

Mr Robert Arthur and his energetic manager, Mr Leslie Hughes, are leaving no stone unturned to add to the popularity of this theatre, and this week, in addition to Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr Mark Blow's company, in Under Two Flags, we have the special engagement of La Loïe Fuller, with her wonderful serpentine dance. The beautiful colour effects that are shown are artistic in the extreme, and the fire dance has proved a potent attraction. This is a return visit of Under Two Flags, and Mr Mark Blow again appears as Bertie Royellieu, and gives a careful rendering of the character. As Cigarette Miss Laura Walker is decidedly good, her easy manner and light-heartedness enabling her to hit off the character of the vivandière capitally. Mr R. H. West makes a suitable Barklie, and Lord Rockingham is carefully portrayed by Mr G. Norman Burt. Miss May Pardoe is an exceedingly attractive Princess Corona, a part she fills with dignity and grace; Mr Will Hook acts Rake in a commendable manner; and Mr Charles D. Pitt depicts the sinister Colonel Chateauroy in a creditable way. Mr Albert Rogers deserves mention for his neat sketch of Baroni, the moneylender; and another small part, that of Babazun, is cleverly represented by Mr F. Curtiss. Among others may be mentioned the Misses Joan Stean and Bertha Kingston; also Messrs Charles Brooke and Sidney Riche, who lend valuable support. The other parts are without exception in safe hands. The play is preceded by an amusing farce, entitled Aunt Rebecca, in which Mr Will Hook scores heavily. The play was well mounted, and the stage management leaves nothing to be desired. Mr Morris Harper is the business-manager of the company.

THE KING'S, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Sept. 26, Shakespeare's Comedy, entitled
"THE MERRY WIVES OF WINDSOR."

The habitués of Mr Mulholland's superb playhouse will have no reason to complain of the fare put before them this week by Mr Beerbohm Tree's Shakespearian company, who have been appearing in the Merry Wives of Windsor and Julius Cæsar. It does not often occur that Shakespeare is vouchsafed the artistic treatment meted out by Mr Tree's combination, and the audience at the King's on Monday night were not slow to show their appreciation to the full with the acting, music, scenery, and dancing, which form in the whole an unqualified success. The woodland dance in the last act with its dainty music met with an enthusiastic reception, and the audience demanded its repetition so often that the artists taking part therein must have been quite exhausted by their efforts. The company is exceedingly talented, and it would be difficult to have picked upon any single performer who did not play his or her part with true Shakespearian spirit. Mr Eardley Turner, wonderfully well made up, gave an exceedingly popular impersonation of the boastful knight, Sir John Falstaff. Master Fenton was intelligently rendered by Mr V. L. Granville, and Mr Arthur Machen did credit to Mr Justice Shallow. The poet, Master Slender, was a praiseworthy performance by Mr Reginald Ian Penny, and mine host of the Garter Inn was well played by Mr E. A. Warburton. Mr William Haviland, temporarily transferred from His Majesty's Theatre, was a tower of strength in the character of the jealous Master Ford, and Mr Herbert Bunston's enactment of Master Page was excellent. Mr J. C. Taylor and Mr Charles Bibby were humorous representatives of Dr. Caius and Sir Hugh Evans. The needy fellowers of Falstaff — Bardolph, Nym, and Pistol—found capable exponents in Messrs Allan Wilkie, Arthur Bruce, and E. A. Anson. A dashing Robin was Miss Phyllis Canton, and Mr Kenneth Blackmore as Simple and Mr George Robertson as Rugby furnished laughter. Miss Cicely Richards, from whom something clever is always expected, was no disappointment, for her rendering of Mistress Page was a delightful piece of acting. The Mistress Ann Page of Miss Miss Margaret Halstan was highly successful. Miss Constant Collier endowed the part of Mistress Ford with artistic excellence, and quickly earned popularity. A singularly clever Mistress Quickly was Miss Ethel Harper. The incidental music provided by Sir Arthur Sullivan, Mr Raymond Roze, and Mr Norman Bath was of great assistance; the costumes were of Mr Percy Anderson's able designing; and the beautiful scenery by Hawes Craven, Telbin, and Walter Johnstone cannot be too highly praised. Julius Cæsar was given during the latter portion of the week.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, Sept. 26, the Drama, by George Conquest and Arthur Shirley, entitled
"THE WORK GIRL."

A delectable bill-of-fare is being provided this week at the Elephant and Castle Theatre, and crowded houses every evening testify to the palatable nature of the entertainment placed before them by the energetic manager of the theatre, Mr Ernest E. Norris. The Work Girl is a play that appeals in every way to the mass of everyday toilers, and the life-like scenes and incidents without doubt touch strongly a spot in the breast of many a weary worker. Villainy is associated with the drama throughout each act, only to meet with its merited reward in the last scene, when justice extends her long arm and brings about the downfall of her defiers. A prime favourite is Mr George Conquest, who resumes his original character of Loo Genesis. His acting carries with it the trait of naturalness and his efforts meet with spontaneous appreciation. Mr Conquest, too, is responsible for much hearty laughter during the evening. Mr Ernest E. Norris enacts the part of Frank Belton, and once again gives a striking display of his undoubted usefulness as an actor of sterling worth. Mr Harry Paulton, jun., works energetically and humorously as Natty Nobbs. Mr Jo Monkhouse gives a finished performance of the arch-scoundrel, Silas Sephton. Mr Chas. Langley as the Hon. Edgar Drayton acts very natually, and Tom Courtney at the hands of Mr Paige Lawrence receives every attention and care. Mr J. C. Aubrey is excellent in the character of Keeley Rendale. Mr Norman Clark is effective as Captain Bracknell, and Mr Woods Laurence is efficient as Watty Wibbles; whilst Mr Edward Snow gives quite a professional touch to the part of Dr. Pearson. Mr W. H. Terry is good as Inspector Graham. Mrs Bennett, as usual, acts with all her accustomed charm and sincerity; and in the dual-rôle of Mary Belton and Claire Belton speedily gains the sympathy of the house with her artistic performance. Miss Agnes Paulton makes a sprightly and vivacious Jenny Wibbles, and Miss Judith Kyrle in the part of Evelyn Sephton gives a good representation of a young lady with ideas of a somewhat advanced character. Miss Ethel Houldsworth makes a dignified Madame Lamarshe. Miss Marion Hall resumes her original part of Harriett, which, though small, is sufficient to prove that she is a comedienne of undoubted merit, a fact that quickly becomes patent to the house. Numerous minor characters are all intelligently treated, and the general mounting of the drama is excellent in every way.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 26, the Opera, by W. S. Gilbert and the late Arthur Sullivan, entitled
"THE MIKADO."

The D'Oyly Carte opera company has been appearing this week at Brixton's ably managed theatre. Messrs Gilbert and Sullivan's operas seem as popular as ever, and on Monday, the night of our visit, a very large house assembled to renew their acquaintance with the always-enjoyable Mikado, whose hold on public favour continues, apparently, unimpaired. The various rôles were each and all admirably sustained. Mr Alfred Kavanagh is well suited both physically and histrionically to the character of the bombastic Mikado of Japan. As Nanki-Poo, the wandering minstrel, Mr Pacie Ripple sang and acted in good style; as Ko-Ko, Lord High Executioner, Mr C. H. Workman showed a keen sense of humour, keeping the audience in roars of laughter; and Mr Fred Billington as the gigantic Pooh-Bah, Lord High Everything, added laurels to his already famous reputation. As the three little maids the Misses Norah Maguire, Jessie Rose, and Mabel Burnege sang in a bewitching manner and acquitted themselves admirably. As Katisha Miss Theresa Rassam was suitably cast. Mr T. Silver conducted.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE, N.

On Monday, Sept. 26, the Farce, in Three Acts, from the German of Laufs and Kratz, entitled
"ARE YOU A MASON?"

A return visit from Messrs George Edwardes and Charles Frohman's company in Are You a Mason? opened here on Monday to an appreciative house, which received the play with great cordiality, laughter being incessant throughout the three acts into which the piece is divided. The company present the farce with considerable briskness and smartness, and as each succeeding act is funnier than its predecessor, a merit not always to be found in farcical plays, the final fall of the curtain finds the audience in excellent humour. Mr Harry Ashford, who appears as Amos Bloodgood, is the life and soul of every scene in which he is concerned, and his ripe and finished performance is of incalculable value to the production. Mr Anthony Fawcett is the George Fisher, and is most successful in the scenes in which he appears in feminine attire. As Hamilton Travers, the broken-down tragedian, Mr Frank Ridley has a conventional part to play, but he makes the utmost of it. An excellent sketch of the Yorkshireman, John Halton, comes from Mr Tom Mowbray, and the Frank Perry and Ernest Morrison of Messrs Stephen Wentworth and Valentine O'Connor respectively are both well-played parts. Mrs Caroline Bloodgood is made duly acrid and forbidding by Miss Harriet Trench, and the Lotty of Miss Lucy Edwin is a clever and artistic character study. The Bloodgoods' three daughters, Eva, Annie, and Lulu, find a trio of charming representatives in Misses Violet Graham, Lily Beagle, and Isla Glyn, and the parts of Mrs Halton and Fanchon Armytage are done full justice to by Misses Mabel Younge and Gertrude Spencer. The longer piece is preceded by W. Hall's comedietta Hushed Up, in which Messrs Valentine O'Connor and Tom Mowbray and Misses Isla Glynn and Mabel Younge appear.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, Sept. 26, the Farcical Comedy,
"WHY SMITH LEFT HOME."

Why Smith Left Home was presented here for the first time on Monday before a good audience. Despite the fact that Mr Horace Lingard has taken the leading part of John Smith nearly 1,100 times, he still appears as young and fresh in the part as ever, playing throughout with great effect and humour. Among others deserving special mention is Mr Herbert Dickeson as the hen-pecked General Billetdoux. He convulses the house with laughter at his humorous methods. Mr Joseph Hudson makes a good Major Duncombe, and Mr Robert Grey as the amorous Count Von Guggenheim is a great success. Mr Henry Grey is amusing as Robert Walton; and Mr Harry Punter impersonates the waiter, James, in a successful manner. A smart bit of acting comes from Miss Hilda Stericker as Mrs John Smith, and as Rose Walton Miss Rue Daryll is quietly effective. Miss Mary Bates never fails to make the most of her opportunities as Mrs Billetdoux, and Miss Ethel Russell cleverly enacts the rôle of Miss Smith. As Julia Miss Marie Vere highly distinguishes herself, and a very capable exponent of the part of Lavinia (cook lady) is found in Miss Constance Stephens. As a diverting curtain-raiser W. H. Dragnil's play in one act, The Admiral, is ably performed by Messrs H. Lingard, Robert Grey, Miss Mary Bates, and Miss Marie Vere.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Sept. 26, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Seymour Hicks and George Edwardes, entitled
"ONE OF THE BEST."

The popular parts of the spacious Borough Theatre were well patronised on Monday night, when Mr Robert Arthur's company in the military drama, One of the Best, commenced a week's return engagement. Of intense interest is the "drumming out" spectacle in the barrack square, in which the services of a large number of auxiliaries and two military bands are utilised, which considerably enhance the local colour of the scene, but the discontinuance of the impressive "rogue's march," with which it was wont to conclude, somewhat detracts from the effectiveness of the scene. Mr Stanley Bedwell acts with all the necessary virility and declamatory power as Dudley Keppel, and makes a very popular hero. Mr E. Bellenden Clarke fulfills all requirements as the unscrupulous and crafty Philip Elsworth, and Mr. H. F. Maltby is a soldierly and alert Lieut.-General Coventry. Mr George Hart makes a dignified Sir Archibald M'Gregor, and Mr Wilfred Beckwith acts throughout in impressive manner as the Rev. Dr. Penrose. Jules De Gruchy is safely entrusted to Mr W. Templar Powell; Jason Jupp is cleverly realised by Mr Charles Medwin; and Sergeant Hennesy is smartly played by Mr Beard Randall. The rôle of Esther Coventry is skilfully handled by Miss Helen Haye; and a sympathetic embodiment of Mary Penrose comes from Miss Jeanette Le Gros. On the lighter side of the drama Mr Herbert Darnley does excellent work as the irrepressible Private Jupp; and he is ably supported by Miss Lilla Norden, bright and sprightly as Kitty Spencer. Mrs Spencer is naturally embodied by Miss Nellie Gilmore.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Sept. 26, for the First Time in London, the Historical Drama, in Four Acts, by Arthur H. Ward, entitled
"THE SHADOW OF THE CROSS;
OR, ANNO DOMINI 670."

Wulfere	Mr Robert Ayrton
Ulfred	Miss Flo Leighton
Rufi	Miss Edith Tempest
Chad	Mr H. Pyne-Warburton
Edgar	Mr Vincent Carlyle
Egbert	Mr Ellerslie Pyne
Oswy	Mr Henry Melville
Ralpho	Mr Louis Prescott
Bartolphe	Mr Jack Hamer
Ptolemy	Mr Hylton Warde
Ethelinda	Miss Evelyn Clare
Edelgitha	Miss Violet Terry
Caleda	Miss Emmeline Lewis
Werebode	Miss Adria Hill

Melodrama will out, whatever its setting, and though the new piece, which was played for the first time in London on Monday at Stratford, deals with the ancient times when the Christian Church in England was in its infancy, the incidents of the play are none the less boldly coloured and sensational. The ecclesiastical episodes are a little uncanonical, and the representation of a bishop officiating at the altar minus his vestments but wearing a mitre gives a chance to the irreverent; but many of the situations of the play are dramatic and stirring, the dialogue is often well written, and the comedy is of the sort that a popular audience can take with relish. The story begins with the home-coming of Wulfere, King of Mercia, who has been victorious over the Danish invader. He learns on his arrival at his palace at Uttoxeter that the Christian sect have increased enormously, the Queen herself having become a convert. She is absent from her place when the King arrives owing to the presence at the Court of an adventuress named Werebode, who has stolen the King's love, and whose aspirations reach even to the throne. Werebode's welcome to the King is affectionate, and after pledging her in a bumper, he orders his sons to drink to her health. Ulfred, the elder, refuses, and toasts his mother, the absent queen, instead, and the King is so incensed that he draws his sword and advances to cut the boy down, but the blade is intercepted by Edgar, a yeoman, of Hough Farm. The King's rage is boundless, but he is an admirer of bravery, and bids Edgar speak. The yeoman is a Christian, and has come to petition that the persecution of his compatriots shall be abated. The king remains firm in his determination to exterminate the sect, and in order to further his plans, decides to strike at Edgar through his wife. He accordingly sends Egbert, one of his captains, to secure the yeoman's wife, who is anxiously awaiting her husband's return. Egbert and his accomplice are about to lay hands on the lady when Edgar appears and sends both ruffians flying. Numbers tell, however, and Edgar is in imminent peril until the interposition of Chad, Bishop of Lichfield, stays the murderous deed. The Queen petitions the King to restore her to her rightful position, but her prayer is in vain, and she leaves to pray at the foot of the altar, where her boys presently follow her. Meanwhile the King, who is inclined to relent, is told by Werebode that there is a plot on foot for his assassination, so that the Queen may hold the reins of Government through her son. Wulfere is infuriated, and rushes off to the Christian settlement to put everyone to the sword. He butchers his two sons, whom he discovers in the sanctuary, and when the Queen is loud in her upbraidings, the Bishop bids her pray that the murderer may be forgiven. Wulfere is so touched by these charitable words that he determines to render justice. Convinced that Werebode has deceived him, he bids her depart, but before going, she asks him to drink to her welfare. She gives him a cup which she thinks contains poison, but Edgar has been on the watch and changed the goblets, so that it is Werebode who quaffs the deadly draught. Edgar calls for vengeance upon Egbert, who has connived at Wulfere's death, but the Pagan monarch, recalling the words of the Christian prelate, bids Edgar pray that his enemy may be pardoned. So deeply affected is the King at the bloodshed that has been wrought that he contemplates suicide, but he is saved from a watery grave by Edgar, and finally espouses the new religion and dies a Christian, his last moments being solaced by the vision of his wife and children beneath the protecting Shadow of the Cross. Miss Adria Hill and Mr Robert Ayrton's company acquit themselves admirably of the responsibilities of the production. Mr Robert Ayrton makes of King Wulfere a bluff and hearty monarch, impulsive in thought and quick in execution. His sonorous tones are well employed in the noble sentiments he has to expound, which become very impressive by virtue of his delivery of them, and his performance, never overladen with passion, is an artistic one throughout. As the wanton Werebode Miss Adria Hill has opportunities for the exercise of both the tragic and the comic mood, and while her intensity in the former is all that can be desired, her touches of grim humour frequently move to hearty laughter. Mr Vincent Carlyle is a brave stalwart of the faith as Edgar. His clarion voice has the ring of sincerity, and the manly vigour of his style and his sound dramatic acting make his success certain. Mr Ellerslie Pyne realises in the glare of his eye and the ferocity of his countenance the iniquitous nature of the Captain of the Guard, Egbert, though he would be more effective if he were to moderate the ardour of his villainy. The persecuted Queen is sympathetically played by Miss Evelyn Clare, who is skilful in the portrayal of emotion, and Miss Violet Terry makes a pathetic picture of Edelgitha, Edgar's wife. The chances for fun are seized by Mr Hylton Warde, who as the Royal cook creates a diversion in the kitchen, assistance in that department being rendered by Miss Emmeline Lewis, a sprightly kitchenmaid, and a good word should be added for Miss Flo Leighton, who makes a comely and well-spoken lad as the King's son Ulfred, and for Miss Edith Tempest, who plays naturally as the boy Rufi. Mr Harry Pyne-Warburton delivers the lines of the Bishop of Lichfield with due solemnity, and as Ralpho, a seneschal, Mr Louis Prescott should be commended for a well-studied rendering. The mounting and dressing of the piece is elaborate, and though the chorus could with advantage be reinforced, there is enough excitement and interest in the play to secure it an extended run.

EALING THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 26, the Melodrama, in Four Acts, entitled
"THE TICKET-OF-LEAVE MAN."

Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison's excellent company is here with The Ticket-of-Leave Man, Tom Taylor's celebrated melodrama, in which Mr Henry Neville is seen in his original character of Bob Brierley, a Lancashire lad, which he plays with his usual high ability. Mr L. Cory Thomas as Hawkshaw, the detective, submits a fine piece of character acting, deserving full credit for his embodiment. Mr Wm. Devereux, who portrays James Dalton, alias the Tiger, is capital. He quite realises the peculiarities of an expert cracksman, being assisted in a clever manner by Mr T. W. Rawson as Melter Moss. Mr Wm. Mallalieu, the benevolent old Mr Gibson, is responsible for a creditable portrayal; Mr F. G. Thurstans creates roars of laughter by his eccentricities as Green Jones; and the bright Miss Adie Boyne, in the part of Sam Willoughby, is very popular. The fascinating Miss Evelyn Weeden enacts May Edwards with considerable ability; and Miss Emma Victor is very funny as the motherly Mrs Willoughby. Mr John Mason as Maltby is good; and the minor parts of a waiter and Brunton are in the capable hands of Mr L. St. Clair and Mr J. W. Leighton. The Two Orphans was played by the same company on Thursday and Friday evenings.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 26, the Domestic Drama, by Walter Howe, entitled
"A VICTIM OF VILLAINY."

It is a somewhat highly seasoned bill-of-fare that is presented to the patrons of the Dalston Theatre this week in the shape of the domestic drama, by Walter Howe, entitled A Victim of Villainy. Mr Howe undertakes the part of Frank Manton, a marine engineer, and he succeeds in getting on good terms with the audience. He is admirably supported by Miss Marietta Hyde, who appears as Manton's wife. Mr Sydney Arnold as Stephen Cavanagh, the head of a firm of shipbuilders, fully sustains the interest of an important character in the story. Miss Helena Walbran as Alice Cavanagh, Miss Marjorie Carroll as Jane, a maid in the employ of the Cavanagh family, and Mr Conway Forbes as Sidney Downham each represent human links in the chain of events that form the story of the drama. Miss H. E. Russell is Mrs Leckie, and Mr Arthur Staples is Tom Leckie, her nephew. Arthur Lennox, M.D., finds a suitable representative in Mr John Wybrell, and Mr Leonard Howe is Walter Lennox, a younger brother. Mr T. W. Hart as Dick Carson, Mr T. R. Fenton as Patrick Maloney, a police officer, and Mr Alfred Reid as John Davis, a milkman, are all representative characters; and the audience are much amused by Mr Howard Stephens as Sam Blobbsby, a London loafer, and Miss Blanche Nicholls as Marie Blobbsby, "a candidate for the black list." Both these are admirable character sketches, and as such are duly appreciated. Others in the cast include Miss Nita Barton, who gives a vivid representation of a music hall artiste, Miss Cissie Besant, Mr Albert Cremer, Mr Cecil Allpress, and Mr C. Leighton. The scenery, notably representations of the exterior of a metropolitan music hall, the cells at Marylebone Police-court, and the entrance to Pentonville Gaol, is attractive in the sense of being reproductions of typical London scenes.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, Sept. 26, the Play, entitled
"THE EDGE OF THE STORM."

Mr Leon M. Lion's capable company is presenting Mrs Margaret Young's romantic play here for the first time, and great interest is evinced in the lurid scenes depicting interesting episodes in the stirring times of Hungary's war of independence, and, later, of the Indian Mutiny. Mr Henry Renouf as the high-minded Englishman, Jim Poulett, plays the rôle with ease and polish, in which sincerity is the dominant note. Mr Linward Grahame is emphatic as the Magyar leader, Szentes Istvan; as the impulsive Hungarian youth, Bakonyi Ferenz, fiery of revenge, yet restrained by love, Mr Frederick Annerley is imbued with the romance of the period; the pig-headed Indian officer, Major De Trafford, is capitally portrayed by Mr Alan Borthwick; Mr Arthur Fitzgerald makes an excellent Captain Stent; Mr Louis Palgrave is amusing as Ensign Partridge; Mr Gerald Malvern is grim of visage as Mahomet Ali; Rootooswami, in the hands of Mr Leon M. Lion, is a further example of the possibility of making a small part an important one; Mr Arthur Whitehead is a jovial Captain Hodges; as the gallant French Governor, M. Pierre Duchamp, praise is due to the methods of Mr Julius Hagen. The unrelenting Szentes Wilma is finely portrayed by Miss Ada Marius; and the Szentes Leta of Miss Jean Sterling M'Kinlay is a truly charming effort, the joys and sorrows of the gentle Hungarian refugee being delineated with infinite grace. Miss Maud M. Magrath is a capable Mrs De Trafford; Miss Nannie Hume is properly hoydenish as the young English "miss," Katie De Trafford; and Miss Mima Renouf causes hilarity by her oversensitiveness concerning the days of her youth. Some beautiful scenery and effects are employed, and the general excellence of all concerned is noticeable.

OPERA HOUSE. CROUCH-END.

On Monday, Sept. 26, the Romantic Play, in Four Acts, entitled "UNDER THE RED ROBE."

This popular play is attracting appreciative audiences here this week. Mr Robert Hilton devotes his attention to the study of two characters, Cardinal Richelieu and Henri De Cocheforêt, and his performance deserves commendation. Mr J. Forrest submits a humorous interpretation of the Marquis De Pombal. Mr Eric Mason is a capable Sir Thomas Blunt. Mr Norman V. Norman is conspicuous in the responsible rôle of Gil De Berault. Mr Norman Leslie scores as Lieut. Manet. Mr Robert J. Danson does useful work as Captain Larolle. Miss Kathleen Rind shows experience and skill as Madame De Cocheforêt. Miss Lilian Kevill-Davies is well placed as Madame Zaton. Miss F. Glossop Harris is a piquant Susette. As the heroine, Renée De Cocheforêt, Miss Beatrice Wilson displays considerable dramatic ability, and her emotional acting appeals strongly to the audience. The minor parts are in competent hands, and the staging is a commendable item. On Wednesday the same company played Nell Gwyn, and on Friday David Garrick.

GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Sept. 26, the Drama, in Five Acts, entitled "THE FATAL WEDDING."

Mr Bert Coote's company has been here this week with The Fatal Wedding, and has given in all respects a thoroughly good representation of this interesting drama. Miss Marie Housley was admirably suited with the sympathetic part of the much-wronged Mabel Wilson, portraying with true feeling the poor woman's love for, and determination not to be separated from, her children. Miss Beatrix De Burgh was very successful as Cora Williams, the adventuress, and spoke her lines with a force and, when necessary, a malignant intensity admirably in keeping with the character. A clever performance was that of Miss Ida Valli, who won all hearts as Jessie, "the little mother," and whose song and dance in the third act was repeatedly encored. As Howard Wilson Mr Wilfred Payne had a strong part, and made the most of it; both in portraying Wilson torn by conflicting emotions and in showing him affectionately playing with his children, Mr Payne's acting was perfectly natural and true to life. Mr Leyton Cancellor as Robert Curtis was responsible for an excellent representation of this parasitic man about town, while the character was hit off throughout with a nicety which betrayed careful study. Mr Cancellor was at his best in the drunken scene in the third act. Miss Harriet Clifton was genuinely funny as Bridget, and with the help of Mr C. H. Kenny as Toto caused much amusement. Mr Fred Dobell as Peter Schwartz and Mr H. Welbeck as O'Reilly did well in their respective parts. A notable feature was the chorus of specially trained children, whose singing and dancing were much appreciated.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, Sept. 26, the Drama, by Henry Arthur Jones, in Five Acts, entitled "THE SILVER KING."

Still as popular as ever it was, The Silver King drew a big audience at the Kingston playhouse on Monday night, when the first of six performances was given by a most capable company, under the direction of G. M. Polini and Austin Melford. The drama was admirably acted, and was followed with keen interest. Mr Melford himself played the title-rôle, and gave a powerfully impressive rendering of the part. Miss Emelie Polini appeared as Nellie Denver, and sustained the rôle most effectively. Both were soon en rapport with the audience, who were not chary in expressing approval of their united efforts. A pretty piece of character acting was that of Mr C. C. Grattan as Daniel Jaiker, and Miss Amy Manfree and Master Jack Evan made a host of friends by the intelligent and natural way in which they behaved as the children Cissy and Ned. Captain Skinner, Henry Corkett, Elijah Coombe, and Cripps found capable exponents in Messrs Charles Lovey, James L. Power, Arthur Rooke, and C. P. Amalia respectively, and the detective of Mr Warriss Lindon and the Frank Selwyn of Mr Phil Redmayne deserve passing notice. In the subordinate parts mention should also be made of Miss Phyllis Dailly as Olive Skinner, Mr A. Shoesmith as the railway porter, and of Miss Amy Wood as Tabitha Durden. In respect of scenery and stage appointments nothing was lacking.

PRINCE OF WALES'S, RICHMOND.

On Monday, Sept. 26, "QUALITY STREET."

Mr J. M. Barrie's fascinating play Quality Street has been presented here this week by Messrs Addison Bright and Walter Maxwell's No. 1 company. Mr George A. Brandram is an excellent Valentine Brown, and plays throughout in just the right spirit. Ensign Blades is amusingly rendered by Mr Arthur C. F. Lysons, and Mr Herbert Chown is distinctly good as Lieutenant Spicer. The Recruiting Serjeant finds an able exponent in Mr Dan Dyer, and Master George Hollom is a delightful specimen of the impish schoolboy Arthur Wellesley Tomson. Miss Grace Edwin is fully equal to the demands made upon her by the part of Miss Susan Throssell. The prying Misses Willoughby are capitally played by Miss Isabel Merson and Miss Mary Dennett, and Miss Frances Leslie is equally good as Miss Henrietta Turnbull. Miss Lillian Rogers plays prettily as Miss Charlotte Parratt. Miss Gwyneth Galton is a humorous Patty. The all-important part of Phœbe Throssell is entrusted to Miss Florence Jackson, who deserves much commendation for the way she acquits herself in it. Whether weeping or laughing, teaching or dancing, Miss Jackson carries all before her. The play is excellently mounted and dressed.

A STATUE of Talma, Napoleon's favourite tragedian, has been erected at Polx, France, in the Department of the Nord. It was here that he passed his boyhood. He was born in Paris, and his father was a dentist. Talma was the first French actor to play Shakespeare, and a celebrated picture represents him in the rôle of Hamlet. He was the first also to see the absurdity of the convention that compelled every actor, no matter whether his part was modern or classical, to play in the costume of the Court of Louis XIV. Thus Cæsar appeared on the stage arrayed in the white satin of a Court gallant with long hair tied up with bows of ribbon. When Talma substituted the bare arms and toga and the ancient footwear of the Romans in playing Proculus in Brutus, he scandalised his contemporaries But it was the day of revolution (1789), and his ideas triumphed. Talma had a perfect command of English, and played in London. A curious portrait of the tragedian as Hamlet, painted by Lagrenée, adorns the staircase of the Comédie-Française. He is represented in a tunic with a loose species of toga, which serves to hint at the semi-womanly note that is found in Hamlet's temperament.

MADAME PAULINE VIARDOT, although eighty-three years old, continues active in the cause of music. She has recently composed an operetta for performance by her pupils, and completed a third volume of vocal studies, entitled "Une Heure d'Etude," as well as collected a number of her father's MSS. compositions. Mr Albert Garcia, son of Mr Gustave Garcia and great-nephew of Madame Viardot, after a course of instruction under the care of his venerable relative, has made his appearance at the Promenade Concerts.

OPENING OF NEW THEATRE, LYNN.

Lynn people are indeed to be congratulated upon having in their midst Mr J. B. Howard, who, on Monday night, entered upon his lesseeship and management at the New Royal Theatre. Mr Howard is well known in the theatrical world as the managing director of Ben Greet's companies and as chairman of the Touring Managers' Association, and his wide experience in such matters eminently qualifies him for the management of provincial theatres, several of which he has already undertaken. Since Mr J. B. Howard has been in possession of the theatre a transformation has taken place, and the only trace of the old building is the outside walls and roof; everything else has been changed for the better. Great praise is due to Mr W. H. Brown of Lynn, who is responsible for the structural alterations, and Messrs Dean and Co., of Birmingham, for the upholstering and decorations, which have been carried out in such a manner that Lynn now has one of the prettiest and cosiest theatres in the eastern counties. The decorations are in cream and gold, the seats in circle and pit stalls are the patent tip-up upholstered in red velvet. Two boxes have been added, the one on the left-hand side will be known as the Royal box, and hopes are entertained that members of the Royal family may occasionally honour the theatre with their presence.

On Monday night the house was crowded from floor to ceiling with an audience that included many of the leading residents of the town and district. An interesting feature of the opening proceedings was the appearance of Mrs Beerbohm Tree, who came down specially to speak the inauguration prologue, which had been written by Mr Holcombe Ingleby, of Heacham Hall, Norfolk, a gentleman well known in local dramatic circles, for the occasion. It ran as follows:—

What wonders doth the curtain bring to view,
For, Phœnix-like, its ashes doth renew
This Royal Theatre, this pride of Lynn,
Striving your plaudits and your praise to win.
Let each among you play his proper part,
Let some be actors, some encourage art;
Without your aid we cannot thrive or live,
Yet have we something of our own to give.
Here shall contentious aching bones have rest,
Resisters here be welcomed and caressed;
Here dust and din of politics shall cease,
And rival candidates lie down in peace;
Prime actors here shall tread the classic board,
And in your plaudits find their chief reward.
We trust to see the Mayor and Corporation,
Their hatchets bury at our instigation.
No burning question here of rival sites
Shall one iota mar of your delights;
And every shillingsworth we give out hence
We promise you is worth full eighteen-pence.
But cast your eyes around from floor to ceiling!
Have we not done our part with taste and feeling?
However much you may incline to heckle,
You cannot say we've spared a single shekel.
In solemn truth we've done our very best,
And what we've done we've done with zeal and zest.
We've tried with judgment, waiting on celerity,
To add our mite to dear old Lynn's prosperity.
With J. B. Howard pulling at the strings
You'll revel in a crowd of wondrous things,
And you who see La Poupée's splendid greeting
Will say that Phil Ben Greet requires some beating.
Enough! Enough! I must no longer stand
'Twixt you and your enjoyment; may the hand
That hath this gorgeous edifice renewed
For ever prosper! May the Fates imbued
With kindly spirit, grant this kingly town
Recurring laurels and increased renown!
May roof and rafters with your plaudits ring,
And happiness to these our actors bring.
And if I might one little prayer let fall,
These heartfelt words I'd say, "God bless you all."

After which Mrs Tree formally declared the theatre open, and introduced Mr J. B. Howard, who on coming forward was vociferously received.

Mr HOWARD then made the following speech:—Mrs Tree, Ladies, and Gentlemen,—Firstly, Mrs Tree, allow me to thank you on behalf of the Lynn public and myself for the kind words you have said about our new theatre. It gives us very great pleasure to see you on this stage, and although the theatre is practically a new one, this fine old ancient stage still remains. The foundation-stone of this theatre was laid in 1813, so I believe the stage you now stand upon is ninety-one years old. I only wish it were possible that your distinguished husband could have been here with us to-night, but I am afraid the London public at present require his services. However, although absent, he has not forgotten us, for he has sent me a very kind telegram. Again I thank you for the kind service you have rendered here this evening in speaking the prologue, so kindly written by Mr Holcombe Ingleby, and declaring the theatre open, and we all look forward to your appearance to-morrow afternoon and to hearing you in the work you love so well. Ladies and gentlemen, I assure you after the right royal reception you gave me a few minutes ago, that I am in the midst of friends and well-wishers in my new venture. During the short time I have been amongst you in Lynn I have received every kindness and encouragement at your hands, and I should like to specially thank the press for the kindness they have extended to me through the medium of their valuable columns since I came to Lynn. We all know in the past this theatre has not been comfortable for you. It has been no encouragement to you to support the drama, and I feel confident that now I have provided you with what I hope you consider a theatre worthy of your old and ancient borough, you will show your appreciation by supporting and helping me to make this one of the most successful theatres in the Eastern Counties. I am pleased to tell you that I have succeeded in booking for the first year what I consider a unique record of good companies. It is my intention as far as possible to provide you with musical plays and operas for the first three nights of each week and good dramas for the last three. Of course, ladies and gentlemen, my endeavour is to try and satisfy you all. It is not everyone who appreciates melodrama, but there are many of my friends in the pit and the gallery who like a good wholesome play—and why not? Amongst the musical plays I have booked are A Chinese Honeymoon, The Belle of New York, Three Little Maids, Les Cloches de Corneville, The Earl and the Girl, A Country Girl, Sergeant Brue, and Florodora. I have already booked the following well-known and successful dramas:—Next Thursday, Friday, and Saturday a play that was performed in London last week with enormous success, That Woman from France. The following week local interest will be centred in the visit of Mr and Mrs Gamble, professionally known as Mr and Mrs Campbell, who will appear in a new play written by Mr Gamble, and which has met with a splendid reception in every town it has visited. Later, we have the visit of my dear old friend, Mr Ben Greet's company, who will perform Hall Caine's great play The Eternal City, also by arrangement with Mr Tree, The Darling of the Gods will be played. Sherlock Holmes will also appear amongst us, The Fatal Wedding, and the late Wilson Barrett's great drama The Silver King These are only a few of the good plays coming. We shall have Mr Penley's No. 1 company in the ever-successful comedy Charley's Aunt, and Mr Chas. Frohman's company will bring Are You a Mason? I am also well provided with pantomime. At Christmas I have booked Dick Whittington for a week, also a week of Cinderella, and a little later a week of Babes in the Wood. Therefore, ladies and gentlemen, you will see we are to have what I consider a splendid list of attractions. I am pleased to tell you that the following distinguished list of actors and actresses have presented me with a photograph for the walls of our theatre:—Miss Ellen Terry, Sir Henry Irving, Mr Beerbohm Tree, Mr George Grossmith, and last, but not least, Mrs Tree. I should also like to thank Mr Page for lending me the beautiful set of old Shakespearian pictures which are now hanging at the back of the circle. I will not take up much more of your time as I see Mr Smith is waiting to photograph you all. I will take this opportunity of asking you at the conclusion of my speech to remain seated while a photograph is being taken of this very interesting occasion. Mr Smith also asks me to mention that he does not want you all to look straight at the camera. Before concluding I can only say that I shall do my best to merit your approval by bringing good plays and good companies to the theatre, and if you are pleased with the arrangements I have made for you both on and off the stage, I am grateful. Before I finish I should like to congratulate on your behalf as well as on my own your respected townsman, Mr William Brown, on the way he has carried out his duties in the rebuilding of this theatre. It is a great credit to him. It was no easy undertaking, and I believe I am right in saying that this is the first theatre he has been connected with. Has he not done well? Another one to congratulate is the architect, Mr Bertie Crewe. He is an old hand at this kind of work, but Mr Crewe, being a friend of mine, said "I intend to design for you a theatre that the Lynn public will be proud of." And I think he has succeeded. Last, but not least, our praises must be given to the upholsterers and decorators, Messrs Dean, who have done their work in a lavish and tasteful manner. Also a word of praise is due to your local artist, Mr Seonce, for the beautiful act-drop he has painted. I have also great pleasure in introducing to you my manager, Mr Leonard, who will, I am sure, look after your comforts when I am away. In conclusion, ladies and gentlemen, allow me to thank you once again for the hearty reception you have given us, and on behalf of us all I can only add the few lines that you will see painted above this proscenium, "Our true intent is all for your delight."

The preliminaries included the photographing of the audience by flashlight by Mr T. Smith, and then, after the overture, the curtain rose, and La Poupée occupied the boards for the rest of the evening. It is sufficient to say that the charming comic opera was performed by Mr Ben Greet's No. 1 company. All the members worked hard, and did full justice to their respective parts, many of the items being redemanded over and over again.

Mr Howard has a very able assistant in Mr Herbert Leonard, the dramatic author, who was for many years associated with the late Mr George Conquest, at the Surrey Theatre, and who has taken up his residence in Lynn as Mr Howard's local manager.

On Thursday and following nights Mr Campbell's No. 1 company in That Woman from France was announced to occupy the theatre. Arrangements have been made with the railway company to run late trains for the convenience of country visitors.

DEATH OF MR. MEL B. SPURR.

By the sudden death in Melbourne on Sunday of Mr Mel B. Spurr, the popular profession of entertaining has lost one of its most successful exponents. Unlike the late Corney Grain or George

THE LATE MR. MEL B. SPURR.

Grossmith, Mr Spurr was a provincial, and his class of entertainment appealed very peculiarly and successfully to the provinces, where he was universally known and appreciated. When quite recently he took Melbourne by storm, it was a matter of curiosity whether the "Mel" stood by chance for that city. It was Melancthon Burton Spurr, however, who was born in Selby, Yorkshire, on March 1, 1852, though he lived most of his youth and early manhood in Hull. After a brief career as a solicitor in his father's office and elsewhere, he deserted the law, having seen Corney Grain, and determined to "go and do likewise." From a boy he had been precociously clever at the piano, and as an amateur mimic and actor; and when thirty he finally became a full-blown professional entertainer. The chief characteristic of Mr Spurr's performance was its length; his own greatest triumph his versatility. He almost invariably performed for a full two hours, with the briefest interval midway, and was equally successful with the humorous song, the serious recitation, the musical parody, the zither solo, and the musical sketch. Of the many songs for ever associated with his name one may recall "The Tin Gee-gee," which he rewrote and popularised; "The Nipper's Lullaby," of which he was the author; "When I was a boy at school," "The world went very well then," and the "After dinner" sketch. He wrote also a volume of recitations, including the favourite "If We Only Knew," and another, in which nursery rhymes were parodied in the styles of popular poets.

After many years of steadily increasing popularity in the provinces, Mr Spurr won his way to London, appearing at the Court Theatre before The Amazons of Mr Pinero, and subsequently spending five years with Mr Maskelyne at the Egyptian Hall. In February, 1903, he left England for South Africa, and so unmistakable was his success there that a tour was at once planned, covering Australasia, India, and the United States. After winning golden opinions in Australia, and breaking the records of "one-man shows," he visited Tasmania and New Zealand with equal success, and was on his return visit to Melbourne when his death took place. Details are not yet to hand, but it was probably a case of heart failure, although recent letters had declared that he was in the best of health and spirits. Mr Spurr's genial face and kind, hearty manners will be sorely missed by the many many friends whose lives, private or public, he has so often brightened by his wholesome fun and unflagging spirits. Mr Spurr leaves a widow and one daughter.

AT the Theatre Royal, Leigh, on Thursday afternoon, Mr Robt. Perris copyrighted a "new and beautiful drama of the soul," in three acts and five scenes, entitled Beyond. Edgar Allen Poe Lenore were in the list of dramatis personæ, but there was no mention of a Raven in the cast. One of the scenes was the Elysian Fields.

A BLIND ACTOR.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—An exceedingly sad case of distress in our profession has been brought to my notice by my old friend and brother actor, Mr E. M. Robson. It is that of Mr Henry Crisp, who, being fifty-one years of age, and having been an actor for thirty years, is now totally blind, and has been so from the end of October, 1903. He acted up to the last, and played for two years with the vision of one eye quite gone, while that of the other was gradually going. Out of his thirty years' experience he has held engagements as follows:—With Mrs Scott Siddons, three consecutive engagements; with Miss Jennie Lee, five consecutive years; with Mrs Langtry, four consecutive years; with Mr Penley, twelve consecutive years; with Mr Willard, three tours, and as stage-manager with Mr Tree (Captain Swift Co. 1). This makes very nearly thirty years, and shows that he must have been reliable and steady to have secured so many re-engagements. His salaries have always been small—£3 to £4 per week—once only reaching £8, so it is not surprising that he has no savings to fall back upon. He has a slender private income derived from the rents of three small houses. The property is mortgaged, and is in the hands of the mortgagees, who work it and allow him 15s. per week. His rent for a top room in the Kennington-road is 8s. per week, and the 7s. left has to find all the necessaries for himself and his wife, and he is not in arrears with his rent. Two years ago he was six months idle on account of illness, chiefly connected with his affliction. The expenses incurred by this, added to fees paid to various doctors in the different towns he visited on tours, reduced his income and savings considerably. He has been an inmate of the Westminster and Ophthalmic Hospitals, but with no benefit, though he speaks gratefully of the kindness shown him by a certain well-known doctor, who treated him gratuitously and secured his admission into the hospitals. There is no hope of his ever seeing again. One eye is quite gone, and is replaced by an artificial one, and the other is past being operated upon. His debts are very few and small; I have a list of them. All he possesses is pledged, but a few pounds would redeem everything. He is a Mason. His mother Lodge is Asaph 1,319. He has paid up and left, owing nothing. He has no Lodge now, and has not applied to his former Lodge for assistance in his distress or to any other. His address is 145, Kennington-road, S.E.

I have spoken about his case to Mr Beerbohm Tree, Mr Pinero, Captain Marshall, Mr Alexander, Mr Bourchier, and Sir Squire Bancroft, all of whom are deeply interested in the case, and express their willingness to help him. I have every hope eventually of organising a concert for his benefit at the Queen's Hall. In the meantime may I ask for the kind consideration which you have always shown for cases of distress in our profession, and beg you to open a subscription list on his behalf, kindly putting me down for £5?

Yours faithfully, CYRIL MAUDE.

Sept. 24, 1904.

Mr Edward Ledger will be pleased to receive subscriptions for this distressing and heart-rending case, and all cheques forwarded will be duly acknowledged.

"TAPS."

(FROM OUR NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT).

Zapfenstreich, a drama of German military life, by Franz Adam Beyerlein, was the success of the season last year at the Irving-place Theatre. The English translation, which bears the above title, was made by Charles Swickard, and the play, in four acts, was produced at the Lyric Theatre, New York, on the 17th ult. In America when the bugler sounds "taps" it means "lights out," having the same significance as the bugle call known as "the last post" in England. The drama deals with the love affairs of Clara, the daughter of Sergeant-Major Volkhardt, who has an honourable record of thirty-three years in the service. Clara has been engaged to Corporal Helbig, who has been attending a riding school in another town for two years. During his absence the girl has fallen in love with young Lieutenant Von Lauffen. Helbig returns, and Clara treats him coldly. Von Lauffen has persuaded her to visit him in his apartments after "taps," and by putting two and two together Helbig takes a pretty correct view of the situation. His suspicions are confirmed in a strong scene at the close of the second act. At a late hour he demands admittance to the private quarters of Lieutenant Von Lauffen, and warns him not to trifle with Clara. Von Lauffen orders Helbig to leave, and the latter becomes convinced that the girl is secreted in an adjoining room. In a burst of jealous rage, Helbig attacks his superior officer and is placed under arrest. Clara is a silent witness to this scene, the door between the two rooms having been forced open. The third act is taken up with the trial of Corporal Helbig by court-martial. He conceals the real cause of the quarrel, and Von Lauffen supports him, both denying that there was any woman mixed up in the affair, and allowing the Court to infer that Helbig's conduct was due to intoxication. But Clara is called before this testimony is sworn to, and to save her lover from committing perjury the girl makes a clean breast of the affair. Her father springs at Von Lauffen like a tiger, but is held back by the other officers. In the last act Volkhardt seeks the betrayer of his daughter, and forgetting in his rage as a father his position as a non-commissioned officer, demands the satisfaction that would be due to an equal in rank. But Von Lauffen will not fight, nor can he marry the girl. Clara interrupts them, and declares that she alone is to blame—that she threw herself at Von Lauffen. And Volkhardt, made furious by her words, draws his revolver and shoots her.

The play was received with marked approval by a large audience. The scene of the court-martial, vivid and true in every detail, proved intensely interesting, and the conditions peculiar to German military life were reproduced in a lifelike manner throughout. Mr Herbert Kelcey as Sergeant-Major Volkhardt portrayed a character entirely different from any that he has been wont to assume, and scored a success of the first magnitude. In manner, voice, and gesture he was the old soldier to the life, and his impersonation has brought him once more into well-deserved prominence. Miss Effie Shannon made a very good impression as Clara. Mr Robert Loraine as Von Lauffen and Mr Paul Everton as his fellow-lieutenant Von Hoewen gave excellent representations. The Sergeant Quiess of Mr Aubrey Noyes was a clever character sketch, and Mr Charles Swickard, the translator and stage-manager, also played one of the minor parts satisfactorily.

THE London Academy of Music, founded in 1861, and for some time carrying on operations at St. George's Hall, has joined forces with the London Music School, the Metropolitan College of Music, and the Forest-gate College of Music. These united institutions will henceforth be known as the London Academy of Music, the headquarters being at 22, Princes-street, Oxford-circus, with branches at Kensington, Brighton, Forest-gate, Southend, Leytonstone, and elsewhere. The direction of the enterprise—which has been registered as the United Music Schools, Limited, with a capital of £12,000—will be in the hands of Dr. Yorke Trotter, Mr H. Beauchamp, Mr L. Denza, Mr W. Harding Bonner, and Mr Carl Weber.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at any of Smith and Sons' bookstalls throughout the provinces.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, SEPT. 29.—Herr Strecker has drawn his play, he tells us, from a motif of Ernest Renans. It is somewhat more than merely a motif; it is the story of the Abbess of Jouarre—which is known to most people—pure and simple. The dramatist has added a little, and, it must be admitted, has made a very interesting play of the whole. It met with a cordial reception, the Prison scene, where the young Abbess and the doomed Marquis D'Arcy confess their love, arousing enthusiastic applause by open stage. The interpretation of the piece was not quite even, but the rendering of many of the rôles was excellent. Herr Connard gave a first-rate account of the actor Augustin, and Fräulein Hruby was sympathetic and convincing in the part of the Abbess; the clever young artiste was, moreover, in the necessary scenes, full of considerable dramatic power.

HERR FRANK WEDEKIND'S tragi-comedy Erdgeist was given last week at the Neues with a fair measure of success. The author delivered a prologue which he had specially composed for the occasion, and, appearing in the multi-coloured garb of the manager of a travelling menagerie before the curtain, created a sensational effect. The characterising of each of the figures of the play as wild animals is an original idea, bizarre as are most of Herr Wederkind's ideas. Chief among the tragi-comic impersonations was the Snake of Frau Eysoldt; it was a wonderfully realistic and clever piece of acting. The piece is not new; it has merely been retouched and "done up," and has been already detailed in your columns.

AT the Belle Alliance Theatre there was an interesting jubilee last Friday. Herr August Junkermann celebrated his fiftieth year of public life. The famous character actor is, perhaps, at his best in the Low-German comedies of Reuter, and for this occasion a performance of Reuter's Onkel Brasig was selected, Herr Junkermann giving the name-part in his own incomparable manner. It was a highly successful evening, the popular artist being called and recalled and awarded floral tributes ad fin.

THE Thalia, which has been subjected, like many sister houses, to a beautifying process during the holidays, has reopened under capital auspices. Der Weiberkönig (King Among Women) was the initial piece. It is still running and probably will run for some time to come. It is a musical farce, or burlesque, of the brilliant kind we are accustomed to at the Thalia. Three well-known "fun-makers"—Herr Kren, Herr Schoenfeld, and Herr Ely—have combined to write the work, while the bright music is by Herr Eilödshofer. Plot there is none to describe, but the scenes are, one and all, amusing, if the whole is a little confusing. The cast is so good that it could not well be better. Herr Thielscher is once again the hero of the evening, and many and varied are the phases in which the delighted audience see him. Herr Helmerding, Fräuleins Dora and Abarbanell, Herr Reif, and others shared well-deserved applause, and a word of commendation must not be omitted for the very effective mounting of the piece.

LUDWIG AUZENGRUBER'S peasant-comedy Der Kreuzelschreiber, was given on Saturday at the Schiller N., making an excellent impression. The house was—as it nearly always is—very well filled, and the audience was a most appreciative one. Great pains had been expended upon the interpretation, which was good all round. Herr Pategg, Herr Rolan, and Fräulein Schumowska in the principal rôles acted exceedingly well.

THE Lessing Theatre produced a few nights ago a very old play, Calderon's Der Richter von Zalamea. It is naturally too well known to need description, having been translated from its original Spanish into most modern tongues. The present translation is a new one, by the talented playwright, Herr Rudolf Presber, and it is admirable. The work created its customary profound impression, for the interpretation was as good as it could well be. Herr Reicher gave a masterly rendering of the part of Crespo, Fräulein Triesch was faultless as Isabel, and Herr Bassermann had a rôle in Don Lope that suited him exactly. The Knight of the Sorrowful Countenance, Don Mendo, found a humorous and judicious exponent in Herr Meinhard. The audience applauded to the echo, and "called" the chief artistes repeatedly, but all efforts were vain, it being against the laws of the Lessing for the actors to appear before the curtain.

"ÄENNCHEN VON THARAU," three-act drama, by Willibald Alexis, is running successfully at the Deutsche Volkebühne. Alexis is well known, but his Aennchen von Tharau is new to many. It is a well-written play, of a simple volks-piece character, and it met with a very cordial reception. Cast and mounting were alike good.

THE Lustspielhaus—which opens on Oct. 1—has an excellent draw for the first night. A new play by Otto Erich Hartleben, entitled Ein Wahrhaft Guter Mensch, has been acquired by the management. Three days later there is to be a second novelty—Herr Robert Misch's comedy, in three acts, Biederleute. Among the excellent company which has been engaged for the new theatre is the clever versatile actress Frau Schneide-Nissen.

"DIE FERNE" is the name of a new three-act drama, by Eugen Brull, which was given for the first time at the Imperial Burg Theatre, Vienna, last week. It is a play with a strong moral, chiefly directed against the practice of duelling. The frequent and spontaneous applause plainly showed the feelings of the audience on this much-discussed subject.

MAXIM GORKI'S latest production—a series of loosely-connected scenes in the manner of Nachtasyl entitled Datschniki—has been acquired by Herr Reinhardt, manager of the Neues and Kleines Theatres. Herr Scholz is the translator and adaptor. The work has not been acted anywhere at present, and will be given almost simultaneously at Moscow and Berlin.

HERR SIEGFRIED WAGNER'S new opera, Bruder Lustig, will not be produced here, as was generally believed. It is the Stadt Theatre at Hamburg that will have the honour, and the production, I hear, has been postponed until next summer.

AT the usual weekly meeting of the council of the Actors' Association, held last Tuesday, Dorothy Garth, Rita Tomkins, and Eva May Young were nominated as candidates for election as members. The honorary solicitors reported progress in several matters. Ten easy-chairs have been added to the furniture of the Association. A case referred to arbitration has been amicably settled between the parties concerned, and the arbitrators were therefore released from their duties.

IN our notice of the performance of My Sweetheart at the Theatre Royal, Windsor, last week, instead of speaking of the Sisters Anna and Flora Temple, we should have said that Anna and Flora, two of Tina's playmates were represented by Miss Jennie Temple and Miss Alice Temple, skilful and accomplished dancers.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

The most sensational theatrical event of the week has been the production, at the Savoy Theatre on Thursday, of The Golden Light, a play by Mrs Brown-Potter's sister, Madame Raoul Duval. The piece was originally written in French, and was then translated by the authoress into English. Madame Duval is the writer of several of the poems which Mrs Brown-Potter recited on her recent concert tour. Each of the costumes in The Golden Light was intended to have "a soulful meaning," and they are marvellously tasteful and artistic, the hats being charmingly picturesque. Mrs Potter wore a particularly big one in the third act, and it, unfortunately, fell off in the middle of a heart-rending love-scene. The costumes, however, were the only thing remarkable in the production, which fell decidedly flat. If the great attraction of the stage in the future is to be "pretty frocks," it will be bad for the lovers of real dramatic art.

Miss Kitty Gordon, who has created such a favourable impression by her acting in the part of Agatha (Madame Coquenard) in Veronique at the Apollo Theatre, is to be married on Wednesday next to the Hon. Henry Beresford, son of Lord Decies. Miss Gordon, who, it may be remembered, appeared with conspicuous success in Kitty Grey, The Duchess of Dantzic, and The Girl from Kay's, is a charming and talented actress. Mr Beresford, who was until recently a captain in the 13th Hussars, served through the late South African War, and is very popular in society and military circles. He is a great huntsman and traveller, and for a young man has seen a good deal of the world The wedding is to be a very quiet affair, and for that reason the name of the church is withheld. The bride and bridegroom will spend their honeymoon in Paris.

A strong reception committee, headed by the mayor, has been formed at Sunderland to entertain Sir Henry Irving on his forthcoming visit to the town. It was at Sunderland that he made his first appearance on any stage. The following Christmas he played in a comic pantomime, and during the day the young actor used to go over to Roker, the neighbouring seaside resort, and rehearse his part to the waves from the beach.

Mr Henry Crisp, who is fifty-one, and has been on the stage for thirty years, has been totally blind since October last. He acted for two years with the use of one eye entirely lost. Mr Crisp earned but a small salary, and, therefore, was able to make but imperfect provision for old age; and the heart-rending trouble which has come upon him must appeal to the theatrical profession, which is always full of pity and generosity. Mr Cyril Maude has asked us to open a subscription list on poor Crisp's behalf, and has headed it with £5; and Mr Edward Ledger, who has given the same sum, will be pleased to acknowledge all amounts sent to him at this office.

Mr Beerbohm Tree will give, on Tuesday, Oct. 25, a special matinée of Trilby at His Majesty's Theatre, for the benefit of the Actors' Benevolent Fund. Mr Tree's beautiful and accomplished daughter Viola will play the title-part. The committee are obliged to appeal to the London managers for matinées in order that assistance may be continued to the numerous applicants to the funds for help.

Mr Frederick Harrison and Mr Cyril Maude will dissolve partnership at the end of their next summer season, after which Mr Harrison will continue in management as lessee of the Haymarket Theatre, and Mr Maude will probably start management elsewhere with his wife, Miss Winifred Emery, who will return to the stage next year. Beauty and the Barge will be transferred in January to the reconstructed Haymarket, where Mr Maude will remain until July. It is stated that Mr Forbes Robertson and his clever wife, Miss Gertrude Elliott, will join Mr Harrison in management.

Mr Sam Sothern, who is playing in The Catch of the Season, tells an amusing little story of his first appearance in America. His manager was the well-known actor, John T. Raymond, and when the young Englishman made his first entrance the older man, whose talent was equalled by his eccentricity, suddenly laid his hand on his shoulder and turned him round to the audience. "This is young Sam Sothern," he explained, to the astonishment of everybody on and off the stage, "And because we all remember his father so well, I know you will give him a hearty welcome. Sam, my boy, fire away!"

Mrs Lane-Joynt, who plays Miss Le Gay, a racy society adventuress, in the new play The Golden Light, which was produced on Thursday at the Savoy, is a popular member of Irish society, well-known in Dublin Vice-regal circles, and has the reputation of being one of our best lady golfers. On the death of her husband, Mrs Lane-Joynt gave up golf and began to study for the stage. Her first chance came two years ago through Mr Beerbohm Tree, who secured her for the part of Princess Natashi in a provincial tour of Tolstoi's Resurrection. She was then known as Miss Maud Cleveland, but she has decided to retain her own name in future. She has quick intelligence, a handsome face, and an elegant figure.

Mr Frank Cooper, who will be leading man when the Avenue opens this month, is an accomplished painter, as well as an actor of over twenty years' standing. The two brothers, Frank Cooper and Cooper Cliffe, are descended on their mother's side from Mrs Siddons, and their father was a theatrical manager. Mr Cooper was a Lyceum man even before "the great days," for he has a vivid recollection of standing in the wings to watch Sir Henry Irving rehearse Hamlet—he himself was cast for Laertes—when all the good old actors connected with the theatre looked on the future head of the profession as "a mere boy."

Mr William T. Stead commenced his study of the stage in the front row of the pit of His Majesty's Theatre on the night of the 23rd ult., accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Robins. After the performance Mr Stead and Miss Robins were received by Mr Tree on the stage.

Mr Frank Dyall, who is cast for the part of Sir Ralph Ingram in the forthcoming production of His Majesty's Servant, is a son of Mr Dyall, of the Walker Art Gallery, Liverpool. In his early days the young actor was a prominent member of the best amateur dramatic club in that city, and his first attempt on a real stage was at the St. James's, under Mr Alexander, for whom he subsequently stage-managed at the Royalty. Mr Dyall has been associated with a great many of Mr Lewis Waller's former productions.

Mr A. E. George, who is to play a character rôle in His Majesty's Servant, is an actor who rarely, if ever, "rests." He holds a record of over twelve years' work without a single break. Born in Lincolnshire, he started life as a choir boy, afterwards becoming—like Mr Herbert Waring and Mr Cairns James—a schoolmaster. He is a remarkably quick study, as the following incident goes to prove. While fulfilling an engagement at the Criterion Sir Charles Wyndham sent for him one Friday night after the performance, and quietly asked him whether he could play a big part at the matinée on the following day. It is needless to say that Sir Charles himself fully appreciated the difficulties, and so did Mr George—but he played the part.

Mr Joseph Jefferson is ill at his country home in Buzzard's Bay, Mass., and has cancelled all engagements for the season. Mr Jefferson, though seventy-five years old, has enjoyed excellent health, and is very vigorous for a man of his years. He has limited his dramatic work to two short tours in the year—sometimes broken by a few weeks' holiday—and passes a great portion of the leisure months in open-air sport. He has, therefore, retained to a remarkable degree his youthful strength, and bids fair to devote many years to come to a profession in which he takes great delight. Recently, however, while at Buzzard Bay Mr Jefferson was attacked by what appeared to be somewhat serious indigestion, and after a consultation with his physician he decided to abandon all thought of an appearance in public this season. Mr Thomas Jefferson, a son of the veteran actor, has begun a thirty weeks' tour in Rip Van Winkle. His supporting company includes his daughter, Miss Lauretta Jefferson, who has just made her début as Meenie. Thus three generations of Jeffersons are now represented on the stage.

Mr J. Bannister Howard last Monday night at King's Lynn received over 100 "wires" of congratulation on the reopening of the new Theatre Royal, including telegrams from Mr J. L. Toole, Miss Ellen Terry, Mr Tree, Mr George Alexander, Mr George Edwardes, Mr George Grossmith, Mr W. S. Penley, Mr Ben Greet, and Mr W. B. Redfern.

Mr Aubrey Fitzgerald, who made such a hit with his song to a looking-glass in The Girl from Kay's, and is now appearing in Veronique, is an Irishman who comes of an old Kerry family. All his character sketches on the stage are elaborated studies from real life. He confesses to a perfect mania for new styles of make-up—or slight, subtle alterations of old styles. On one occasion his enthusiasm made him dart across the street and grasp the hand of a casual acquaintance, who was talking with some ladies at the time, with the unusual greeting:—"How are you? Excuse me, but I really must use your hair at the first opportunity!"

Mr Conway Tearle, who has been cast for an important part in Mrs Tom Kelly's historical play called The Master of Kingsgift, to be produced at the Avenue on Oct. 17, is a stepson of the late Osmond Tearle, and was born and educated in America. He married about five years ago, and is still on the sunny side of thirty. His first London success was in The Best of Friends, at Drury-lane, when he played the part of a young Boer, and his professional experiences include the "creation" of Ben Hur in Australia and many tours in the English provinces.

Both Miss Topsy Sinden and her only brother, Bert, are members of Mr George Edwardes's companies. The former is at Daly's and the latter at the Gaiety. Miss Sinden is a pupil of Madame Katti Lanner, and made her début long before she was seven, afterwards becoming one of the most attractive "Gaiety girls" at the old house in the Strand. She is a skilful fencer, and is very proud of having won a prize in a running match. In her childhood Miss Sinden was known by the pretty pet-name of Deerfoot.

Sir Henry Irving has been asked by the Corporation of Bath to perform the ceremony of unveiling the memorial tablet to James Quin, at 4, Pierrepont-street, and to attend luncheon afterwards. He has fixed Friday, Feb. 17 next, when he will be playing his farewell visit to Bath, for the ceremony.

Miss Marie Auckland (Mrs Charles Herrick), who has made quite a success in her dual rôle of the twin sisters in The Triumph of Truth on tour, has never been out of a "bill" through illness in her life, and attributes her excellent health to hard work and love of outdoor sports.

Mr Charles Fry will have his eleventh season of Shakespearian matinées at the Court Theatre. The plays performed this year will be Othello, Love's Labour Lost, and King Henry VIII., and they will be given on the Saturday afternoons in November on a draped stage. Mr Fry will again have the services of Miss Olive Kennett.

Mr J. F. Elliston, before a full meeting of the Watch Committee held in the Bolton Town Hall, on Thursday, made his twenty fifth consecutive application for a dramatic licence for the Theatre Royal in that town. In making the application Mr Elliston explained that it created a record, not only for Bolton, but England. As a matter of fact, he said, no other theatrical manager in England living was in a position to say that for a quarter of a century he had controlled the dramatic destinies of one town. His first application for a dramatic licence was made on Sept. 28, twenty-five years ago. The licence, both for the Theatre Royal and the new Grand Theatre, was granted unanimously.

Last year a party of municipal pilgrims from Southwark visited Stratford-on-Avon, and an intimation has now been received that a seedling from the famous mulberry tree in the garden attached to the house in which the poet died, which has been presented to the borough of Southwark, awaits removal to its new quarters. Arrangements are being made to have it planted in front of the Southwark Town Hall, a site which does not give much promise of its developing into the proportions and stamina of the parent tree. A far better position would be Southwark-park, where the seedling would enjoy purer air, and might expect to receive more skilled attention.

Herr Sandor, the manager of the National Theatre, Buda-Pesth, has obtained Sir Henry Irving's permission to use the music written for him by Mr Edward German in his production of Henry VIII. The National Theatre enjoys a subvention from the Hungarian Government of a million kroner per annum.

"The Prayer of the Sword," at the Adelphi, is now played in four acts, and, although it commences at 8·15, is over by 11·0 o'clock. The compression adopted is all to the advantage of the play, which possesses an artistic value and a poetic beauty that are as rare as they are welcome.

Miss Camille Clifford, the original Dana Gibson girl, who has been appearing in The Prince of Pilsen, is to be one of the Gibson girls in The Catch of the Season. Miss Clifford, it is understood, sat to Mr Dana Gibson, and she and Miss Kaye will play opposite to each other as two exact types.

The forthcoming season of grand opera at Covent-garden is under the personal direction of Mr Henry Russell, the principal professor of the Rome Conservatoire of Singing, at whose suggestion some of the influential and wealthy members of Neapolitan society have formed a syndicate and raised the necessary funds to enable the orchestra, chorus, and company of their famous San Carlo Opera House to be heard in Covent-garden this winter. Mr Russell, who has arranged to be in London during the opera season, has just returned from Italy, having signed contracts with most of the Italian celebrities, including Signor Caruso. Signor Puccini has promised to be present, and perhaps will himself conduct either La Tosca, Manon Lescaut, or La Bohême.

Mr Leslie Faber, who is playing in The Garden of Lies at the St. James's Theatre, is an old Bensonian. He is of Danish descent, and has chiefly got his experience in small character parts in Mr Henry Arthur Jones's plays. He is the husband of Miss Winifred Arthur-Jones.

Miss Cecilia Loftus recently denied that there was any such thing as the evolution of a music hall "top-liner" to a legitimate star as far as she was concerned. In art there was no long step for her to take, but there was an extraordinary long one in the minds of the American public, and because she had been a music hall artist she had found it hard to get a footing on the legitimate stage. The prejudice is strong in America, but in England, Miss Loftus said, she had not met with this discrimination. Not only were the New Yorkers hard to please, but they had such false notions of things, and imagined that vaudeville actors and actresses were rude, vulgar, and untaught. Miss Loftus knew better, and remarked that it required harder and more volatile work to be a successful vaudeville artist than to be a star in a society play. But "bluff" was the keynote of success on the American stage. One must bluff on the stage and off the stage, and keep on bluffing all the time.

Miss Loftus said that Mr Zangwill was supposed to have written The Serio-Comic Governess for her and around her, but he had never seen her when he wrote the play, and she was not at all the sort of person he had written about. The dressing-room in the music hall described in his play had not existed for at least thirty years, that sort of sordid, vulgar affair being quite as unknown in England as in the United States. "We had some rather vigorous talks about it afterwards," Miss Loftus continued, "and I tried to explain to Mr Zangwill that I should have more practical knowledge of music halls than he, as I had played in any music hall of any consequence, both in England and America; but the only person that can argue successfully with the author is the manager, and I was only the star. However, Mr Frohman has wielded a blue pencil as a crushing argument, and without three thousand miles of cable being hitched to the end of it, either."

Miss Loftus considers that her best and most popular imitation is that of Miss Ada Rehan, and that the worst ones she has ever attempted were those of Mr Arthur Roberts and the late Mr Dan Daly. The latter never forgave her, and she couldn't blame him. Mr Roberts had yet to be heard from. It was much easier to give an imitation than to play in the legitimate, for the mimic hid behind someone else's personality while the actress had to stand alone. "I shall stick to the legitimate," Miss Loftus concluded, "as long as the public will let me get my bread and butter out of it. If they don't want me, I'll become a music hall artist again. I have never seen my ideal of a play yet. It is a play of actuality, in which the men and women are real people, and not preposterous stage folk. If that sort of play ever comes my way, I hope I shall have a chance to be in it."

Sir Charles Wyndham and his company, including Miss Mary Moore, will sail for New York on Oct. 19, and will open there on Nov. 14 at the New Lyceum Theatre with a revival of David Garrick. In the course of his American season Sir Charles and his company will appear in Mrs Gorringe's Necklace and The Case of Rebellious Susan. He will bid a temporary farewell to his friends at a matinée at the New Theatre, on Tuesday, Oct. 18, in the character of David Garrick, one of his best parts. He has engaged Mr Gilbert Farquhar for his American tour.

For the revival at the Court Theatre on the 29th inst. of Kit Marlowe's Faustus by the Elizabethan Stage Society, it is understood that a special version of the play will be prepared. The first edition of "The Tragical History of Doctor Faustus" was published in 1604, and there was another in 1609. There is practically no difference between these two editions; but in 1616 a third edition appeared with new scenes and many alterations. It is doubtful if any of these additions were made by Marlowe himself.

Mr Charles Frohman will on Monday present Messrs Addison Bright and Walter Maxwell's company at the Brixton Theatre in Little Mary, with Mr Arthur Holmes-Gore as Lord Carlton and Miss Christine Silver as Moira Loney. This will be the first visit of the piece to suburban London.

Mrs Oscar Beringer, who has resumed her dramatic writing again, and has been hard at work finishing two one-act plays, and also a four-act play, sails for St. Petersburg on Oct. 8 by the s.s. Irkutsk, belonging to the Brothers Lassman Line. Mrs Beringer will stay with her son, who occupies a high official position in St. Petersburg, and will also visit Moscow during her holiday.

Mr W. Scott Phipp has been engaged by Mr Wilfred Cotton to represent Miss Ada Reeve during the autumn tour of Winnie Brooke, Widow, which finishes its run at the Criterion to-night.

"An Artist's Love Story," will treat of the relations of Sir Thomas Lawrence with the Siddons sisters, Sarah and Marie, with both of whom he was in love, and whom he alternately courted and jilted. The book will contain all the long-suppressed letters that passed between the painter and Mrs Siddons and her daughter, edited by Mr Oswald Knapp.

Mr Sam S. Shubert, the American manager, has engaged Miss Fola La Follette, daughter of Governor La Follette, of Wisconsin, to play small parts in The School for Scandal, The Taming of the Shrew, and The Country Girl, with Miss Ada Rehan's répertoire company in the coming season. Miss La Follette, who is young and pretty, graduated at the University of Wisconsin. She has spent much time abroad, and it was while studying German in Munich that she made her first appearance on any stage, acting in Einer Muss Heirathen and Die Hochzeitreise. Later on, in America, she appeared in Nance Oldfield, A Scrap of Paper, and Sunset.

A military novel entitled "The Queen's Scarlet" will shortly be published by Messrs S. C. Brown, Langham, and Co. The book is from the pen of Mr Horace Wyndham. The story commences at an Army crammer's in South Kensington, and concludes in South Africa. Mr Wyndham, who is the author of two other military books, "The Queen's Service" and "Soldiers of the Queen," recently toured through the provinces with Mr E. S. Willard.

The many friends of Mr Fred C. Chapman, son of the late G. R. Chapman, for so many years musical director at the Prince's Theatre, Bristol, will learn with regret that ill-health compels him to leave England, and he sails shortly for Australia. By the kindness of Mr James Macready Chute, a special matinée has been organised for Mr Chapman's benefit at the Prince's Theatre on Tuesday, Oct. 25. Many of his friends, prominent members of the "profession," have already volunteered their services.

The Marquis of Anglesey's theatrical costumes and jewellery are to be sold by Messrs Robinson and Fisher, in conjunction with Messrs Dew and Sons, of Bangor, at Willis's Rooms, King-street, St. James's, on Tuesday, Oct. 11, and following day at one o'clock each day. The sale of these effects is by direction of the trustees of the Marquis, and have been removed from Anglesey Castle for convenience of sale.

Miss Ella Vane, we are glad to hear, has completely recovered from her dangerous attack of gastritis. During her illness many kindnesses were shown her by her brother and sister artistes in the way of gifts of flowers and books, and she desires heartily to thank them for their sympathy.

Sir Henry Irving, at the close of his farewell visit to Cardiff, which terminated on Saturday night with The Bells, was again and again recalled by the enthusiastic Welshmen and women who crowded the theatre. In response to incessant calls for a speech, Sir Henry Irving said that, in thanking them for the more than generous, inspiring, and delightful greeting they had extended to him during the week, he found it a little difficult to say the word farewell. Nothing could exceed the graciousness of their welcome, and it filled him with very keen regret that professionally, though he hoped not otherwise, he was not to have the opportunity and privilege of again appearing before them. But life had many compensations, and he had many compensations in the very generous, friendly, and affectionate welcome which the Cardiff people had given him for many years.

Mr Henry Arthur Jones, the dramatist who has often insisted on the educational value of the stage, was fifty-three on Wednesday. Born in Buckinghamshire, he was the son of a yeoman farmer, to whose prescience Lord Beaconsfield paid perennial homage. Mr Jones studied bucolic habits and dialogue in his youth, and this is perhaps the reason that his rustics are always so interesting. His early impressions of country society and village magnates are to be found in many of the characters of his earlier plays, and his caustic satire is often the outcome of personal experience. Mr Jones shares birthday honours with his own Mrs Dane, for Miss Lena Ashwell also was born on Wednesday.

Miss Marie Tempest is to have a season at the Criterion at the close of the run of The Duke of Killicrankie, which will be put back there on Monday from Wyndham's Theatre. This change of venue is due to the fact that Mr A. W. Pinero's new comedy, A Wife Without a Smile, will be produced at Wyndham's in about ten days' time, and that Captain Robert Marshall's amusing comedy continues to attract large audiences. Miss Tempest originally intended to appear at the Avenue, after her successful American tour, but she was persuaded to postpone her season until she could secure a comedy house like the Criterion. It is understood that her opening piece will be The Freedom of Suzanne, a comedy by her husband, Mr Cosmo Gordon Lennox.

Mr J. Comyns Carr has now completed the poetical drama which he has been writing for Mr Lewis Waller, and it is to be produced by Mr Waller in the course of the present season. The title of the play, which is in verse, is The Lonely Queen, and the title-part will be played by Miss Evelyn Millard.

Miss Follie Emery is to play Biddie in the new play at the Imperial on Thursday. Miss Emery is a daughter of Mr Frank Emery, formerly manager of the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Liverpool. It was there that she made her first appearance and distinguished herself, on the first night, by a very peculiar form of stage fright. She absolutely and calmly refused to speak; the entreaties of the company and her friends were of no avail. It is true that she consented to be pushed on, but not a word would she say! Since that time Miss Emery has made her name in Australia in all sorts of parts, and in England as an original and screamingly funny stage "slavey," notably in Lady Huntworth's Experiment.

Miss Annie Hughes will commence an autumn tour on Monday at the Theatre Royal, Bournemouth, in her original parts of Angela Muir, in A Country Mouse, and Saucers, in A Bit of Old Chelsea. The tour will be under the management of Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison.

Poor Mel B. Spurr, the news of whose sudden death reached London this week, used to tell a capital story of his first appearance before a Scottish audience. He was engaged to give a performance at a literary institute. A tall, severe member of the entertainment committee met him at the hall and asked, "Weel, what do they ca' you?" "Spurr," was the answer. "Spurr!" repeated the Scotchman, "Weel, I hope you'll win 'em!" In the middle of the programme, while the entertainer was taking a short rest, he looked in at the dressing-room door, with a slight expression of approval on his long, lantern-jawed face. "Weel, you're doin't!" was all he said. Mr Spurr made his usual big success, but when he met his serious friend afterwards, his only remark was an emphatic "Weel! You've dune't!"

Mr George Daventry, we are sorry to hear, is lying dangerously ill at his home in Highbury. His condition is considered most critical.

During Miss Ada Reeve's recent absence from the cast at the Criterion Theatre, owing to a severe cold, her part of Winnie Brooke, Widow, was successfully undertaken by Miss Kitty Clinton, who was presented by Miss Reeve with a handsome diamond bracelet in recognition of her—Miss Clinton's—services as understudy.

Mr Charles Cruikshanks, the secretary of the Actors' Association, attended at the Scarborough police-court on Tuesday, on the adjourned hearing of the case against W. G. Monkhouse, to watch the proceedings in the interests of the association. Monkhouse, who was charged on remand with having obtained from Robt. Harcourt, of Scarborough, £15, by advertising for an amateur to learn acting, was committed to take his trial at the Quarter Sessions, bail being allowed in £50 and one surety of £50, or two sureties of £25 each.

Mr John H. Clarke, during his lesseeship of the old Floral Hall, and later as general manager of the Theatre Royal, Leicester, has been well known both locally and throughout the profession as an enthusiastic collector of modern works of art. These pictures have been acquired by him with much care and judgment. Finding his time and energies are now so fully absorbed with his professional duties, he has decided to disperse the whole of his beautiful collection at a sale by auction on Monday, Oct. 10 Messrs Langham and Holland, two of the oldest and most respected auctioneers in Leicestershire, will conduct the sale at their mart, 30, Belvoir-street, Leicester. Doubtless many readers of The Era, and the large number of proprietors of companies to whom the works of art have been a source of much pleasure, and who have admired Mr Clarke's collection from time to time, will strive to make an effort to attend or send their representatives to this important sale, as we understand the whole of the collection will be sold without reserve.

Mr Tim Sullivan is mourning the death of his thirteen-year-old son Tim, who had travelled with his father in the provinces since 1900. The deceased lad took the part of the paper boy in The White Heather, and was also understudy for Donald, in Hearts are Trumps, in which he was call-boy in the music-hall scene. In Sporting Life he was a stable hand, and in The School Girl a newsboy. Poor little Tim was born on Aug. 17, 1891, and died on Sept. 20. He was buried on Monday. He was much liked. His father has received much kindness and sympathy from the ladies and gentlemen of the Prince of Wales's company.

Mr J. B. Mulholland, to avoid any unnecessary clashing with the Christmas attractions at neighbouring theatres, has announced the pantomime subject to be treated at the King's Theatre. "Red Riding Hood" is the story that will give excuse for pretty scenery, bright music, and tasteful dresses; and no more charming representative of the heroine of nursery lore could have been chosen than Miss Empsie Bowman, one of the clever Sisters Bowman, who is no stranger to the fascinating part.

Mr Lewis Waller will produce on Thursday, at the Imperial Theatre, the new romantic drama, His Majesty's Servant, with a cast including, besides himself, Mr H. V. Esmond, Mr Henry J. Carvill, Mr Norman M'Kinnel, Mr Owen Roughwood, Mr Patrick Digan, Mr Frank Dyall, Mr John Beauchamp, Mr M. Elphinstone, Mr S. B. Brereton, Mr A. E. George, Mr Arthur Lewis, Mr Eric Scott, Mr John Byron, Mr Frank Woolfe, Mr E. Saville, Mr F. H. Dale, Miss Mary Rorke, Miss Mary Lewis, Miss Pollie Emery, Miss Darragh, and Miss Evelyn Millard. The play will be produced under the direction of Mr Henry Hamilton.

Mr Frank Curzon has commissioned Mr George R. Sims and Mr Cecil Raleigh to collaborate on the libretto of a musical comedy, the music of which is to be written by Mr Howard Talbot.

Mr Beerbohm Tree will give each member of the audience at the fiftieth performance of The Tempest at His Majesty's Theatre, as a memento, a copy of Shakespeare's play, with notes and many illustrations. No other copies of the souvenir will be procurable at any price.

At the Avenue Theatre, on Monday, Oct. 17, will be produced an historical play, in four acts, called The Master of Kingsgift, written by Mrs Tom Kelly. The action of her piece takes place in the time of Charles II. Mr Frank Cooper, Mr Conway Tearle, Mr Maurice Mancini, Mr Wilfred Foster, Miss Ruth Mackay, Miss Ruby Chester, Miss Helen Palgrave, and Miss Ida Morris will be in the cast.

At the Kingston Theatre, on Monday, a "frivolous" farce, in three acts, called The Value of Being Extinct, by Charles James and Charles Goodhart, will be produced, preceded by a one-act play by the same authors, entitled A Soldier of the Czar. Mr Graham Browne will produce both pieces; and Mr Clarence Blakiston, Mr H. Tripp Edgar, Mr Charles Goodhart, Miss Elsie Chester, and Miss Madge Mackintosh will be in one or other of the casts.

It is a curious circumstance that all the actors and actresses who appeared in the Demi-monde, written by the younger Dumas, on the first night, at the Comédie-Française, in March, 1855, are not only dead, but that most of them had melancholy endings. Francis Berton, one of the dead players, whose son is a prolific playwright, passed away a wreck in Dr. Blanche's private asylum. Dupuis, who was the ideal Olivier De Jalin, died of paralysis of the brain. Villars, another actor in the play, drowned himself in the Seine owing to a disappointment in love. Landrol, also an actor in the Demi-monde, died very poor a few years ago. As to the actresses, Rose Cheri, who was the first Baronne D'Ange in the play, fell a victim to a contagious illness caught at the bedside of a sick child. Two actresses, Madame Figeac, who was Valentine De Santis, and Melanie, who was the Vicomtesse De Vernières, died in ordinary circumstances. Not so Mdlle. Laurentine, who acted as Marcelle. She had the most awful ending of all, as she fell into a trance and was actually buried alive.

The Playgoers' Club gave a reception on Sunday last at the Hotel Cecil to Mr Douglas Story, the well-known war correspondent, who is the first correspondent to arrive home from the theatre of war, where he had been with the Russian army under General Kuropatkin. The lecturer confined his remarks chiefly to "gushing" descriptions of the virtues and amiability of the Russian officers, many of whom were his personal friends. He said nothing that was good of the poor Japanese.

Mr George Davey has engaged Madame Pauline Rivers and number of dancers from the Tower, Blackpool, for the ballet in the pantomime of The Babes in the Wood, to be produced at the Grand Theatre, Islington, at Christmas. The parts of the Babes will be played by a brother and sister of the name of Whyte. Mr Hal Collier will appear as Friar Tuck, Miss Julia Kent as Robin Hood, Miss Tots Davis as Marion, and Miss Ivy Dawn wille be the second principal girl.

Some time ago a circular was sent about Boston, America, signed by Henry L. Higginson, the benefactor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Lorin F. Deland, the husband of Margaret Deland, a novelist, and others. They wished to obtain co-operation in the building and establishment of an endowed theatre. The Castle-square Theatre, Boston, has now been leased by a syndicate, headed by Mr Deland; and a stock company, including Mr Howell Hansell and Miss Lillian Kemble, will be engaged. Every playwright in Boston will send in his MSS. to the Castle-square Theatre as soon as he learns that this step in the direction of an endowed theatre has been taken.

Mr Francis Laidler, who was well known in Bradford business circles before he became lessee and manager of the local Prince's Theatre, was waited upon last Monday by a numerous and influential deputation, representative of all the Conservative interests in the West Ward, to invite him to contest the ward at the next election. Mr Laidler accepted the position, and placed himself unreservedly in the hands of the deputation.

Mr Alfred C. Toone, at the conclusion of a five years' engagement with Mr J. B. Mulholland at the Metropole, Camberwell, and King's Theatre, Hammersmith, has been appointed Musical Director at Royal Victoria Pavilion, Ramsgate, but will continue his London engagements.

Messrs Frank Rendle and Neil Forsyth, who, on Friday night, opened the ninth season of their fancy dress balls at Covent-garden, will celebrate their 100th ball in a few weeks' time. An interesting circumstance in connection with the season which has now commenced is that it has been found possible so to arrange matters as not to interfere with the performances of the San Carlo company from Naples. While, however, those who attend the balls will find no curtailment of the conveniences and privileges hitherto enjoyed, the audiences to be attracted by the Italian artists will be interested to learn that on alternate Fridays the Opera House will be given up to dancing. Of course, on the night of the balls there will be no operatic performances, but immediately the dancers have left the house a small army of workmen, in the early hours of Saturday morning, will be put to the task of removing the dancing floor, replacing the stalls, and re-arranging everything in readiness for the night's performances.

Dan Godfrey's grand orchestra, as hitherto, has been engaged to furnish the music for the fancy dress balls. The members of the orchestra are seated in a handsomely-arranged Italian ballroom, brilliantly illuminated with electric light candelabra, a very pretty effect being gained. The first prize on Friday night was a magnificent diamond and opal crescent, and a score of other valuable awards were offered, including a handsomely chased fruit and flower stand, an oak canteen case fitted with cutlery and plate, a silver toilet set in case, an oak escritoire, and an afternoon tea-service in case.

The magnificent full-toned orchestrian, which may fitly be described as a marvel in melody, and which proved so popular last season, will once again be heard in the grand foyer. Its répertoire is varied and inclusive, ranging from The Country Girl to Tristan and Isolde, from Chopin to the latest cake-walk, and including within those extremes comic operas, dances, and song-melodies, presented with the power and completeness of a human orchestra of seventy players.

"THE GOLDEN LIGHT."

An Original Play, in Four Acts, by George Daring, Produced at the Savoy Theatre on Thursday, Sept. 29.

Henry Dane	Mr W. L. ABINGDON
Sir Charles Sargeant	Mr GILBERT HARE
George Dane	Mr LORING FERNIE
Gerald Ansel	Mr LESLIE STILES
Bobby Metcalfe	Mr RALPH NAIRN
Comte De Sorlande	Mr EDWARD OVERRINGTON
Professor Cleeves	Mr SYDNEY HAMILTON
Dr. Williams	Mr ARTHUR APPLIN
Mr Matthew Vascan	Mr J. EDWIN
Lord Dumpling	Mr HAROLD BROOKE
Coles	Mr R. S. BOLEYN
Rose Sneed	Miss MABEL BEARDSLEY
Miss Le Gay	Mrs LANE JOYNT
Lady Crayton	Miss MABILIA DANIELL
Mrs Sneed	Miss SARA DE GROOT
Francine	Miss AMY RAVENSCROFT
Lizzie	Miss MAUD YATES
Clare	Mrs BROWN-POTTER

The audience at the first performance of The Golden Light at the Savoy Theatre on Thursday behaved with admirable taste and discretion. It is not, indeed, the absolutely hopeless play which creates the most irritation and evokes the most energetic "booing" from the pit and gallery. The English dislike to "hit a man when he's down" comes in when there is no question as to the fate of a drama; and why, argue the first-nighters mercifully, throw tiles upon the head of a drowning person? So evidently felt those who filled the Savoy Theatre on Thursday; and, when the curtain fell, they simply "folded their tents like the Arabs and silently stole away." It will be well for us to imitate them in the mildness and brevity of their verdict. The Golden Light is an immature and amateurish work, and at times is so childish in treatment as to be quite comical. The audience absolutely refused to take it seriously. The heroine, Clare, is the wife of one Henry Dane, an author and a bookworm, who spends his time in literary labour in a gloomy apartment in his house in Pont-street. His wife, a lovely creature, full of the "joy of living," tries in vain to woo him from his work. Then her cousin, George Dane, arrives from abroad, and as he is active, adventurous, and young, he and Mrs Dane discover that they share affinities. Thenceforward events follow their natural course. Mrs Dane and George cherish the fond allusion that their feelings are platonic, up to the point at which he embraces her in a garden at Henley and implores her to run away with him. The husband enters "at back;" there is a harrowing scene of mutual reproaches; and finally Henry Dane, overpowered by his wife's eloquence, falls down in a fainting fit.

In the last act, which takes place at a villa at Ajaccio, he is seen in an invalid condition, and George, after a while, reappears. Nothing further, however, happens, and the piece ends, in the Ibsenian manner, on a "note of interrogation."

It would be mere insincerity to congratulate any of the artists who took part in the performance of The Golden Light at the Savoy on Thursday. Most of them simply had no chances of distinction or success. Mrs Brown-Potter, who has greatly improved, and whose delivery is commendably strong, was quite "handicapped" by the silliness of many of the speeches allotted to Clare, and by the general weakness of the part. The only opportunity offered to her was at the end of the third act; and here she rose to really dramatic expressiveness in her delivery of the reproaches addressed by the neglected wife to her hard and cold husband. Mr W. L. Abingdon, an admirable actor who has given repeated proofs of his talent, could do nothing with the rôle of Henry Dane, but persevered pluckily to the end. That Mr Loring Fernie's task of depicting George Dane was very trying will be realised when we mention that, on the return of the lover in the last act, the pit and gallery gave him an ironical cheer—an incident enough to unnerve any actor. The only male artist who can be congratulated was Mr Gilbert Hare, whose dialogue as Sir Charles Sargeant was in many cases neat and crisp. Mr Hare acted with fine finish and polish, and considerable effect, though even he was almost overcome by the deadly influence of Sir Charles's superfluous reminiscences in the third act. Mr Leslie Stiles was efficient as Gerald Ansel, and Mr Ralph Nairn did praiseworthy work as Bobby Metcalfe. Mr Sydney Hamilton being painstaking and careful as Professor Cleeves. Miss Mabel Beardsley played a "frisky" society girl with a "coming-on disposition" with considerable vivacity and smartness. Mrs Lane-Joynt was bright, dashing, and spirited as Miss Le Gay, a cigarette-smoking, up-to-date young woman. Miss Mabilia Daniell looked pretty in a coronet as Lady Crayton; and Miss Sara De Groot was quite satisfactory as Mrs Sneed. The minor rôles were sufficiently well sustained. The most important part of the production is the dresses. Each of the gowns worn by the heroine is supposed to express an emotion felt by her. In the first act Mrs Potter appears in a dress which has long flowing and clinging draperies of chiffon, and silk nets in a tint of green that has a tone of dissatisfaction. Introduced with these greens is "the pure real blue that expresses the very human woman," and a touch of mauve gives a suggestion of passion. This gown is entitled "The Awakening of Hope." In the second act Mrs Potter's dress, which is an illustration of the poem which she recites, expresses the fate of a fallen star, which, on alighting on earth, is transformed into the modest flower. White chiffons compose this dress, blended with touches of faint pink and gorgeous tints of yellow; and delicate hints of gold and silver express the glory of the fallen star. This costume is entitled "The Story of the Daisy." The heroine's awakening to the reality of human passion is denoted in shades of imperial purple, toning to blue, with magenta and red, in a gown entitled "In Passion's Thrall." In the fourth act, the resignation of the heroine to her fate is indicated by tones of grey. Sad undertones of pale mauve are merged into other flowing draperies showing that, although sadness is uppermost, hope and happiness of human love are still present, though in small quantities. Mrs Potter wears over this dress a long black garment of chiffon that shuts out the mauve glow of hope and love revealed in the flowing folds of the grey dress. This gown is entitled "Consolable Sorrow." A comic song, composed by E. Bucalossi, was well rendered by Mr Ralph Nairn in the second act; and Mr R. M. Crompton had cleverly arranged a little dance, which was done by a bevy of young ladies in pink costumes and black silk stockings. Mrs Brown-Potter delivered an interpolated poem about daisies with her usual fervour and intensity, and it was applauded on both sides of the footlights. We fear, however, that these accessory items will prove powerless to save The Golden Light from being soon extinguished. Even if the "light" does not go out, we do not think there is any "gold" in it.

"THE BRAND OF CAIN" company is drawing good houses this week at Edmonton. This drama, by Violet Sims, has made a decided hit. Miss Sims sustains the part of the heroine with great skill and effect.

MR GEORGE MUSGROVE'S Belle of New York company has ousted drama next week from its great stronghold, the Pavilion Theatre, Mile-end, where a "farewell visit" is to be paid with Miss Beatrice Lamotte in the title-part and Frank Lawton, of whistling fame, in his original rôle. Mr Hugh Fleming again controls advance affairs, and the general management is in the expert hands of Mr Charles Thorburn.

A NEW theatre, to be called the Theatre Royal, is to be built in Packe-street, Loughborough, by Messrs Payne Seddon and George Robertson, who have rented the Town Hall for several months past. The proprietors anticipate opening the house in the first week in January.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, SEPT. 29.—The Palais-Royal management have themselves to blame if their playhouse has become an ill-starred one, for we really wonder how men with the least knowledge of the stage could have accepted and produced a work like Madame X . . . We all know that according to an unwritten law a vaudeville requires neither a head nor a tail; but in the above piece even the body is missing. And this is all the more surprising as the authors, MM. Marot and Depré, are experienced men who have done some capital work. The flimsy plot is as follows:—Jack Sheppard, a somewhat shady individual, has been waiting in a private room of a restaurant for Madame Pastourel, a young married woman, when suddenly we hear the cry, "Open in the name of the law!" It is Madame Pastourel's husband, accompanied by the Police Commissary, who wants to catch his wife with her lover. Then a door opens and we see a lady rush through and escape. Who is that lady? Is it Madame Pastourel? Nobody knows. It is Madame X . . . But Jack has been taken to the police commissariate, whence he escapes by knocking down Robinet, the official in charge, as he is anxious to get home before his wife, whom he dreads, hears of his escapade. Unfortunately Robinet has discovered the man's address, and informs him that he will be charged with having committed adultery. Nor will Robinet listen to Jack's protestations of innocence. If Jack—as he says—is innocent he need only disclose the name of Madame X . . . And in the end the mystery is solved. In the first act we see an Englishman divest himself of his coat and waistcoat; Mdlle. Janney take off her corset; and we also catch sight of M. Guyon taking a bath. But even these manifold attractions failed to make the piece a success. The good all-round company fought pluckily against overwhelming odds.

THE Théâtre Déjazet has given us a revival of MM. Paul Gavault and Victor De Cottens' extraordinary farce Cheri. The three acts are intensely funny, and we cannot help admiring the inventive powers of the authors, who show us Laubergeois, a scientist, in love with his housemaid Caroline, who, thanks to him, becomes Madame De Saint-Galmier, a famous cocotte. The scientist's wife, having a liaison with a certain Leon, shuts her eyes to her husband's pranks. But when Madame De Saint-Galmier is tactless enough to covet also Leon things become serious. The revival met with an excellent reception.

THE Théâtre Déjazet intends producing a long string of novelties this season. The first will be Tire au Flanc, in three acts, by a young author, M. Mouezy-Eon; after which 113, Rue des Cerisiers, comedy, in three acts, by MM. Paul Autier and Saverne; Pour Marier Gisèle, by M. Paul Gavault; Petite Garnison, by M. Guillaume Livet; and La Déléguée, by MM. Multzer and Darqué.

THE worm has turned. Our supers have held a meeting, wherein it was decided to claim from the managements of the various theatres:—(1) The suppression of all intermediaries between themselves and the management. (2) The same remuneration for rehearsals as for performances. (3) Minimum salary of one franc for the men and two francs for the women.

"LA PETITE SŒUR GRISE" is the title of a heroic-comic piece in five acts, in verse, to which M. Lucien Mayrargue is now putting the finishing touches. The plot is partly based on Les Brigands, a work published by M. Frantz Funck-Brentano last year. One of the principal personages in the play will be Cartouche, the brigand, famous for his crimes and his numerous love affairs.

THE Bouffes-Parisiens will inaugurate the season with L'Embarquement pour Cythère, wherein Mdlle. Léonie Yahne will interpret the chief rôle.

THE management of the Cluny Theatre have received a new vaudeville, in three acts and four tableaux, by MM. Nancey and Armont. This work, Le Truc du Brésilien, will be immediately put into rehearsal.

IN addition to the above we are promised the following novelties:—

AT the Gymnase, Le Goût du Vice, by M. Henri Lavedan, with a rôle specially written for Madame Simone Le Bargy.

AT the Nouveautes, a new farce by MM. Paul Bilhaud and Maurice Hennequin, called La Gueule du Loup.

AT the Palais-Royal, a farcical comedy by M. Berr De Turique.

AT the Théâtre de L'Œuvre, Le Jaloux, with Madame Suzanne Devoyod and M. Henry Burguet in the chief parts.

THE Alpinée have modified their programme. After Le Prince Consort, which has run for three hundred nights, the management intended to bring out La Petite Milliardaire. But, owing to some misunderstanding between author and manager, this work has been put back for the present, and its place will be taken by Chiffon, comedy in three acts, by MM. Peter and Danceny, to be produced towards the middle of October.

MM. JACQUES DHUR, CLAUDE ROLAND, AND DELPHI FABRICE have just finished a melodrama called Le Forçat Innocent.

M. SAMUEL, of the Variétés, intends to make a tremendous hit with a revival of Jacques Offenbach's famous operette, Barbe-Bleue. The work will be gorgeously mounted, with a wonderful display of pretty girls. The strong cast comprises MM. Chapuis, Prince, André Simon, Baron, Petit, and Mesdames Pariol Baugé, Eve Lavaillère, Leonie Laporte, and Melsa.

AT the Opéra a little storm has been brewing among the members of the ballet, in connection with the performances of Faust. Much to the ladies' surprise the management is continually making changes in the great Walpurgis Night ballet. Without any apparent reason an important rôle is taken away from one artist and given to a younger one. Thereupon, the dressing-rooms became a hotbed of conspiracy; threats fell from rosy lips; and it is even rumoured that the word "strike" was mentioned. But the excitement soon gave way to satisfaction when it was explained to the ladies that the object of these changes is to give also the younger members of the ballet an opportunity of distinguishing themselves.

M. ALBERT CARRE'S venture to give popular performances in other parts of the capital will prove a boon to the inhabitants of these districts. On Oct. 8 Mireille will be produced in the Montparnasse Theatre by the Opéra-Comique company. A week later this company will perform in the Grenelle quarter, whence they will migrate to the Gobelins. The prices are—stalls, two shillings; gallery, fivepence!

PREPARATIONS are being made at Oberammergau, Bavaria—where the famous Passion Play is produced every ten years—for a religious drama to be performed next summer called The School of the Cross. The production is an adaptation of a play of the same name which used to be given at Oberammergau 150 years ago, with the object of training the younger players in their work in the Passion Play. No fewer than 700 persons, men, women, and children, will take part in The School of the Cross. It is proposed to give eighteen representations.

A BLIND ACTOR.

APPEAL FOR MR. HENRY CRISP.

"If your eyes were blocked with pitch and you were buried twenty feet under the ground you would see just as much as I do."

These pathetic words came from Mr Henry Crisp, a well-known and experienced actor who has had the misfortune to become totally blind. Two years ago last January he suffered from a little inflammation of the left eye; but previous to that, although always somewhat short-sighted, his vision had troubled him but little. Mr Crisp went to see a doctor in Longton, who was a director of the theatre where he was playing. The doctor in question found that it was a malady he could not deal with, but he gave the actor a letter of introduction to Dr. Foker at the North Staffordshire Infirmary. The latter gentleman advised Mr Crisp to go into the hospital at once, and he did so. After having been an in-patient for six weeks, Mr Crisp was informed that the case of his left eye was absolutely hopeless, that he would never be able to see with it again, and that in all probability, if it were not removed, the sight of the other eye would be affected. He consented to have his left eye taken out, and a glass eye put in its place. For a time his powers of seeing seemed to improve, although he only had one eye left. He resumed his part of Stephen Spettigue, in Charley's Aunt; but one morning in August of last year, while appearing at Eastbourne, there came an unpleasant revelation. Rising about half-past eight or nine o'clock, when the sun should have lit up the room with the brilliance of its rays, and probably did, he saw no light—it was all mist. He remarked to his wife that he could not see across the room. In his anxiety he called upon Dr. Rook, of Eastbourne, who immediately recommended the treatment of the well-known eye-specialist, Dr. Brookbank James, who paid a weekly visit to the town. Dr. Brookbank James proved exceedingly kind, for he declined to take a fee, and attended to Mr Crisp on several occasions. This went on until the beginning of November, when the specialist obtained a bed for Mr Crisp in the Westminster Hospital. At the time of his entering that institution Mr Crisp had just a perception of light in the right eye. After five weeks he came out, though but in a small degree improved, and some weeks later visited the South London Ophthalmic Hospital, where he remained only a week. Mr Crisp has been totally blind since January of this year, and, as the funds at his command are exceedingly limited, we invite the co-operation of the profession in an appeal on his behalf.

Mr Crisp has had a most interesting stage career. He entered the ranks of the profession just after he had attained his majority, thirty-one years ago. After some useful experience gained in stock seasons at Norwich, Cambridge, Greenock, and elsewhere, as well as in a few trifling engagements, he joined Miss Jenny Lee's company, in Jo, to play the part of Mr Chadband, a character Mr Crisp sustained for 1 500 performances. After appearing with Mrs Scott-Siddons for some time he became a member of Mrs Langtry's company, playing with that lady for a couple of years in America, and for a similar period at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, the pieces produced being Pygmalion and Galatea, The Unequal Match, The Hunchback, She Stoops to Conquer, &c., in which Mr Crisp played comedy and old men's parts. Later on he was for a couple of years with the Vaughan and Conway comedy company, who opened at the Haymarket Theatre, and toured through the provinces. When Mr William Farren severed his connection with this enterprise, Mr Crisp took his place. He then travelled with Mr Beerbohm Tree's company in Captain Swift, enacting the rôle of Seabrooke. This was followed by three tours with Mr E. S. Willard's Middleman, in which Mr Crisp appeared as Chandler, and in addition, attended to the stage-management. He was next seen with the Charles Dickens company, personating such characters as Micawber, John Browdie (Nicholas Nickleby), and Sampson Brass. On Feb. 29, 1892, he opened at Bury St. Edmunds with Mr Penley in Charley's Aunt, and since that date he has been with Mr Penley nearly all the time, taking the part of Stephen Spettigue.

Of course, having entirely lost the use of his eyes, Mr Crisp has not been able to do any work for practically a year. We feel that few words of ours are needed to move the great heart of the profession for a brother who has been drawn, through no fault of his own, into the path of affliction. It is not that he has fallen on evil days because of something he could have prevented. His career as an actor tells a different tale from that. Nor is it that he has lost his ability as an actor; nor is it a question of age, for he is scarcely an old man yet. Neither can there be levelled against him a charge of disinclination to continue his stage labours, for Henry Crisp would work if he could. In the destruction of his eyesight he has lost something more than merely the means of livelihood. All that is beautiful in nature to the clear-sighted will be for ever a blank to him. Think of this—his Day has been turned into Night. And his Night is blacker than the night we see, for it is as if a dark curtain had been drawn across the inverted stage of the sky and had blotted out from his vision the wonderful mystery play provided by the twinkling of the stars and the broad glare of the moon in a scene set high in the firmament. It is to make that Night sweeter to Henry Crisp that we venture to ask for the support of members of the theatrical profession.

All donations sent to Mr Edward Ledger for the poor blind actor will be gratefully acknowledged in these columns.

MR HARRY NASH, for many years associated with the Theatre Royal, Windsor, as a member of the firm of Nash and company has been appointed acting-manager of that theatre, taking up his duties this week.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

This romantic drama was produced here by Mr J. H. Clyndes' company, with new and elaborate scenery, costumes, and other accessories. The story is one of adventures, intrigues, and other stirring incidents at the period of the Armada, and connected with the dissolute Court of the King of Spain; and the play abounds in strong situations, very dramatically worked out. Estevan Alvarez, going to the wars, leaves behind him a beautiful young wife, Inez, and child. Azan Ben Musid, being madly in love with Inez, intrigues with Nicholas Vargas, an old miser, uncle to Estevan, to get access to her, with the hope of luring her away. Being repulsed by Inez, he accepts the offer of Nicholas ("Old Nick") to defame her to her husband. On the latter's return the miser tells him his wife is unfaithful, and, by previous arrangement with Azan, brings the husband upon the scene when Azan is again forcing his attentions upon Inez. Despite her denials and appeals, Estevan believes the story, and discards her. The child is torn from her and given to a gipsy to be drowned or otherwise destroyed. Flashes of lightning blind the miser and disable his accomplice, Azan Ben Musid. Inez is supposed to be dead, and Estevan, the husband, is suspected of having killed her.

In the second act the King is seen incognito, with companions at a village hostelry, and the interior of a convent is also disclosed in which there dwells a strange lady—Angela, the Unknown, who has been found wandering by the nuns, and who is half bereft of reason. Manuel Mondega, a young soldier of noble birth, introduces to the Superioress, his aunt, a gipsy dancing girl, Cora Casilda, to whom he is betrothed, and who seeks refuge in the convent from the licentious advances of the King. For her Count Ulric Uzeda, a hunchback, "the King's jackal," is searching.

In act three the King commands, under threats of severe consequences, his Prime Minister, Pedro De Castro, to compel the nuns to deliver Cora up to his messengers. Pedro De Castro is a friend of Manuel Mondega, and strives to turn the King from his desire, but in vain, and after a fearful inward struggle between honour and humanity and duty to his sovereign the Prime Minister issues the order, hoping still to save the girl. Then the hunchback, who is none other than the villain Azan Ben Musid, interviews Pedro De Castro, who is really Estevan Alvarez, accuses him of the murder of Inez, threatens to denounce him to the King, and tells him that Cora, the gipsy dancing girl, for whom he has despatched emissaries, is his own daughter. Meanwhile the King, with courtiers and officers, himself goes to the convent, and, on Cora refusing to yield to him, has her forcibly abducted. Pursuing her to the room where she is imprisoned, the King is about to resort to violence, when Pedro De Castro bursts in and rescues his daughter. In the fight that ensues the hunchback is killed in "retributive justice." In the concluding scenes Inez, whose reason gradually returns, and Cora discover their relationship to each other; Estevan and Inez, each of whom has mourned the other as dead, are reunited with their daughter; the King behaves magnanimously to his Prime Minister and everyone else, and all ends happily at last.

Mr J. H. Clyndes is a fine, vigorous actor, and in the double part of Estevan Alvarez and Pedro De Castro displays great emotional power and highly developed histrionic ability. Mr John Macfarlane presents a dignified, stately King, more concerned, however, with unworthy pleasure than the affairs of his kingdom. Mr Edward Aldworth makes a capital, grasping, and unscrupulous old miser, and Mr Charles Jordan plays the character of Manuel Mondega, soldier and lover, with grace and earnestness. Mr Harold B. Lewis, both as Azan Ben Musid, the Moor, and Count Ulric Uzeda, the villainous hunchback, plays ably and effectively. The Friar Dominic (the King's Confessor) of Mr Richard Webb is an excellent conception of a stern, ascetic, ghastly priest. Mr Arthur Lowry is satisfactory as Don Juan D'Almeida, the King's faithful and servile companion; and Mr Jack Bigwood as Michael Sancha, an innkeeper, and Miss Aimee Grattan as his wife Paquita, provide excellent light humour and merriment. With such trying vicissitudes as the character of Inez Alvarez involves from the beginning to the end, Miss Bessie Elma has a severe task, but alike as Inez and as Angela, the Unknown, she exhibits capacity of the highest order, rendering the deeply emotional passages and incidents of her impersonation with delicate finish and convincing naturalness. Miss Evelyn Ommundsen assumes the rôle of Cora, the gipsy dancing girl, with pleasing skill and refinement, and with marked success, especially in her interview with the King and her restoration to Estevan and Inez. Miss Lizzie Lennon makes an admirable Mother Maria Teresa. All the other parts are satisfactorily enacted, and the drama has been exceedingly well received, and pronounced a distinct success.

"THE TEMPESTS" OF THE PAST.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Your correspondent in last week's Era, writing of Charles Kean's revival of The Tempest, in 1857, has fallen into a curious error by describing Mrs Charles Kean as the representative of Miranda. My remembrance is distinct of Carlotta Leclercq as having played the part, and played it charmingly. Kate Terry's Ariel was delightful, and could scarcely be inferior to Priscilla Horton in the part. Mrs Kean, an admirable actress of matronly parts at that date, could not have ventured on Miranda.

I well remember the effect of the closing scene of the play, one of Kean's most successful revivals.

Yours faithfully, E. Y. LOWNE.
London, Sept. 26.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Thank you for the excellent notice you gave to my letter of last week. I fear I did not write so plainly as I should, or might, have done. The lady playing Ariel in Charles Kean's production of 1857 was Miss Kate Terry, sister of Ellen Terry. She was very young at the time. It was one of her earliest successes at the Princess's Theatre.

Yours faithfully, J. FROST.

M. COQUELIN the elder has been forbidden by his doctor to appear on the stage for the next few weeks, in consequence of the operation he underwent a fortnight ago. The actor has not therefore been seen in Brussels this week, as expected.

REOPENING OF LEAMINGTON THEATRE

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

After having been closed for some months, during which the interior aspect has been entirely transformed, the Theatre Royal, Leamington, the new lessees of which are Mr Edward Compton and Mr Milton Bode, reopened on Monday night. There was a very large and appreciative audience, and many favourable comments were passed on the improved conditions under which the local public can now enjoy their dramatic food. The whole of the theatre has been redecorated in excellent taste, a considerable portion reseated, and a sadly needed heating apparatus has been installed. Mr Reginald Taylor is now resident-manager. The play this week is Clyde Fitch's version of Sapho, rendered in a thoroughly artistic manner by Miss Olga Nethersole's company.

Before the first act the curtain rose on Mr EDWARD COMPTON, who was greeted with applause. He made an interesting statement as to the future of the theatre in the following words:—Ladies and Gentlemen,—In the words of the immortal bard, in whose delightful country we are, salutation and greeting to you all. On Mr Milton Bode's behalf and on my own, I bid you welcome to your renovated theatre. It is only a short month or so since we entered into possession of this pretty building, and I hope and think you will allow that we have utilised that time to the best advantage in putting our house in order. The auditorium has been thoroughly overhauled and freshened up, an extra exit from the stalls has been provided, new tip-up seats have been introduced into that part of the house and elsewhere, the lighting arrangements both before and behind the curtain have been reformed altogether, extensive redecorations have been carried out here, there, and everywhere, and last, but not least, a complete heating apparatus is being rapidly installed, so as to make the theatre in the winter, as well as the rest of the year, a comfortable and cosy corner. With practically no companies booked when we took the theatre over, it has been no easy task to arrange a good autumn season, but I make bold to think that under the circumstances both management and public have every reason to congratulate themselves on what has been accomplished. To-night and all this week we have, as you know, the version of Daudet's Sapho, which will be followed in quick succession by such potent attractions as Sweet and Twenty, Miss Fortescue, Florodora, The Chinese Honeymoon, One of the Best, The Tyranny of Tears, The Duke of Killicrankie, Little Mary, and other good things. This will bring us up to Christmas, when the Compton Comedy company will pay you a visit headed by—I shall forget my own name next. The New Year will bring you Mr Milton Bode's pantomime of Dick Whittington, and possibly The Babes in the Wood as well; while three dramatic treats are then and there in store for you in Mr Martin Harvey, The Darling of the Gods, and Mr and Mrs Kendal. Many and varied bookings besides those I have mentioned may be looked forward to, but as they are at present in negotiation only, I do not feel justified in giving their names, merely contenting myself with assuring you of their great excellence. And now, ladies and gentlemen, our future here lies entirely in your hands. You may be quite certain that we shall secure for you the best produce the theatrical market affords, but it you don't walk into our warehouse, or rather playhouse, and invest in our "good goods" liberally and frequently, why our wares are after all but "perishable articles"—here to-day, and gone next week, and it will be impossible for us to keep our dramatic shop open and stocked with the latest delicacies of the season unless you enable us, by your steady patronage and support, to balance our ledger at the end of the year on the right side. Don't be afraid to be seen in your own theatre, but support it all you can. Make it what it should be, one of the institutions of Leamington; and if you are ever required to defend it, do so in the words of the gentle blind dramatist O'Keefe, who wrote:—"I understand the origin of plays was religious mysteries; that, freed from the superstitions of early and the grossness of later days, the stage is become the vehicle of rational amusement and instruction. This being so, to hear a good play is taking the wholesome draught of precept from a golden cup embossed with gems." Of course we cannot give you new musical comedies, or the latest London successes, or the high-class combinations every week of the year. There are not enough of them to go round. And even if we could and did it would be asking too much of one particular section of the theatrical community. We shall, therefore, be compelled to leaven our dramatic pudding with the occasional serving-up of drama, and, maybe, hot and strong melodrama. The latter, I fear, many of us have not much sympathy with, but if certain of the public demand it, I suppose we managers, who cater for all classes, must swallow our artistic conscience and give it to them. There are, however, dramas and dramas, and I don't think even the dress circle and stalls would fail to appreciate and take away with them pleasant memories were they to come and witness such human plays as The Silver King and The Two Orphans, and many others possessing similar sterling qualities which I could mention. Please do not think I am impertinent enough to be attempting to direct the taste of theatre-goers either here or anywhere else. It is not my desire, and certainly not my business to do so. I only want to say that we shall always endeavour to bring you the best things on the road, and to signify, if I may be allowed to do so, that the more worthily you support us in this endeavour, the more worthily we shall be enabled to cater for your best interests, and now, ladies and gentlemen, I will keep you no longer. Our motto in the future will be "Deeds not words." But while I ask you to remember that "our mere intent is all for your delight," I must also beseech you not to forget that

The drama's laws the drama's patrons give,
And those who live to please, must please to live.

I thank you for your presence to-night, for the patience with which you have listened to my well-intended remarks, and beg to wish "a kind good-night to all."

Sapho then commenced. Miss Cecil Cromwell gave a most vivid portrayal of the title-part, and Mr Arthur Royston as Jean gave a very fine rendering of a difficult role. The minor characters were all in equally good hands. At the end of the powerful second act Miss Cromwell received a perfect ovation, being called before the curtain again and again. She was presented with a handsome bouquet by Herr Meisenheimer, the conductor of the orchestra.

A telegram from the Countess of Warwick, regretting her inability to be present, and promising to attend the theatre during November, was received, and Miss Fortescue wired wishing success.

SATURDAY, the last day of the Cardiff Festival, brought forward another novelty, The Victory of St. Garmon, a cantata for baritone solo and orchestra, words by Mr H. Elvet Lewis and music by Mr Harry Evans. The composer is a young Welsh musician of great talent and promise, who is well known as a trainer and conductor of choirs. The festival has altogether been highly successful, and great credit is due to all who have been responsible for its preparation. Mr W. A. Morgan's excellent analytical programmes were much appreciated.

MR CLARENCE BLAKISTON, who is playing a leading part in the new farce, called The Value of Being Extinct, to be presented for the first time, on Monday, at Kingston, is a Belfast man, who spent the first six years of his working life at sea. His first nom de guerre on the stage was "Mr Vernon," afterwards changed to "Mr Harold Clarance," but with his first successes he adopted his own name. He is the brother of Miss Minna Blakiston.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, AND DEATHS.

BIRTHS.

Codman.—Sept. 24, at Wilton-street, Liverpool, the wife of Professor Codman (Punchinello), of a son.

Hassan.—Sept. 13, wife of Walter Hassan (manager Royal Hippodrome, Liverpool) of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

Martin—Roze.—Sept. 28, at Liverpool, E. D. Martin, J.P., of Killoskehane Castle, Tipperary, to Lella Roze, burlesque actress.

Monks—Woods.—On Sept. 24, at St. Pancras, Bert Monks, of Manchester, to Lucie Woods, of Westgate-on-Sea.

DEATHS.

Newsome.—Sept. 25, at 25, Cosgrove-street, Cleethorpes, Madame Pauline Newsome, in her seventy-ninth year, beloved wife of James Newsome. Deeply mourned by her sorrowing husband and daughters (Marie Newsome, Mrs Jackaway, Mrs Alec Lambie); also her two grandsons, John Clyde Lambie and baby Frank Eldred. Sleep on, dear mother.

Reano.—In loving memory of Archie Reano, who died Sept. 24 in Newcastle, N.S.W. Never forgotten by his sorrowing father, mother, brothers, and sisters.

Spurr.—Sept. 25, in Melbourne, Australia, Mel. B. Spurr. Deeply mourned by his loving wife and daughter, Marie Brenda.

Sullivan.—Sept. 20, Master Tim Sullivan, boy actor, aged thirteen.

In Memoriam.

Mellor.—In loving memory of Robert Hague Mellor, founder of the firm of R. H. Mellor and Sons, who died Sept. 30, 1899. Gone, but not forgotten.

A talented company has been playing the musical piece, My Lady Molly, at the Princess of Wales, Kennington, this week, and the patrons of the local theatre have attended in large numbers to renew their acquaintance with the music and story in which her adventure is enshrined. They liked the manner in which Miss Edmee De Dreux impersonated the wayward lady, and had every justification for their partiality. Miss Zoe Gilfillian, too, shared their goodwill, her merry jesting with her feminine sweetheart being thoroughly appreciated. Miss Mabel Carr looked extremely well in male attire as Hester, and many envied Mickey O'Dowd the favour in which Hester held him. That same O'Dowd was played with any amount of gusto, and yet with an excellent suggestion of Mickey's plentiful lack of artlessness, by Mr Stephen Fitzgerald, who made the character one that might have stepped out of one of Charles Lever's rollicking novels. The audience laughed consumedly at his drolleries. Captain Harry Romney and Lionel Bland were safe in the hands of Mr Leicester Jinks and Mr Harold Payne, who made a capital pair of lovers and sang well; Mr H. Godwin Hunt as Sir Miles Coverdale contributed a sound embodiment of the old squire; while Mr M'Closkie appeared as Judge Romney. Mdlle. Ebba Darcier sang well as Mdlle. Mirabeau; and the cast was completed by Mr Dan O'Regan, Mr H. Beresford, Mr V. Gally, Mr H. Cashell, and Miss D. Vivian, Miss Violet Lingard, and Miss Kitty Holmes. The chorus did well, and the orchestra fulfilled its duties efficiently under the baton of Mr Leonard Leslie.

Messrs Maskelyne and Cooke's company is giving a celebrated mystical entertainment at the Small Town Hall, Reading, during this week with great success. Mr David Devant distinguishes himself by his very clever feats of legerdemain, &c. Mr Masyelyne's famous magical romance Will, the Witch, and the Watchman again excites unbounded wonderment. An excellent series of living pictures is being presented, and the entertainment is varied by the performances of the Chamounix Alpine Singers and Swiss Orchestra.

Mr Harry E. Rickett, hitherto acting-manager of the Theatre Royal, Windsor, has been appointed manager of the Theatre Royal at Croydon, and has already taken up the duties of his new post.

Miss Maidie Andrews, who made such a success as Alice, in Alice in Wonderland, at the New Theatre, is now playing "The Little Mother" in Bert Coote's interesting production The Fatal Wedding on tour. Last Tuesday was her birthday, and she was the recipient of many presents and congratulations. Her pretty face, sweet disposition, and her marvellous ability as a juvenile actress—she is only eleven years old—have won the hearts of all who have seen her act.

The Iroquois Theatre, in Chicago, where the terrible fire occurred last December, has been reopened as a vaudeville house under the management of Messrs Hyde and Behman. At the first performance the house was filled with an audience that was apparently unaffected by any recollection of the great catastrophe of last year. Thousands of citizens signed petitions against the reopening, but to no avail.

Mr John Nicholas Gallatin, who has been a florist and a broker in New York, has arranged to appear in a new musical comedy, shortly to be produced there by M. Emile Bruguière, a young and wealthy Californian, who has recently become a theatrical manager. He was married in June, 1902, to Miss Pauline Cory, who divorced him in August of the same year. She afterwards married Mr Joseph Ulman, a member of the Lambs, Strollers, Fencers, and other clubs.

Frau Agnes Sorma, of the Neues Theatre, Berlin, met with an unpleasant accident one evening last week. On leaving the stage at the close of the play, the popular actress slipped down a step and broke her left arm at the elbow. Frau Sorma is going on well, but has been suffering a good deal of pain.

"Candida" has been revived at the Berkeley Lyceum Theatre, New York, known last season as the Vaudeville, by Mr Arnold Daly and his company. Mr Daly has produced a new play, by George Bernard Shaw, entitled How He Lied to Her Husband, which is described as a burlesque on Candida.

Messrs Longmans, Green, and Co. have sent us a most interesting and useful book called "Styles in Furniture," written by Mr R. Davis Benn, and illustrated by W. C. Baldock. The work will be valuable to all theatrical managers, as it gives a simple and condensed description of the different styles, the illustrations greatly assisting the explanations of the author. His remarks upon the furniture of the various "periods" are shrewd and practical; and Mr Benn shows a thorough comprehension of the constructional as well as of the artistic side of old furniture. The pages relating to famous makers like Sheraton, Heppelwhite, and Chippendale are fresh, bright, and appreciative; and, altogether, "Styles in Furniture" is a book which will be warmly welcomed by those who know something about this fascinating subject and would like to know more.

AT THE TIVOLI, CAPE TOWN.

(From an occasional correspondent.)

From the days of Tom Carlton at the Royal, the veteran "Charlie" Morton at the Alhambra, and later of the Palace Theatre, Swanborough, at the Pavilion, and Slater and Hitchins at the Empire, never has the presiding genius of direction received a more flattering tribute to his business capacities and genial worth as a good fellow than Mr E. A. Pickering, general manager of the Tivoli, on the occasion of a complimentary benefit given him on the evening of Friday, Aug. 26 last, when the bijou theatre of varieties was filled to its utmost capacity by a representative Cape Town audience eager to show its appreciation of the bénéficiaire, who, since the inception of the house about twelve months ago, has ever been to the fore in providing first-class entertainments or assisting any deserving case of charity before the public. In addition to the usually strong bill-of-fare a flavour of Bohemianism was imparted to the proceedings by the kindly appearance of Mr William Cromwell, from the theatre "over the way," Mr E. O. Freshwater, and Mr Frank Barclay; the local element being represented by Mr Harry Hearne, a comic of no mean order. The first item in an excellently varied programme was contributed by Miss Lyndale (a coster song), Mr E. O. Freshwater next obliging, with a fervour all his own, with a rollicking sailor song, "Portrait next my heart." An excellent balancing act by the Rhoda Brothers followed, to be succeeded by Mr Frank Barclay in "The Cosy Corner Girl," from The Earl and the Girl. "Good Pals," from Miss Madeline May, introduced the local promenade's favourite, Harry Hearne, who was well received in a humorous rendering of "Courting—married." The first part of the programme was brought to a conclusion by World and Kingston in a side-splitting sketch, The Crushed Tragedian. During the interval the business facile princeps of the evening was introduced by Mr F. L. St. Leger, one of the directors, who, accompanied on the stage by Mr Pickering, said he had a very pleasing duty to perform. The little theatre had now been open for nearly twelve months, and before it was opened the directors were fortunate enough to secure the services of Mr Pickering. When they secured him, they did the best day's work they ever could have done. When he came he had a great deal of very hard work to get through in order to start to time, and with hard work and perseverance he succeeded. Since then he had carried on the work to their entire satisfaction, and the directors, to show their appreciation in a small way, had decided to give him a benefit. Mr Pickering's many friends in Cape Town had decided not to let the occasion pass without showing some sign of their regard, and they had asked him (Mr St. Leger) to present Mr Pickering with an address and a purse of gold value £170. In conclusion he hoped Mr Pickering would decide to make South Africa his home.

In replying, Mr Pickering expressed his hearty thanks, and said that he had never regretted coming to Cape Town, and his whole time here had been nothing but pleasant. He could not guarantee that the purse would stay with him very long, but the address would stay with him all his life.

A further presentation of a handsome silver shaving set was made by his Tivoli "intimates."

The programme was now adverted to, Les Frasettis instrumentalising to sustained plaudits. The appearance of the popular comedian Mr William Cromwell was the signal for a unanimous outburst from the audience, his "Don't jump at that conclusion" bringing down the house, his parting sally of "But I'm only a waiter here; over the road I'm a lord, what ho!" convulsing his hearers. Miss Maise Ellinger successfully mashed "Sammy" in one of the private boxes, and Tom Woottwell received his quota of approval in three songs. Le Ray, Talma, and Bosco gave their usually finished performance. The Seddons in their comic juggling turn were followed by Miss Lillian Hubbard, who warbled of "Egypt." After a dance turn by Miss Chrissie Leonard Mr Manfred Russell exploited a remarkable good tenor voice in excellent style. "I want to be a lady" was well given by Miss May Audrey; the Collins Quartet introducing the finale, the Tivolioscope, the programme of twenty-two turns eclipsing any previous record in Capetown.

As a man of many parts Mr Pickering made his début with the D'Oyly Carte Opera Company twenty years ago, and after dabbling in the Moore and Burgess Minstrels he took over the management of the Lyric Variety Agency, producing shortly after the now well-known tableaux vivants in conjunction with Mr Charles Morton at the Palace Theatre of Varieties. With an experience alternating, amongst other engagements, at the London Empire, Koster and Bial's, New York, an eighteen months' trip in the East, including a visit to Abyssinia and Somaliland, and back again to the "smoke" as acting-manager of the Alhambra, it will be seen that in selecting Mr Pickering to guide the reins at the Tivoli the late Mr Frank De Jong was bringing no novice at the game out to South Africa, his judgment being more than ratified by the continual success attending his efforts in placing so varied and attractive an entertainment before the Cape Town public.

On Saturday Mr Tom Carrick gave his farewell concert at the Mechanics' Hall, Scarborough. The large audience testified by unstinted applause their appreciation of the excellent programme provided, and encores were numerous. One of the successes of the programme was Mr Tom Carrick's "dame" song "How to settle 'em." During the course of the evening Mr Carrick made a telling little speech, in which he expressed his gratification at the reception he and his troupe had met with, and ventured to hope that in 1905 he would have the pleasure of conducting his eleventh Scarborough season if not on the beach then under other, and perhaps more favourable, conditions.

Opera House.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr W. J. Andrews.—A Path of Thorns, presented by Hardie and Von Leer's company, has met with a good reception here. Mr Cyril W. Mackay as the Rev. Frank Salby is good; Mr Claude King ably portrays the trials and troubles of John Edmunds; Mr Alfred Lester is clever as Sam Hallett; Mr Cecil Du Gué as Jonas Deane; Mr G. Mayor Cooke as Edward Langley; Mr A. C. Clark as Mr Pickford, Mr Harry F. Wright as Dr. Gaye, Mr J. H. Booth as Jim Price, and Mr Forrester Harvey as Ratty Gabbitt all do well. Miss Mary Raby and Miss M. Stanley Burt are excellent as the Sisters Constance and Nellie; Little Mabel May is commendable as Lucy; Miss Amy Rogerson is very good indeed as Jane Adelaide; and Miss Violet Luddington plays with sympathy the part of Bessie Edmunds.

Palace of Varieties.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr Robert Barton.—May Lillian Levey is a big success on her return visit here; Kitty Tims is a sweet ballad vocalist; the Sisters Charnley, duettists and dancers, are a pleasing pair; Eily Endon is a smart acrobatic dancer; and Mr J. Graham, ventriloquist; the Coopers, speciality instrumentalists; Smith and Johnson, coloured duettists; and Mr Harry Phillips also entertain.

OLDHAM.

Empire, Limited.—Manager, Mr Ernest Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr Hulme.—The annual visit of the Royal Carl Rosa opera company was welcomed by a crowded and appreciative audience on Monday, when Lohengrin was selected for presentation. Herr Julius Walther in the title-rôle combined vocal ability with dramatic excellence. Miss Lizzie Burgess in the part of Elsa displayed a beautiful and powerful soprano voice. Herr Charles Victor as Telramund, Mr Arthur Winckworth as Henry the Fowler, Mr Frank Arthur as the Herald, and Madame Augusta Renard as Ortrud embodied their parts with marked ability. The orchestra was under the bâton of Mr Eugene Goossens. Carmen, Maritana, Don Giovanni, Tannhäuser, The Bohemian Girl, and Faust are also underlined for presentation.

Royal.—Proprietors, Oldham Theatres, Limited; Manager, Mr Ernest Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr George Knowles.—This theatre still maintains its standard of excellence in variety. The Selbinis in their acrobatic, bicycle, and musical pot-pourri act, are a great success; Alec Kennedy, actor-vocalist, is well received; Lady Mansel and her clever juveniles are entertaining in their "Concert Rehearsal;" Weston and May (Fred and Julie) are smart in a musical comedy; Coram, ventriloquist, is well received in an amusing entertainment; the Brothers O'Brien, triple-bar experts, give a clever performance; and the Sisters Lunelle (Louie and Nellie), soubrettes and dancers; Herbert Shelley, actor-vocalist; and Herbert La Martine, legmania artist, add to the success of the bill.

Gaiety.—Proprietors, Oldham Theatres, Limited; Manager, Mr E. J. Dexter.—An attractive programme is being presented here this week. Kahn and Kahn as the star turn give a capital performance of modern necromancy; Muir and Bartlett's sketch, A Clerical Complication, supplies fifteen minutes of rollicking fun; a clever ventriloquial entertainment is given by Prof. Dunning; Stanley and Tich Bourne, comedians, amuse the audience with their patter; Miss Flo Wood, operatic soprano, is very successful; and Raymond's Bioscope concludes with some interesting pictures.

OXFORD.

New Theatre.—Managing Director, Mr Thomas Lucas, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr C. C. Dorrill.—Mr W. W. Kelly's company is this week paying us a visit with A Royal Divorce. Mr Frederic Victor looks and acts the part of Napoleon to the life. Mr C. Agnew gives a careful and well-balanced performance of Talleyrand. The Marquis De Beaumont, Augereau, Murat, and Dr. Corvisart find most capable exponents in Messrs T. Lowe, A. Grenville, E. G. Batley, and H. J. Powell. Mr D. Bryan gives a clever sketch as the innkeeper, Grimaud, and Messrs Martin and Herrick are amusing as Antoine and Pierre. Miss Edith Cole gives an effective performance as the Empress Josephine, and holds her audience right through the play with a firm grip; Miss Ethylle Murray is good as Marie Louise; and Miss Helen Richmond is delightful as the mischief-loving but faithful Stephanie De Beauharnais. A Royal Divorce is capitally staged.

Empire Theatre.—Lessee, Mr Albany Ward; Acting-Manager, Mr H. G. P. Wells.—On Monday Messrs Marston and Buckstone's company commenced an engagement here with The Silver Cross. Mr F. A. Marston plays Ben Adams in effective fashion; Mr Syd Bazley is responsible for the fun as Tomkyns Quinton; Mr Buckstone does well as Rev. Nicholas Frewin; and the half-brothers Arthur Merton and Philip Frewin are played by Messrs C. Allen and H. Glenny. Miss Cissy Glenney is good as Laura Beechcroft, Miss Poppy Danby is a bright and amusing Sally Beedles, and Miss Maud Western is well suited as Little Sunshine. Duets and dances are contributed by the Sisters Vell.

PAISLEY.

Paisley Theatre.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. H. Savile.—The Executioner's Daughter is being presented by Messrs Fred D'Arcy and Fred J. Little's company. Mr W. H. Sharpe as Kretch deserves special mention, his acting being admirable. Mr George Beverley as the scheming villain is very good, and his acting, despite the repulsiveness of the part, is much admired. Mr Edward M. Hamilton proves himself thoroughly competent in his assumption of Mons. Roche; particularly effective is the portraiture of Paul Rovel submitted by Mr Wilson Howard; Mr E. W. Avery furnishes an excellent impersonation of Tom Holmes; and Mr Sinclair Holden carefully acts Vivian Ormonde. Miss Dorothy Riddell as Annette, the heroine, wins sympathy by some pathetic acting; Miss Carlotta Anson plays powerfully and ably as Felice; Miss May Rosine is amusing and clever as Sally King; and Christina, the crippled child, is admirably sustained by Miss Bertha Moore.

Empire.—Lessee, Mr J. H. Savile; Manager, Mr Delno Fritz.—A strong variety company is in possession this week, the specialists including Major Sitherland, lightning and whirlwind gun-spinner; Flo Banks, burlesque artiste; Will Hunter, singing and novely ventriloquist; the Boultons, comedy artistes, musicians, and dancers; Mdlle. Bartenelli, graceful lady bender and gymnast; and Will Candlish, Negro comedian.

Town Hall.—Proprietors, Magistrates and Council.—Harry Lauder, the famous Scottish comedian, with a specially selected company of variety artistes, paid his annual visit here on Saturday, and was rewarded with a big house. The turns of Mr Lauder clearly demonstrated his great popularity.

PENTRE.

Lyceum Theatre.—Sole Owners, Messrs Carlton and Duckworth; General Manager, Mr Sam Duckworth; Resident-Manager, Mr Eugene Hardie.—Crowded houses are the rule here this week. The variety turns include the Achmed Ibrahim Bedouin Arabs, whose marvellous acrobatic feats are astounding. Earle and Earle, the American banjoists, are highly appreciated; May Geraldine is a charming comedienne and dancer; Bob Vokes earns praise as a character comedian; Cyclo, the postman cyclist, gives a clever performance; Lauri Brothers' droll acrobatic feats are admirable; Lily Turner's vocal abilities are of a high order; Kyoto, in his new act, "The Mysterious Japanese Box," creates a great deal of mirth; and the Sisters Brand, comediennes and dancers, add to the success of the show.

PENZANCE.

St. John's Hall.—Mr Chas. Macdona's Country Girl company, under the personal direction of Mr Julian Graham, appeared here on Tuesday and Wednesday. Miss Florence Burdett is a vivacious Nan; Miss Florence Hallam is a captivating Marjory Joy; Miss Sadie Neville makes a piquant Madame Sophie; Miss Lucie Lever, who plays the Princess of Bhong, has a beautiful voice, which she uses with artistic effect; Miss Kate Graham-Beck has a fine presence, and invests the character of Mrs St. Quinton with stately dignity; Mr Richard Telford's Barry is full of humour and fun; Mr Bernard Vaughan scores distinctly as the Rajah; and Mr W. O. Billington makes Sir Joseph Verity highly amusing. Mr Guy Williams is a manly Geoffrey Chaloner, and sings and acts with telling effect. Mr Harry Playfair is cleverly characteristic as Granfer Mummery.

PERTH.

Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr Frank Aldridge.—Mr Charles March, with a powerful company, is here this week in The Priest of the Temple. The play and music are written and composed by Mr March himself, who appears in the rôle of Valerius with considerable success. Mr Ronald Bayne powerfully enacts Decus Fronto, chief of the Temple, as also does Mr Henry Moxon that of Appius Herdonius; and Mr Stanley May is an excellent exponent of Hermanus. The several minor parts are ably undertaken by Messrs W. Clark, W. Fitzroy Temple, John Simpson, Whit Rogerson, Alf Lockhart, Henry Oakley, R. Tyson, Arthur Senate, and Wilton Cross. Miss Evelyn Hope shows considerable dramatic power as Polita, a Tiberian lady; and Miss Marie North evinces no mean talent in the rôle of Præstantia.

PETERBOROUGH.

Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr A. Darville Brown.—One of the Family, presented by Mr Henry Eglington and company, forms the attraction here this week. Miss Madeline Du Val's dainty and artistic manner is seen to advantage in her impersonation of Kate Denny. Miss Hilda Waldorf makes a charming Emily Fansbawe. Mr Kenneth Scott is effective as Captain Lightfoot. Mr Henry Eglington is an excellent Terry O'Flanaghan, and equally good is the portrayal of Mathias Magge by Mr A Leslie Martin. Mr Harry Ray does well as the Hon. Hubert Berkley. Mr William Gardiner revels in the part of Bartlemy Crowe. Others in the company of whom special mention is due, are Miss Florry Billington, Miss Blanche Drew, Miss Kitty Cygnet, Miss Marion Staveley, and Miss Nelly Arline, who acquits herself admirably as Susan.

PLYMOUTH.

New Palace.—Manager, Mr J. Field; Acting-Manager, Mr Carlton.—An attractive bill-of-fare this week is drawing crowded patrons. The premier turn is that of the Kaufmann Troupe of lady cyclists, who are graceful and clever. As vocalists and dancers the Superba Quartette excel; quaint and amusing to a degree, Edwin Boyde has made a big hit as a comedian, whilst heartier laughter has rarely been evoked than that caused by the Albert and Edmunds Troupe in the sketch entitled The Locket. Slippère, the blind novelty pianist and baritone, is deservedly a warm favourite. Other contributors are Reilly and Taylor, dialect comedians; Alma Obrey, comedienne; Bob Baxter, and Frank Cass, comedians.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Langdon Lee.—That charming musical play The Geisha, played by Mr Mouillot's principal company, is doing good business here this week. In the rôle of Mimosa Miss Aimé De Leska is very bright and engaging, whilst Miss Florrie Saunders makes a charming Molly Seymour, her dancing winning high encomiums. As Reginald Fairfax Mr Arthur Cartwright acts and sings with exceptional merit. Very amusing is Mr E. Carlton in the part of Wun-Hi, and able assistance is forthcoming from Miss Violet Kenyon, the French interpreter; Miss Aubrey Ashton as Lady Constance; Mr J. Hornby, Captain Katana; and Mr Lionel Braham, the Marquis Imari. On Friday A Greek Slave was staged.

Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy Williams.—A Modern Judas holds the boards here this week, and much cleverness characterises the acting. Especially can this be said in the case of Mr Percy Rhodes as the villain of the piece and Mr Frank Beresford as the hero. Essaying the difficult part of Claire Rivers Miss Violet King came out of the ordeal with credit, and received capable assistance from Miss Dolly Harcourt as Polly Hopkins and Miss Kate Walbran as Elise. Miss Ada Palmer and Mr Willie Scott provoked much mirth.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Carlton.—Mrs Bandmann-Palmer's company is appearing this week in an extensive répertoire comprising Mary, Queen of Scots, East Lynne, Sapho, Nell Gwynne, and Jane Shore. Mrs Bandmann-Palmer is supported by a reliable company, and the staging leaves little to be desired.

PONTYPRIDD.

PRESTON.

Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr Stephen Pritt.—Mr Milton Bode's company, under the direction of Mr Stanley Rogers, is here this week with Gentleman Joe. In the title-rôle Mr Kennedy Allen scores a great success; Mr Robert Vincent capably impersonates Lord Donnybrook, rendering his songs in good style; Mr G. Wyley as Hughie Jackson, Mr W. H. Moore as Mr Ralli Carr, Miss Edith Benson as William, and Mr Sydney Benson as Dawson commendably fill their respective parts. Mr Harry A. Gribben is a versatile and amusing representative of Mr Pilkington Jones. Mr J. Gardner (Uncle Bones) and Mr W. Peters (Uncle Ned) deserve praise for their vocal efforts and dancing. Miss Hebe Bliss acts and sings well as Mrs Ralli-Carr; the Hon. Mabel Cavanagh has a pleasing exponent in Miss Mabel Kerridge; and Lalage Potts is suitably delineated by Miss Edna Burman. Miss Enid Russell, Miss M. Linscott, and Miss Marie Hadyn as the Sisters Pilkington-Jones are seen to advantage. Miss Maud Mario is a charming Emma, her singing, dancing, and dainty bearing winning much favour. The Edingale Trio of dancers are well appreciated.

Prince's Theatre.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs Sawyer and Woodruff.—Mr J. Rice Cassidy and company are appearing here this week in Dan, the Rake. As Dan Donnelly Mr J. Rice Cassidy gives an admirable performance; Colonel Flamer is well taken by Mr Frank Orchard; Mr Frank Copeland (Lieut. Kavanagh) deserves praise; Mr Frederick Biron ably portrays the villainies of Captain Tom Cooper; Mr Norman Hall evokes much laughter in the part of Achille, a French cook; Miss Lilian Clare is clever in the rôle of Madge; and Mr Chas. Crosby (Trooper Jackson), Miss F. Halton (Helen Flamer), Miss A. Roscoe (Mrs Donnelly), and Mr Stephen Crossley (General Lake) render valuable assistance.

PORTH.

POOLE'S OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr W. Bynorth.—On Monday Mr Ben Greet's company, under the direction of Mr J. Bannister Howard, opened a six nights' engagement in The Eternal City. Mr D. Lewin Mannering shows much ability as Baron Bonelli; Mr Henry Deas gives an excellent account of David Rossi; Miss Edith Anton Laing is decidedly good as Donna Roma; Mr Leonard Grey deserves credit for his fine impersonation of Pope Pius XI; Mr E. Sharp is an able representative of Commendatore Angelelli; Mr A. E. E. Edwards is successful as Minghelli; and as Father Pifferi Mr Edward Dowes is well placed.

PORTSMOUTH.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr T. E. Agate.—The American sporting comedy-drama In Old Kentucky is presented this week by Mr J. F. Elliston's company, under the direction of Mr Charles Herman. Madge Brierly, the heroine, is a very breezy and piquant character capitally portrayed by Miss Amy F. Hermann; Miss Beatrice Shirley as Barbara Grafton is a clever personation; the Frank Harley of Mr Geo. F. Steel is a manly and vigorous piece of work; Mr Alfred S. Banks is amusing as Colonel Pebly Beauchamp; Mr Eric Hueson as Jasper Grafton, alias Lem Lindsey, ably acts the villain; and Joe Lorey, a stalwart Moonshiner, is strongly played by Mr Gerald Kennedy.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Secretary, Mr W. Pratt.—The company here this week includes Miss Nellie Wallace, eccentric comedy artiste, who fully deserves the cordial reception accorded her. Sadie Simpson, comedienne and coon artiste, is clever and painstaking. Jack Collinson and company are appearing in two sketches each evening, viz., Archibald Jones, the New Hamlet—A Bit of Nonsense and The Club Raid, both giving every satisfaction. Pat Carey, Hibernian comedian, is in great demand and gaining much applause. Edwards and Espinosa, instrumentalists and dancers, give a very pleasing turn. Also appearing are Zasma and De Loule, refined gymnastic act; Florrie Carlow, soubrette; and W. H. Liddy, Irish vocalist.

RADCLIFFE.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Geo. T. Sante; Acting-Manager, Mr Jas. Boothman.—Messrs H. B. Levy and J. Walter's juvenile company still continues to enjoy success as pronounced as it is well deserved. Master Paddy Mills as Long Jim, proves himself an able and original comedian, and together with Master Joe Conway as Short Tim fairly convulses the house. Masters Dan Dougherty and George Swinhoe as the two Ugly Sisters are admirable, and Master T. Halton scores as Baron Smallcash. Miss May Gilson as Silver Star is endowed with an excellent voice and her graceful movements are charming. Miss Kitty Rafferty in the title-rôle is a dainty little lady. Miss M. Hardacre as Prince Charming has the necessary dash. Miss La Pettie La Ray does good work as Will Scarlet, and Miss Lottie Harper is efficient as Maid Marion. As Tommy Tucker and Marjorie Daw, Misses K. Trewhit and Isa Gibson do well, and Miss Dorothy Milnthorpe as Billy Buttons, and Miss Molly Rafferty as Nancy Lee deserve a word of praise. Miss Nellie Valvona is a capital solo dancer. The Marguerite Quartette give some clever speciality dances.

RAMSGATE.

SANGER'S AMPHITHEATRE.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; General-Manager, Mr Henry Bowman.—Mr J. F. Elliston's company has been giving effective performances of Alone in London here this week. Miss Madge Devereux acts in an accomplished style as Annie Meadows; the John Biddlecombe of Mr Henry George is capital; Mr Stephen Ewart is appropriately villainous as Richard Redcliffe; and Mr Lonnen Meadows does well as Charley Johnson.

ROYAL VICTORIA THEATRE AND PAVILION.—Proprietors, Corporation of Ramsgate; Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Herbert Jay; Business Manager, Mr N. Arthur Hornby.—On each evening of the week an attractive entertainment has been carried out by a variety company, which has consisted of Alexandre and Hughes, musical eccentrics; Stanley and Greenop, banjoists; Mr James Singleton, the singing collier; Miss Minnie Dare, comedienne and dancer; James Ferguson, Scotch comedian and dancer; Miss Bertha Vere, ballad vocalist; Sisters Gilbert, duettists and dancers; and Oakley and James, a very versatile pair.

MARINA THEATRE.—Proprietors, Marina Pier and Lift Company; Business Manager, Mr H. Smith.—Billie Bint's clever company, including the entertaining Billie himself, Miss Fannie Robina, the Two Weimars, and others, have been giving excellent shows here during the week. The contributions by Cassie Corelli, Dan Idle, Jappo, Garnet, Chandler, and Florry Cooper have also been considerably appreciated.

RAWTENSTALL.

GRAND THEATRE.—Co-Proprietors and Lessees, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr J. Ellis Miller.—Mr W. H. Kirby's company is this week paying a welcome visit in The New Mephisto. Mr W. H. Kirby is as inimitable as ever as Dick Pilgrim, creating rounds of applause for his fine interpretation. Mr Fred Lyne as Mephistopheles, &c., gives an excellent display of versatility in totally dissimilar characters. Mr Willie Vernon as Major Bantam and Mr Herbert St. John as Lord Hummingtop are responsible for much applause and laughter, and Mr H. P. Carr proves an acceptable Captain Meredith. As Dolly Miss Lily Cullick makes a favourable impression, singing, acting, and dancing in delightful style; Miss Marion Armitage as Becky keeps the house convulsed with laughter; and Miss Dorothy Cecil, Miss Leah Howard, and Miss Marion Keeley as the three goey widows also contribute largely to the success.

ROTHERHAM.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr W. Manning.—Miss Rosalind Scott-Watson and company are filling the bill here this week with The Scarlet Woman. Mr J. E. Crawford is a manly Richard Marchant, Mr Edward K. Burke gives a capital rendition of the part of Philip Gordon, Mr Bert H. Ross as Will Raymond is callous as the villain of the play, being well seconded by Messrs J. E. Cowell and Tom Wheeler as Joe Cartwright and Jack Cartwright. Mr Mat Melrose is a humorous Samuel Hopkins and Mr James Thompson an effective Jacob Isaacson. Miss Rosalind Scott-Watson in the title-rôle is responsible for a highly finished representation of the rôle. Miss Muriel Allyne is pleasing as Margery Honour, Miss Ruby Hamilton-Belasco scores as Charlotte Simpkins, and Miss Lalla Cowell is a sprightly Fanchette, Miss Gracie Walker as Jeanne speaks her lines with much intelligence, and Miss Lalla Cowell and Mr Mat Melrose are responsible for some effective dances.

RUGBY.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing Director, Mr A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Kingsley.—Messrs Perry and Stanton's company is here this week with The Sporting Girl. Mr George Perry as Penton Hook, of Chicago, gives an excellent rendition. He is well seconded by Mr Charles Sanders as Jack Garling and Mr Charles Phillips as Gerald Haynes. Mr Horace Moseley is amusing as the Rev. John Bunyan; Mr Marcus Grey as Marco Castellino is very effective; and Mr James H. Sterling gives a carefully studied rendering of George Dewitt; Miss Maggie Stanton scores an unqualified success as Kitty Fitzroy, the sporting girl; and Miss Glady St. Ledger as Martha is most amusing. Miss Marjorie Tennant is good as Mrs Owen, and Miss Clara Knowles as Amy Beddoe is worthy of praise.

At the Town Hall, Welshpool, Miss Maggie Morton's company, under the direction of Mr J. Herman, appeared on Wednesday night in Two Little Drummer Boys. Eric and Jack were well played by Miss Gladys Hope and Ethel M. Wright. Miss Florence French was amusing as Molly Meadows; Miss Grace Monson was a sweet and sympathetic Alma Kingsley; Miss Mildred Everaleigh gave a powerful rendering of Margaret Rivers; Mr Jules Shaw was a capable General Kingsley; Mr Claude Raymond was a most effective Captain George Darrell; Captain Frank Carsdale was all that could be desired in the capable hands of Mr Chas. Barrett; Mr D. O'Keefe and Mr Percy E. Wright were capital exponents of low comedy as Quiney O'Quirke and Timothy Trimmer; and Mr Frank Courtney sustained the part of Major Kilkerren creditably.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1904.
"The Era" Annual, 1904, reappears with all the features that to metropolitan and provincial playgoers make it invaluable as a work of reference. It again contains a list of new plays and important revivals at the London and suburban theatres, with dates of production to the end of November; new plays submitted in the provinces; the theatrical, musical, and equestrian obituary for the year; and other stage matters concerning which information is often desired. Each branch is excellently classified. What may, for convenience sake, be termed the "useful" portions of the "Annual" are sandwiched by forty short stories by popular actors and entertainers, the interest of these contributions being increased by autographs and portraits.—Daily Chronicle, Jan 16th, 1904.

THE ERA

THE CHARITY MATINEE ABUSE.

We have been asked by a Mr T. H. ROBERTS to oblige Mr L. GODFREY-TURNER and himself by inserting a letter from the latter gentleman. We do so with pleasure, and will, in addition, add a few comments on the practice of which it is an example.

The following is the letter :—

THE BALACLAVA JUBILEE MATINEE.

Dear ——

I sincerely trust that the decision of certain public performers to appear for charity in future only on payment of fees does not render useless my present appeal for your generous services for the concert which will be given at the Alhambra on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 22, to assist the needy survivors of the Light Brigade Charge.

The occasion will mark the jubilee of the famous charge, and Mr T. H. Roberts, the organiser of the fund which keeps the otherwise neglected veterans from the door of the poorhouse, is very anxious (particularly as the fund is in danger of extinction, owing to the small subscribed support from the public) that this special effort of his on their behalf shall meet with your sympathy.

If you will be good enough, in your reply to this note, to state what time after two o'clock in the afternoon you can appear, every endeavour will be made by our stage-manager to prevent waits, and it would further assist in the organisation of the performances if you would kindly let me know the nature of the "turn" you would propose contributing.

With kind regards, and hoping soon to receive a favourable answer from you,

I am,
yours sincerely,
L. GODFREY-TURNER.

158, Fleet-street, E.C.

The above circular is evidently intended to be forwarded to many members of the profession, in order to induce them to promise contributions to the matinée in question. The blank is obviously left for the insertion of the name of the artist who is to be begged to "assist." The wording of the first paragraph is extremely quaint. Mr GODFREY-TURNER "sincerely trusts" that the decision of "certain public performers" to appear for charity in future only on payment of fees, will not render useless his appeal to the artists whom he is addressing in his note. On cursory inspection, this might be taken to mean that Mr TURNER hoped that the committee of the Balaclava Light Brigade Charge Survivors' Relief Fund, of which Mr T. H. ROBERTS is the "founder, secretary, and hon. treasurer," had made up their minds to pay for the services of the artists whom they might induce to appear at the matinée. This conclusion, however, would be incorrect. The general public have subscribed altogether over £4,000 since 1897 to the Fund; and there is a balance in hand of £406. The object of the charity is one which touches the heart of every Englishman. The Balaclava Charge is the exploit of the Crimean War which appeals very strongly to the imagination of the public. Lord RAGLAN deplored at the time that the showy nature of the disastrous exploit would cast into the shade the equally courageous and much more useful charge of the Heavy Brigade against an enormous mass of Russian cavalry. It is useless, however, to argue against popular whims. There is not the least reason, except a fanciful one, why the survivors of the Balaclava Charge should be looked after more carefully than the "survivors" of SCARLETT'S Charge just alluded to, or the "survivors" of the Alma or of Inkerman. If the public, however, like the brilliant and the sentimental better than the practical feats of warfare, it is quite reasonable that they should have their way. Those who pay the piper have a perfect right to call the tune; and, inconsistent as it may be to devote attention to the veterans of a particularly small section of the British Army, to the exclusion of the whole, the £4,000 given has undoubtedly done good to several scores of old soldiers. But we cannot understand why the theatrical profession should be pestered with requests like that of Mr GODFREY-TURNER in the letter which we have printed. We observe that one of the items of the statement of the Fund up to the end of December is "Advertising." £29 10s. is set down as having been expended in this way in advertisements in the leading London journals and in a Sussex paper. Why should artists be asked to give assistance to the Fund for nothing, when wealthy daily newspapers are paid to the last penny? If there is any responsibility for the maintenance of these old heroes of the Dragoons, Hussars, and Lancers it rests with the War Office. There is an old saying to the effect that "charity begins at home," and it is shameful that the good-nature and generosity of the profession should be abused in the way that they are abused, by actors and actresses being begged and coaxed to "give their services" for nothing to this and that cause. We object most strongly to the implied sneer in Mr GODFREY-TURNER'S letter at the very sensible artists who, driven into a corner by the unconscionable demands made upon them time after time, have decided not to appear for charity, except on payment of fees. Mr TURNER refers to them somewhat contemptuously as "certain public performers;" and, with a seductive allusion to the "generous services" which he hopes to get from the person to whom he is sending the circular, hopes that the individual addressed will not be influenced by the "decision" alluded to. Our "trust" is exactly opposite in its direction. We have firm faith that the time has come when not only "certain public performers," but the mass of the profession is rebelling against the system of civil imposition under which they have been so heavily taxed in time and labour for the benefit of charities in which they have only a very indirect interest. At the present moment the theatrical profession, chiefly owing to its being overcrowded by amateurs and juveniles, is distressed by an unusual amount of poverty and want. Its charities cannot possibly cope with the heavy demands upon their funds; and private gifts—often made by those who can ill-afford to make them, being themselves only a little better off than those helped—have to supplement official aid. At this juncture the members of the profession are begged to "give their services" to all manner of charitable institutions and objects. We have nothing to say against the majority of these. Their aims are, of course, entirely benevolent. But, after all, one's first duty is to one's own class and calling; and the spectacle of actors and actresses working hard of an afternoon at—say—a benefit for a Home for Lost Dogs, while so many of their brother and sister artists are cold and starving is not one which can be regarded with complacency. We "trust" that Mr GODFREY-TURNER'S insinuating request will meet with many denials and refusals.

THE Liverpool magistrates have issued forty-two new rules for the regulation of theatres and music halls. Of these sixteen have reference to the provision of fire appliances and means to be adopted for the prevention of fire. One rule prohibits obstruction in gangways or passages by chairs, seats, or persons, and provides that "no person, except an official of the theatre, shall be permitted to stand, sit, or remain (except as mentioned in proviso) in any vestibule, staircase, lobby, corridor, gangway, or vacant space forming part of any exit." The magistrates, however, reserve to themselves the right to sanction the use of any vacant space to be used as standing room, and to limit the number of persons who may utilise it. Other rules provide against the admission of known bad characters, the accumulation of rubbish or inflammable material, the exhibition of dangerous beasts, and any perilous performance without the consent of the justices. Managers will be pledged to see that all doors and barriers shall open outwards and yield to slight pressure from the inside, and after the rules come into force on Oct. 25 theatres must be lit by electricity, and gas must be provided as a "standby, and kept lighted." Woodwork is to be painted with non-flammable paint, and after July 1, 1905, all scenery must be rendered and kept as fire-proof as possible, while there must be direct communication between the stage and the nearest fire station. A regulation has been made that "No offensive personalities or offensive representations of living persons shall be permitted on the stage."

A FOUR-ACT play by the Danish author Rosenkranz, translated into German by E. Schlack, was produced with much success at Stuttgart a few days ago. The piece—entitled Ruth—is one of the realistic type so much in vogue at present. It treats of the marriage between a nobleman and a Jewess, and all the fatal consequences of a mésalliance. The work is said to be well and convincingly written, but it would have seemed more natural if one Guildenstern had joined with the author in collaboration.

A COMMITTEE meeting of the Touring Managers' Association will be held at 3, Bedford-street on Friday, Oct. 7, at 12·30 o'clock.

RHYL.

QUEEN'S PALACE.—Manager, Mr P. J. Ashfield; Secretary, Mr E. W. Parry.—On the 22nd ult. the manager's benefit took place. It must be most gratifying to Mr Ashfield to know that his efforts during the season have made him so popular. He was rewarded with a full house. A capital programme was arranged, and Mr Ashfield received an ovation for a recitation which he gave with dramatic power. This week the Rhyl favourite, Barney Stuart, is paying a return visit, and his artistic extracts from the Deemster and Brigadier Gerard are always appreciated. Prince Fee Lung introduces some clever illusions. Vere and Royal, vocal and comedy artistes, Sisters Grahame, and Little Beatie complete the bill.

ROCHDALE.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr W. Robinson; General Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling; Resident Manager, Mr Charles Clucas.—The Girl from Kay's is paying a first visit here this week. It is one of the brightest, prettiest, and most laughter-provoking musical plays we have seen here. The company is an exceptionally strong one, and makes the performance a pronounced success. Miss May Morton is winsome as Norah Chalmers; Miss Polly Prim delights the audience by her singing and graceful dancing in the part of Ellen; Miss H. Champion makes a capital Mrs Chalmers. The title rôle is entrusted to Miss Lily Lingard, who invests the part with a charming piquancy that wins all hearts. Her reception is most flattering. Mr Garnet Wilson sustains the part of Harry Gordon with conspicuous ability; Mr Tom Shelford creates much merriment by an excellent portrayal of the Hon. Percy Fitzthistle; Mr Sam Lyons submits a characteristic delineation of the fussy Theodore Quench, Q.C., and Mr Johnnie Schofield as Max Hoggenheimer is irresistibly funny. The staging is admirable, the dresses and scenery lending a charming effect to the whole performance.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs Smith and Lee; Business-Manager, Mr Lee.—A capital programme is submitted to full houses here this week. Violet Grey is a refined vocalist with a sweet voice; the Evremonds, comedy duettists; Achilles has a fine physique, and knocks heavy weights about with the utmost ease; Stern and Stern, comedians and patterers; Lillie Le Briton, trapeze gymnast; George Wyres, comedian; Dorothy Quartette, acrobatic and speciality dancers; Fred Erick, comedian; and H. C. Reval, electric juggler, with a most effective display, complete the list.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr T. Hargreaves; Acting-Manager, Mr Frank Hargreaves.—Chanti, lightning change artist, astonishes the audience by the remarkably quick changes he makes; Nita Rose, vocalist, is an old favourite here; Daisy Almer, serio and dancer; Flo Winstanley, burlesque artist and male impersonator; Frank Whiteley, character comedian; Charlie Bayman, Negro comedian; Alice Oakley, ballad and descriptive vocalist; and the Four M.P.'s, military musical experts, complete an attractive bill-of-fare.

RUNCORN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr H. W. Caddick.—Mr S. F. Cody's company is occupying the boards with The Klondyke Nugget, and is proving a pronounced draw. Mr Edward Leroy is energetic in the heavy part of Sam Deats; Mr Vivian Cody makes the most of Joe Smith with success; and Mr Leon Cody gives a striking picture of Waco, the Redskin. Mr Tom Gilmore is quaint as Paddy O'Donohue. Miss Edith B. Mumford is a finished actress in the part of Rosie Lee.

SALFORD.

PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr Harold Goulden.—A Beautiful Fiend on Monday evening drew a crowded house, and the performance by Messrs Beaudyn and Livesey's company was well received. Miss Sidney Crowe has made a decided impression in the title-rôle. Mr Montague Beaudyn as Ivan Paulovitch, Mr A. G. Polson as Fedor Karateff, and Mr A. F. Dudley as Sergius Strogoff give powerful and earnest assistance. Mr Charles Kean as Christopher Crackles causes much laughter, as also does Mr F. H. Stanley as Nicholi Troleki. Nadine Karateff is pleasingly and capably presented by Miss Irene Munro, and Miss Annie Clunn is a bright and attractive Patty Woodlands.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford; Licensee, Mr James M. Hardie; Secretary and Manager, Mr C. Shayler.—Harry Houdini, the handcuff king, heads an excellent programme this week. His latest exploit was escaping on Monday from the police cells at the Salford Town Hall. The other turns are Alf Aubyn, impersonator of coon comedy and acrobatic gavotte dancer; Geo. Rennie, ventriloquist; Charles R. Whittle, versatile comedian; Martine and Son, American song illustrators; Johnny Danvers, comedian; Vandenoff, lightning artist, who paints five large pictures in ten minutes; Carola's miniature circus; and Ted Cowan, popular comedian; with the animated pictures.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr Wm. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy B. Broadhead.—Both performances on Monday were witnessed by large houses, and the programme was of the usual good quality. The Dayton Family do a marvellous Risley act; the Katos' Komical Kidgets, in their amusing automatic theatre, cause much laughter; Howard and Collinson, in their absurdity The Porter and the Parcel; Selby and Myers, comedians, patterers, vocalists and dancers; Edie Gray and coons, pleasing vocalists; the comical clowns, the Leotards; Inez Clough, ballad vocalist; Billy Williams, Australian comedian; Minto's trick mandolinist and equilibrist; Jack Hylton, eccentric comedian, and Doris Lilian, comedienne and acrobatic dancer, also give interesting turns. The pictures are good.

SEACOMBE.

IRVING THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr James Kiernan.—The animated picture world entered on its third and final week here on Monday. Great success as it has undoubtedly proved, it is compelled to give place to other musical and dramatic engagements. Amongst the special local films a panoramic view of the Mersey, showing the principal Atlantic liners, coasters, and ferry-boats, is deservedly popular. The intervals between the pictures are suitably filled by Giilin, a clever and original ventriloquist; Frank Darwin, baritone and song illustrator; and Mill May, comedienne.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr A. C. Harrison.—The Two Hussars occupies the boards here this week, the company being Messrs Wilson Benge and Fred J. Webb's. Mr Benge as Harry Alford is seen to advantage; the rascally Paul Villiers is realistically played by Mr Webb; Mr Louis Nanton gives an amusing study of Robert Runn; and Mr G. Paradise as Sergeant M'Finnie also adds to the humorous element. Ellen Maythorne is prettily played by Miss H. Danvers-Smith. Miss Lallah Price skilfully performs as Molly Cutts. Miss Sadie Smith as Marie is very good. Mr H. Rutland as Harry Maythorne, Mr H. Wilson as Joe Giles, Mr J. E. Cunnington as Bob Trott, Mr Chas. Fynes as Counsel for the Crown, and Mr S. James as Counsel for the Defence ably support the principals.

SCARBOROUGH.

LONDESBOROUGH THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr J. T. Carpenter.—Mr Norman Macowen's company has been here in Monsieur Beaucaire. Mr Herbert Cornish was an excellent Major Molyneux; Mr Stuart Wilson was effective as the Duke of Winterset; Miss Millie Hamer was a refined Lucy Rellerton; Miss Violet Sterne was a graceful Lady Mary Carlisle; and as Robert Beaucaire Mr Norman Macowen greatly distinguished himself.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietress, Mrs Henry Mayhew; Business-Manager, Mr F. P. Morgan.—The stage here is occupied by Mr Lester Collingwood's company in When London Sleeps. Miss Maud Hastings is good as Queenie Carruthers; Miss Bella Power as Signorina Jonesio and Miss Effie Mackintosh as Carrie put in good work; Mr Victor Mason and Mr Frank Eden as Sammy Blyth and Bernard Broomhead succeed well; Mr Franklyn Grahame plays with ability as Captain Haynes, and David Engleheart is in the capable hands of Mr W. H. S. Samp.

SHEFFIELD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr F. W. Purcell; Acting-Manager, Mr T. S. Carter.—Mr Tom B. Davis's ever-welcome company opened on Monday in Florodora. Mr Edward Lewis, as usual, was the incarnation of mercurial spirits as the eccentric professor, and he kept the audience in roars of laughter all the evening. Mr Fred Winn was a mirth-provoking Cyrus Gilfain. Mr Leonard Russell again made a manly Frank Abercoed, and his fervid singing of "The sheltering palm" was applauded to the echo. Miss Lena Maitland was a handsome and picturesque Dolores, and her fine vocalism gave great pleasure. The Lady Holyrood of Miss Isabella Dillon was a smart and vivacious personage, and her "Tact" song was heartily encored. The large chorus acquitted themselves to the satisfaction of the audience, and band, scenery, and dresses were all up to the high standard expected by the patrons of the palatial Royal.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr John Hart; General Manager and Treasurer, Mr J. E. B. Beaumont.—The visit here of Mr George Edwardes's company, from the Lyric Theatre, in The Duchess of Dantzic, has been eagerly looked forward to by all lovers of tuneful music, artistic display, and thoroughly refined entertainment. It was therefore not surprising that on Monday the spacious Lyceum auditorium was packed at raised prices from pit to gallery. Mr George Edwardes's exquisite taste in mise-en-scène is so well known that the scenery and dresses need no comment. There was a large chorus, the band was augmented, and the leading rôles were acted by artists whose representations are world-wide. Miss Evie Greene achieved a positive triumph as Catherine dramatically. Miss Adrienne Augarde was a pretty and melodious Renée, and Miss Billee Burke made a piquant Lisette. The Napoleon of Mr Holbrook Blinn was a notable contribution to the gallery of stage portraits of the famous "Little Corporal." Mr Herbert Clayton was good as Lefebvre. Mr Courtice Pounds's agreeable personality made the humour of Papillon vastly agreeable to every section of the audience. Mr Leonard Mackay acted and sang effectively as Viscount De Bethune, and Mr Morgan Williams did good service as M. D'Allegro.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr C. W. Ramsay.—Mr Walter Melville's strong company began a welcome return visit here on Monday in the thrilling drama Her Second Time on Earth, which, well staged and acted, was again received with enthusiasm by a crowded audience. That graceful and clever artist Miss Hilda Beverley repeated her fine impersonation of the beautiful but morally repulsive Dora Grey. It was a realistic portrayal of feminine viciousness, and at times Miss Beverley's dramatic intensity touched the tragic key. That Royal pantomime favourite Miss Pollie Marsh submitted a striking sketch of a drunken virago in the character of Mrs Burke, and Miss Nana Flensburg was a lively representative of Kitty. Mr Charles Franmore was good as Captain Norman. An effective bit of acting was the Beppo of Mr Wilton J. Selby. Mr Cecil Melton was frank and earnest as Jack Carlton. Mr Percy Horton made a characteristic medico as Dr. Ridley; Mr Fred Ingram caused much mirth as the irrepressible Teddy; Mr Charles Girdlestone as Guy Brand and Mr Stuart as Tom Norman did good work; and Miss Elaine Vanbrugh was charming and sympathetic as Laura.

EMPIRE PALACE.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr A. W. Young.—Mr George Lashwood is once more singing his catchy songs with characteristic verve and polish; Mr Horace Mills and Mr W. H. Rawlins appear in a smart sketch, entitled Mashing the Missus; and other pleasing artists are the Petras, comic jugglers; Harry Dent, comedian; the Alaskas, in a novel comedy act; Sisters Cora, duettists; Les Voces, soloists, &c; Max Milian, athletic equilibrist; De Kook Brothers, acrobats; Baker and Balfe, instrumentalists; and Charles Prinz, with his seventeen lions.

ALBERT HALL.—Manager, Mr Auguste Lyons.—The Saturday variety concerts here are proving a great success. The artistes billed this week include the Parez Sisters, instrumentalists; Yapp and Napp, burlesque actors; the Fays; Le Phred's Fantoches; Prof. Knott's Punch; Carl and Carr, comedians; and Alex. Fay, illusionist.

GRAND PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten.—Engaged here are Bennett and Martell, comedians; Allis and Cassati, grotesque entertainers; Mdlle. Martha, a daring gymnast; Cliff and Kean, comedians; Bogg and Bogg, eccentrics; and Grace Vernon, serio.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr W. Marlow; Manager, Mr W. Marlow, jun.—The Moody-Manners opera company is giving lovers of opera a great treat this week. The répertoire consists of Faust, Maritana, Carmen, The Daughter of the Regiment, Pagliacci and Cavalleria Rusticana, Tannhauser, and The Bohemian Girl. The performance of Faust on Monday met with universal approbation. Miss Enriqueta Crichton as Marguerite gave an artistic impersonation, and another most successful performance was the Faust of Mr Edward Arthur. Mr Chas. Tidbury as Mephistopheles was responsible for a finished portrayal, Mr David Fuller was prominent as Valentine, as also was Miss Teify Davies as Siebel.

PIER PAVILION.—Sole Lessee, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—Messrs Carson and Granville's company is presenting here this week The Drama of Life. Mr Gerald Ord gives a most realistic portrayal of Harry Beech; Walter Beech is capitally enacted by Mr John J. Hooker; Mr Owen Remonde as Dobson Wilde furnishes the humour, being well assisted by Miss Muriel Inglis as Lady Jane Wilde. Mr Walter Steele makes a noteworthy Richard Brenton; Miss Cissie Bellamy gives a good impersonation of Sylvia Beech; Miss Nellie Daly is well suited as Betty Black; and Miss Marie Murry portrays well the character of Master Robert Beech.

THE KURSAAL.—General Manager, Mr J. Sydney Childs.—The variety programme this week is an excellent one, and large and appreciative audiences find plenty of enjoyment. Miss Unity Vezzey has been retained for this week, and merits praise for her clever concertina playing and her musical dogs. Bros. Sweet are two really clever comedians and dancers, Clara Nisbett is a refined vocalist, a good extempore vocalist is found in Tom Vine, the Sisters Vincent are charming and clever duettists and dancers, and the Balzens and Pei-ho give a good juggling show. The Bioscope is still going strong with new films, and the Café Chantant entertainments are ably carried out by Captain Towyn Thomas's Royal National Glee Singers.

SHREWSBURY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Business Manager, Mr W. C. Dornton.—Mr Frank Wilson's company, by arrangement with Mr Frank Curzon, presented The Marriage of Kitty here on the first four nights of this week. Mr Frank Wilson played with considerable ability as Sir Reginald Belsize, Bart.; Mr Sydney Orton as the perplexed John Travers was extremely good; Mr J. F. Leighton was successful as Norbury; Mr Royston Keith, jun., as Hampton acquitted himself creditably; Miss Kate Harwood in the somewhat thankless rôle of Madame De Semiano acted spiritedly and well; as Miss Katherine Silverton Miss Vera Fordyce was graceful, naive, and effective; and Miss Averil May was a capital Rosalie.

SMETHWICK.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr C. Barnard; Manager, Mr E. Hewitson.—The Lady Slavey is paying a return visit here this week, after an absence of two years, and comes with an air of distinct freshness. Mr W. Greet's company is a most capable one, and the dresses and scenery are very good. Mr Harry Walsh is droll as the impecunious Major O'Neill; Mr Allan Morris, an acceptable New York millionaire, scores a success with his song "In Friendship's name;" the brokers' man Roberts and the vacuous Lord Lavender are represented in skilful and humorous manner by Mr Frank Sherlock and Mr Walter T. Hybert respectively; Miss Addie Lennard is a vivacious Phyllis; and among other excellently played parts we must single out the Flo Honeydew of Miss Millicent Marsden for mention. Dances are introduced by Misses Jean Van Dalle and Ethel Ashton.

SOUTHPORT.

OPERA HOUSE (WINTER GARDENS).—General Manager, Mr Alfred Hemming.—On Monday a large audience greeted the return visit of A Message from Mars, presented by Mr Mouillot's principal company. Mr Rawson Buckley submitted a successful interpretation of Horace Parker; Mr F. G. Dunn effectively portrayed the character of Arthur Dicey; the messenger had an artistic representative in Mr W. E. Brougham; and the tramp was ably impersonated by Mr Bruce Lindley. Miss May Saker gave a highly creditable representation of Minnie Templer; and Miss Flora Parker was effective in the part of Miss Parker.

SOUTH SHIELDS.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs J. and F. Coulson.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison's company is paying a visit here for the first time in the pleasing comedy A Country Mouse. Mr Sidney Stirling presents a suitable Hon Archibald Vyse; Mr Charles Harley cleverly sustains John Bowlby, M.P.; and the Duke of St. Kitts is amusingly acted by Mr Arnold Lucy. Mr Wilson Lumley as Lord Wykeham lends capital support; Miss Dido Drake is an acquisition to the company, her pretty, simple, naive ways being greatly in harmony with her delightful exposition of the title-rôle; Miss Dorothy Drake creditably acquits herself as Lady Sylvia; Miss Eve Erskine is a charming Violet; and Mrs Cropper and Butler of Miss Emily Levettez and Mr J. E. Watson are good impersonations. George Mudie's one-act farce, entitled His Landlady, precedes.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr Richard Thornton; General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Resident Manager, Mr Geo. F. Thompson.—An excellent programme is headed by the popular Mark Sheridan, eccentric comedian. His versatile ability is rewarded by roars of laughter and enthusiastic hand-clapping. The Anartos contribute an amusing musical sketch; The Lie Alarm is the title of a sketch wherein the Smythsons appear with great success; Tally-Ho Trio score heavily by their rendition of pleasing and genuinely funny ditties; Tennyson and Wallis are funny comedians; and the songs and dances of Edie King are appreciated. Eva Nelson is conspicuous for her singing and dancing. Gus Gauntlett is an able character comedian; and James Kurrie, eccentric comedian, is good.

TIVOLI.—Proprietors, Councillor J. K. Hall and Mr Jos. Sweeney.—Billy Ross and company, in a laughable sketch A Hot Member, is the star turn this week. That old favourite J. H. Kavanagh secures a warm reception by his clever imitations. Other excellent turns are furnished by Ethel Payne, ballad vocalist; W. H. Morgan, society vocalist; Earle and Melville, patter comedians and dancers; Nellie Ward, comedienne and vocalist; Schack Seebold, the Switzerland instrumentalist; and the Fordyces, the nimble nippers.

SPENNYMOOR.

CAMBRIDGE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr Harding Thomas; Resident Manager, Mr Herbert Vere.—Proof is the attraction at this theatre this week, and is admirably played by a capable company under the leadership of Mr and Mrs William Maclaren. The deeply injured hero, Pierre Lorance, could not be entrusted to abler hands than those of Mr Maclaren, and his performance proves acceptable in every way. Miss Lily C. Bandmann acts with power, tact, and discernment as Valentine. Miss Gertrude Evans as Adrienne is charming. Mr Richard Fulton as Lazare makes a picturesque villain, and comports himself in a manner befitting the character he sustains. Mr Ardene Linden finds himself performing a congenial task in impersonating the loyal, but quaint, Chamboran. As the Duke Mr Kingsford Pearce is sufficiently aristocratic, and Mr Alfred Wareing distinguishes himself as Victor. The Duchesse is ably handled by Miss Wynne Handley, Madame Deprets finds a spirited representative in Mrs S. Hay, and Julie is adequately dealt with by Miss Nellie Bilbe. On Friday evening The Lady of Lyons was staged for Miss Bandmann's benefit.

STAFFORD.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Jas. Elphinstone.—Mr F. R. Benson's north company is here for the week in a selection of plays including Romeo and Juliet, The Merry Wives of Windsor, and The School for Scandal. On Monday The Taming of the Shrew was presented to a crowded and delighted audience, and among the excellent cast special mention must be made of the scholarly readings of Mr H. Herbert as Petruchio, Mr F. Owen Chambers as Baptista, and Mr B. Limpus as Lucentio. The study of Katherine by Miss Dorothy Green was of a distinctly high order, and Miss Christie Lawes played Bianca with delicacy and taste.

ST. HELENS.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr M'Leod Loader.—Audiences are being delighted here this week with A Trip to Chinatown, excellently performed by Mr Leslie Norman's company. Mr Charles Seguin as Welland Strong proves himself to be a capable comedian; as Ben Gay Mr Jerrold Manville is highly successful; Mr Leslie Norman does well as Rashleigh Gay; and Mr Oswald Gray is good as Saxon Blood. Miss Harriet Fawn makes a captivating and tuneful Mrs Guyer; Miss Dorothy Vicott is a vivacious Flirt; and Miss Florrie M'Innes is a winsome and clever Tiny Gay. Other characters are ably sustained by Mr Will Smith, Mr S. Champion, Mr Ewart Drake, Misses Winifred Davies, Frances Erroll, Vera Grange, Daisy Cotton, and Maisie Stanley. Mr Augustus T. M'Innes is an efficient conductor, and the whole entertainment is thoroughly enjoyable.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs Barrasford, Sley, and Willmot; Resident Manager, Mr A. V. Carnell.—Miss Ella's lions are proving a strong attraction here. Mr Walter Munroe, Irish comedian, meets with a hearty reception. Mr Walter Emerson, comedian, evokes well-merited applause. Other good turns are Miss Flo Delghton, vocalist; Codge, siffleur; Mr Bob Gardner, vocalist; Hilton and Hilton, in a comedy bar act; Miss Edith Sylvesto, contortionist; and Fyne and Hurley, comedians.

MUSIC HALL GOSSIP.

Mr Charles Morton is taking a rest, but he has been up every day during the last week for several hours, and has occasionally visited the Palace Theatre for a short space. In answer to our inquiries at Mr Morton's residence in the Oval-road, Regent's-park, we learnt that on Thursday afternoon he took a carriage drive, and that he has much improved in health. There is, therefore, no ground for the alarmist reports current in the daily press. During his absence Mr Alfred Butt, the acting and business-manager, is officiating, and welcomed an immense house on Monday.

At the eleventh ordinary general meeting of the shareholders of the Palace Theatre, under the chairmanship of Count Max Hollander, sympathetic reference was made to the absence of Mr Charles Morton, owing to infirmity, which was only to be expected in a man of such advanced age. They hoped soon to see him back in excellent health. The veteran manager had expressed his unqualified satisfaction with the manner in which the house had been managed during his absence by Mr Alfred Butt.

The total receipts during the year amounted to about £3,500 less than in the previous year, while the expenditure was about the same as last year. The law expenses included nearly £200 in connection with the sketch prosecution. Owing to the state of the Stock Markets, and for the purpose of adjustment, the directors had reduced their Consols to par, representing a wiping off of about £1,000. The profits during the year amounted to £11,757, and, together with the balance brought forward from last year and other items, there was a total of £25,639. Out of that the directors had already paid an interim dividend of 7 per cent., and they now proposed a dividend of 5 per cent., making in all 12 per cent. for the year, carrying forward the sum of £14,839. The report was adopted unanimously, and Mr T. Ernest Polden, who moved its adoption, was re-elected a director.

An interesting outcome of the sketch trouble is the revival of the duologue on the music hall stage. To this form of stage play apparently the Theatrical Managers' Association has no objection, though we have yet to learn that the attitude of the representatives of the legitimate drama is more conciliatory. The duologue flourished a quarter of a century since, with such farceurs as Harvey and Connolly, Yates and Clifton, Keegan and Elvin, and many others, and they were severely let alone, while four and five part sketches were assailed through the action of the common informer. Notwithstanding legal alarums and excursions, The Fighting Parson is running merrily at the Oxford.

The scheme with which the directors of the Palace Theatre were associated for a new music hall to be built opposite the gallery entrance of the Oxford in the Tottenham-court-road has been abandoned so far as they are concerned. The plans prepared by Mr W. G. R. Sprague, architect of the Coronet, Camden, and Duchess, Balham, will possibly be carried out by a well-known firm of builders. The Palace members of the syndicate withdrew on a question involving an increased expenditure of £10,000 upon the building.

Mr B. Pearce Lucas, the managing-director, has determined on important structural alterations at the Bedford, High-street, Camden-town. There is a large stalls bar at the left-hand side of the hall, which is to be walled in, and will in future be occupied by the patrons of the pit. For the exclusive use of the stalls a new bar will be erected at the right-hand side of the auditorium. For the comfort of the waiting queue in wet weather a canopy is to be erected over the circle entrance and along the exterior side wall. These alterations will be carried out without in any way interfering with the entertainment given twice nightly under the management of Mr A. F. Lovesy.

Mr Harry Randall will be adding to the gaiety of London immediately. J. Bernard Dickson has furnished him with yet another of those delightful studies of cockney character, in which humour is blended with originality, and it is probable that the great comedian will essay a new comic song, entitled "There must have been a fire somewhere!" by Edgar Bateman and Sam Richards.

Mr E. E. Giles will be welcoming a large crowd to the Battersea Empire on Thursday evening next, when in association with a cohort of friends and well-wishers he will celebrate the second anniversary of that popular house under the new régime. The hall has had a chequered career; but it is now floating on the tide of a deserved prosperity, to which the popular "Teddy" has contributed not a little by his tactful energy and business experience. The special entertainment will be contributed to by a number of variety favourites.

Madame Mealy, who made her first appearance at the Palace Theatre on Monday, is well known here, for she sang in London in 1894. A pupil of Capoul, the Parisian favourite has in succession been a member of the Eldorado, the Menus-Plaisirs, and the Variétés companies. She is making a great hit in her laughing song, "Fou Rire," in which she ripples up and down the scale with perfectly true intonation. In the last verse she assumes the senile tones of an ancient beau, and is loudly applauded. When hearing Méaly one is irresistibly reminded of the lamented Alice Atherton, who made a hit in a similar song about eight years ago. In "Bon soir, Madame La Lune," the accomplished Frenchwoman, who is an artist au bout des ongles, shows an excellent command of the mezza voce, and she is altogether delightful. She wears a lovely Parisian frock, which we will not attempt to describe.

The eighth annual general meeting of the members of the Music Hall Artistes' Railway Association will be held on Tuesday, Oct. 18, at Gatti's, Westminster-bridge-road, commencing at 11·30 prompt. Mr Harry Mountford will occupy the chair. The attention of members is particularly called to the fact that those wishing to serve on the Executive Committee for the ensuing year must send in their names to the chairman of the committee on or before Tuesday next. Also that any member desirous of placing any proposition before the general meeting must send the same to the secretary on or before the same date, so that it can be placed on the agenda paper.

When Professor Dewar first gave a demonstration of the marvels of liquid air the whole world was startled, because the ocular demonstrations given upset all previous ideas of natural laws, but Dr. Maxim Boyd, D.Sc., will go further in these experiments on Monday afternoon next at the London Hippodrome, and produce a scientific entertainment, entitled "The Mysterious Kettle." Besides performing such ordinary feats as cooking a steak on ice, he will show how it is possible to wash linen in a silk hat without the aid of water, to light a cigar with the vapour from the liquid air, to poach eggs in a frying-pan on a block of ice in less time than it takes to tell, and to make ice-cream on a bright fire in a frying-pan. He will also petrify flowers and fruit supplied by the audience. Perhaps the most extraordinary thing in this connection is the marvellous way in which a quantity of quicksilver placed in a red-hot vessel is converted into a hammer by solidification.

The third English Magic Kettle company sailed from New York on Wednesday, and Mr Benjamin F. Taylor, who holds all the patent rights in connection with the act, intends sending other similar combinations into our own provinces shortly.

The Britannia Music Hall, Glasgow, is unable to open its doors on Monday next, as arranged, owing to the licensing authorities stepping in at the last minute and demanding extensive alterations.

The Manchester Palace of Varieties is the latest provincial hall to adopt the bi-nightly programme, and the new order of things will start on Monday the 31st inst. It will also be interesting to our readers to know that Mr Peter Watson has completed an arrangement whereby he will book in connection with the Barrasford tour.

The question of the licence of the Victoria Theatre, Broughton, again came before the Watch Committee of the Salford Corporation on Monday, Sept. 26. This theatre has been converted into a variety house, and consequently comes under the restriction of the Council that intoxicating drink must not be sold on the premises. On Monday Mr Desquesnes appeared for the management of the theatre and asked for an extension of the existing excise licence, pointing out that certain contracts had been entered into which, if broken, would mean a big financial loss to the parties concerned. He asked the committee to grant them six months' time. The application was granted. Mr F. Brocklehurst appeared for certain debenture holders.

Owing to the kindness of Mr Richard Thornton, proprietor of the Empire Palace, South Shields, a contingent of 500 tars from the Channel Fleet stationed, at the time of writing, at the mouth of the Tyne, under the command of Lord Charles Beresford, were entertained at a special matinée on Wednesday. The overture march, "Go to Sea" (Trotère), dedicated to Lord Charles Beresford, was given in fine style by the Empire orchestra, under Mr C. P. Loller's experienced bâton.

The Great Yarmouth Corporation, which owns the Wellington Pier Pavilion and Gardens in that popular watering-place, has reason to be proud of its enterprise this year. The entertainments have been so well attended that nearly £2,000 more has been taken this season than last, and it is hoped that £500 will be voted towards the reduction of the rates.

The Bloatertown Corporation secured a smart manager in Mr Harry Tunbridge, who resigned his seat on the Town Council to take the appointment. He was responsible for the initiation of the Thursday fêtes, strong variety programmes, and good band attractions. He is now already filling his book with engagements for next season. How difficult that task is may be gauged by the fact that stars are booked ahead for the next four or five years.

Herr C. Adolf Seebold is relinquishing the tenancy of the Pier Pavilion, Southend-on-Sea, which he has held for about five years. He has taken over the Worthing Theatre, which will be opened in November.

Mr George Knowles, the acting-manager of the Royal Theatre of Varieties, Oldham, has had a busy time with the local magistrates and his applications for children's licences. The recent application for the two youngest of the Kremo Family was refused on the Saturday previous to their advertised appearance on Monday. But Mr Knowles was not to be defeated, and his strenuous efforts and persistency prevailed. He submitted their certificates, proving their scholastic ability, and the licence was granted.

Vere and Royal and Barney Stuart, who are appearing this week at the Queen's Palace, Rhyl, were responsible for some very acceptable fun at the cycle carnival held at the Welsh watering-place this week. In the parade Barney Stuart, got up as an old Irishwoman, wheeled in an old-fashioned perambulator Percy Vere, dressed as a baby with the necessary milk bottle, &c. The "infant" was labelled "The long-lost son, Bill Bailey."

During the past season the Alexandra Palace has made a profit of £1,000. Hitherto there has always been a loss. It is pleasant to know that the public appreciates the capital musical and dramatic fare provided in this beautifully situated people's palace on the northern heights.

Miss Tina Transfield, daughter of Mr T. G. Transfield, proprietor of the Hippodromes, Maidstone, New Brompton, and Sheerness, has again had the misfortune to lose another valuable horse. The animal some few days ago received a nasty kick, but was just recovering, when on Wednesday it unfortunately slipped and fell in the stable, breaking its hind leg. With much regret the poor beast had to be at once destroyed.

Messrs Walton and Lester, "The World's Worst Wizards," will return to town next week after a lengthy provincial tour, and will appear in the forthcoming pantomime at the Brixton Theatre, playing the Two Chinese policemen in Aladdin. They are first in the field with a skit on the latest sensation, "The Magic Kettle," and demonstrate the wonderful feat of boiling the ice in the kettle.

The Brighton Corporation will be relieved probably of the burden of its responsibilities in connection with its Aquarium. Having lost more than £10,000 on this municipal enterprise in four years, the managing committee decided to obtain offers for renting the institution. They have now received a favourable proposal from Mr Sallmayor, an American gentleman, which they unanimously recommend the Town Council to accept. Mr Sallmayor offers to pay a rental of £1,000 a-year, with four per cent. on expenditure for necessary improvements, and also a heavy insurance premium. He intends to rely chiefly on the piscatorial attractions. High-class musical entertainments will also be provided.

A pleasing incident took place at the Hippodrome, Norwich, on Saturday night, when the Sheriff of Norwich, Colonel Leathes Prior, attended and made a formal presentation to Corporal William Jenkins—a Crimean veteran—of a bag containing £5. The Colonel, who came on to the stage, accompanied by Mr F. W. Fitt, explained that Mr Leyton, during his professional engagements, had made a practice of endeavouring to assist those who had served their country in war, and had been instrumental in obtaining £600 for deserving veterans. As the result of the week in Norwich, he (the Sheriff) had much pleasure in handing to Corporal Jenkins a bag containing £5, while, in addition, he had received for the Norfolk Veterans' Association funds a further sum of £8.

Colonel Prior also announced that he had been handed—as the result of the recent anniversary performance at the Hippodrome, when the entire proceeds of the first house were promised for charity—a cheque for £33 11s. 8d. This, with the approval of Messrs Bostock and Fitt, he proposed to divide between the Norfolk and Norwich Hospital and the Jenny Lind Infirmary. On behalf of the citizens he tendered thanks to the proprietors, mentioning that this was the second instance of their liberality, as £33 had been given to the Norfolk War Memorial Fund on the occasion of the opening. The ceremony concluded with thanks to the Sheriff and the "Jolly good fellow" chorus, followed by hearty cheering.

The 374th meeting of the Executive Committee of the M.H.A.R.A. was held on Tuesday afternoon, Mr Harry Mountford presiding. The secretary reported that thirty-four new members had joined during the past week, making the total number enrolled since the commencement of 10,582. The procedure to be adopted at the general meeting was discussed, after which the meeting was adjourned.

Mr and Mrs Charles Coborn left Liverpool for Canada on Friday per the Cunard liner Etruria, and will return early in November in order that Mr Coborn may be able to fulfil engagements on the Moss Empires tour and other business.

It is good news to hear that Chirgwin, the humorist in "black and white," is returning to town after a tour in the land of the heather. The popular Kaffir has always sung most respectfully of the thistle, and his receptions in Aberdeen and other Scotch towns have been something tremendous. He will make a stay of four months in London—welcome news, indeed, for the lovers of variety.

The Grand Theatre, Fulham, which is to be opened as a variety house on the bi-nightly system, is now under the management of Mr Jack De Frece, who has not yet been able to fix a date for the starting of variety. Licensing and other difficulties will cause him to postpone the reopening until some time in November.

Mr J. E. Pickering, the valued box-office manager of the Empire for the past twenty years, has no intention of leaving his post; in fact, his services are so much thought of by the directors that they would not hear of any such change. We are requested by Mr Pickering to correct the statement that Mr H. Fox, of the Grand Hall, Clapham, has been offered the post at the Leicester-square Empire, and we regret its appearance in The Era.

Mr Leopold Wenzel, the composer, who was for so many years the orchestral chief of the Empire, where he wrote the music for many of the most successful ballets produced there, has been engaged by Mr George Edwardes as musical director for the American production of The Duchess of Dantzic in New York, in January.

The anniversaries at the Canterbury always possess an historical interest, and Mr Fred Miller will endeavour to make the fifty-second event of the kind a worthy successor to the many that have gone before. The celebration is fixed for Friday, Nov. 25, when we may expect to see an immense gathering of leading music-hall proprietors and financiers in the front, and a very large contingent of volunteer entertainers on the stage.

Mr Fred Millis, the popular ventriloquist, whose interest in the Music Hall Artistes' Railway Association has been proved by much unobtrusive work, will take his departure from these shores a day or two before Christmas for his beloved Australia, where he will fulfil a series of engagements with Mr Harry Rickards. Mr Millis will be revisiting familiar scenes after an absence of twenty years. In the days of his youth he had adventurous tours in the land of the Southern Cross and in New Zealand as a member of a company playing the Gilbert and Sullivan operas. He is very popular in our newest republic and in the land of the Maori.

Mr Leon Zeitlin, who is the new secretary and acting-manager at the Chelsea Palace, has been for some time filling the post of secretary to Mr Henri Gros at the Metropolitan. He has learnt much under the guidance of Mr Jack Edgar, and has the goodwill of a number of friends in his new position. Mr Zeitlin has the glorious privilege of youth, and has plenty of energy and capacity for hard work. He has received many congratulations on his appointment.

Mr Chris Davis, the author of A Day at the Races, Blue-Eyed Sarah, and other monologue burlesque dramas for Mr George Mozart, has collaborated with Mr Harry Castling in a new satirical scena entitled Callers for the same comedian. Mr Davis has also waitten Won by a Neck, a racing skit that will burlesque the familiar situations of Flying Scud and other famous turf dramas. Mr George Mozart has taken to golf, but his experiences with Mr George Lashwood at Hull last week were not altogether fortunate, as he injured his knee while playing at Brough, just outside the town on the Wash. He was, however, sufficiently recovered from his accident to appear at the London Pavilion on Tuesday.

Mrs J. E. Cheevers, the popular wife of Mr J. E. Cheevers (of Cheevers and Kennedy), entered the Hospital for Women in Soho-square this week preparatory to undergoing an operation. We join with the lady's many friends in wishing her a complete recovery.

Park's Eton Boys escaped what might have been a most serious accident on Saturday. Whilst crossing the tram lines on their journey to the Empress, Brixton, from the London, the off-side wheel of their trap collapsed, throwing the boys in a heap in the road. Mr Willie Benn, their manager, jumped from the driver's box, got the boys safely out, and they were able to catch their turn. Although shaken up, the youngsters performed with their usual brilliancy.

Many will regret to learn of the serious accident which befel Miss Maud Walsh (the lady partner of Mountford and Walsh) last Saturday. After the Oxford matinée, and while leaving Frascati's, after dinner, Miss Walsh had the misfortune to slip and break her elbow. She was instantly removed to the Middlesex Hospital, where she now lies in a bad condition.

M. Antoine Cloetens, the new chef d'orchestre at the Tivoli, has been twenty-seven years in this country, and therefore his sympathies are quite English. For his musical training the Brussels Conservatoire is responsible, and at this admirable school he mastered the principles of harmony and orchestration, and became an excellent violinist, being a pupil of the now deceased M. Colleynes. At a later period he became musical director at the Eldorado. He was engaged for the Royal Aquarium orchestra by M. Charles Dubois, who succeeded Mr (afterwards Sir) George Mount in the conductorship, and he was for many years leader with the Cavaliere Del Bono, the last to hold the position of director of the music at the now defunct place of entertainment in Tothill-street. M. Cloetens's position at the Tivoli is not altogether a new one, as he conducted the orchestra there during Mr Maurice Jacobi's illness, and has occupied the position of leader. He took up his duties on Saturday evening. We should add that before his departure from the Tivoli the members of the orchestra presented their departing chief with a handsomely mounted silk umbrella, the gift being accompanied by many good wishes for Mr Jacobi's success in his new sphere of operations at the London Coliseum.

Mr Arthur J. Barclay, the popular manager of the Walthamstow Palace, has just been the recipient of a very pleasing testimonial from the Wood-street Philanthropic Society. It may be remembered that some weeks ago Mr Barclay kindly granted the use of the Palace for a ticket benefit in aid of the local hospitals, organised by the Society. The benefit proved a big success, and the funds of the charities were materially assisted. In return for the generous treatment they received from Mr Barclay on that occasion the members of the committee have had themselves photographed by Messrs Wright, of Walthamstow, and the result has been presented as a memento of the occasion. The group rejoices in a beautiful Florentine frame of English gold, and will form no inconsiderable ornament to Mr Barclay's private picture-gallery. A tablet attached to the frame bears the inscription:—"Presented to Arthur J. Barclay, Esq., by the Members of the Wood-street Philanthropic Society as a token of esteem, Sept. 20, 1904."

After an absence of over two years, Miss Harriett Vernon is paying a welcome return visit to Dublin. She opened at the Empire last Monday, and was accorded a hearty reception. Her songs were sung with sweetness of expression and style, and her dresses were a revelation in stage costumery.

Miss Lily Burnand is by way of making a departure from town for many weeks, and will commence her tour on Monday at the Tivoli, Manchester, following on to the Moss Circuit. The lovely Lily's return will be looked for by her numberless admirers in town. She has secured a very warm place in the hearts of audiences at the London, Shoreditch.

Miss Maude Courtney, who has just returned to the Palace Theatre after an absence of nearly two years, is an American, and was responsible for not a little of the first popularity of "The honeysuckle and the bee." She has recited and sung snatches of songs all her life, but her professional début may be said to have come about by accident. She was asked to help at a benefit in New York. A manager in search of unconventional talent happened to be in "front," and showed his approval of the vivacious amateur by offering her an engagement. She made her first hit—like Trilby—with the old English ballad, "Sweet Alice Ben Bolt."

Miss Millie Lindon, who is working four halls a-night, singing her first song at Collins's at the beginning of the programme and her last at Hammersmith at the very end, with the Tivoli and the London, Shoreditch, in between, is a cousin of the talented group of sisters who are so well-known on the stage by the quaint, assumed names of Millie Hylton, Letty Lind, Adelaide Astor, Fanny Dango, and Lydia Flopp. Miss Lindon made her début, after a few weeks on tour, at the London Pavilion about ten years ago, when she was a little girl in short frocks, and gave imitations of R. G. Knowles and poor Bessie Bellwood. One of her souvenirs of this engagement, which lasted for four months, is the characteristic crush hat, somewhat dilapidated in appearance, that the American humourist presented to her to wear for her imitation of himself, and another is a hat and shawl that belonged to Miss Bellwood, also presented with the idea that it should be used on the stage.

Although Miss Lindon works all the year round—she is going to play principal boy next Christmas at the Prince's Theatre, Manchester, to the Cinderella of Miss Ida Rene—she finds time to motor, swim, ride, cycle, and play golf. A Londoner by birth, she is very fond of country life, and never so happy as when she is tramping over a links in Scotland, wearing the high strong boots, short skirt, knitted blouse, and tam-o'-shanter of a vigorous golfer. She is much attached to animals and birds, and her pets include a fox-terrier, a pug, a big green parrot and a couple of red Cardinals, very pretty birds that a friend brought to her from South America. Another of her hobbies is collecting odd pieces of old silver and souvenir spoons. Miss Lindon has one sister, whose stage name is Miss Gwen Howard.

Happy Fanny Fields made a welcome reappearance at the Tivoli and the Oxford this week, with new songs, patter, dances, and the prettiest little Dutch costume made of pale pink silk, with a tiny lace apron, and a big white cap adorned with a scarlet bow. She has been spending ten weeks in America, having visited the St. Louis Exposition, Chicago, and Detroit. Miss Fields recently bought some land in New York city, on which she has built a very pretty house, but as she is booked for a provincial tour at the end of her London season it will probably be a long time before she will have an opportunity of seeing it again. Having started her career in musical comedy before she went on the variety stage Happy Fanny thinks of returning in the future to that branch of professional work. She is now studying singing with that end in view.

Miss Gipsy Woolf, who made such a brilliant success in the last Christmas pantomime produced at the Britannia, is advancing her claims as a bright and bewitching burlesque artiste at Mellini's Theater, Hanover. So favourable is Continental opinion concerning her abilities that she is topping the bill—a position of which she is naturally very proud. Miss Woolf appears with six piccaninnies in a most delightful scena. She is a very attractive brunette, and is the daughter of Mr J. Woolf, of Wonderland, Whitechapel.

For some length of time Mr J. Woolf, the proprietor of Wonderland, has been making collections on behalf of various hospitals and charities, and some three months ago he handed over to the London Hospital the sum of £38, for which he was made a life governor. Last week six more of his boxes were opened, and instead of giving all the money to the one hospital, Mr Woolf decided to distribute it to various hospitals and charities. Of course he did not forget professional needs, and sent £2 12s. 6d. to the Music Hall Benevolent Fund, and the same amount each to the Music Hall Home and the Actors' Benevolent Fund. Mr Woolf is continuing this good work, in which he is very enthusiastic.

Miss Amy Leggett, who gives so charming a performance as the electrified statue in the comedy-sketch played by the Leggett Combination under the title of The Maid of Athens, is leaving the combination in a week or two, and, in conjunction with her husband, Mr Eric Calcott, will be working an entirely new act, the twain henceforth being known as the Calcotts. Miss Leggett's talents as an actress are too well known to need any compliment, whilst her graceful and artistic movements in her clever dancing once caused an enthusiastic admirer to eulogistically describe it as "the perfection of the poetry of motion." Her husband (who is a brother of Mr W. Scott Phipp, the popular theatrical manager) is a clever comedian and gifted musician, who is equally at home with the pianoforte, 'cello, and banjo. The act is quite unique in its versatility, and already has secured numerous contracts.

Mr R. G. Knowles, who finished a highly successful engagement at the Tivoli and Oxford on Saturday, commenced at the Hackney Empire, on Monday, a ten weeks' tour of the Stoll circuit. He will cross the streak early in December, and open in New York on Dec. 19, remaining there till March 18, and opening again in London on March 27.

The directors of Collins's have carried out the Tivoli idea of a joint acting-management, and Mr Harry Lyons and Mr Norman Mills are the gentlemen who are, between them, presiding over the fortunes of the house. In regard to Mr Harry Lyons, it may be mentioned that he has had a varied professional career. Starting in the minstrel and diorama business, he subsequently drifted into resident management, filling the position of acting-manager at the Queen's Theatre, Birmingham, for nine years. He also ran a dramatic agency in that city. As far back as 1885 he worked in conjunction with Mr Harry Battersby, and together they had the control of a variety agency in Liverpool.

Curiously enough, the first music hall Mr Lyons ever visited as a member of the public was the very establishment which he is now assisting to manage. Mr Lyons thinks that it is a strange fate that has brought him to a theatre within half-a-mile of where he was born, and after he had spent twenty years in the provinces. Since leaving Birmingham he has only had one engagement. He was the only English business manager for the Williams and Walker In Dahomey company when that attraction went on tour. Mr Lyons is a very popular man in professional circles.

Miss Lil Hawthorne has accepted a very pretty song, written by Mr G. R. Sims, and composed by Mr Garnet Wolseley Cox, entitled "Lily of Lisson Grove. Mr Sims some time since wrote very sympathetically concerning "Liza of Camden Town," an interesting young person who used to dance on the pavement in the moonlight.

So well pleased are the patrons of the Empire with the new edition of High Jinks that there seems little need for a new ballet much before Christmas, the subject of which is now under the consideration of the directors. Next week there will be some changes in the programme of the variety theatre in Leicester-square, as, in addition to Mdlle. Marguerite Cornille with a répertoire of new songs, Mr Sweet as the musical burglar, Syd May with his amusing imitations of popular artists, the clever performances of Georges Schindler on the mouth organ, and the up-to-date Biograph, there will be Melot Herman, the prestidigitateur, and Tom Browne, the whistler, both old favourites with Empire audiences.

A novel attraction in the Tivoli bill next week will be Dr. Jules Angelo and company in representations of groups of Sèvres and Dresden China; and among the old favourites to be welcomed will be Harry Randall, Will Evans, Nellie Wallace, the Twin Andersons, and the Glenroy Troupe.

Mr David Day has received permission from Boosey and Co. to use a few bars of the music of that beautiful Irish ballad "Come Back to Erin." This was one of the most successful of the many scored by the gifted melodist who in the sixties and seventies poured forth from a country parsonage a number of songs that were sung in every concert-room where the English language was understood. The portions of "Come Back to Erin" that are permitted have been introduced into a song that is to be produced shortly by Mr Michael Nolan, and which Messrs Murphy and Castling have written

Messrs C. W. Murphy and Dan Lipton when they provided Miss Victoria Monks with her song, "Ain't I no use, Mister Jackson?" undoubtedly put her in possession of an excellent number. The song is being received at the Palace Theatre nightly with great applause, the habitués of Mr Morton's house having taken more than kindly to the song, which, by the way, is published by Charles Sheard and Co. Miss Monks has another number in study by the same writers.

Never has a larger audience assembled at the Queen's Palace, Rhyl, than that which patronised the benefit given to Mr Percy Ashfield, the popular managing-director, on Thursday, the 22nd ult. Not the least acceptable item in a very attractive programme was the recitation "The Queen's Defence," given by Mr Ashfield. It was declaimed with great force and elocutionary skill. Afterwards Mr Ashfield, who came in for a cordial reception, took the opportunity of thanking the audience for so generously supporting his first benefit, and also thanked the artistes who had given their services, many of them having come specially from Liverpool and Manchester.

At the conclusion of the performance of For the Honour of the Regiment, by Mr Frank Hardie and company at the Metropolitan on Saturday, that date being the fifth anniversary of this popular sketch, Miss Irene Carlton was presented with two beautiful baskets of flowers. It is a noteworthy fact that Miss Carlton, Messrs Frank Hardie, William Felton, and George Grahame, who still represent the characters of this interesting little piece, are all members of the original cast.

Mr George Gilbey has just acquired a new dialogue-song, which deals very humorously with an individual named "Spouty." It is from the prolific pen of William Hargreaves, who was the writer of Mr Gilbey's well-known success, "Why?" The same writer has also supplied Miss Queenie Leighton, who is principal boy this year at Drury-lane, with a number entitled "The Lighthouse fell into the water."

Hackenschmidt's farewell appearances in England, prior to his departure for Australia on Monday last, occurred at the Palace, Manchester, on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday of last week. The most notable of his achievements during the three performances was the overthrow on Friday evening of Axa, the German champion, who stands 6ft. 5in., and weighs nineteen stone. This he accomplished in less than eight minutes, after a keen struggle. Hackenschmidt returns to England in June next.

Mr Ernest Bridgen, acting-manager of the Granville, has been relieving many worthy people of a great deal of uneasiness. A Mr Arthur Norris, who has been giving much anxiety to his friends by his sudden disappearance, had, it appears, placed himself under the care of Mr Ahrensmeyer, the cowboy hypnotist, for treatment for nervousness. The parents of young Norris knew nothing of this, and could not account for his sudden departure from his home at Bath. A portrait in a daily contemporary, however, enabled Mr Bridgen to identify Mr Norris as the wanderer, and he communicated with the distracted father, who feared his son had committed suicide. Mr Bridgen is intensely practical, but he is also very kind, and until proper provision has been made for young Norris's care at home he is his guest.

Mr Harry Mountford (of Mountford and Walsh), who has been performing solus since the lady member of this popular duo sustained an unfortunate accident, has just acquired for immediate production two social song satires from the joint pens of Messrs John P. Harrington and George Le Brunn, entitled "Popularity" and "Has that ever occurred to you?" Other songs are being prepared for Mr Mountford by the same prolific author and composer.

Mr Horace Marriott, the indefatigable secretary of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund, reports that Mr Frank Weeks has forwarded £4 16s. 9d. from the South London pence boxes. This amount, together with previous sums forwarded, makes a grand total of just upon £50. If every manager in the United Kingdom would help the fund to the same extent there would be little necessity for seeking subscriptions elsewhere.

Mr F. W. Venton, who has been associated for some years with the conductorship of the Empress, Brixton, orchestra, relinquishes his position at that house this evening. He was for some time leader at the old Cambridge, when under the management of Mr E. V. Page, and he succeeded Mr Fred Riddle in the position of chef d'orchestre on that gentleman's death. He is one of the most popular "arrangers" in the profession.

Mr and Mrs Edward H. Lucas deputised on Saturday at the Britannia in consequence of the unavoidable absence of Sinclair and Whiteford. At ten minutes' notice they put on an original sketch entitled Cough-Mixture, which was so successful that Mr T. Barrasford, jun., asked them to repeat it in the second house.

Miss Lydia Yeamans and her husband sailed from Liverpool on Thursday by the White Star liner Runic for Australia. Harry Wright went on board to bid them bon voyage to the new republic.

Mr Whit Cunliffe opens with Mr Tom Barrasford at the Hippodrome, Brighton, on Monday. His latest success, "Up in Scotland," published by Francis, Day, and Hunter, has already been sold to Howard and Wyndham for three pantomimes.

THE LONDON MUSIC HALLS.

THE PARAGON.

Fun abounds in the current programme arranged by Mr George Adney Payne for the delectation of the inhabitants of the far Orient who seek the necessary relaxation from toil within the four walls of the fine palace in the Mile-end-road. We have comedy, extravaganza, bright farce, pantomimic humour, and eccentric comedy, and surely no lover of variety could require more. Mr Charles Beecham, who overseers the entertainment, has a genuine appreciation of a smartly worked programme. He has, therefore, eliminated the term "waits" from the catalogue of possibilities, and from the time Mr A. Grimmett and his orchestra start the overture until the strains of "God Save the King" float over the departing crowd there is no such thing as a dull moment. Early in the evening Mr Will Dalton sings amid many manifestations of hearty sympathy a song that has been suggested to its author by the much-discussed Beck case, which is still sub judice. The Lyons Trio of pantomimists and dancers are particularly happy in their exposition of whimsical business, and are loudly applauded from stalls to gallery. Versatility and breeziness mark the doings of the New York Nippers, who are endowed with sweet voices and a genuine gift for Terpsichorean revels. The antics of the youngsters in their dormitory have the touch of obvious humour which appeals most irresistibly to to the Paragonians. There are surprises galore in the versatile turn of Starr and Leslie, described as speciality artists. The term is a particularly vague one; but in this instance it might be supposed to indicate to the audience that Mr Starr is a particularly clever juggler with clubs, and that he has a quaintness and quietness of method in his fun which is certainly irresistible. He is apparently seated on the bough of a tree when the curtain goes up, and his manœuvres are almost as funny as those of our mimic army when it invades our coasts. There is a wonderful lamp in the act, which changes colour even more quickly that a rustic maid, and Miss Leslie sings very charmingly. Another sentimental vocalist whose songs are received with the heartiest applause is Miss Grace Merton, known as the "street singer." There is a romance attached to this lady, which has already been told in these columns; but her vocal attainments are sufficient to secure her fame without any extraneous aid. She chooses ballads that are not in the ordinary groove, and makes a decided hit with the late Frank L. Moir's "Down the Vale," which is poetic in conception and very melodious, without being commonplace. Mr Austin Rudd, an eccentric comedian who is extremely popular here, has a parody on "Pansy Faces," which may be called "Fancy Places." Its comicality is easily "understanded of the people," and it secures the singer many recalls. The Boisset Troupe return to the Paragon time after time with the same speechless farces, but it must be confessed that East-end audiences welcome these productions with the same heartiness as if they were entirely new. The Evening Party, in some shape or other, has always been a strong card with the combination, and its humours seem to afford as much delight as they did ten years ago. The diminutive comedian who plays the professor is the exponent of quaint vagaries which keep the house in a roar, and the adventures with a sticky flypaper keep the audience in one vast, substantial smile. The great attraction of the bill is the appearance of Mr Joe Peterman's company of comedians and burlesque artistes in the musical extravaganza, in three episodes, The Belle of the Orient, to the representation of which a long cast does complete justice. Mr Joe Peterman himself gives humorous effect to the part of Ike Novinski; Mr Foster Courtenay may be unreservedly praised for his artistic efforts as Alfonso; and Miss Madoline Rees is a decidedly attractive representative of Ruth Verney. The dance of the harem girls is a fascinating feature of a pretty show, which is well illustrated by some excellent scenery from the artistic brush of Mr Francis H. Bull. Other turns in the fine and large programme are the Zaro acrobatic troupe of ladies and gentlemen; Mr Ormond Penstone and Madame De Vernet, illusionists; Mr Bob Hutt, a comedian with eccentric notions that are heartily enjoyed; and Mr Richard Mackway's London Glee Men, who are heard to advantage in such part-songs as Purcell's "Oh! who will o'er the downs," Elizabeth Stirling's "All among the barley," and "Hail, smiling morn."

THE METROPOLITAN.

On Tuesday, at this hall, was produced a duologue, by Charles Windermere, entitled

"WHAT UNCLE DID."

Charlie Spotter..... Mr CHARLES WINDERMERE
Dorothy Meadows ..... Miss CLARE MANIFIELD

This brightly written little piece, which had a favourable reception upon its production at the Metropolitan on Tuesday evening, was originally produced at the Duchess Theatre, Balham, under the title of Clause No. 6, on Dec. 29, 1902. Charlie Spotter has become a property owner through the decease of an uncle, an old gentleman of an eccentric turn of mind. This property consists of some half-dozen cottages in the country, to each of which their late owner had given a Biblical name. Clause six of the old man's will directs that his nephew Charlie shall only retain possession of the cottages on condition that he marries his cousin, Dorothy Meadows, whom he has never met. Charlie, while pondering over the strange clause in his deceased uncle's will, is interrupted by a visit from a charming young lady, who informs him that she is the tenant of one of his cottages, known as Ararat. The place, she says, is in a disgraceful condition, unfit for any one to live in, and she proceeds to give a long account of its many defects. The new landlord laughs at her recital, and she vexed at his unconcern bursts into tears. He offers her an apple obtained from "the garden of Eden," the name of another of his cottages, and it is quickly evident that the young people entertain a mutual admiration for each other. Charlie thinks seriously of setting at defiance clause six of his uncle's will, for it is a case of love at first sight, but is restrained by motives of prudence. He promises that her grievances shall receive attention, and she retires; but he recalls her, and then a chance remark reveals the fact that his visitor is no other than his cousin Dorothy. Thus clause six of the avuncular will is manifestly in the way of being fulfilled to the letter. The author of the duologue played briskly the part of Charlie Spotter, and Miss Clare Manifield represented Dorothy Meadows very naturally and pleasantly. Amongst the general company engaged here is Mr Sid Bandon, who has a descriptive song, the heroine of which is Nell, a signalman's daughter. An obstruction had been placed upon the line by some wicked person, and Nell, by means of her father's lamp, is enabled to stop an approaching train, and save the lives of the passengers. Mr Bandon, in the character of an engine-driver, gives a most effective rendering of the song. Miss Florrie Forde does well with the song, "What is the use of a man?" and is even more successful in her second selection, the ditty which draws attention to the delights of the famous "Bull and Bush" at Hampstead. The audience takes up the chorus with vigour, and, being again recalled with much enthusiasm, she gives "Mary had a little lamb," a modern version of the old nursery rhyme. Mr George Robey, who receives a hearty greeting, has a capital song in "Say no more about it," and his embodiment of a Roman gladiator is one of the funniest features of the evening's programme. His appearance alone is sufficient to cause a shout of merriment. Mr Charles Adams, comedian, does a clever imitation of a mild curate, a Jew, and a coster as seen and heard under various circumstances. Miss Dora Grieve, who comes next, sings with appropriate expression "I want someone to love me," and on her second appearance she gives "You want a little white girl," assisted by a lad in the circle, who sings the refrain. Miss Maud Esmond must be credited with a charming rendering of "Ma lily of the valley," and Miss Lillie Soutter has a ditty concerning a "very respectable, nice young man" named Joe, who proposes to buy a pub at Kew. Miss Soutter, who has a bright, merry style, also makes a hit with "I'm a lady all the time." Mr Charles Faning gives an extremely amusing account of an interview with Mr Plowden, the magistrate, and his subsequent incarceration in one of His Majesty's prisons. Mr James Stewart displays his musical ability as the "tramp at he piano," and the clver performance is heartily applauded. Miss Amber Austa wins favour as a coon singer and dancer. The couple known as Booker and Narbis do well in a duologue called The Interviewer. Miss Lilian Doreen, the charming contralto, makes good use of her excellent voice, one of her selections being the religious song, "Abide with me." Mr George Newburn's clever mimicry is greatly appreciated, and Mr Fred Russell with Coster Joe is as amusing as ever. Mr George Gray and company are appearing in The Fighting Parson, and Captain Bevan's New York Zouaves are seen in their remarkable drilling and wall-scaling act entitled The Handy Man, concluding with the sensational performance entitled "Storming the Fort." The front of the house is carefully looked after by Mr J. W. Edgar.

CHELSEA PALACE.

The Chelsea bill may be said to teem with variety. Novelty showmen, eccentric comedians, soubrettes, a wonderful mule, clever dogs, and acrobats vie with each other in the attractions presented, and the excellent bill winds up with a new stirring dramatic episode entitled Right's Right, which is cleverly presented by Messrs Adderley Howard and company, and proves to be interesting and well written. Squire Darkley, the principal villain of the piece, seems to be the wicked uncle of the story, for some years previous to the raising of the curtain he had hired a ruffian named Buster to "lose" a couple of children. Buster had left one on London-bridge, but the other he has always kept with him. She goes by the name of Venus, and we see her a ragged little tramp devouring turnips purloined from a neighbouring field. The other foundling has been adopted by a benevolent farmer named Watson, and is known as Cherry. It is this girl that Darkley is now anxious to find, as in a locket which she wears round her neck is secreted her mother's marriage certificate, and, what is more desirable still, a diamond of considerable value. By the aid of Buster, Darkley gets Cherry into his power, and the poor girl is immured in a bare cold chamber. Venus is willing to aid the unhappy girl, and the two are about to escape when Buster enters and tells Venus that Cherry is her sister, at the same time taunting the unkempt one with the difference in their appearance. This has the desired effect, and for a time Venus is inclined to roughly handle her gentler sister, but in a powerful and well-acted scene the two orphans are reconciled, and both determine to escape together. Their plans are again fustrated by Buster; but Farmer Watson, who has been put on the right track, forces an entrance, and takes the two sisters away. In the next scene—a pretty rural set—Venus has undergone a complete transformation—at least to all outward appearances. Darkley plays his last card when he sends Buster to impersonate the father of the girls; but the shrewdness of Venus easily penetrates the disguise, and she gives Buster a lively time with a pitchfork. The happiness of the virtuous is effectually secured before the curtain falls. The sketch has a domestic atmosphere, and though there is sufficient excitement, it is by no means highly sensational, and is plentifully besprinkled with humour. To the drolleries of Venus Miss Dolly Elsworthy does complete justice, and in the more serious passages, where the undisciplined temper of the neglected waif is allowed to have full play, the young actress is intensely dramatic. Miss Fay Vayne displays refinement and gentleness in the part of Cherry; Mr G. Wareham acts effectively the callous Squire Darkley; Mr Adderley Howard makes Farmer Watson an embodiment of geniality and kindliness; Mr Frederic Monti puts plenty of colour into the part of Buster; and the Artful Dodger of Mr Charles Wilson has a repentant mood that is warmly encouraged by the Chelsonians The humour of the variety portion of the programme is largely increased by the stage behaviour of Miss Lily Soutter, who sings of being "A lady all the time," and acts as "sich." The Bostons prove conclusively that the cake walk has gone to the dogs by the clever performance of the canines they have trained. The "Bull-fight" is still a strong card with these performers, and a clever step-dance by the younger Boston is loudly applauded. Miss Emma Don and her black and white quartet are extremely popular. There are two coloured and two white kiddies, and one of them sings very successfully "I want to see the dear old home again." Miss Don herself is sympathetic and telling in her rendering of "You have to take the sunshine with the rain." The quartet sing and dance, and the whole entertainment meets with success. Mr Dan Thomas is popular in a female impersonation; and Miss Kitty Neville sings "Oh, poor Bertie, he must have been a jay" with much unction. The Andreassen Brothers show marvellous strength of arm as acrobats, somersaulters, &c.; and Burke, Andrus, and Frisco, with their whimsical mule, submit a capital bit of fooling. Mr Leon Zeitlin has been appointed acting-manager and secretary here in the place of Mr Harry Bawn, who has gone to the Grand, Clapham. Mr Edward Swanborough is a majestic figure and a popular manager; and Mr Angelo Asher directs an excellent band.

MISS NELLIE WILSON, who makes so charming a principal boy in pantomime, has just returned from a short provincial tour, and appears on Monday at the Paragon. One of Miss Nellie Wilson's pantomime hits was at the Shakespeare Theatre, Liverpool.

WILKIE BARD, the seriously quaint comedian, who we all know has made a tremendous success in his particular line of business, has just been booked to appear at the Lyceum for several dates, together with the entire Barrasford tour, at a weekly salary running into three figures. This has been achieved by the well-known Harry Day, the man who, according to rumour, "never sleeps."

LARRY LEWIS, Harry Day's latest find, has been engaged by Mr Richard Waldon as principal comedian at the Princess's Theatre, Glasgow. This artist has no vacant dates till 1907, being booked for all the chief tours by this astute firm of agents.

MR DAN THOMAS, having received over forty weeks' contracts from Day's Agency, has resolved to place his business entirely in their hands.—Mr Geo. Rydon, who lately played Hoggenheimer, in The Girl from Kay's, for three tours, has made a success on the Barrasford tour with his clever little wife, Miss Nellie Merton. Some of their bookings reach into 1908.—Henry Carlton, comedian, after a successful provincial tour, returns to town on Monday, opening at the Palace, Hammersmith.

MISSES GEORGE AND JOCK PRESTON (of the Three Prestons) have been engaged by Mr Rich Waldon for his forthcoming pantomime at the Princess's Theatre, Glasgow, Jock playing principal Scotch comedian. They come from a good stock, being brothers of the clever Sisters Preston (Jessie and Georgina).

MR TOM WOOTTWELL will sail away from South Africa on Wednesday next per ss. Briton, and soon after his arrival in London he will commence rehearsals for pantomime at Drury-lane. He has been an immense attraction at the Tivoli, Cape Town.

CHIRGWIN IN "BONNIE DUNDEE."

EVERY SEAT FILLED.

Dundee music hall patrons know a good thing when it comes their way, and they are not slow to appreciate it. A visit to the city of a star of the variety firmament of such brilliance as G. H. Chirgwin is not an everyday occurrence, and, with the prospects of a special treat in store, an audience that filled every seat in the spacious theatre assembled in the Palace last night to welcome the renowned "White-eyed Kaffir." Nor were they disappointed, for Chirgwin was in fine form, and his performance received the spontaneous applause of the whole house. Indeed, after he had been nearly half-an-hour on the stage, it was with the greatest reluctance that the audience allowed the curtain to descend. After a skirl on the bagpipes, he introduced himself in his own inimitable way, and at once ingratiated himself, but when he took up his violin and sang in his own sweet and sympathetic style "My fiddle is my sweetheart" the audience went into ecstasies In "The poor blind boy," with a 'cello accompaniment, he was equally successful, his fine voice, with its remarkable range, being heard to the best advantage. Another item in his entertainment which fairly caught on was the manipulation of two churchwarden pipes on a tray in imitation of a clog dance and a Highland fling. Bright flashes of humour were thrown in here and there, and these, together with his many eccentricities, combined to give a special charm to the whole turn.—Evening Telegraph (Dundee), Sept. 27.

G. H. CHIRGWIN.

HERBERT CAMPBELL MEMORIAL.

Sir,—In consultation with several old friends of the late Herbert Campbell, it was unanimously considered that a memorial to his memory should be obtained, and placed, if possible, in the vestibule of the Theatre Royal, Drury-lane, which was the scene of so many of his triumphs, and in which theatre he had amused and delighted so many thousands of persons.

It is thought the best way to perpetuate the memory of this very generous and genial artiste is by the erection of a marble or bronze bust, and through his old friend, Mr Arthur Collins, the directors of the Drury-lane Theatre have been approached, and they have agreed to the suggestion, and, in addition, have generously promised the sum of £10 10s. towards the fund.

A meeting will shortly be held, of which due notice will be given, and it is desired that as many as can make it convenient to attend will kindly do so.

Being so well and universally known, myself and those interested think that there are very many of his old friends and fellow-artistes who would like to contribute to this memorial, and several subscriptions have already been promised. Mr Edward Ledger has kindly consented to receive and acknowledge any sums which may be sent for the above object.

Yours faithfully, HENRY JOYNER.

MISS LELIA ROZE MARRIED.

Miss Lelia Roze, the charming burlesque artiste and exponent of the heroines of musical comedy, was married to Mr Edward Downes Martin, J.P., of Killoskehane Castle, Tipperary, at the Pro-Cathedral, Liverpool, on Wednesday morning. Miss Roze, who lives at Shrigley Hall, situated in a pretty part of the County Down, commenced her career on the variety stage in her early teens. Her fine voice, her pretty face, and her exquisite figure, aided by a natural gift for the stage quickly placed her in popular favour, and from the small halls she soon graduated to the leading palaces in England, Scotland, and Ireland. In the last-mentioned country she is an immense draw, and especially so at Belfast. In London her chief strongholds are the Metropolitan and Oxford, where she has appeared during the last twelve months. Miss Roze's appearances on the regular stage have not been restricted to pantomime, for a short time since she fulfilled a most successful engagement on tour, when she played the part of Kitty Grey in the successful musical comedy of that name. She is very popular in the profession, and has been the recipient of many good wishes from brother and sister artistes, to which we may add our own.

THE MIDDLESEX.

The Middlesex programme, always interesting and up to date, contains some specially attractive turns this week. A keenly appreciated item which comes early in the evening is the popular and humorous little coster duologue presented by Mr Arthur Godfrey and Miss Minnie Duncan, entitled Me and 'Er, both parts being exceedingly well played. The pathetic touch introduced at the conclusion, when Bill learns that the news of his sudden accession to wealth has no foundation in fact, and his loving wife puts back into the box the much-befeathered hat Bill has chosen for her, is highly effective, and Middlesex audiences have laughed heartily over the many slangy expressions of the coster, whose joy at the prospect of being rich "beyond the dreams of avarice" is of such brief duration. Sketches of this kind, with the pathetic and the humorous elements cleverly combined, and the characters well played, are always welcome at the variety halls. The programme is opened by Keith and Merson, acrobatic singing comedians, who first appear as a couple of josser huntsmen, and succeed in amusing the audience with their humorous patter. They afterwards perform some smart acrobatic feats, and are rewarded by loud applause. Miss Odeyne Spark, a comedienne with a good appearance and style, pleases greatly with her ditty, "It's hot, very very hot," followed by a song and dance, very neatly done. The Three American Idols, a trio of shapely and attractive young ladies, win favour with a pretty coon song and sand dance. They also give a wonderful high-kicking, bending, and acrobatic dance which is received with many demonstrations of delight. Sylvo, the tramp comedy juggler, entertains quite as much by his funny business and humorous asides as by his cleverly performed tricks. In the same line is the quaint clown, Griff, who has a valuable assistant in the youth known as Alpha. The last-mentioned varies the turn by introducing some difficult tricks with hoops, but Griff always acknowledges the applause—because he "taught him that." Park's Eton Boys, a smart, well-trained troupe of youngsters who are favourites wherever they appear, give their popular vocal turn, and are listened to with evident pleasure by the audience. "Rosie," "The Ugly Duckling," and a pretty song, "Bluebell," are amongst the admirably rendered numbers given by the boys, who are carefully accompanied at the piano by their principal. They are invariably encored. Acceptable vocalism, a little comedy from a "cullud" gentleman, a series of pictures, and attractive scenery with electrical effects are combined in Tibet; or, the Forbidden City, presented by Moir and Cragg. Miss Agnes Hazel, charmingly gowned, is scoring with the ditty "Oh, you men!" She also contributes a pretty song descriptive of a married couple's quarrel over a letter, followed by satisfactory explanations and a happy reconciliation. Mr Thomas Finglas, a Negro comedian, has a characteristic song in "Rosalind." He also appears in a scena, Maisie, in which he has the assistance of a young lady. Mr Maurice H. Hoffmann's company is seen in the sketch adapted from Marie Corelli's novel, entitled The Sorrows of Satan. Mr Hoffman gives a sufficiently striking portrayal of Prince Lucio Rimanez, and Miss Ethel King does very well as Lady Sybil Elton. Sanford and Lyons, comedians and dancers, come in for a good reception, and the Five Olracs combine acrobatism and comedy with excellent results. Mr Michael Nolan is a favourite Irish comedian, and the pictures shown by the new Bioscope are interesting and well varied. The first and third prize winners of the recent Lottie Lennox singing competition have been specially engaged this week, Louie Gable singing "Killarney" and "Bold Robert Emmet" and Annie Smith following with "The Factory Girl." These successful competitors have had a most encouraging reception. Mr Graydon was unable to engage Ethel Frost (the winner of the second prize), as she is under the age of ten.

DUCHESS, BALHAM.

The wants of Balham are fully met by Mr Walter Gibbons, who seems to have touched nothing in music hall enterprise that has not been fertile of success. He has brought prosperity to the pretty Duchess Theatre, which under the management of Mr Clifford King, is now firmly established as the amusement centre of a first-class neighbourhood, drawing the liberal support of a thriving suburb by entertainments carefully selected to satisfy the large audiences who twice nightly fill the house. The programme presented on the occasion of a recent visit bore evidence of the care exercised in its composition, a monster production of which was the sketch Saturday to Monday, played by Fred Karno's company of comedians. Its extravagant gaiety allows no time for anything but laughter, and its absurdities appeal to the dullest mind or quicken the comic perceptions of the more intellectual. Mr Fred Kitchen was the resourceful bridegroom John Willie Jaggs, and his grotesque antics aroused continuous laughter. He was capably supported by Miss Cossie Noel as the not unreasonably blushing bride; by Miss Gladys White, who made a winsome Violet; and by Miss Ada Maskell as the whimsical Aunt Skinner. Among those who also shared prominently in the fun-making were Mr Henry Kitts as the bride's father, Mr Charles Baldwin as the Best Man, and Mr Frank Haylett as the smart detective, while Messrs Dick Harcourt and Lepo and Master Fred Bentley and C. Griffiths added to the hilarity as the young hopefuls of the bridegroom. A strong chorus took part in the various animated scenes, which, being laid at a railway station and a seaside pier, gave opportunity for fun of which the most was made. What remained of the programme was composed of first-class items, each of which reaped a rich harvest of applause, notably so the comedy melange of the Kings, in whom youth and talent are allied. They make a comely pair as a messenger boy and a lady artist, who come into conflict and provide a merry time. Miss Jennie King is a charming comedienne, the delicacy and grace of her style being captivating, and she added a neat dance to her song of "Irish Life" to which her partner supplied a playful accompaniment. Mr King in his pretty ballad "Won't you come back to me?" gave pleasing evidence of a melodious voice, taking some remarkable notes in the course of his rendering. Both artistes shared equally in the work of entertaining and in the hearty recalls which awaited them. Reilly and Taylor's German dialect display is extraordinary. They make a good deal of amusing capital out of the concoction of a love letter, and their malformation of the King's English is a study in linguistic art which was productive of irresistible mirth, while a mock Tyrolean duet was in itself an oddity. Miss Jennie Venton is a dainty brunette, and with her song of "Angelina" she took the ear of the audience, who rendered willing service in the refrain, their admiration being secured by the grace and neatness which distinguished her dancing in her coon song "My girl's a dandy." The comic contrivances of Ross and Grayson are many and various, no opportunity for forcing the fun being neglected. The work of the eccentric gentleman at the piano is worthy of all praise, more especially when he performs a sand dance while accompanying himself on that instrument, earning an encore that was richly deserved. The name of Mr Austin Rudd is a guarantee for merriment, which was never lacking during his turn, and the thrilling feats of the Andys, acrobats, created excitement. An excellent orchestra, conducted by Mr T. A. Hannavy, rendered the accompaniments well, and made of the overture descriptive of "A Motor Ride" a most pleasurable experience.

THE speciality dances in the new production early next month at the Parisiana, Paris, have been arranged by Miss Lizzie Maynard, and will be performed by eight of her pupils.

THE TIVOLI ANNIVERSARY.

Some years ago it was a stock saying among financiers that a music hall in the Strand would never pay, and when the first Tivoli company failed in 1890, this contention seemed to be borne out by facts. However, there were possibilities in the place that were recognised by the late Mr Newson-Smith, and in 1891 the establishment was put upon a sounder basis, and it has never looked back since. The present year of grace, from various causes, has been scarcely so prosperous as usual; but the excellent business that has been the rule since the management was entrusted to the joint keeping of Mr James Howell and Mr Arthur Yates is an earnest of a dividend on the old scale during the coming year. Wide experience, keen judgment, and high business capacity are the three qualities most necessary to the successful management of a hall, and such is the rapid upward trend of the chosen entertainment of the people that to these essentials must be added refinement and good taste. Mr Howell has had an experience that dates back to the days of the old Polytechnic; and Mr Yates, whose youthful aspect seems to belie the fact of his long association with music halls and theatres, can point to very successful administration at the Grand, Clapham. The combination, therefore, is a happy one, and both gentlemen were heartily congratulated on Friday, the 23rd ult., when the thirteenth anniversary of the Tivoli was celebrated. The programme presented on the occasion had a special significance, as no artiste's name was allowed to appear in the list unless he or she had given a positive promise to appear. There were, of course, a number of extra turns. Mr J. E. Sullivan, who made such a hit as the polite lunatic in The Belle of New York at the Shaftesbury Theatre, made effective use of the Dutch-American dialect in his lecture on fiscalitis, the police, and other topics from which comic capital can be derived. Many of Mr Sullivan's allusions were exceedingly happy; but though Tivolians have had some education in the peculiar ungrammatical and topsy-turvey patois adopted by the comedian they did not quite catch the point of all his jokes. Nevertheless, there was much appreciation among the stallites, and with a little modification we see no reason to doubt the future popularity of the soliloquies of Sullivan. A performance in every way grateful to the lovers of music was that of the Mackway glee singers, who were heard to distinct advantage in the favourite part songs, "O who will o'er the downs so free," "The Cloud-capt Towers," and "All among the barley," the last mentioned a capital combination of harmony and fun. Miss Fanny Wentworth, who has been very appropriately termed "a Corney Grain in petticoats," is a skilful entertainer who can turn a popular melody to excellent account by her treatment vocally or on the piano—an instrument of which she is a charming exponent—as was evinced by her rendering of Mendelssohn's Spring Song. One of the most popular comedians on the anniversary night was Mr Wilkie Bard, who has been a strong attraction of the bill for some weeks past. His burlesque on the difficulties of the extempore vocalist, who almost invariably fails to rhyme with reason or sense, were capitally burlesqued by the Tivoli Bard, whose mock solemnity was a great aid to the laughter-compelling power of a bit of genuine fooling. He was admirably supported by a young gentleman with whom he had an altercation. Wilkie was several times recalled. Mr Harry Tate is another artiste whose reputation as a humourist has advanced lately by leaps and bounds, and his sketch that so quaintly sets forth the difficulties of a motorist who has to deal with a break-down has evoked roars of laughter in all parts of the country, its success in the provinces being as great as in London. Mr Tate as a mimic was unapproachable; but his confidence in the higher gift of comedy has been completely justified by results; for Motoring may be seen again and again without any possibility of one becoming tired of its amusing situations. He was ably assisted by his company, the lad who played the mouth organ with such irritating persistency having a keen sense of fun. Little Tich and R. G. Knowles are other immense favourites in the Strand, and the former as a Toreador displayed those oddities of behaviour that make for laughter. The latter was responsible for much amusing cynicism in his favourite song, "The Girl, the Woman, and the Widow." The spindle side of the company had a great element of strength in Miss Nellie Wallace—quite irresistible in her skit on the sentimental vocalist, the title of the number "Mingle your eyebrows with mine" being sufficiently indicative of the fun that was forthcoming when this quaint comedienne "let herself go." Her command of funny business kept the audience in roars of laughter. Miss Lily Soutter also tapped the springs of laughter in her impersonation of one of the weaker sex who prides herself on being a "lady all the time." Miss Lily Burnand disguised her blonde beauty to represent a lady of uncertain age who in a large crinoline declaimed against the backwardness of the men of the present generation. Miss Maud Venn, who looked chic and fascinating in a becoming costume, put plenty of comedy into her song concerning "Hints;" Miss Sable Fern enlisted a large cohort of chorus singers when she gave out the pretty melody of "She's ma lily of the valley;" and Miss Millie Lindon in her own sweet way enchanted everyone by her delightful rendering of "The rain came pitter-patter down." Datas again proved himself to be a walking encyclopædia of dates; the Five Delevines, in their legmania and musical act, scored their customary success; Griff's original notions of humour and hoop manipulation were once more voted extremely funny, the quaint clown receiving excellent assistance from Alpha, his "boy in buttons;" Gillihan and Murray were quite in touch with their audience; and The Dandy Thieves kept everyone laughing, the vagaries of Mr Dan Rolyat as Sergeant Lightning being screamingly funny. Other turns were submitted by Madge and Morton, musical specialists, Cyrus Dare, the Three Amaranths, Miss Daisy James, Lee and Bentley, Mr Harry Phydora, and Mr Fred Earle, comedian. Mr George H. Dyball, the stage-manager, worked the special programme very smartly, and Mr Maurice Jacobi's orchestra accompanied most artistically. The finely tinted programme was adorned with excellent portraits of Mr James Howell and Mr Arthur Yates, and the house was brightened by pretty bouquets in the boxes. Among those who came to congratulate the directors and managers were Messrs Henry Tozer, Emanuel Warner, Sydney Hyman, Albert Gilmer, Harry Lundy, George Peel, Tom Claxton.

A COMEDY DUOLOGUE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—I notice that Mr Fred Sinclair is playing a comedy duologue in which, in order to straighten the tangled skein of domestic discord, the wife resorts to the disguise of a former lover, and the husband does ditto, with the usual results. Though Family Jars was not the vessel from which I obtained my inspiration, it is a coincidence that I produced a duologue with that self-same plot at the Britannia Music Hall, Glasgow, on June 22, 1903. I have since played this sketch at the Middlesex, London, during the week of Aug. 3, 1903. Though it does not occupy a very prominent place in my répertoire, it is possible that I may play it occasionally, and I mention the matter to prevent misunderstanding.

Yours faithfully, HUBERT BARTLETT
(Muir and Bartlett).

MISS EDNA CRAGGE has been compelled to refuse a big offer for America, owing to her being previously engaged as principal boy for 1904-5.

"SING A SONG OF SIXPENCE."

To-day is the first anniversary of the issue of the sixpenny popular editions of Messrs Francis and Day's musical copyrights, or, as they are now known the world over, the "Sixpenny Pops," and to signalise the occasion Manager John Smith has added to the already extensive catalogue no fewer than thirteen new numbers—namely "The Patchwork Garden" and "The Man Behind," from The Earl and the Girl; "Kiss me good-night, dear love," introduced in Merely Mary Ann; "The Church Parade," "Molly O'Halloran," and "Cigarette," sung in The Catch of the Season; "Maisey! my Maisey!" "Navaho," "You are a white little girl," "There's nobody just like you," Dan Godfrey's celebrated "Holly-Bush Polka," Leoni Lacoste's "Heliotrope Waltz," and the "Inspiration Veleta."

The movement has come to stay, as evidenced by the twelvemonth's experiment of this celebrated house, who justly claim to be the pioneer publishers of this form of musical publication. The essay commenced on Oct. 1, 1903, and during the dozen months just ended the firm has issued no fewer than 120 numbers, besides, by way of further experiment, a few parodies as twopenny editions. The list includes successful numbers from The Orchid, The School Girl, The Earl and the Girl, The Cherry Girl, Sergeant Brue, Merely Mary Ann, The Lady Slavey, and other musical plays; the ever-popular "Brookiyn Cake-walk," by T. W. Thurban, Bernard Phelps's "Choristers'" waltz, little Max Darewski's "Le Rêve" waltz, the universal favourites "Pansy Faces" and "Blue Bell," those gigantic hits, "Skylark" and "I've made up my mind to sail away;" ballads by St. Quentin and Clifton Bingham, and innumerable successes popularised by such well-known artists as, among others, Arthur Lennard, Tom Costello, Ernest Shand, G. H. Chirgwin, Marie Lloyd, Marie Kendall, George D'Albert, George Bastow, George Brooks, G. H. Elliott, Sam Mayo, Harry Randall, Marie Loftus, George Lashwood, Alec Hurley, R. G. Knowles, Harry Bedford, Harry Lauder, Vesta Tilley, Paul Mill, Millie Lindon, Wilkie Bard, and Winifred Hare.

The success attending the venture can be seen at a glance from the following figures just compiled:—

Number of works issued in sixpenny popular form	120
Number of copies actually sold from Oct. 1, 1903, to Sept. 30, 1904	2,025,141
Number of reams of paper used (quadruple music demy)	2,026
Amount earned as royalties, paid to authors, composers, singers, and brother publishers	£5,153 15 0

The result has given entire satisfaction to the firm's clientèle, who, together with the whole musical world, are all intensely interested in the further development of this enterprising endeavour to supply the public want of good cheap music.

A similar experiment was made by the firm no fewer than twenty-five years ago, when the early songs of the late Charles Godfrey and of the Mohawk Minstrels were issued in a sixpenny series. They had not the good fortune to meet with success at that time, but the fact that they made the bid for it shows conclusively who were the pioneer publishers of popular editions for the people.

GRAND, CLAPHAM-JUNCTION.

Mr Walter Gibbons, the proprietor and lessee of this popular theatre of varieties, has adopted the two-houses-nightly system, and the first performances under this arrangement were given on Monday. Mr Harry Bawn has been appointed manager, and the valuable experience he has gained as assistant under Mr Edward Swanborough at the Chelsea Palace well qualifies him for the position. Conducted upon an up-to-date policy, which, of course, includes a strong programme all the year round, the Grand should, from the present time, enter upon a new era of prosperity. Everything is done to promote the comfort of the patrons of the Palace, which, too, enjoys the great advantage of occupying a central situation, easily accessible to the inhabitants of the surrounding districts. One of the principal items in this week's bill-of-fare is the sensational sketch entitled The Night Alarm, in which the late Mr Charles Godfrey used to play the leading part—the sailor who, returning from a voyage, finds that his wife and child have fled from their home, the former leaving a curt letter which does not explain the reason, though she appeals to him to trust her. He joins the London Fire Brigade, and in a scene representing the interior of a Metropolitan Fire Station is shown with what expedition the men harness the horses and drive away to a burning building. Jack, the fireman, laments that a year has passed and he has failed to find his wife and child, but a letter arrives explaining the cause of their hurried flight. Then comes the call to a fire, and the lurid spectacle of a house in flames. As the hose plays upon the building the gallant fireman mounts the ladder, and at the risk of his life rescues a mother and her child, who prove to be the dear ones he has been seeking since his return. This scene, remarkably realistic and true to life, reflects much credit on the stage-management. Mr Ernest Ball, so long known as a useful and clever member of the Surrey Theatre stock company, gives a bold and manly embodiment of the gallant fireman, and the songs introduced he renders in excellent style. He is supported by a capable company, and the revived sketch is well received. Amongst the single turns here is Miss Alexandra Dagmar, who sings with spirit "The big brass band," and appears in her scena burlesquing The Duchess of Dantzic. She gives a successful impersonation of the famous washerwoman, Madame Sans-Gêne, Napoleon being represented by a youth who has only a thinking part. There is some amusing comedy in Miss Kitty Clover's sketch Not a Word. The lady cleverly represents a very voluble wife, whose flow of talk prevents her husband giving any explanation of some events which have excited her jealousy. He has received from a lady a cheque for £1,000 and her photograph. The foolish wife refuses to listen to what her spouse has to say, and burns the cheque. A letter explains that both cheque and portrait came from her own sister, an actress. However, it was only a property cheque, so it does not matter in the least. Miss Flo Schuberth has a pleasing style, and has a capital song in "Take her, she's yours." The young lady known as Virginia and her four piccaninnies vary the programme with their singing and dancing. All the children are boys, but two of them are dressed as girls, and one of these specially distinguishes himself in a cake walk. Mr Tom Leamore comes on in the character of an amateur Hackenschmidt, and the relation of his experiences as a wrestler causes much merriment. Exceedingly comical, too, is Mr Leamore's embodiment of the dude, Clarence Fitzgerald, the dance with which he concludes his turn being also a smart piece of work which is loudly applauded. The Four Dandies, consisting of two ladies and two gentlemen, give a musical entertainment which is both refined and pleasing, and which consists chiefly of imitations of various types of song, including the coon, the patriotic, the Spanish, &c. They have the assistance of a lady who presides at the piano. The Three Sisters Leigh are applauded for their smart skipping-rope dancing, and Mr Michael Nolan, Irish comedian, has some excellent songs, one having for its subject a lazy son of Erin being specially good. Mr Chris Richards scores both as a comedian and eccentric dancer. There is a hardworking, efficient orchestra, under the able direction of Mr James Sale.

Mr Wilkie Bard's newest song, entitled "A, B, C, D," by Jas. Hargreaves, is in the press, having been secured by Mr David Day.

GATTI'S (ROAD)

The task of providing for the variety lovers who dwell on the southern banks of the Thames has been fully grasped by Mr Tom Tinsley, who for many years has furnished at the old-established hall in the Westminster-bridge-road an entertainment that has won the steady patronage of appreciative audiences. A warm welcome has been extended to Cheevers and Kennedy, "the Originals," a couple of entertainers who, after a considerable lapse of time, have again joined forces, and are presenting with all their old success their clever Dutch, Irish, and Negro quick-change speciality act. To the majority of the audience at Gatti's on the night of our visit it must have been a novelty, and that it has lost none of its attractiveness was soon apparent. The Hibernian and darkey impersonations were especially appreciated, song, dance, and patter alike being of a most enjoyable nature, and the happily associated couple were loudly acclaimed at the conclusion of their smartly worked and exhausting turn. Another favourite item in the excellent bill-of-fare was the clever ventriloquial turn of Mr Horace White, whose two mechanical figures are exceptionally well worked and admirably voiced, the many amusing remarks of the cheeky boy and the vocalism of the lady being much enjoyed. Mr White is also a finished pianist, and gave a Polish dance and some excellent imitations on the piano of a drum and fife band and a street organ, his entire turn giving much satisfaction. The Zenary Brothers possess wonderful strength of wrist and arm, their marvellous hand-balancing and various difficult feats of acrobatism calling forth the loudest of applause; and Mr Charles Faning is a humourist blessed with some really funny patter and a droll style, his two songs also affording amusement. The attractive dancing turn of Miss Ruby Bijou, a dainty little lady, was appreciated at its true worth, her representation of an American cake-walk evoking much enthusiasm; and admiration was freely bestowed on the Two Bells, attractive young ladies, who first appeared as bewitching colleens; also contributing a couple of other numbers and dancing with much expertness and neatness. Altogether a turn of decided daintiness and smartness. The De Breans, Japanese jugglers, were responsible for a neat and skilful exhibition of that art, also giving an amusing and well-worked shadowgraph entertainment; and Miss Alice Carney's three selections appeared to give entire satisfaction, her low-comedy ditty "What ho, Martha Murphy!" and "The Lady from Quality Street," being her two best numbers. Mr Julian Ross, a vocalist with a good appearance and an excellent voice, was loudly cheered for a song exactly suited to a popular audience, "The best friend I've ever had;" "After the curtain's rung down" and "Girls, you've a lot to answer for," also being admirable numbers. Continuous merriment was evoked by Mr Neil Kenyon, the funny Scotchman, with his really droll stories and singing, his imitations of a swell, a coster, a Jew, and one of his own countrymen reciting "The Charge of the Light Brigade" being a clever and amusing contribution. Such was the enjoyment his turn afforded that he was persistently recalled, and gave a laughter-compelling mock melodrama. The favourite burlesque actress, Miss Julia Kent, in conjunction with Mr Alexander Keith, gave a cleverly worked trifle, in which she appeared as a fetching little barmaid, her partner taking the part of a very forward waiter. Much humorous repartee was indulged in by the pair, and they contributed an amusing and smartly worked duet in which they imitated the manners and conversation of various people at the play. The interlude enabled both Mr Keith and Miss Kent to exhibit their versatility and undoubted ability as entertainers, and was a most enjoyable feature of the bill. The animated pictures shown on the screen by the Mutograph included that humorous and popular picture Off for the Holidays, the duel scene from Percy Murray's sketch An Affair of Honour, an interesting picture; the Magician, and many others, and also in the programme were Mr Will Pinchin, a comedian who is also enabled to display his ability as a dancer in his song "Nancy O'Rafferty's Ball," and Clara Urwin, serio-comic vocalist. The musical arrangements are quite safe in the hands of the experienced Mr I. W. Baker and his capable little company of instrumentalists.

At North London Police-court, on Monday, Mr Rundle, solicitor, renewed his application for a licence for the three youngest members of the Kremo family of acrobats to perform. This time it was for the Holloway Empire, and Mr Adams, the manager, brought Dr. Bulger, the divisional police surgeon, to give evidence as to the physical fitness of the children. Dr. Bulger said the lungs and hearts of the children were sound, and their sallow complexions were not unnatural. They were Swiss-German. Mr Dickinson—Do these children form part of a pyramid? Mr Rundle—No; they do tumbling on the stage, and are only on three or four minutes out of the twelve the turn lasts. Mr Dickinson—Personally, I have a very strong objection to children taking part in acrobatic performances; because, if they happen to fall and break a limb, they would probably be miserable for life. Mr Rundle—If they did not begin young there would be no acrobats. Mr Dickinson—Who wants acrobats? However, I will license these children for one house. Mr Rundle—Won't you allow them to appear in both houses? Mr Dickinson—No, I will not; and I shall expect them to go on early. The law very properly says that there must be four hours' interval between the two performances, and you cannot do that. My licence is only for one house. Mr Dickinson also asked as to the education of the children, and was shown the copy-books in English and German, which appeared to be satisfactory.

THE MAGIC KETTLE.

A CHAT WITH B. F. TAYLOR.

The theatres of variety have been largely responsible for the introduction of many innovations, inventions, and novelties. The cry nowadays is for something new, something original, even if its enjoyment only lasts for a short time, which in the majority of instances is not so. The Bioscope is a case in point. Animated pictures were first brought prominently before the public on a variety stage, and their popularity has developed with increasing years.

The latest wonder to take the field is what is known as the Magic Kettle, now drawing crowded houses to the Palace Theatre. Had anyone suggested twelve months ago that it was possible to petrify a rubber ball and make it as brittle as an egg-shell within the space of a few seconds, he would have been laughed at. Or had he gone further and said it was possible to light a cigar by means of vapour his hearers would probably have cast out hints as to the lunacy statistics.

Mr Benjamin F. Taylor, who is at present showing the marvellous doings of the Magic Kettle at the Palace, is the holder of the patent rights and international copyright. The act was first presented in New York at the Eden Musée about nine months ago, and Mr Hollams, the president of that firm, stated that it was the most wonderful thing he had ever seen. The Magic Kettle was next engaged for Proctor's Circuit of music halls. It was originally booked for a few weeks, but the weeks turned into months, and at one of Proctor's houses alone the act was presented for six weeks. There are now two Magic Kettle shows running in the United States, one at Cleveland's Theatre in Chicago and another, which opened last Monday, at Taylor's Opera House, New Jersey. Mr Josef Yorrick, who was the gentleman who produced the first show in New York, is superintending the arrangements at Chicago. Mr Deane, who came over from the States to give the initial performance in London, gave the Magic Kettle its début in Paris at the Alhambra Theatre last Saturday, Mr Barrasford states that the Parisians are greatly pleased with this new attraction. A third English company sailed for New York last Wednesday, and additions are in course of formation.

LIGHTING CIGAR WITH MAGIC KETTLE.

But the question which has troubled the minds of many people is this: What do the contents of the magic kettle consist of? Mr Taylor, in his remarks to the audience during the act, says that he will leave the unravelling of the mystery to their imaginations. Some folk, however, who are more scientific than imaginative, have given it as their opinion that liquid air is responsible for these modern miracles. And Mr Taylor doesn't deny that it is liquid air. That may seem a very simple statement, and, perhaps, an almost ridiculously easy explanation; but ask the average man in the street how he would produce liquid air, and you will probably get the reply that he does not know what it is made of nor how it is made. We cannot here go into the matter from a scientific point of view, and it is not necessary that we should do so. It will be sufficient for our purpose to say that to obtain this remarkable creative, or recreative, force, a compression of air to the extent of 2,400lb. to the square inch is necessary. In the rapid expansion which follows when the water is being used on the stage the liquid air cools to freezing point. Of course, special and intricate machinery is employed in the different stages of manufacture, the experiments in connection with which are very costly. After the liquid air is made it is put in flasks, each holding about five quarts, the flasks consisting of a glass bulb within a glass bulb. The inner bulb is annealed to the outer one at the neck, and there is a space at the base between the two bulbs in which a perfect vacuum is obtained by means of a vacuum pump. In this way a non-conductor is formed, preventing the heat affecting the air inside the receptacle. The bulbs are covered both inside and outside with quicksilver to reflect the rays of light.

Of course Mr Taylor's act opens out many possibilities of further developments. In fact, one wonders what it would not be possible to do with liquid air. Mr Taylor informs us that he already has ideas regarding no less than 200 different experiments, and that the changing of the various items in his programme is merely a question of time limit. Altogether, seven people are required to work the act, only two of whom appear on the stage. In addition to these, we are told that a big factory is maintained for the production of the liquid air.

Mr Charles Morton is one of the most enthusiastic admirers of this show. He remarked the other day that in all his sixty years' experience of theatrical affairs he had never seen anything to equal in novelty the Magic Kettle, the results obtained by it being simply amazing to him. It would not be far wrong to say that very few music hall attractions have been so well advertised in town, as the Palace management has brought the Magic Kettle prominently to the notice of Londoners. From forty to one hundred sandwich-men are sent out every day, while, in addition to a couple of 15ft. and other large posters exhibited outside the Palace Theatre, a number of magic kettles can be seen merrily steaming away on the huge glass awning which surrounds the Shaftesbury-avenue music hall. The Magic Kettle has, indeed, created a sensation, and it has come to stay.

"BUSINESS IS BUSINESS."

(FROM OUR NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT.)

Octave Mirbeau's powerful drama Les Affaires Sont les Affaires has been translated into English and adapted to the American stage under the above title by R. S. Hichens, and the play was produced at the Criterion Theatre, New York, on the 19th ult., with Mr Wm. H. Crane in the rôle of Isadore Lechat, played in Paris by M. Féraudy. Mirbeau describes his chief character as "a man of business, fifty-seven years old, stout and coarse, vulgar in bearing, and with sinister eyes that contrast with a continuous hurly-burly of movement and gesture." When the play begins Lechat has reached the top notch of prosperity after a questionable bankruptcy or two. He has ruined his rivals and sent them to their death, and his name has become a by-word. He has bought a newspaper that exists only to serve his political ends, being a promising candidate for a seat in the Chamber of Deputies. His wife is a quiet, insignificant creature of very simple tastes, who looks upon him as a demi-god. His son, Xavier, the darling of his heart, squanders his money at cards and assorts with courtesans. There is also a daughter, Germaine, a girl of decided character, who knows how her father has built up his fortune, and despises him for it. Germaine is in love with Lucien Garraud, a young civil engineer. Lechat wishes to enlarge his estate by acquiring the lands of his neighbour, the Marquis De Porcellet, on whose property Lechat holds a mortgage. The Marquis calls on Lechat to borrow more money. Lechet begins by refusing. But the Marquis persists. He is at his last gasp. He promises to use his influence in various ways to Lechat's advantage, but Lechat will only grant his request on one condition. The Marquis must consent to a marriage between his son and Lechat's daughter, Germaine. The old aristocrat agrees to Lechat's proposition when the latter threatens to foreclose the mortgage. Lechat calls his wife and daughter and tells them that the Marquis asks Germaine's hand for his son. Germaine refuses point blank, declaring that she has a lover, and Lechat awakes from his dream of social advancement. After a stormy scene he turns his daughter into the street, and she disappears with her lover. Her mother takes her part. "Ha!" roars Lechat, "everybody is against me."

For the first time in his life he is confronted with an obstacle that neither his money nor his indomitable will can overcome, and the brute in him leaps out. He abuses his family, and mocks at all the world, but inwardly he cannot understand, and perplexity and fear creep over him. Then comes a worse blow. His son, on whom all his hopes are built, is thrown from his automobile and killed. For the first time Lechat's spirit is broken, and a pair of schemers, seeing their opportunity, submit for his signature a contract, by the terms of which they will have everything their own way, while Lechat will be ruined. Outside the servants are bringing in the dead youth's body, Lechat is as a man whose world has crumbled in an instant. He is about to collapse, but even now his dominant principle asserts itself. A saving clause is written into the contract, and the schemers are forced to sign. "Business is business." Lechat staggers towards the door, catching at chairs and tables, the tricksters watching him in speechless confusion as the curtain falls.

In a rôle entirely different from anything that he has previously attempted Mr Crane succeeded beyond general expectation, and gave a masterly impersonation of the brutal money king, Lechat. Miss Katherine Grey scored as the daughter, Germaine, and Mr Walter Hale, Mr Joseph Wheelock, jun., and Mrs Harriet Otis Dellenbaugh distinguish themselves in other rôles.

Artistes visiting the Bristol Empire, and People's Palace during October and March, and wishing to arrange an enjoyable, social game of Association football any Saturday afternoon on Clifton Downs, may have use of tackle by applying to Harry Hare (Bristol X, L.C.R. Athletic Club), 35, Salisbury-road, Redland, Bristol.

The house in which Beethoven died, in Vienna, having been demolished, that of Haydn is, so we are told, about to disappear. The Austrian capital was always a harsh stepmother when musicians were concerned.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

(COPYRIGHT.)

(FROM A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

At Glossop feast the exhibits were in the hands of Messrs W. Wright and Chapman, while the machines, which formed the principal part of the fair, were the steam horses of J. Hibbert and J. Walker, Hibbert's gallopers and swings, and Shaw's steam swings. The cokers, shies, and shooting saloons were those of Booth, Whatmore, Sutherland, Wood, Thomas, Glenn, and White.

Dumfries Fair proper was on Sept. 28 and 29; business, however, commenced on the 21st. The following concerns have worked Thornhill and Castle Douglas, in conjunction with Dumfries:—Mrs E. Pinder-Ord's Continental Circus, "Scotch" Biddall and Son's electric ghostoscope, Mrs Sarah Johnson and Son's circus of varieties, Mr George Green's local pictures (manager, Mr George Monte), Messrs Chipperfield's French menagerie, Sahib Leo's Egyptian hall, the Mystic Haydns, Mr Henry Chapman's British birds and hares, Mr James Lavin's school of arms, Prince Samouda's Oriental illusions, Horatio's giant horse, the first-class photographic concerns of Mr Frank Walton, No. 1, Messrs F. Walton and James Eden, W. Gothard, J. Maley, W. Hammond, and H. Kelly. The machine list included the superb careering cockerells of Mr Geo. Green, under the Coronation canopy, Messrs J. Wilmot and Sons' Royal Caledonian hunters, Mrs C. Howard's twin tugs, Mr James Wilmot's gondolas, Mr Peter Swallow's poultry farm, Mr Joe Wingate's safety bicycles, Mr T. Day's three-abreast gallopers, Morris tubes and shooting-galleries of Messrs J. Wilmot, jun., J. Day, E. Sheeran, and the expert S. J. Rostron. All the fun of the fair, in the form of Krugers, Emmas, window breakers, squares, &c., supplied by Messrs Sol Macintosh, H. Irvin, C. Harper, W. Slater, J. Ross, J. Hughes, J. Wilson, J. W. Kelly, W. Harris, J. Palmer, W. Merrick, A. Knight, A. Testo, J. Brookley, A. Carroll, Mrs Moore, Blind Nelson, and many others.

The British Women's Temperance Association held their annual tea and meeting at Dumfries on Sunday evening. This is an institution anticipated with great pleasure by the people on the Fair Ground, and this year was as successful as usual. Many leaders in the movement were present, and many notable Fair Ground faces, including Messrs Geo. Green and Wilmot. A very pleasant and profitable evening was spent by all who attended the meeting.

Mr Charles James, proprietor of the World's Fair, Dublin, is presenting the following artistes here:—Jim Cookson, ventriloquist; Frank Bentley, descriptive vocalist; Charles Moore, comedian and dancer; Carr and Roll, duettists and dancers; and George Harcourt, tenor.

Robert Fossett and Sons' Circus gave two performances at Gainsborough on Tuesday. Mr R. Fossett, jun., was responsible for a smart exhibition of jockey act riding; Mdlle. Emmie introduced some clever haute école business; and the Bonello Troupe presented an artistic series of living statuary.

At the Kingston-on-Thames Borough Bench on Wednesday Andrew Purchase and Thomas Rayner, of Reading, were summoned at the instance of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals for alleged cruelty to a lion while in captivity, by using a whip and hot iron on Aug. 27. Andrew Purchase, one of the defendants, said he brought the lion from Messrs Wombwell as a performing animal when it was eighteen months old, and it had gone through the same performance every day for over eleven years. On the occasion in question when he walked round the outside of the cage the animal followed him, and when he went into the cage it ran round him several times without any fear. It was absolutely fond of him, and would not hurt him on any consideration. The hot iron was placed, not in the cage where the lion was, but in what was called a safety cage. The chairman intimated that the Bench did not wish to hear any more evidence, as they had decided there was no case for a conviction, and the summons would be dismissed.

At High Wycombe, on Monday, undiminished interest was manifested in the old-fashioned Michaelmas Hiring Fair. Observed in accordance with immemorial custom, it is the oldest in Buckinghamshire, and one which annually attracts hundreds of persons to the borough. Throughout the morning large numbers of farmers and others associated with the agricultural industry assembled in the Market-place, where labourers of all descriptions offered their services for the ensuing twelve months. The gathering was strikenly unique, and the traditional customs of past generations were well maintained. Shepherds decorated themselves with tufts of wool, while ploughmen displayed whipcord, and waggoners and others utilised horsehair and showy ribbons to demonstrate their respective callings. Farm servants and visitors to the fair journeyed from various parts of Buckinghamshire, Berkshire, and Oxfordshire, to the old-fashioned town, which assumed quite a holiday appearance, and was singularly animated. The hirelings out-numbered the demands of employers of labour, although many changed hands, some at slightly better wages, but the majority at unaltered terms. The Pleasure Fair, relegated some years ago from the streets of the town, was held in a meadow in the Oxford-road, and was attended by thousands from a very wide area.

Colonel Cody with his Wild West show visited Lancaster on the 23d ult., and had a most flattering reception. The weather was delightfully fine, and the attendance in the afternoon reached twelve thousand, and in the evening nearly ten thousand. This is a record attendance for Lancaster.

With Woodhouse Feast terminating on Tuesday last, the Leeds circuit of feasts now draws to a close. There was a great gathering of showmen, amongst whom we noticed Mr William Murphy's "Golden Venice, P. Collins's (Ltd.) farmyard roosters, Hamilton's four-a-breast gallopers, Aspland's Venetian gondolas, Lieskie's big wheel sensation, Collins's cycle track, Batty's steam horses, Captain Dobson with his ocean-wave sensation, Waddington's men-of-war boats; steam and hand-propelled swings of Messrs Corrigan, Proctor, Dobson, Morley; and miniature horses of Messrs Kayes, Doubtfire, Church. Amongst the many rows of stalls were Messrs Doubtfire, Forsett, Baines, Fetl, Wilson, Johnson's well-known concerns. In the exhibition line were Mander's No. 1 King's menagerie, who have made a welcome reappearance; Monte Bros., with the world in films; Rhodes, Yorkshire theatre; Testo, Cinématograph; Hastings, two concerns; Le Neve, the wrestler; Powell's fine art, Birch's midgets. The ground was set out and arranged by Messrs Campbell and Whitehead for the lessee, Mr Wm. Murphy, 102, Holly-avenue, Jesmond, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

At Astwood Bank we have Messrs Herbert and Son's great World's Fair, steam roundabouts, park swings, bottle shooters, cokernut gardens, stalls, mollies, pipe smashers, and other numerous attractions. Extra good business has been done.

At Jennings' Alexandra Theatre, Evesham, this week, the following plays have been performed:—A Fight for Life, East Lynne, The Bohemian Girl, 'Twixt Love and Duty, The Green Bushes, and The Scarlet Mark.

Holloway's Empire Theatre has opened at Headless Cross for a short season.

At Mrs Sinclair's Victoria Theatre, Pershore, this week, the following programme has been played:—The King of Criminals, In the Shadow of the Cross, The Child Witness, Trilby, Aunty's Lovers, and The Stowaway.

The outbreak of glanders in East Suffolk is exciting alarm at Newmarket. At a meeting on Tuesday afternoon of the County Committee under the Diseases of Animals Acts the Urban Council called attention to the great danger to valuable race-horses which had thus arisen, and asked that a circus, to which some suspicion attached, should be prevented from visiting the town. The committee decided to send two veterinary surgeons immediately to inspect the horses of the circus.

South Shields this week has been very busy owing to the Channel Fleet having paid the place a visit. On the ground in Ocean-road we have Prof. Mitchell's mystic creations, in Collena's Morgue, Mdlles. Hurculine and Mephisto, demon strong ladies, together with the usual number of stalls, &c. Eagle Davis, with his lady knife-throwers, are at Collena's Variety Exhibition, Market-place, and are doing record business on their return visit.

William Hancock, a show proprietor, was at Barnstaple yesterday fined £2 and costs for allowing Sophia Barrett, the orphan child of his niece, to perform a skirt dance in a cage containing lions. The girl, who is under fourteen, was said by Hancock to be so fond of lions that she would enter the cage out of childish fun when he was out of the way. A further fine of 10s. and costs was imposed for allowing the child to dance outside the show. Mr Hancock contemptuously added an extra guinea to the fine.

The meeting of the British Roundabout Proprietors and Showmen's Union at Nottingham Fair next week is one of more than usual importance. We refer our readers to our advertising columns for the date and time of the gathering.

INFORMATION relating to Shows and Fairs, suitable for this column, should be addressed to THE EDITOR, "The Showman World."

AMUSEMENTS IN BRUSSELS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

BRUSSELS, SEPT. 29.—The theatrical season opened on the 23rd inst., at the Theatre Royal du Pare, with Madame Réjane in L'Hirondelle. The performance was received with well-deserved applause.

AT the Vaudeville La Frousse has been the attraction. It was called formerly Les Apaches, and was found too tame at the Palais Royal in Paris last December. M. Bisson remodelled it and rechristened it La Frousse, which means "the fright." In its new garb the piece runs more smoothly and is more laughable.

THE Galleries are still sheltering the wonderfully protean Fregoli, who scores every night, especially in his clever skit Faustino, in which he impersonates Faust as a cobbler, Margaret and Valentine as a huntsman and a roaster, and Mephistopheles—the whole in four scenes.

THE Olympia is playing La Rabouilleuse, Emile Fabre's fine play, which was so successful at the Paris Odéon. It is well acted by Madame Mégard, Messrs Gémier and Dieudonné.

"LA JOUESE D'ORGUE" is in the bill at the Alhambra, and the poor organ-grinder's misfortunes seem to be a great attraction to the Brussels audiences.

THE Palais d'Eté company includes the Troupe Palmer; Mdlle. Lopez; the equilibrist, Tony Nelson; the gymnasts, Alexandre and Bertie; the mad musician, Vasco; the celebrated American singer, Miss Amélie De Lagrèze, a vocal phenomenon; Cole De Losse Duo, American eccentrics; the Three Flying Zagas; Cooke and Miss Rothert; and the juggling Piroscoffis.

IN Antwerp the Theatre des Variétés, the new palace of entertainment, has just opened with "anvers-variétés," a local "revue."

AT the El Bardo a touring company is playing Geo. Ancey's play, Ces Messieurs, a satire on politics and religion, which had a noisy reception in Brussels last season.

THE Theatre Flamand is giving a translation of Sherlock Holmes.

AT the Scala, Manager Gainnet is presenting a fine programme, including the names of the duettists, Raphaël Colombel; the Japanese equilibrists, Yamamotos; the Dorans, and those elegant acrobats, the Great Tumars.

MR MAURICE JACOBI relinquished his position as musical director of the Tivoli on Saturday evening, and will rest until the time arrives for him to conduct the orchestra at the London Coliseum, now approaching completion.

MR HARRY B. WINCOTE, the able assistant to Mr Frank Weeks at the South London Palace, returned last Monday from a pleasant holiday spent in the neighbourhoods of Brighton and Portsmouth. Mr Wincote indulged in a good deal of motoring.

MISS MILLIE LINDON has been secured at a very big salary for principal boy at the Prince's, Manchester. The popular lady has just accepted two pretty songs by Clifford Harris and Jas. W. Tate, who were jointly responsible for her successful numbers, "The rain came pitter patter down" and "So did Eve."

MISS ADELINA A. LEVEY, who has produced her novelty The Fencing Girl; or Beauty and the Blade, has been engaged by Mr Jesse Sparrow for the Camberwell Palace, after that gentleman had seen a full-dress rehearsal. Miss Levey has, therefore, been giving the scena at Camberwell, in addition to her turn with the Sisters Luverny.

MR FRED EARLE, who seems little the worse for his nasty trap accident of Wednesday in last week, has a huge hit in his new song, "My little bit of seaweed," written by himself. The ditty, which caused some of the heartiest laughter of the evening at the Tivoli anniversary, deals with the vagaries of seaweed as a barometrical prognosticator of forgone conclusions.

"MR TODD OF LONDON" will not be produced until Monday, Oct. 24, when Mr John Lawson will be giving the Bristolians some curious revelations as Vanderdecken Todd. There are mysteries and properties galore, and these will be unfolded for the first time at the local Palace in the western city. To enliven the terrors of Vanderdecken with the horrors of Sweeney Todd is a task that requires some ingenuity; but Mr Lawson is nothing if not mysterious and weird, and his impersonation should not be lacking either of these essentials. It is generally understood that the cutthroat barber was a mythical personage, and that he was never heard of until Mr Lane produced the piece at the popular "Brit." The production was "Englished" from a French drama, which set forth the malpractices of a Parisian barber, who once carried on business in the Rue de la Harpe. The name of the original barber is not obtainable, but his cook was a man and not a woman.

MIGUEL MONTERITO, a Spanish bullfighter, met with an ugly accident while taking part in a performance which was organised on Sunday in the velodrome of the Sporting Union at Montlucon, in the Department of the Allier. The Spaniard was endeavouring to stick a banderillo in a bull, but the animal became so furious that he had to fly for his life. The man was chased around the ring, and in vaulting over the barrier in order to get into a place of safety the point of the banderillo stuck in his throat. Monterito was taken home, and he is reported to be in a critical condition. At Nimes, on Sunday, 12 000 persons witnessed the bull-fights in the arena. Six bulls were killed.

AT the Palace and Winter Gardens, Tynemouth, Mr W. L. Murray remains under engagement, and continues to please with his feats of strength; the Ragamuffins in their clever musical turn secure a flattering reception; Mdlle. Yvonne Lamor, in "The New Rake's Progress;" Little Marjorie, singer and dancer; and Ashton's Italian Orchestra also contribute.

MISS LILLIE BELDING'S ELEVEN v. HARRY BELDING'S GENTS ELEVEN

Played near Bristol, on Sept. 24. The gents batted with broomsticks. During the evening an enjoyable smoking concert and dance was arranged, the following contributing to the programme:—Misses L. Carter, I. Bowman, L. Belding, Messrs F. Thorne, A. Hamlin (violin solos), H. Edwards (cornet solos), P. Hewlett (flute and piccolo solos), A. Mattock ('cello solos), H. Hare (piano solos), S. Carter, E. Belding, T. Austin, H. Clarke, J. Edmunds, and B. Davis. H. Hare was the accompanist. The Bijou Orchestra played selections from The Earl and the Girl and The Cingalee and also for dancing. Scores:—

At the conclusion of the match Miss W. Bradley was cheered for her splendid bowling.

AT Marylebone Police-court, on Saturday, James Adolph Auerbach, better known as James Behrens, twenty-eight, no home, a Danish subject, was charged, on remand, before Mr Curtis Bennett with stealing the sum of £295 in Bank of England notes belonging to Charles Prinz, a lion tamer, his employer. It appeared that the prosecutor was at the time lodging at Manor-place, Paddington. He went out, leaving his pocket-book containing the notes on the table. When he returned the book and the notes were gone, and the prisoner was missing. The latter was arrested by Detective Entiknap at Brighton, and he then said that he took the notes in a moment of sudden temptation and changed them at Paris, Copenhagen, and other places. A further charge was now preferred against him of stealing £7 belonging to George Hof, a baker, of Upper Charlton-street. Detective-inspector Ward said that the prisoner's correct name was Behrens. He had been imprisoned for six months at Hamburg for fraud, and he was wanted there now on a charge of embezzlement. He had also undergone thirty days' imprisonment in Scotland for fraud. Mr Curtis Bennett sentenced him to six months' hard labour on each charge, and said that when he came out of prison the prisoner would probably be arrested on the other case referred to.

THE Terriers will have their first social of the season at the headquarters, the Dover Castle Hotel, on Sunday night, when members and friends are cordially invited.

M. JULES CLARETIE, who receives daily an enormous mass of letters in his capacity as Administrator-general of the Comédie-Française, Paris, lately found in his correspondence an epistle from Manchester. It was written in dubious French, and the translation is as follows:—"Ashton Old-road, Openshaw, Manchester. Sir,—Have you a place next winter for a company of eight English acrobatic dancers, the eight Sisters Skipjack? For eight dancers, 70f. a-day, you to find the costumes and also pay for the voyage from Manchester to Paris. (Signed) GERTIE WHITTAKER." This letter, whether authentic or the work of an idle joker like one of those who occasionally pester busy people with idiotic anonymous communications, will in all likelihood be placed as a curiosity in the archives of the Comédie-Française.

PRELLE'S dogs will make their first appearance in London at the Alhambra on Monday. This animal act comes from the Continent with a big reputation, a rather novel feature of the "turn" being that the dogs wear masks in caricature of human beings.

THOMAS MOORHEAD, medical student, Chestnut Lodge, Booterstown-avenue, Dublin, was charged on Tuesday with being disorderly, using profane language in the Empire Theatre, Dublin, and with assaulting Mr Figgis, the manager. The accused, with two other gentlemen, was sitting in a box on Monday, throwing lighted matches and ignited cigarette ends on to the stage and into the auditorium. Mr Figgis remonstrated with them, whereupon the two friends retired, but the prisoner made a rush at Mr Figgis and caught him by the throat. There was a tussle, in which Mr Figgis secured the prisoner until arrested. Mr Drury, the stipendiary, spoke very strongly on the conduct of the accused. The only doubt he had in his mind was whether he should not send the prisoner to gaol for such conduct without the option of a fine; but he would fine him £5 or two months' imprisonment.

MR CHAS. BEST, known to fame as Mac Bunker the Mountebank, whose quaint appearance and business have been the cause of so much merriment for the last twenty-two weeks on the Moss and Stoll tours, commences his first engagement with Mr Frank Macnaghten at the Palace, Lincoln, on Monday.

MR CARL FREDRICKS concluded his al fresco concerts at Teignmouth and Dawlish this week, the last three performances being given in the Pavilion and at the Assembly Rooms to excellent audiences. His benefit concerts at Dawlish and Teignmouth resulted in record houses, crowds being turned away. He is now touring Devon with his company until Nov. 2, when he is specially engaged for the great Plymouth Exhibition, and for pantomime at the Opera House, Torquay.

PRESENTATION.—On Saturday Mr Harry Kenyon, acting-manager of the Grand Theatre of Varieties, Bolton, was the recipient of a very handsome solid silver cigarette box, with engraved monogram "H.K." on top, from Georges Hackenschmidt (who was then appearing at the Palace Varieties, Manchester), together with a letter couched in feeling terms, and stating that it was sent as a souvenir prior to his (Hackenschmidt's) departure for Australia.

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of Brown's Bronchial Troches. People troubled with a hacking cough, a slight cold, or bronchial affections cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious pulmonary and asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government stamp around each box. Sold by Chemists everywhere, 1s. 1½d. per Box.—[ADVT.]

CHAT WITH CHEEVERS & KENNEDY.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

In all professions experience counts for a great deal, even in this age of sudden evolutions, fickleness, and rapid transitions. And while it has in some cases to be admitted that in the evening of one's days, and as the shadows creep along the wall, it were better, perhaps, to steer clear of the floodtide, ship one's oars, and drift easily into the backwater of life, it is undeniable in many instances that almost overwhelming inducements to again put off from the banks and compete with the traffic of the stream are offered to men who have been favoured more or less with the mantle of Methusaleh. Probably in no other calling than the theatrical does the man of great and lengthy experience become more popular and of increased value as a money-maker with advancing years.

Take the case of Mr Joseph E. Cheevers and Mr Edward J. Kennedy, who have worked in conjunction with one another for a long period. Neither of these gentlemen can lay claim to great age, but they certainly can lay claim to great experience. Their work is as much admired now as it was twenty years ago, and that is talking "pretty considerable." Both of them citizens of the United States, they started together in the variety business as youngsters, calling themselves the Buffalo Boys. They were the originators of their own particular line, their speciality being quick changes with songs, patter, and clog, hornpipe, and sand-dancing. After performing for some years in the States, they came to this country and opened at the London Pavilion, which they left at the end of two weeks. The then manager told them that they would be glad to come back at half the salary he had given them, but, as a matter of fact, they returned to the Pavilion some months later at exactly double the remuneration they had received before. A fourteen months' stay at the Cambridge followed, and here their success was so great that a special gallery had to be built to accommodate a number of people who could not otherwise have got into the house. The ensuing Christmas season saw them at the Prince's Theatre, Manchester, where they presented their specialities in a pantomime in which Mrs John Wood was the principal boy, the Walton Family doing the harlequinade. Going on to the Grafton Theatre, Dublin, the roll of triumph was resumed, and a new gallery had to be erected in this establishment. The Dublin people were so enthusiastic in their praise of Cheevers and Kennedy that the late Mr Michael Gunn, of the old Theatre Royal, Dublin, engaged them for the last two weeks of his pantomime, in which they appeared about ten o'clock each night. Mr Gunn made the boast that he took £20 a night more after half-past nine than he did during the whole run of the pantomime, in which, by the way, Mrs Gunn played Dick Whittington, the Lauri Family attended to the harlequinade, and Mr Charles Lauri was the cat. A trip to Paris, where they appeared at the Fantaisies, brought further good fortune to

MR. E. J. KENNEDY.

Cheevers and Kennedy. Then came a return visit to the States, where they opened with Carncross and Dixey's Minstrels at the New Eleventh-street Opera House, Philadelphia.

Their start in the dramatic line was with an adaptation of Captain Marryat's "Japhet in Search of a Father." After running the piece for a little while they were notified of an engagement at Maguire's Opera House, San Francisco, some 3 000 miles from Philadelphia and a seven days' journey. On their arrival they were informed that the hall was going to close, and that proved to be the truth. All that they did there was to give a performance at the benefit of a friend, as they thought they might as well do something. It was, however, the laugh in professional and even other circles that Cheevers and Kennedy travelled 3 000 miles to 'Frisco to perform at a benefit! After appearing with Billy Emerson's Minstrels for a couple of months, Cheevers and Kennedy sailed for Australia. They broke their journey on the way at Honolulu, intending to perform there for one month, as the boats only called once in four weeks. One of the sailing companies had a disagreement, and the next boat did not stop at Honolulu, the result being that the two comedians were detained on the island several weeks longer than they should have been. However, they tell us they spent a fairly nice time, what with being invited out to dog dinners by the native chiefs. This was considered a great honour, but Cheevers and Kennedy did not appreciate at a very high estimate having a savoury piece of dead dog placed before them for a meal. The night before they sailed for Australia a benefit was given to them at the Royal Hawaiian Theatre, Honolulu. The placed was packed, for they had made so many friends in the town, and the King's box was sold seven times. Their first place of opening in our Antipodean colony was at the Victoria Theatre, Sydney, where they made such a big hit that the proprietor offered them £100 a week for twelve months. They sent out under their own name minstrel and other companies throughout Australia, doing very good business and remaining in the colony some four years. Then came a short separation between the two entertainers who had worked side by side for so many years. Mr Cheevers came to England and worked as a single turn in London and the provinces, but later on he was rejoined by Mr Kennedy, and together they played in the Birmingham Theatre Royal pantomime of Dick Whittington, with Miss Vesta Tilley in the title-rôle, others in the cast being Mr J. H. Milburn, Mr Charles Coborn, Mr Fred and Mrs Marlow, and Miss Alice Harvey. For the following year they were engaged by Mr Michael Gunn to appear as the Emperor and Empress of China in his pantomime of Dick Whittington at the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin, and the ensuing Christmas season they played similar characters at the Prince's Theatre, Manchester. After running a piece called An Irish Elopement for some little time, Mr Kennedy got married and settled down, the partnership existing between the two men being thus broken. Mr Cheevers purchased the Phœnix Music Hall, Dover, which he successfully managed for six years, then selling it at a good price. He next took the Savoy Palace Hotel in the Strand, but after two and a half years he gave it up. The old comrades have once again united forces, and but a few days ago opened at Gatti's and the Metropole. Curiously, Mr Ike Baker, the present musical director at Gatti's, was their first conductor when they made their début in London at the Pavilion. After the show was over last Monday night, Mr Baker offered his congratulations to Messrs Cheevers and Kennedy, stating that he saw no difference in their entertainment, and that they certainly were as good as ever. Their business now consists of Dutch, Irish, and nigger songs, entitled respectively "The Jealous Deitcher," "Pat and Bid," "Quit dat ticklin' me." These popular ditties have been written and composed by the clever couple who sing them, and in this respect they copy no one, but are entirely original in whatever they do before the footlights. They have always followed out their own ideas on the stage. Mr Cheevers, by the way, was the first boy clog-dancer in America, and as a single turn his great song successes have been "The Convict" and "I'm so happy." "Take me home," a Salvation Army ditty, which both of them sang at one time, was extremely popular both in England and the States.

Asked for a comparison between British and American variety establishments, Mr Cheevers said:—"American music halls are not in it with the English ones. The vaudeville houses in the States do not possess a full orchestra, and one has to be satisfied in the majority of cases with a piano accompaniment. It is so different from the condition of affairs here, where there is a nice band to assist an artist. Another thing is that the English managers give an artist a better chance of showing what he can do than is afforded by the American entrepreneurs. When we first came over to London we had a seven months' engagement at the Oxford."

We have no doubt that London amusement lovers will have an opportunity of seeing Messrs Cheevers and Kennedy for some time to come, and as they are first-rate performers it is not unlikely that the West-end will claim them for some time.

THE condition of Miss Florrie Zola, the daughter of Little Zola, we regret to hear, shows no improvement. She has been lying in St. Thomas's Hospital for one month, and all that care and skill can accommplish is being done for her.

CHAS. COVERDALE, the colloquial comedian, is paying his first visit to Dublin, where his yarns and imitations and extempore gagging are very successful.—Mr M'Askell, comic conjuror, is still detained at Scarborough in consequence of his wife's illness. He hopes, however, to take her home to-day, and will then be able to fulfil an engagement at the Circus, Rochdale.—Mr Leo Montague, comedian and dancer, leaves England on Wednesday next to fulfil a special engagement at Malta, returning in December to open on the Livermore tour.

M. CHAPLAIN, a cyclist, who was doing the "cercle de la mort" at Juliano's menagerie, Paris, now installed at the Fair of the Belfort Lion, in the Montparnasse district, had a bad fall last Sunday night. While going around he seems to have lost the track, and fell on some of the people who were looking at him. The cyclist has been hurt chiefly in the hands. The people on whom he fell were contused in the shoulders and arms.

THE Vinolia Company's soaps have obtained such a world-wide reputation that there is no need to dwell upon their many excellent qualities. But there is still something to be said concerning the genuine artistic taste and ability that are shown in the way these soaps are prepared for the retailer. The company's newest products include the "Wallflower," the "Violet," and the "Peau d'Espagne." The sweet-scented flowers of the cruciferous plant are accurately depicted on the wrappers and the boxes containing the tablets of the "Wallflower," the artist having hit the truly typical colour, and arranged his stalks around a display of the name of the soap and the company in a most pleasing manner. The fancy scrolls and the central designs which they lightly surround are rendered more effective by a general green and gold honeycomb setting. The boxes of the "Violet" soap are distinguished by an exquisitely chaste configuration. The dainty flower of the popular violet centrally depicted on a delicate spiral stalk is an exceptionally fine achievement in high-class colour printing. In Savon "Peau d'Espagne" (Vinolia) neatly combined chocolate and gold are presented in a form creating an impression of reliability and solid worth, and chemists would be well advised to include a few of this pattern in assortment with those above described.

"BURNING TO SING; OR, SINGING TO BURN," an operetta, libretto by R. H. Burnside, music by Gustave Kerker, was on Thursday produced, for copyright purposes, at the Lyric Theatre.

DR. J. C. OLIVER, Oriental magician, and Mdlle. Jeanetta, the original queen of handcuffs, terminate a successful tour of four months in Scotland to-day.

MISS AGNES HANSON, daughter of the original Johnny Hanson, has made a success at Salisbury this week in a new and original song entitled "Oh, the Photograph," by A. C. Shelley, and composed by Louis Dalroy.

MR EDITOR.—Sir,—In your correspondent's report of The Fatal Wedding at Boscombe is mentioned my daughter, Little Nora. She has not been a member of the company since the first week in August. Yours faithfully, FRED RILEY. 4, Albert-road, Peckham, Sept. 28.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

(SPECIAL TO THE ERA.)

THE specially summoned meeting of the Society of Theatrical Carpenters, held last Sunday evening in the Salisbury Hotel, was well attended. Mr Andrew Mather, formerly master carpenter at the Gaiety Theatre, was elected a member of the society. The new bye-laws, by which the society will become a branch of the National Association of Theatrical Employees, were discussed in detail and unanimously adopted. It was agreed that the bye-laws should come into operation on and from Oct. 1. It was also agreed to provide additional benefits, and the former scale of contributions was revived. The new rules will provide for two classes of membership. Class A: Contribution, 2d. per week; and Class B, 4d. per week. The contribution to the Benevolent Fund will be 1d. per month. The society had not previously a funeral fund, but it has been decided to divide its existing funds between a general fund, a funeral fund, and a benevolent fund. At one time most of the theatrical carpenters in London were members of this society, and the committee hope that all members who have allowed their membership to lapse will rejoin or apply to be reinstated.

MESSRS A. PALMER, R. Andrews, master carpenter, Wyndham's, and Mr G. Hughes, master carpenter, Court Theatre, were appointed to represent the carpenters' branch on the joint concert committee.

IT is stated that the Registrar has returned the agreement arrived at by the members of the Dramatic and Musical Fund with regard to the dissolution of that society for all members to attach their signatures. From this it may be assumed that the Registrar approves the agreement, and that it will take effect before Christmas.

THE members of the Sick and Funeral Fund of the No. 1 Branch have agreed, by a majority of two to one, to accept members of the working staff connected with the Dramatic and Musical Fund, irrespective of age, and give them a clear card for all benefits of the branch. The contributions of such members so transferred will be 6d. per week thereafter—a subscription paid by all other members of this fund.

THE Joint Concert Committee met on Tuesday at 29, Wellington-street, Strand, the committee of the No. 1 Branch N.A.T.S.E. having placed their offices at the disposal of the Concert Committee. All members were present. The question of prices of tickets was carefully considered, and it was decided that they should be from 6d. to £1 1s. The committee adjourned until Tuesday next at 10 o'clock.

THE other day a fire occurred in some chambers in Maiden-lane, and a number of the employees of the Adelphi Theatre, The Earl and the Girl company staff, got out the fire hose and succeeded in putting out the flames before the firemen arrived. Mr William Greet has requested Mr M'Kenzie, the master carpenter, to distribute £5, given by Mr Greet, among the members of the staff who exerted themselves.

A MEETING will be held to-morrow evening at the Freemasons' Tavern, Long-acre, to receive donations in respect of the case mentioned in this column last week. Among those who are giving their support to the appeal are Mr James Cullen, Mr H. Elliott, Mr Sheldon, Mr E. Wilks, Mr J. Russell, Mr A. Wood, and others.

A MEETING will be held in the Royal Standard, Fleming-street, Kingsland-road, to-morrow evening from 8 0 to 9 0 o'clock. Mr C. Thorogood and Mr Wm. Johnson will be present.

A MEETING of the Newcastle Branch members of the National Association will be held at 7 30 to-morrow night in the Percy Arms, Percy-street, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

MR H. LAWRENCE HARRIS asks us to state that his duties as secretary to the Scenic Artists' Association will not preclude his entertaining offers for engagement as business-manager of a West-end theatre.

MR W. TELBIN and MR THOS. E. RYAN have joined the Scenic Artists' Association.

NOTICES and reports of meetings, &c., are invited from the various societies with which stage employees are connected.

FOOTBALL.

MR JACK LEONARD'S XI. v. BRISTOL EARLY CLOSERS ATHLETIC CLUB

Played at Eastville on Wednesday, Sept. 21. The following were the teams:—

Jack Leonard's XI.—H. Clarke, goal; F. Thorne, and A. Lucas, backs; F. Stevens, B. Austin, and S. Carter, half-backs; E. Bowman, J. Leonard (captain), T. Edmunds, H. Edwards, and A. English, forwards.

Bristol Early Closers Athletic Club.—B. Yandell, goal; F. Wyatt and G. Hedges (captain) backs; B. Green, W. Lloyd, and T. Brooks, half backs; A. Rossiter, F. Conners, W. Denty, E Belding (Bristol X.L.C.R. Athletic Club), and S. Coombes, forwards.

Referee, J. Aubrey (of Bristol X.L.C.R. Club). Linesmen, H. Hare and P. Hewlett. Result:—Jack Leonard's XI., nil; Bristol Early Closers, A.F.C., two goals. B. Green and S. Coombes scored for Bristol Early Closers, A F.C.

MR ALFRED CAPUS, one of the most successful of latter-day French dramatists, was the chairman of an international congress of dramatic authors, critics, and composers which assembled at Nancy on Monday. The assembly has been called Le Congrès de l'Art Dramatique, and also Le Congrès de Théâtre. There were present at the congress Frenchmen, Spaniards, Flemings, Swiss, and Alsatians. Papers were read on popular and open-air theatres, and on the means to be adopted for enabling young and obscure dramatic authors to get to the front. A Swiss delegate announced the approaching organisation in his country of a popular theatre, which would be of the itinerant kind, good plays being taken around large, and even small, towns. The congress was concluded by the usual banquet, without which such assemblies would be rather commonplace. There was a congress of this sort in Paris during the Exhibition of 1900, but it led to nothing practical, and had no influence whatever on the managers of theatres.

TWO numbers from The Belle of the Orient are being issued by Messrs Francis, Day, and Hunter. They are "In the Good Old Days of Yore" and "My Poster Girl," written in conjunction with Paul Knox, by Clifford Harris and Jas. W. Tate. The latter two writers have likewise published with the same house a song-scena "Down among the Pumpkins."

AT the Large Town Hall, Reading, Ralph Pringle's North American Animated Photo. Company is giving an excellent entertainment to crowded houses. Selbo, the juggler, is specially engaged. Miss Le Clair sings in good style, and the Reading Borough Band plays selections at each performance.

MR EDITOR.—Sir,—In your notice of the Royal Albert Music Hall you mention a Thomas Cecil as appearing. It should have been, yours faithfully, TOM CECIL. 58, Mayes-road, Wood-green, N., Sept. 28.

STALYBRIDGE.

Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr J. Leighton Rooke.—Miss Ida Millais and company are here with No Man's Land. Mr Henry Herne acts with good effect as Harry Oaklands. Mr Williams as Mat Marsden and Mr Fred Conyers as Silas Moore give powerful delineations. The comedy element is well looked after by Mr S. H. Morton as Solomon Jacob, Mr Claude Haviland as Dr. Buxton, and Miss Kate Maynard as Mrs Poodle. Miss Ida Millais is a popular favourite as Mary Bathurst. The theatre has recently undergone thorough redecoration in white and gold, and a new and complete electric installation is now being fitted throughout, special attention being paid to the lighting of the stage. These improvements are largely appreciated.

STOCKPORT.

New Theatre Royal.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr Wm. Revill.—The attractive character of Sherlock Holmes, though quite familiar here, has been amply shown by the large audiences, who have witnessed the representations with every degree of pleasure. Mr H. A. Saintsbury's impersonation of Sherlock Holmes is most impressive, and commands everyone's admiration. Dr. Wilson is a pleasing character in the hands of Mr Lawrence Leyton, and Mr M. Macdermott as John Forman fills his part with marked ability. Mr W. F. Stirling makes a capital Professor Moriarty, and Mr Leslie Carter is an able James Larrabee. Miss Vera Langdon acts most charmingly as Alice Faulkner, and Miss Maud Linden portrays the character of Madge Larrabee with success.

Ohmy's Circus.—Sole Proprietor, Mr Ohmy.—The exceedingly clever Grovini Troupe of lady and gentlemen acrobats head a lengthy list of varied talent, which includes Kavardos, juggler; Mons. Hanlon, expert bar performer; and the comical clowns and popular favourites, August and September.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietress, Mrs Weldon Watts; General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr R. G. Elder.—A new play with the alluring title of A Modern Adventuress is presented here by Messrs Carson and Granville's company. As Harry Delby Mr Charles Stirling is successful; Mr W. R. Winning scores as the villain Wallace Danton; Mr Evan Rowland's John Crompton shows humour and a good grasp of the Yorkshire dialect; Steve Meredith, as done by Mr Charles Herberte, is very clever; as Walter Beal Mr Geo. P. Lester is well fitted for his various disguises; Mr Leonard Aardale is good as Pietro Donelli; Miss Mimi Fisher's Sally Hodges is full of fun; Miss Alice Defoe's Vivette Delby is very creditable; and Miss Beatrice M. Anderson's Violet Meredith is acted with considerable power.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr John Batty; Manager, Mr W. Batty.—This week the top turn here is given by Herr Wilhelm Linde's Imperial Boys' Orchestra, a combination of juveniles it would be difficult to beat; Gus Hindell, a local favourite, in good sensible songs; the Violas, in a clever act of mental telepathy; Ike Scott and Son, in their humorous singing act; Shang Hia, in Chinese conjuring; Geo. Collins, comic; Payne's up-to-date Bographic pictures; and Los Angelos, lady duettists with capital vocal abilities.

STOKE.

Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr P. Collins; Manager, Mr Frank Egerton.—Mr Frank Coyne, who heads the bill here, is a tremendous success; Mr Claude Ginnett's company in Rejected Remounts is excellent; Alexander Royal is smart, Herbert Maden sings his songs well, and Jackson and May in "Swooping the Swoop" are entertaining. Charles Serra in his acrobatic novelty is good; Ryde and Beeman are contortionists extraordinary; and Frank Dunlop is a clever mimic.

STOURBRIDGE.

Alhambra Theatre.—Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton.—The melodrama, A Wrecker of Men, played by Mr C. Watson Mill's company, is proving a great attraction here. Mr C. Watson Mill as Jim Murley is in good form, and Mr Alfred Maurice as Guiseppe Strangi gives a capable impersonation. Mr Charles Yorke as Pharosaphus does full justice to a difficult rôle, and the same can be said of Mr J. W. Ryder, who undertakes three parts. The chief character in the piece is entrusted to Miss Rosalind Tate, who in the character of Risca Mallison gives a delightful delineation. Miss Victoria May as Dorris Melville plays in a winsome manner, while Miss Kitty Melville is highly amusing as Vavasole Slopper.

SWANSEA.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs David Allen and Sons; Lessee and Manager, Mr Frank Boyce.—Sir Henry Irving and his fine company played The Merchant of Venice here on Monday evening. The great actor's reading of the difficult part of the Jew Shylock was masterly to a degree. Miss E. Wynne Mathison, too, as Portia proved herself a finished artist. Her voice was exceedingly sympathetic and musical, and the lines allotted to her received their just due. The scenic arrangements were a great feature of the performance, which compelled rapt attention, and led to enthusiastic recalls at each act-curtain. At the close of the performance, Sir Henry thanked the audience for the reception accorded to him and his company, and assured them of his deep gratitude, mentioning that he had that day received a telegram from his "dear friend" Mr Toole, asking to be remembered to all Swansea friends, and also one from Mr Frank Mouillot, regretting his inability to be present. This is the famous actor's last appearance in Swansea. On Tuesday Sir Henry presented the late Lord Tennyson's Becket. Miss Maud Fealy took the part of Rosamund De Clifford. Her acting was very fine. A piece of finished representation was the Henry II. of Mr Gerald Lawrence. The Queen Eleanor of Mrs Cecil Raleigh was another outstanding feature of the performance. The curtain was twice raised at the end of the four acts. It was a triumph.

SWINDON.

Queen's Theatre.—Sole Lessee and Responsible Manager, Mr Alfred Manners; Musical Director, Mr F. H. Lucas.—Miss Grace Warner's company is presenting here The New Commander. The piece is under the direction of Mr Couch-Johns, and a large, well-balanced chorus and augmented orchestra are ably conducted by Mr Caffyn Baxter. Miss Grace Warner plays the part of Violet Flintheart with inexhaustible freshness. Mr George Gordon as Lieutenant Frank Harding is a conspicuous success, and Mr B. Couch-Johns as Lieutenant Jack Tremingway is earnest and dignified, his fine voice making him a firm favourite. Miss May Dallas is very pleasing as Vivette; Miss Maud Warburton does well as Freddie; Mr Millar Anderson submits a quaint impersonation of Tittums; and Mr St. Bernard Wyntour as the Sultan and Mr Francis Serle as Mr Matthew Flintheart are also seen to advantage. The Primrose Quartet of lady dancers work hard throughout.

SUNDERLAND.

Avenue, Limited. — Managing-Director, Mr Chas. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr Percival Craig.—Mr F. R. Benson and his Shakespearian company are paying a return visit here this week. On Monday Hamlet was presented, Mr Benson appearing in the title-rôle and Mrs Benson as Ophelia. As Claudius Mr B. A. Pittar was successful, and a like remark applies to Mr Clarence Derwent as Horatio. Mr Cyril Keightley was an excellent Laertes.

Royal, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr Percival Craig.—At War With Women, a sensational drama, by Mr Frank Bateman, is being played here this week. Miss Lizzie Montague as Auriel Romanoff, Mr Clinton Baddeley as Antolski, Mr Edward Ouston as Alex. Romanoff, Miss Marion Warren, and Messrs Shaun Glenville, Fred Vaughan, and T. F. Kent are equally good in their respective parts.

Palace Theatre of Varieties, Limited.—Managing-Directors, Messrs Livermore Bros.; Acting-Manager, Mr George V. Wybrow; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr Alfred Browne.—Mr John Lawson, in Humanity, is the premier attraction here this week. May Evans and May Milburn, comediennes, each contribute pleasing turns, and the performances of Victor Travis, comedian; Robins and Collier, sketch artistes; Charles Stevens, vocalist; La Belle Nello, contortionist; and Zertho's dogs complete an excellent programme.

TORQUAY.

Theatre Royal. — Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr R. Smerdon; Secretary, pro tem., Mr Arthur Pearce.—An enthusiastic reception was accorded Mr George Dance's company, which is here on a first visit with A Country Girl. Mr Fred W. Pattrick, an old favourite, was welcomed as the Rajah of Bhong, and was repeatedly encored in his topical song. Mr Francis Ludlow made an exceedingly favourable impression as Geoffrey, and Mr Harry Buss as the irrepressible Barry was excellent. His duet with Miss Rosie Begarnie, whose Sophie was a clever girl, was admirable. Miss Nellie Cozens was a great favourite in her spirited representation of Nan, a Devon lass; and the singing of Miss K. Comber and Miss Ernestine Desborough delighted an appreciative house.

WAKEFIELD.

Royal Opera House.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Mr Frank Nelson's company in the farcical comedy, Trooper Hunt's Widow, is here this week. Mr Howard Cridland in the title-rôle gives a capital rendering; Mr Roy Milton is successful as Richard Hunt; Mr Edgar Kent acts well as Harry Fraser; Mr Henry Osman is capable as Gordon Ryder; and Mr Cecil Fowler does well as Nathaniel Sapp. Miss Amy Edmunds makes a charming Francis Gresham; Miss Susie Oak depicts ably the part of Bessie Wood; and Miss Ella Kitson wins favour as Mrs Watson.

WALSALL.

Her Majesty's Theatre, Limited.—General Manager and Secretary, Mr W. H. Westwood.—Mr Tom E. Murray and company, in Our Irish Visitors, opened here on Monday. As Colonel M'Mahon Mr Tom E. Murray is exceedingly good; Mr J. W. Braithwaite capably takes the part of Mr O'Brady; Mr Alfred D. Adams is most successful as Gilly Softsolder; Mr P. Piercy Watson fills the part of Jack Hyson in a creditable manner; and Miss Amy Knott is good as Mammy. The Imperial Troupe of lady dancers are well received.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietors, the Walsall Theatres Company, Limited; General Manager and Secretary, Mr W. H. Westwood.—Messrs E. Hill-Mitchelson and Harris Fineberg's company is paying a visit here this week with The Traitor. Mr Wellesley Draper gives a good representation to the dual rôle of Prince Rudolph and Colonel Nervi; Mr Stephen E. Scanlan is capital in the title-rôle; Miss Hettie Senior is well placed as Elsie Duprey; Miss Theresa Osborne is satisfactory as Zula; and as Countess Zicka Miss Lily Roselle does well.

WALTHAMSTOW.

Palace. — Managing-Director, Mr G. Adney Payne; Manager, Mr Arthur J. Barclay; Acting-Manager, Mr Geo. F. Slater.—The programme here includes Mr Wal Robbins, black and white artiste; the Sisters Morgan, lively duettists and dancers; Musical Silvo, whose manipulation of all manner of eccentric instruments, is exceedingly clever and tuneful; Miss Hetty King, who is charming in her two impersonations; the Great Northern Troupe, in their dainty exhibition of International dancing; Mr Harry Tate, in Motoring; Lord, Murray, and Lord, in their clever athletic act, The Intruder; Miss Gladys Mavius, coon singer and dancer, and Mr Fred Maxwell and his company in Anarchy.

WARRINGTON.

Royal Court.—Proprietors, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter.—Messrs Beaudyn and Livesey's company is here this week in A Traitor Prince. A special feature is the dances of the Geisha acrobatic dancers. Mr Austin Mortimer acts with skill and dash as Lieut. Frank Derrick; Prince Rao finds an able impersonator in Mr G. M. Montanini; Mr E. Carter Livesey imparts much humour to the part of Billy Bright; and an acceptable Hon. Bobbie is Mr T. G. Vane. Miss Lilian Rosebury acts charmingly as Lola Vane, and Miss Beatrice Western is good as Vashti. Miss Maudie Grayson as Pansy Blossom and Mrs E. C. Matthews as Mrs Martha Blossom complete an efficient cast.

Royal Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr F. Wilmot.—Jimmy De Voye and his educated pony are proving a capital draw at this house. Billy Farrell scores with his songs, and Harry Osmond, musical comedian; Mexican Mac, sharpshooter; Lily Lonsdale, vocalist; Ernie Myers, comedian; and the Hayes Brothers make up an excellent programme.

WEDNESBURY.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr Harry Battersby; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Cranston.—Miss Emma Litchfield's company is presenting the up-to-date drama entitled A London Actress here this week. Mr Stuart Cleveland as Sergeant-Major Crawford is responsible for some clever work. Mr Chas. E. Leicester acts the part of Lieut. Kingston in an efficient manner. Mr Fred Tenaur as Moses Mendoza gives a capital rendering of the part. Mr Sam Wilford supplies a humorous portrayal of Pat Maloney. Miss Emma Litchfield displays ability in the rôle of Hilda Mannering. As Elsie Roberts Miss Phyllis Crawford is seen to advantage. Miss Louise Millward as Biddy Maloney is very good, as is also Miss Maud Steeples as Mrs Skinner. As the Policeman Lewis Mr Jack Clyde is all that can be desired.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.

Grand.—General Manager (for Mrs Weldon Watts), Mr Fred Conneaux.—The attraction this week is A Stranger in a Strange Land, which is being played by a strong company under the direction of Mr C. W. Somerset and Mr Lionel Rignold. The latter in the rôle of Charles Dudley is very amusing. Mr Victor Widdicombe capitally represents the character of Nathaniel Daniel Boller. The rôles of the pseudo Indians are admirably sustained by Mr Wylie A. Thompson as Arthur Lowe and Mr Harry Newman as Inspector Harrington. Jack Thorndyke has a capable representative in Mr J. A. Bentham, and Ta Mo Nee is well embodied by Mr Ernest Percy. Of the ladies praise must be awarded Miss Laura Clement, who works unflaggingly and successfully as the Hon. Mrs Barton Halcombe; and to Miss Agnes Russell as Grace Halcombe; and a capable representative of Alice Wellington is found in Miss Miriam Nesbitt.

Palace. — Director-General, Mr Frank Macnaghten.—Phillips and Lorenzi are filling in a second week with their original absurdity The Saucy Kipper. Blake and Granby, in an amusing comedy sketch, earn unbounded applause. The balancing act of Iben Obed is one that holds the audience spell-bound, so apparently delicate and difficult are the feats that are performed. The white coon, George Bendon, gives in excellent voice and style some coon songs. Rosie Bartlett renders some very acceptable songs. Morny Cash, in patter and jokes, is a favourite. Herman Friscari, who has appeared here on several occasions, is watched with as great an interest as ever. Fox and Melville, after their absence, are gaining much applause for their song-illustrations, and Minnie D'Aubyn, a pleasing burlesque artiste, completes the programme.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.

Knightstone Pavilion and Opera House.—Manager, Mr W. Payne.—Mr Alfred B. Cross's company is paying a return visit here this week in The Manxman. The Pete of Mr A. B. Cross is the embodiment of all that is manly and heroic. Mr Richard Vane is a praiseworthy Philip Christian, and Mr Hilton Francis is an excellent Cæsar Cregeen. Mr Edward M'Lean makes the most of Ross Christian. Mr C. H. Ogden (Dr. Mylchreest), Mr John Allen (Tom), Mr E. Cartell (Monty Missit), and Mr Douglas Cottell (Professor Mawley) all deserve praise. Miss Minnie Watersford's Kate Cregeen is a convincing impersonation, and Miss Rosie Kearn's Nancy merits the highest commendation. Miss Muriel Clay is extremely good as Miss Christian.

WEST STANLEY.

Theatre Royal, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr Mark H. Lindon.—Mr Sanderson Moffat and his company are here this week with A Woman Adrift, and the following powerful cast are giving entire satisfaction:—Mr Leslie Beaufort is good as Sir John Ingleby; Miss Violet Keand scores as Lady Ingleby; Mr W. A. Mackersey as Dr. Cameron; Miss Cissie Bell as Nurse Cooper; Miss Phyllis Hamilton as Cora Leigh; and Mr Sanderson Moffatt as Don Leo Castro also do well.

Victoria Theatre. — Proprietor, Mr T. C. Rawes; Resident Manager, Mr David Williams.—The attraction here this week is The Girl from Bond-street, played by Messrs Woodbridge and Rendell's company. Mr J. W. Woodbridge is very good as Seacombe, and as Fielding and Maynard Messrs S. Liddiard and G. Watts respectively fill their parts well. Miss Phyllis Manners is deservedly applauded for her rendering of the part of Mrs Harvey, and Miss V. Varcoe is pleasing as Lucy. Miss B. Bartlett is a capable Lady Fielding, and Miss L. Besant is pleasing as Lottie.

WIGAN.

Royal Court Theatre.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Company; Managing-Director, Mr John Worswick.—The comic opera Amorelle has been presented here this week by Mr C. P. Levilly's company. Miss Empsie Bowman as Amorelle gives a charming rendering of the character; Mr Leon Simkin plays admirably the comedy part of Dr. Crow; and all the other characters are well represented. The chorus both in volume of tone and technique is good, and the augmented orchestra, under the direction of Mr W. H. Davin, makes up a musically perfect ensemble. The opera is admirably staged and dressed.

Grand Theatre and Hippodrome.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Company; Managing-Director, Mr J. Worswick.—Duncan's well-trained collie dogs give a capital performance; and Lillie Langtry is a vivacious and highly amusing comedienne. Grace Compton, vocalist; Arthur Slater, whistling comedian and mimic; Barton and Franklin, musicians; and Walter Curtis, humorous entertainer, are well received. The Falcons, comedy acrobats; Baroni and Kemp, quick-change artistes, &c.; Bert Woodward, in cycling comedy; and Rita and Roma, vaudeville entertainers, also furnish excellent turns.

WORCESTER.

New Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr Arthur Carlton; General Manager, Mr Louis Karpe; Assistant-Manager, Mr Albert J. Lewis.—Mr Henry Dundas's company is here this week in the drama entitled Human Nature. Mr Dundas gave a powerful impersonation of Captain Temple, and the part of Mrs Temple was cleverly portrayed by Miss Batho Griffiths. Mr Henry C. Cooper was good as the villainous solicitor, and Mr Sidney Young as the clerk caused considerable merriment. Miss Lilian Dundas was deserving of praise for her acting as Cora Grey; Mr Reginald Weighell was capital as Joe Lambkin; and the children's parts were well taken by Miss Daisy Cooke and Miss Marion Ryder.

WORKINGTON.

Opera House.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr C. F. Porter.—Messrs Scudamore and Richmond on Monday presented The Beautiful Avenger to a large and appreciative house. Mr L. Scudamore was successful as the villain. Mr A. Syms was agreeable and dignified as the hero. As Herman Mr G. Diamond was satisfactory. In the part of Jim Mr F. Withers was droll. Miss Cissie Podmore gave a spirited rendering of Baldie. Miss H. Meade was excellent in her dual embodiments. Miss Mabel Scudamore essayed the character of Edna, securing applause; and Miss L. Hawkins was a capable Arabella.

Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr H. Wright.—Silvester and Sansome's Cissy is paying a return visit, and meeting with approbation. Mr F. Sansome as Titus causes roars of laughter; Mr F. Gillions is good as Victor; as the adventurer Mr G. E. Butt is forceful; Miss R. Dramaundy is an effective Olive; and Miss F. Barnes is much liked as Cissie.

WORTHING.

Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr A. B. Dixon.—Mr Ben Greet's company, under the direction of Mr Banister Howard, is here this week with The Belle of New York. Mr Arthur Ricketts is very clever as Ichabod Bronson. Mr Harold Wardroper is excellent as Harry Bronson, his fine vocalisation being greatly admired. Mr Walter Emro causes roars of laughter as Karl Von Pumpernick. Mr Guy Ford is good as "Doc." Mr Mack Ollive is cleverly typical as Blinkey Bill. Mr R. L. Cody and Mr Lionel Yeoman as the twin Portuguese are entertaining. The remaining male rôles are capably portrayed. Miss Mora Hersee as the Salvation lassie possesses a capital voice and uses it to advantage. The Fifi of Miss Helen Rose is an excellent performance. Miss Rose sings and dances well and soon installs herself a general favourite. Miss Ida Grandison deserves commendation as Cora Angelique. Miss Florence Hersee is vivacity personified in her dual part of Kissie and Mamie. On Thursday Glittering Gloria was presented by Mr William and Mr Philip Glyn's company.

WREXHAM.

Empire Music Hall.—Proprietor, Mr J. J. Scott; Manager, Mr Herbert Nicholls. — The company consists of E. J. Wilkes, a smart comedian; Harris and Worth, eccentric comedians; the Schumans, comedy artistes and dancers; Rosie Morn, comedienne; the Two Vervains, vocalists and quick-change artistes, and Tom Dalton, comedian and dancer.

YORK.

Royal.—Lessees, Messrs Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr T. H. Barrow.—The ever-popular play, The Silver King, has drawn large audiences during the week. In the title-rôle Mr Lauderdale Maitland is particularly successful. Miss Lilian Bethell is an especially attractive Nellie Denver, Little Violet St. Clair makes a particularly pleasing Cissy, and the Jaikes of Mr Edward J. George is an excellent character study. Mr W. V. Garrod is an excellent Spider, Mr Arthur Wright does well as Coombe, and Mr Philip Renouf as Corket and Mr A. Northway as Cripps are alike excellent. Miss Lorna Treherne is sympathetic as Olive Skinner.

Opera House and Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr W. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr Sidney Brooke.—The management here is fortunate in securing Mr Tree's company in the famous play The Darling of the Gods, for three nights. A large and distinguished audience witnessed the play on Monday. Miss Lilian Stafford gave a fine exhibition of acting as Yo-San; Mr Ernest Stallard as Kara looked the part, and was frequently applauded for his clever acting; Mr G. W. Anson as Zakkuri gave a scholarly rendering; and Mr Robert Gray was a dignified Banza. Miss Rhoda Strauss made an excellent maid, and the remaining parts had ample justice done to them. On Thursday Mr George Edwardes' company in The Toreador occupied the boards.

IMPORTANT NEW ELGE FILMS.

No. 259. MIXED BATHING.

Fat Mr Brown, seated with his wife on the beach, discovers that she has fallen asleep. He then sweeps the horizon with his glasses, and discovers some interesting mixed bathing going on. He makes up his mind to join the boys and girls, and we next see him enjoying his dip. We then return to Mrs Brown, who wakes up and finds herself alone. She does not take long to discover the whereabouts of her spouse, and fishes him out of the water to the great amusement of all concerned. Highly amusing film, sure to be a great success. Length, 250ft. Price, £6 5s.

No. 214. SHOOTING THE RAPIDS, KILLARNEY.

An illusion, producing upon an audience the same effect as if they were undergoing the risk of being actually in the boat. A most extraordinary effect. Nothing of the kind has ever been attempted before. Length, 160ft. Price, £4.

No. 203. THREE LITTLE MAIDS.

No. 192. THE ELECTRIC SHOCK.

Some tiresome boys tamper with an electrician's door bell, much to his annoyance. He calls into service a 10,000 volts battery, which he connects with the bell chain. Result—postman, Jack Tar, Mary Jane, &c., are all nearly electrocuted. Length, 120ft. Price, £3.

No. 200. THE FATAL WIG.

A maiden fair, past the first bloom of youth, resorts to artifice in the hopes of renewing her charms. But youth will be served, and while the damsel is making a hit with her Sunday boy, some children on the other side of the garden wall procure their pa's fishing-rod, and hook a wig at a moment when the infatuated pair are locked in each other's arms. Length, 118ft. Price, £2 19s.

No. 257. GENERAL BOOTH PREACHING.

A unique picture, showing the General preaching to the villagers from his motor-car. Length, 160ft. Price, £4.

No. 256. AN AFFAIR OF HONOUR.

A unique picture, illustrating the great Duel Scene from this well-known and highly popular Sketch, enacted by the famous Percy Murray and Co. The picture is a magnificent one, brimful of sensation and brilliantly staged. Sure to be a great draw. Length, 250ft. Price, £6 5s.

THE CONFIDENCE TRICK.

A country gentleman, newly arrived in town, is greatly struck with the wonders of Cleopatra's Needle. An obliging gentleman, strolling along the Embankment, notices the countryman's astonishment, and kindly points out the objects of interest in the locality. The two become very friendly and walk off together to a quiet part of the Embankment. There they sit down beside a curate who happens to be reading on the seat. The polite gentleman has some wonderful knowledge of gold mines, but before initiating the countryman into the good things he knows, he suggests that they should mutually show their confidence in one another. He hands the countryman his pocket-book, in which are a number of bank-notes, and remains on the seat while his victim and the curate, who has been previously introduced, walk away together. They speedily come back, restore the pocket-book, and the countryman is asked to show his confidence by giving the polite stranger his pocket-book in turn. The stranger and the curate then walk off together, but they do not come back. The countryman, growing alarmed, calls a policeman and sets off in pursuit. In the meantime, a tramp, who has been watching the proceedings, comes quietly up and makes away with the countryman's bag, which has been left behind in the excitement.
Length, 175ft. Price, £3 12s. 11d.

THE NIGGER BOY'S REVENGE

A little Nigger boy reclines indolently in a hammock. But that hammock is wanted for a coloured lady, who comes along in the company of a white gentleman, and the boy is summarily ejected. The black lady is duly installed in his place, and the gentleman who is with her, and is much smitten with her sable charms, sits down beside her and talks of many things, what time a native minstrel discourses more or less sweet music with a banjo. But the little Nigger boy has his feelings also, and they have been outraged by his treatment. Seizing a huge slice of water-melon to comfort himself withal, he quietly climbs the tree from which the hammock is suspended, and at the psychological moment severs the cord with his clasp knife. Tableau!!!

THE

WATERFALLS OF WALES.

Among the many natural beauties with which Wales abounds, none are more famous than its very beautiful waterfalls. In this picture a number of the most famous falls are shown to fine advantage. First there is a panoramic view of the Pistyll-y-Caen. A still finer fall close at hand is next brought into view, and the tumbling torrents of water form a most beautiful picture. Then follows a series of photographs, taken at intervals, by the side of the Rhaiadr Du Falls, commencing with a view right at the top of the falls and showing the various portions, one after the other. Some of these pictures dissolve very beautifully from one to another, and, by means of the panoramic head and tilting camera stand, a very fine and comprehensive effect is obtained.
The whole picture is toned a brilliant blue, which gives a very realistic appearance to the water and forms a pleasant change from the more usual black and white pictures.
Length, 175ft. Price, £4 7s. 6d.

No. 655.

THE JONAH MAN;
OR, THE TRAVELLER BEWITCHED.

This is a trick film of an entirely new character, depicting in a very convincing manner the various troubles through which an unfortunate traveller has to pass in the endeavour to catch his train. His coat and hat gradually dissolve off his body and slowly appear on their original hook on the wall. His breakfast, table and all, slowly disappear before his eyes, and various other discomforting accidents happen to him. From his 'bus the horses gradually fade away, and while he is searching for them the omnibus disappears and leaves him in the road alone. Another 'bus fades away while it is going along before he has a chance to get in. He overtakes another, but it fades, and, dropping him through the bottom, leaves him rolling in the road. At the railway station even the trains behave in the same manner, and the train melts away before our eyes while it is running at full speed, till at last the Demon of Invisibility attacks the man himself, who, struggling violently, gradually fades away from mortal ken.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1904

The veteran J. L. Toole has a good story in "The Era" Annual (49, Wellington-street, Strand) a publication which is highly valued by all who have anything to do with the stage. He says:—I was once playing in "Dearer than Life" with Irving and Billington at Leeds. After the performance several gentlemen were in the general room of the hotel where we were staying, and among them a certain Mr Jones, who professed to have a large acquaintance in the profession, and who appeared to have a local reputation as a judge of ages.

"Well, how old," said someone, "would you take Mr Toole to be?'

"Well," said he, "sixty-five, if he's a day."

"Do you know him?" I asked.

"Oh, yes; I know him very well indeed."

"Ah! and how old should you take me to be?"

"Well, I should take you to be forty, if you're a day."

Irving asked Mr Jones if he didn't think Mr Toole was nearer seventy-five than sixty-five. "No," he said; "sixty-five, if he's a day," and the company present seemed to put it down that that would be my age. They had most of them been to the theatre and seen me—for the first time probably—playing an old man; and as it was my first visit to the town, and we were going on by the mail train that night, I had a fancy not to go away and leave them under the impression that I was this very old gentleman. I found that Jones was a decent sort of fellow, and I said to Irving that before I went I should just give him my card and let him know what a mistake he had made. By and bye, when our cab arrived, we said good night to our casual acquaintances, and, taking Mr Jones aside, I handed him my card, whereupon he said "Oh, indeed!" in a very offensive manner, turned upon his heel, and walked away.

"Well," I said to my friends as we drove away, "that's the most impertinent fellow I think I ever met." Whereupon Billington and Irving went into fits of laughter, and confessed that they had warned Mr Jones that I was continually passing myself off as Toole, and he was to be quite prepared for my handing him a card and trying the imposition upon him.—Leeds and Yorkshire Mercury, Friday, Jan. 22d, 1904.

THE SENSATION OF LONDON.

DR. WALFORD BODIE, M.D.

Just finished a Phenomenally Successful Appearance in London, finishing at the where I again played to Record Business, both places being Packed to Suffocation Nightly.

Not Hundreds, but Thousands, turned away Nightly at both Halls.

Rebooked for Three Dates at all the Syndicate Halls, having made the Greatest Hit of any Living Artiste of Modern Times, and receiving the Biggest Salary ever paid an Artiste in London.

Now on my Tour through

BONNIE SCOTLAND

with my own Combination, Playing to Packed Houses Nightly everywhere.

DR. WALFORD BODIE, M.D., and the Young Laird.

Read! Read!! Read!!!

Free Lance, Sept. 10, 1904.

I went to the Canterbury Music Hall on Wednesday night, and being favoured by Mr Fred Miller, the manager of the most celebrated of London halls, with a capital seat, I saw some wonderful things—not in the general programme, mind you, excellent as that was, but in the special turn provided by Dr. Walford Bodie, the interest of which is so absorbing that, like Aaron's rod, it swallows up that of all others. . . . Let me give some of my reasons for calling this unique turn a budget of wonderful things. In the first place, Dr. Bodie occupies the stage, roughly speaking, for about an hour—that is wonderful in a London hall, where ten to fifteen minutes is considered a lengthy period of scintillation for even the brightest of stars . . . The audience was wonderful, for it was packed to suffocation, and was moved now and then to bursts of frenzied excitement and applause, such as I have never witnessed, not even in the pandemonium of a political meeting. . . . Dr. Bodie is a young, handsome, and well set-up fellow, his stage manner is perfect, his voice pleasing, his enunciation distinct. His figure and bearing are graceful, and had he chosen as his vocation to be a romantic actor it is more than probable he would have been a ladies' idol. On his entrance I felt quite sure that he was conscious of his physical advantages, for he was habited in a doctor's gown, the voluminous folds of which "became him mightily." It was not long, however, before I was undeceived in this respect. For nearly three years in the "Free Lance" I have criticised music hall turns in their infinite variety, but in presence of such an exhibition as that given by Dr. Walford Bodie criticism is dumfounded, comment a'one is possible, but even that is difficult, because it must be voluminous to be comprehensive or even approximately adequate. . . . When I left the Canterbury it was raining hard, but a large crowd was waiting outside to see Dr. Bodie pass to his carriage, and cheered him lustily as he drove away. . . .

Many thanks to Managers and Agents for Offers; also many thanks to Thomas Barrasford, Esq., the Pioneer of Music Halls, for other Contracts for all his places, 1906, Two Weeks each Town with my Own Company; also Four Weeks Glasgow Zoo and Four Weeks, Hippodrome, Liverpool, at the Record Salary of and a Big Share of the Gross Receipts for my own Act alone, without my Company. Surely that speaks for itself. Mr Barrasford knows a good thing when he sees it, and is not afraid to pay a price for what the Public want. With my share of the receipts it will mean about £300 per week—the biggest salary ever paid to any performer in this country.

Now, then, my so-called friends, does this not worry you a bit, eh? But it serves me right. Managers will persist in making me take Big Money, and I don't like to refuse, as I might cause offence.

More anon.

MADAME COLLARD'S DOGS, Just Concluded Metropole, Camberwell, with Great Success. This Week, Palace, Greenwich. Monday next, HIPPODROME, DEWSBURY.

Very enjoyable, too, is the performance of Madame Collard's dogs, which have been trained to accomplish a series of skilful and exacting feats. The manner in which the "turn" is put on gives it a superiority to many similar turns. The idea is of Robinson Crusoe being amongst his favourities, and to carry this into effect the dogs wear gear to represent lions and tigers, all the accessories used are of a rustic character, and Crusoe's man Friday "nips" quietly about the stage rendering what help is neccessary. It is a capital idea, well executed, and the feats of the dogs evoke very warm enthusiasm.—Grimsby Daily News.

MUSICAL SILVO.

The turn given by Musical Silvo must come as the treat of the evening. This gentleman is the inventor of the Silvo chimes and bamboo bells, and from his own creation he draws forth some most exquisite tones. His medley, made up of current popular songs, and played on the musical glasses, is especially well done.—Standard, Sept. 20, 1904.

IN

"AN ACTOR AND A MAN."

A MASTERPIECE OF SINGING, COMEDY, AND PATHOS.

Mr Leo Dryden, in a scena entitled "An Actor and a Man," essays to outrival Sir Charles Wyndham in the vivacious veteran's pet part, David Garrick. Mr Dryden, all unaided, contrives, in ten or twelve minutes, to give the story of Robertson's adaptation, or all of it that is really vital. Short as it is, this scena affords Mr Dryden much scope for powerful acting, fine baritone singing, and reckless furniture (glass) smashing.—Referee, Sept. 11, 1904.

A Novelty.
Laughter and Tears Emphatic Success of
MISS LOUISE BEAUDET, in her Musical Scena-Sketch
"Touring the Varieties,"
Written by H. Chance Newton,
Songs by John P. Harrington and George Le Brunn.
Resumes Tour in a few Weeks.

The result is seen in unchanging prosperity, a happy state of affairs which has been particularly striking this week at the Stratford Empire, where immense audiences have enjoyed a bill-of-fare of surpassing strength. A novelty is furnished in the new scena entitled "Touring the Varieties," written by Mr H. Chance Newton, with music by Robert Coverly, for Miss Louise Beaudet. It introduces a young actress who, having discovered that variety is the essence of entertainment, proceeds to supply it. She begins with "The Darlings in the Band," dedicated to the orchestra, several of whom are addressed in endearing terms by the bewitching comedienne, each object of her blandishments, from the fife to the fiddle, the cornet to the bass drum, giving an example of his powers. The song is drolly conceived and wittily written, and is rendered by Miss Beaudet with such charm, verve, grace, and spirit all combined that its success is immediate and complete. A descriptive song, entitled "The game of sham called Life," forms the next item, in which comedy and tragedy alternate, the final essay being the touching story of a London flower girl, whose mother is dying for the want of nourishment, and who goes almost crazy with joy at the receipt of a sovereign given by a stranger for one of her posies. Miss Beaudet renders the piece with rare fervour and profound intensity, and the sympathy of the audience is with her until the close, when their appreciation is enthusiastically bestowed.—The Era, Sept. 17, 1904.

Representative, Chas. B. Cochran, Limited,
12, Henrietta-street, Covent-garden.

In a scena entitled "A Schoolgirl's Holiday"
GERTIE GITANA
scores a great success. She is a clever actress devoid of artificiality. Her facial expressions and bodily poses are exceedingly clever, and she possesses a clear and powerful voice, which she uses with pleasing effect.—Vide Wolverhampton Express, Sept 20 1904

Topping the Bill, Second Week.
Topping the Bill, Second Week.

Notwithstanding strong counter-attractions, the Palace Theatre was crowded last night. Particular gratification was afforded by the re-engagement of the Three Sisters Sprightly, whose charming talent is warmly appreciated in Aberdeen. The versatility of the trio is remarkable.—Aberdeen Journal, Sept. 27, 1904.
The Three Sisters Sprightly commenced the second week of their Aberdeen engagement with immense success, and the audience would not let them depart under five turns. Their splendid little song-sketches, well sung and acted with great spirit, are such as one never gets tired of.—Aberdeen Free Press, Sept. 27.
The talented trio, whose portraits appear above, are again scoring a huge success this week, contributing no less than five items nightly from their extensive répertoire, and, after occupying the stage three-quarters of an hour, the audience seems loth to let them go.—Bon Accord, Sept. 29

THE LIQUID AIR CLEANSER.

EVOLUTION OF AN ORDER.

IN FIVE STAGES,

STAGE ONE.

ACCEPTATION.

"Hello! Is that you, Mr Harris?"

"It is. Who are you?"

"I am Lena Riley, Wardrobe Mistress to Mr Tree's 'Eternal City,' speaking from Halifax. Can you clean the Pope's robe and principals' dresses between the shows of Saturday and Monday?"

"Why, certainly. With our new LIQUID AIR CLEANER we would undertake to clean 'THE ETERNAL CITY' itself in that time."

STAGE TWO.

CONFIRMATION.

"Let the Pope's robe and dresses reach St. Pancras, Sunday, 5·10 p.m. I'll do the rest."

STAGE THREE.

INSPIRATION.

Meet the 5·10 p.m. at St. Pancras. Cleaning at 7·0 a.m., Monday. Finish 9·45 a.m.
Motor to catch 10·35 a.m. to South Shields.

COSTUMES DIPPED IN OUR LIQUID AIR RECEPTACLE BECOME CLEAN, BRIGHT, AND DRY

IN THE SHORTEST SPACE OF TIME. OUR LIQUID AIR CLEANSER WORKS WONDERS.

CONSIDERATION.

By the aid of a little LIQUID AIR, a little Palm Oil, and a little more LIQUID AIR, annihilation of time and distance becomes quite an easy matter when you know how to do it.—T. HARRIS.

STAGE FIVE.

REALIZATION.

'PHONE FROM HALIFAX. 6·0 p.m., MONDAY (Lena Riley speaking).

"Is that you, Mr Harris?"—"It is."

"I've called you up to tell you that the dresses of the Pope and the principals reached us spic and span and in good time. The Pope looked as fresh and clean as if he had just stepped from the Vatican. Thanks to you. You're a wonder. How do you do it?" "Why, don't you know? With LIQUID AIR! LIQUID AIR! Recommend me to your friends."—T. HARRIS.

COUNTY COUNCIL AND AMUSEMENTS.

(SPECIALLY REPORTED FOR THE ERA.)

On Tuesday the London County Council resumed its sittings after the annual recess at the County Hall, Spring-gardens.

CARLTON THEATRE.

The Theatres and Music Halls Committee reported that at a recent inspection of the Carlton Theatre, Greenwich, it was found that one of the outer exit doors at the back of the pit was fastened by a wedge during the presence of the public. The committee were of opinion that, in order to enable the Council to take proceedings should there be any repetition of this dangerous practice, a notice under the forty-fifth section of the Metropolitan Board of Works (various Powers) Act, 1882, should be served on the person keeping open the theatre. They recommended accordingly. Agreed to.

LONDON COLISEUM.

The committee reported that they had considered plans, submitted by Messrs F. Matcham and Co., showing a slight extension of the London Coliseum. They recommended "That Messrs F. Matcham and Co. be informed that the Council has no objection, so far as its regulations under section 12 of 41 and 42 Vict., Cap. 32, are concerned, to the arrangements shown on the two plans, dated Sept. 10, 1904, submitted by them with regard to the proposed extension of the London Coliseum." Adopted.

LONDON EXHIBITIONS.

The committte had considered a plan submitted by Mr A. O. Collard, showing the proposed arrangements in connection with the Gas and Furniture Exhibitions to be held at the London Exhibitions, Earl's-court, from Nov. 19 to Dec. 17, 1904, and from Feb. 28 to March 9, 1905, respectively. The committee recommended "That Mr A. O. Collard be informed that the Council has no objection, so far as its regulations under section 12 of 41 and 42 Vict., cap. 32, are concerned, to the arrangements shown on the plan, dated Sept. 10, 1904, submitted by him with regard to the proposed arrangements in connection with the Gas and Furniture Exhibitions to be held at the London Exhibitions, Earl's-court, from Nov. 19 to Dec. 17, 1904, and from Feb. 28 to March 9, 1905, respectively, provided the following conditions be complied with:—(1) That all gas pipes used in connection with the special arrangements for the Gas Exhibition be of iron or brass. (2) That the enclosures of the covered way be rendered fire-resisting, and that the flights of steps at each end be constructed to the satisfaction of the Council. (3) That all awnings, &c., be rendered fire-resisting." Approved.

PROPOSED THEATRE, LEWISHAM.

The Council on July 14, 1903, approved plans, submitted by Messrs Briggs and Jeyes, of a theatre to be erected at the corner of High-street, Lewisham, and Hither-green-lane, such approval being subject to a condition, inter alia, that the erection of the premises should be commenced within six months. An application having been made for an extension of the time for a further six months, the Council gave its consent thereto on Feb. 2, 1904. When the site was recently inspected, however, it was found that the work had not been commenced, and the Council's approval has therefore lapsed. They recommended "That Messrs Briggs and Jeyes be informed that the approval by the Council of the plans submitted by them with regard to a proposed theatre at Lewisham has lapsed." Agreed to.

SPORTSBANK HALL, CATFORD.

The committee had considered plans, submitted by Mr H. Lewis-Upham, on behalf of Messrs H. and G. Taylor, of the Sportsbank Hall, Catford, in respect of which premises it is desired to obtain a licence for music and dancing at the forthcoming licensing sessions. The hall on the ground floor will accommodate 900 persons, and that on the first floor 284 The committee recommended—That Mr H. Lewis-Upham be informed that the Council will be prepared to grant a certificate under section 12 of 41 and 42 Vict., cap. 32, with regard to the Sportsbank Hall, Catford, on being satisfied that the work shown on the three plans, dated Sept. 14, 1904, submitted by him has been completed and that certain specified conditions have been complied with." Approved.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL, LANGHAM-PLACE.

The Council on June 21, 1904, approved plans submitted by Messrs Vaughan, Brown, and Co., of the fire resisting-screen proposed to be fitted to the proscenium opening at St. George's Hall, Langham-place. The space between the two faces of the curtain was shown on the plans referred to as to be filled with silicate cotton with wirework on each side. Plans showing very extensive alterations to this hall (including the provision of a fire-resisting curtain) were submitted by Mr J. G. Buckle and approved by the Council in May, 1903, and the Council did not then require the curtain to be packed with silicate cotton. Mr Buckle had written asking that, in the circumstances, the Council will not insist on the silicate packing to the curtain. The committee recommended "That Mr Buckle be informed that, in view of the special circumstances of the case, the Council will not insist on the fire-curtain at St. George's Hall being packed with silicate cotton." Adopted.

INSPECTION OF THEATRES, &c.

Mr DOLMAN moved "That it be an instruction to the Theatres and Music Halls Committee to present a half-yearly return as to the inspection of places of entertainment by the Council's officers, showing the number and nature of the offences reported." There was no opposition to the proposal, and it was seconded and carried without comment.

HOCKEY.

MISS CECILIA FOWLER'S LADIES TEAM v. COTHAM AND REDLAND LADIES ATHLETIC CLUB.

Played near Clifton Downs on Saturday, Oct 1. The following were the teams:—

Miss Cecilia Fowler's Ladies Athletic Team.—Miss E. Bowman, goal; Miss E. Francis and Miss I. Bowman, backs; Miss L. Belding, Miss C. Fowler (captain), and Miss M. Leonard, half-backs; Miss G. Leonard, Miss A. Bernard, Miss N. Bailey, Miss T. Maynard, and Miss B. Godfrey (forwards).

Cotham and Redland Ladies Athletic Club.—Miss M. Fisher, goal; Miss A. Gibbs and Miss M. Hamilton, backs; Miss L. Norris, Miss G. Thomas, and Miss L. Coles, half-backs; Miss F. Hooper, Miss W. Bradley (captain), Miss R. Davis, Miss M. Burgess, and Miss K. Montgomery, forwards.

Referee, Miss L. Carter (of Miss Cecilia Fowler's Team). Result:—Miss Cecilia Fowler's XI., nil; Cotham and Redland Ladies Athletic Club, two goals. Misses G. Thomas and L. Norris scored for Cotham and Redland Ladies Athletic Club, M. Fisher playing a splendid game in goal.

AT the Theatre Royal, Whitehaven, the attraction this week is Sapho, the play being presented by the New Sapho Syndicate (Limited). Miss Annie Bell appears in the title-rôle, and her performance is in every way a most creditable one. The character of Jean Gaussin has a capable exponent in Mr Horatio Sinclair; and Mr A. Helsby gives valuable support as Dechelette. Mr G. Antley is amusing as the fussy uncle Cesaire; and Mr P. Roberts is good as Flamant. Mr H. Langford as Caoudal and Mr J. A. Storey as Legrand are both convincing in their respective parts; and a clever child study is given by Miss Lottie Ray as Joseph.

MAKES THE SKIN AS SOFT AS VELVET.—Beetham's "Larola" preserves the Skin and Complexion from the effects of the sun, wind, and hard water. Removes and prevents all roughness, redness, chaps, irritation, tan, &c., and Keeps the Skin Soft, Smooth, and White at all Seasons. Delightfully Soothing and Refreshing after dancing, cycling, tennis, motoring, &c. Bottles, 1s., 1s. 9d., and 2s. 6d. each, of all Chemists and Stores, or Post-free from the Makers, M. Beetham and Son, Cheltenham.—[Advt.]

ABERTILLERY.

THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessees, Messrs Arthur Carlton and Sam Duckworth; General and Resident-Manager, Mr Geo. W. Ventom.—Messrs Preston and Doherty's company, in The Rich and Poor of London, is a great attraction here. Miss Dora Dench is extremely good as May Braithwaite; Miss Belle Tilbury scores a success as Ruby Redgrave; Miss Marie Ramez is very good as Auntie Scrimp; Miss Sybil Viney does well as Polly Philpot; Little Arline T. George gives a capital rendering of Seadrift; and Dixie is also well placed in the hands of Master B. Dench. Mr S. Cranston gives a capital impersonation of Gussie Lamb; Mr Sydney Dench makes a capital Daniel Drake; and Spider Jack was well represented by Mr J. Laurier.

ACCRINGTON.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr J. E. Barnes.—Mr Walter Melville's company opened here on Monday with A Girl's Cross Roads. Mr Wingold Lawrence must be complimented on his masterly performance of Jack Livingstone. Mr Edwin J. Wild as John Meadows was a performance of the highest order. The comedy was in the safe hands of Mr Jack Hitchins as Toby Turvey. Mr Wilton Reed gave an excellent embodiment of Cuthbert Lumley. Mr John Brooks was good as Luke Ramsden. Miss Beatrice Homer as Barbara Wade proved herself an admirable actress. Nelly Meadows was a part played to the life by Miss Octavia Noel. Miss Violet Barton Aston was good as Constance Cornell. Miss Emily Custance was particularly clever as Tilly Vane.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr Paul Vandy.—This house opened on Monday with an excellent company, including Will Aubrey, comedian and patterer. The Abadaroffs, the prehistoric mountebanks; Molly Doon, dainty comedienne and dancer; Carlo and Male, comedy acrobatic and wire act; Balmon, trick cyclist; George Schickley's bears and the New Bioscope are also in the bill.

ALDERSHOT.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr George E. Williams.—The Silver King, a drama that is always heartily welcomed in Aldershot, is on a return visit, an excellent interpretation being given by Messrs G. M. Polini and Austin Melford's company. Mr Austin Melford gives a capital portrayal of Wilfred Denver, his clever acting causing the rôle to stand out with prominence. Miss Emelie Polini's is a fine enactment of Nellie Denver. As the faithful old servant Jaikes Mr C. C. Gratton is good, and cleverly portrayed rôles are Messrs Charles Levey's Spider, Jas. Power's Corkett, Arthur Rooke's Combe, and C. Amalia's Cripps. A capable young actress is Miss Amy Manfree as Cissy. Miss Phyllis Dailly as Olive is acceptable, and others who do well are Misses Dolly Norton, Margaret Rooke, and Messrs Arnold Palmer, Warriss Lindon, Phil Redmayne, and Eric Store.

ARBROATH.

NEW PUBLIC HALL.—Mr J. Bannister Howard presented here on Saturday and Monday evenings Mr Ben Greet's company in The Fatal Wedding. Mr G. E. Clive gave a fine portrayal of the manly character of Howard Wilson. Mr Cecil A. Collins as Robert Curtis was excellent as the villain. Mr W. Rushton Evan was amusing as Toto. Miss Eva Moss played with telling effect the injured wife, Mrs Howard Wilson. Miss Beatrice Whitney as the villain's accomplice helped greatly to sustain the interest of the play. Miss Maisie Richardson as Jessie, the little mother, was sympathetic, and was loudly applauded.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr Armstrong Fairbairn.—The Never-Never Land, by the late Mr Wilson Barrett, is being presented here this week by a thoroughly competent company, under the direction of Messrs Hart and Armitage. Unquestionably the part of Jack Mowbray stands out prominently as outlined by Mr E. F. Kennedy, and important characters are enacted by Messrs G. M'Kenzie, A. Bolton, Edwd. Rochecle, H. Morgan, Cecil Elgar, S. Bancroft, Simon D. Ord, Geo. Joy, Jno. Hartt, and others. The ladies of the cast also merit commendation, particularly the Misses Caroline Barrett, Julie Kennard, Marion Fawcett, Blanchette Grand, and Margaret Parker.

ASHTON HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr Chas. Revill; Director of Entertainments, Mr F. Willmot.—Two performances are still maintained at this popular pleasure resort nightly. The talented Wayne and Larmer, singing, talking, and leg-mania artistes, head the bill, and meet with great favour. Daisy Almer is a sprightly serio and dancer; Harrigan and Holt are funny singing comedians; and Billy Farrell is an astonishing rag-time song and dance artist. The star turn is the Four M.P.'s, the military musical experts, who are nightly well received. Oma and Calderon are Continental funny acrobatic tumblers, while the Original Vivians do well in their musical travestie Life's Reverie. The Hippo. Bioscope continues to be an attractive item.

AYR.

NEW GAIETY THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry W. Day.—Quality-Street is being played here by Messrs Addison Bright and Walter Maxwell's company. That talented little lady Miss Nellie Bowman as "Miss Phoebe of the ringlets" played with rare appreciation of the part. She had admirable support from Miss Maud Townsend, who seconded her efforts as Miss Susan Throssell. The parts of Mrs Willoughby, Miss Fanny Willoughby, Miss Henrietta Turnbill, and Miss Charlotte Parratt were admirably taken by Miss Millie Emden, Miss Rhoda Beresford, Miss Margaret Nybloe, and Miss Mabel Taylor respectively. The Patty of Miss Violet Vivian was simply delightful. Mr F. Vernon Travers was a manly Valentine Brown. Ensign Blades was made sufficiently ludicrous and funny by Mr Edward Jepheson, and Mr Charles Pullen made a very good recruiting sergeant.

BATH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr Lewis A. Long.—The successful musical play A Chinese Honeymoon is once again here, presented as before by Mr George Dance's excellent South company. Miss Gwennie Harcourt's performance of the waitress, Fi-Fi, still retains all its former quaintness and mirth-provoking qualities; Mr Helier Le Maistre continues to enact the Emperor in his usual amusing fashion; while Miss Nellie Wigley remains a fascinating Soo-Soo. Mr Rudolph Kloss as Chippie Chop and Mr Lennox Barry as Hi Lung both give sound renderings of their respective characters. The new faces are Mr Warren Foster, a capital Tom Hatherton; Mr Gus Wheatman, a truly humorous Mr Pineapple, who has a trim and smart associate in Miss Dot Stephens as Mrs Pineapple. Miss Elsie Carew could hardly be improved upon as the Official Mother-in-law, Mrs Brown. The chorus deserve their share of praise, as does the orchestra under the bâton of Mr C. Claus Bunz.

PALACE THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Trussell.—Starring here is the well-known vocal character actor, Leo Dryden, who nightly scores a big success with his latest song-scena "An Actor and a Man." Quite in the front rank of ventriloquists is Horace White; Adelaide Yohe is a prepossessing ballad singer who meets with a cordial reception; the Brontes in their comedy duologue Saucy Maud create much laughter. Such old favourites as Howe and Ardle, in their gymnastic speciality Up in a Balloon; the Langdons, song illustrators; Little Dando, the dwarf comedian; and Harry Conlin, comedian and patterer, all return to gain fresh laurels and new admirers.

BACUP.

BARNSLEY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr A. C. Mitchell.—The Fatal Wedding is paying another visit here. Howard Wilson is played with tact and ability by Mr Ernest Owttrim; Mr Oliver Rogers is a capable Robert Curtis; Mr W. R. Chewd is decidedly good as Toto; Peter Schwartz is well impersonated by Mr John Wheatman; and O'Reilly is smartly acted by Mr Jack Waring. Miss Helen Russell is most effective as Mabel Wilson; Cora Williams is excellently portrayed by Miss Doris Gilham; Miss Maud Locker makes a fine character of Bridget; and the Little Mother, Jessie, is prettily enacted by Miss Maidee Andrews.

PUBLIC HALL.—Manager, Mr Jasper Redfern.—This week's company includes Stanert and Yondi in a comedy musical act; Steve Cooke, comedian; Sisters Volbecque, duettists; Miss Helene Stewart, soprano vocalist; Charlton Howarth, vocalist; Tom Green, comedian; and The Relief of Pekin by local children under the arrangement of Mr J. Clarke.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.

ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr George Stone.—Mr Fred. Karno's company, in His Majesty's Guests, is paying a return visit here. Mr Harry Roxbury now plays Sergeant Lightning, and is really very clever, his patter being good. Mr Frank Morton as Lord Easem makes a happy criminal, and sings well; and Mr Geo. Claremont plays Miffin with much go. Mr Gus Le Clerq plays spiritedly as Mr Minks, and Miss Julie Renals is a capital and accomplished Miss Manly. Miss Florence Burns as Lady Maud Easem is exceedingly bright and clever.

TIVOLI THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Stage-Manager, Mr Tom Whiting.—A sensational sketch, Conscience, is admirably worked by Mr J. K. Reynolds as principal. Mr Walter Curtis gives a humorous entertainment; Gladys Mavius, the Canadian coon, has a good voice and dances well; and Barney Vose distinguishes himself ventriloquially. A good turn is that of the Two M'Kays, oil painters and comedy duettists. Leo Montague, comedian; Lily Foy, comedienne; and Bessie Lind, comedienne, are also good, and Vernon's Bioscope shows interesting pictures.

BELFAST.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr James M'Cann.—The attraction here this week is the new Japanese play, The Darling of the Gods, presented by Mr Tree's company. One can speak in the highest terms of the acting of the company, and no one is entitled to more praise than the clever actress, Miss Frances Dillon, whose striking impersonation of the hapless Princess Yo-San was remarkably successful. As the crafty and unscrupulous Zakkuri Mr Robert Pateman's ripe experience enables him to present a remarkably vivid impersonation, his acting being most effective throughout. Mr Gerald Kay Souper was a picturesque and manly Kara, and the rôle of the dumb slave was admirably presented by Mr Douglas Payne. Mr Ivan F. Simpson filled the rôle of Saigon with much acceptance; and as the misused Rosie Sky Miss Eve Muriel acted with power and intensity. Mr Hubert Druce made the most of his opportunities as the faithful Kato. Excellent service was also furnished by Miss Dorothy Brunt as the singing girl, Nu; and Miss Rhoda Ray as the beautiful Ucisha quite looked the part. Miss Edith Deverell was bright and convincing as Setsu, and Miss Alice Gordon was amusing as Kaede, a teacher of manners. Other rôles were faithfully presented by Messrs Arthur Vezin, Alex. Haviland, Lambert Plummer, Percy Vere, &c.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing Director, Mr Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr John P. Beardmore.—Mr Fred Karno's company heads the bill at this popular theatre, and appears with every element of success in the musical extravaganza entitled The Dandy Thieves, with Mr William Rokeby as Sergeant Lightning. Mr Frank Coyne, the well-known comique, is paying a return visit to Belfast, and his humorous songs have been received with much enthusiasm. The Picquays appear to advantage in their unique acrobatic display. Baker and Rose, clever speciality comedians, delight all with their original act entitled The Waif's Ambition. Miss Blanche Gerard's artistic vocalism gains her a flattering reception, and the Summersons (Will and Maggie), comedy duettists, make a big hit with their novel act. The programme is completed by the Palace pictures, which are most attractive.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Brock.—Miss Harriet Vernon, the popular comedienne, is starring here, and her reception nightly is enthusiastic. Mr Arthur Reece is a versatile comedian with good songs and a capital style, and Ganty is aptly described as "the little lump of fun." Mr Frank Hemming and Miss Marie Free are an entertaining duo, and praise is due to the three Sisters Chester for their vocalism and smart dancing. Messrs Woodhouse and Wells are funny comedians, and the bill is completed by Miss Amy Sullivan, comedienne; and Mr Pat Rafferty, Irish comedian.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General Manager, Mr Henry T. Downs.—Miss Lily Morris, a charming comedienne, is the star here. Weisker Brothers' Bioscope presents a set of new pictures with every element of success. The operatic vocalism of Belrose and De Velin is quite delightful, and Michel and Polo, described as Herculean acrobats, perform some difficult feats. Mr Charles Coverdale is a really funny comic, and the Le Barrs, comedy gymnasts, have been quite as successful as they could desire. Menva, the society magician, is a conjuror of much excellence, some of his feats being marvellous; and also appearing are Tell and Tell, comedy acrobats; Vasey and Ramsey, clever speciality artistes and expert dancers; and Mr Clive Watts, a good dancer.

BLYTH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr George E. Good.—Messrs F. A. Scudamore and Arthur Richmond's company has occupied the stage here with the sensational drama entitled The Beautiful Avenger. In the title-rôle Miss Nannie Meade wins favour, and the whole company gives satisfaction. Good staging and mounting add much to the success of the piece.

BRIGHOUSE.

ALBERT THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr T. Morton Powell; Business-Manager, Mr M. Manley.—This week Mr Arnold Bell and company are in possession here. The production of Ben-My-Chree on Monday and Tuesday was attended with great success. Mr Bell is admirable as Dan Mylrea; and Mona is most feelingly interpreted by Miss Frances Campbell. The staging of the play is on a lavish scale.

BILSTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Harry Battersby; Manageress, Miss Grace Battersby.—In Bound to Win Mr F. G. Kimberley capably impersonates Harry Lyndon. As Gladys Arme Miss Lottie Addison proves to be artistic, being well supported by Mr Adam Alexander (Squire Forbes), Mr Frank Strickland (Philip Avre), Mr James Hont (Ned Oakley), and Miss Nina Blake Adams (Marion Forbes), who each and all contribute to the success. In the lighter vein Mr Edgar Morgan (Horatio Buffett), Mr Horace Custin (Willie Wilkins), and Miss Edie Marklin (Winnie Oakley) provide acceptable diversion.

BIRKENHEAD.

THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessee, Mr W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Pell.—Miss Emma and Mr Percy Hutchinson's company, in A Country Mouse, is proving an undeniable attraction here. As Angela Miss Dido Drake is a pronounced success, playing the part with much acceptance. The Duke of St. Kitts is admirably assumed by Mr Arnold Lucy; the Hon. Archibald Vyse is capitally undertaken by Mr Sidney Sterling; and the eccentricities of Lord Robert Wykeham are well represented by Mr Wilton Lumley. Mr Charles Harley is well suited as John Bowlby, M.P.; and Miss Dorothy Drake as Lady Sylvia Bowlby and Miss Eve Erskine as Violet Aynsley are both unexceptionable. The piece is liberally produced. The comedietta His Landlady serves as a curtain raiser.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Pell.—Mr Henry Furnival's combination, in The Harvest of Sin, is appearing with considerable success. Mr Charles H. Lester appears to advantage in the dual rôle of Harold Mainwaring and Arnold Mainwaring; the rascalities of Paul De Brisionere are well depicted by Mr Edward Valentine; and Silas Logan is cleverly enacted by Mr J. Fulton Millar. Miss Louisa Peach is highly efficient as Louise, and a capital cast also includes Miss Pattie Hastings and Miss Kathleen Willoughby. The production is carefully produced.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr D. J. Clarke.—Mr George Gilbey, the popular comedian, is renewing previous successes, as also is Miss Julie Mackay, a comedienne with a large following here. Miss May Henderson, the dusky queen, is again a huge success; the Selbini Troupe of cyclists present an excellent entertainment; and Mr and Mrs Nell Litchfield, in a well-sustained sketch, are well received. Miss Sadie Simpson, a charming serio; Miss Leola, juggler; the Kotos, living marionettes; and Coram, ventriloquist, strengthen the company. The New Macs, knockabouts, and the Dorrells, duettists and dancers, remain from last week.

BIRMINGHAM.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs Rodgers, Limited; Manager, Mr J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr Henry Johnston.—Sir Henry Irving continues his triumphal tour, and enthusiasm follows in his train. Birmingham, which remembers some of his earliest efforts, seemed most anxious to testify its admiration and respect for our actor-knight, and his reception on Monday, both from within the theatre and without, was a worthy tribute. Shylock was the rôle chosen, and his performance thereof was every whit as powerful and successful as ever. Considerable interest and importance was also attached to Miss Edith Wynne Matthison's appearance as Portia, and it proved that her conception completely realised the hopes of all friends present, local and otherwise. Miss Grace Hampton proved an engaging Nerissa, and Mrs Cecil Raleigh realised the character of Jessica, the Jew's daughter. Mr Gerald Lawrence as Bassanio, Mr James Hearn as Antonio, Mr H. B. Stanford as Gratiano, Mr Vincent Sternroyd as Lorenzo, and Mr Charles Dodsworth as Launcelot have also been found able and loyal supporters of their chief. Besides The Merchant of Venice, Becket, The Bells, Waterloo, and The Lyons Mail have figured in the répertoire. Becket on Tuesday wrought such scenes of enthusiasm that the actor, as on Monday, was compelled to concede a speech, and Miss Maud Fealy was a success on this, her first appearance here, as Rosamund; Miss Cecil Raleigh was again cast to advantage as Eleanor, and Mr Gerald Lawrence as the King was successful. It is gratifying to see, and it is an indisputable fact, that the visit has drawn the biggest business of the year. Mr Bram Stoker is with the company.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr V. Turner.—The Breed of the Treshams now occupies the Grand, to the delight of its patrons, who have beheld Mr Martin Harvey in his latest character with much pleasure. As "the Rat" Mr Harvey is cheered most enthusiastically, the vices and virtues of this comprehensive character being limned in a truly distinct and forcible manner. The rôle of Colonel Hungerford engages the well-known and proven abilities of Mr Charles Glenny, who right well discharges his task; and Cornet Tresham is well enacted by Mr Milton Rosmer. Miss Coleridge is charming and sweet as Margaret; Miss N. De Silva gives a clever impersonation of the devoted boy, Batty; and the rest of the cast is in capital accord.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Lester Collingwood.—Why Men Love Women has been accounted for by Messrs Paumier and Howard's company with every sign of satisfaction from Mr Collingwood's ever increasing clientele. Mr Alfred Paumier plays in a responsible part, that of the hero, with much tact and power. Mr S. Herbert Humber as Serge Staniloff successfully delineates all the necessary and froward traits of the character, and Miss Annie Saker is warmly eulogised for her sympathetic acting as Violet. Mr Harwood Roberts supplies genuine "comic relief" as Orlando Figgins; Matilda Figgins is represented with true humour by Miss Marie Glynne; and the Misses Ruth Zillwood and Violet Godfrey give able support.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Walter Melville; Resident-Manager, Mr J. Hindle Taylor.—A Beautiful Fiend continues to attract where and whensoever it appears. Especially so is this at the Metropole, where Messrs Beaudyn and Livesey's company is now appearing. Miss Sidney Crowe as Wanda attains perfection, and though she does not gain the good graces of the audience she never fails to win their heartiest applause. Mr A. G Polson Turner as the Count gains inexpressible odium by the ability and force of his acting; Mr Montague Beaudyn as the hero, Ivan Paulovitch, inspires his auditors to great enthusiasm; and Miss Irene Munroe wins the affections of the house as Nadine Karateff. Mr Charles Kean is successful in the comic element as Crackles.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Owner and Manager, Mr Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr Ben Sydney.—One Woman's Wickedness provides much that will interest, and the serious parts are well relieved by some capital comedy scenes. Mr Lawrence Brien is well approved as the hero, Philip Beaufort; Mr Hubert Humphreys depicts the rascality of Paul Rogue in a most complete manner; Miss Louie Davis is speedily singled out as the heroine, and, like several of the other principals, delivers herself of some clever speciality songs, &c.; much diversion is caused by Mr Howard Ward in the comic rôle of Limpy Larry; and Mr George Byrne as Fitznoodle is a worthy associate.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr Charles Barnard; Manager, Mr Dan Barnard.—Our Irish Visitors opened here on Monday, when Mr Tom E. Murray and company received a most cordial welcome. Mr Murray's memorable success in a Royal pantomime has clung to him consistently and persistently, and his present efforts are calculated not only to preserve but also to enhance his reputation. Mr Murray as Col. M'Mahon is supported by Mr J. W. Braithwaite as Mr O'Brady, Mr Alfred W. Adams as Gilly Softsolder, Mr P. Piercy Watson as Jack Hyson, and Mr Edward Raymond as Tom O'Grady. The ladies include Miss Augusta Tullock as Mrs Softsolder, Miss Helena Coe as Miss M'Mahon, and the Imperial Troupe of lady dancers.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr A. W. Matcham.—Chung Ling Soo, the marvellous Chinese conjuror, remains another week and is delighting large audiences. Some exceedingly smart trick cycling is performed by Newhouse and Ward; Minnie Cunningham contributes songs in her happiest manner; Jerry Hart and Beatrice Leo receive loud applause for their quaint entertainment; the Petras are amusing jugglers; and Dan Crawley, Brett and Orford, comedians; Lieutenant Travis, in his transformations; and Daisy Dormer, comedienne, add to the mirth of the evening.

GAIETY THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr Albert Bushell.—The strong bill this week is headed by Arthur Lennard, who displays all his old attributes to popularity. The Five Delevines, in their musical scena Flirtation, are well received; a capital quick-change musician is found in Burnetti; Juma's Octoroons are highly entertaining; as also are the Sisters Lunelle and Georgie May, comediennes. Golden Michilini in an equilibrist display; Lizzie Fletcher, a clever comedienne; and Nat Travers and Katie Weston are very popular.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr Thos. Barrasford.—The patrons of this popular house are being treated to scenes from Dickens's works by Mr and Mrs E. H. Lucas. Vansart displays strength; and Harry Edson, with his dog; Austin Rudd, the popular comedian; the Kimberley Boys, Wills and August, Marie Blyth, the Durvals, and Jules Keller complete the programme.

BORDESLEY PALACE.—Resident Manager, Mr Edward Foster.—Zeta Grey and company present a humorous burlesque of The Lancashire Lass, which is well received. The clever athletic display of the Brothers De Wynne is decidedly smart; Cora Caselli sings and dances well; as also does Mabel Vine. Other popular items are the Brothers Webb, musical comedians; Cline and Clarke, Burns and Evans, George Reeves, comedian; Billy Tucker, ball-puncher; and the Eight of Hearts Troupe of village maidens.

BLACKBURN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr Harry Yorke; Manager, Mr Reginald Yorke.—Mr E. Lockwood's No. 1 company, in La Poupée, is paying a farewell visit here. Mr Arthur Reynolds causes great amusement in his capable representation of Hilarius. Mr T. A. Shale as Lancelot, Mr E. Skinner as Father Maxime, and Messrs Fred Walsh and Chas. M'Lagan are all very good in their respective parts. A pleasing representation of Alesia is given by Miss Midge Clarke. A well-balanced chorus adds to the effectiveness of a good all-round performance.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr E. H. Page.—The attraction here this week is Mafeking, which is produced under the direction of the well-known actor Mr Henry Bedford, supported by a powerful company. As the hero, Colonel Playden Howell, Mr Bedford gives a finished performance. The remainder of the parts are in capable hands.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; General Manager, Mr Will Murray.—A powerful vaudeville company is here this week, amongst whom may be mentioned Mr Chas. T. Aldrich, the American entertainer; the Phydoras, Messrs Bates and Wood, Sanford and Lyons, Fyne and Hurley, Sisters Charaley, and the Clayton Twins.

BLACKPOOL.

HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General Manager, Mr J. R. Huddlestone.—Another of Mr Mouillot's companies is here this week with The Geisha and The Greek Slave. The principal parts are admirably rendered by Miss Aimée De Leska, O'Mimosa San and Mala; Miss Florrie Sanders, Molly Seymour and Iris; Mr Arthur Cartwright, Fairfax and Diomed; and Mr Edward Carlton, Wun-Hi and Heliodorus. The minor rôles are also in efficient hands, and there is a strong chorus under the able bâton of Mr Frank Barrett.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr T. Sergenson.—Gentleman Joe pays still another visit here, conducted by Mr Milton Bode's company. The title-rôle is in Mr Kennedy Allen's hands, and a more capable exponent could not be desired. The songs and dances of Miss Hebe Bliss as Mrs Ralli Carr are well given, whilst Messrs G. Wylie, W. H. Moore, R. Vincent, and Misses Mabel Kerridge, Enid Russell, and Eida Burman also do well in their respective parts. The Edingale Trio introduce a special dance, which is well received.

HIPPODROME.—Lessees, Signor Pepi and Co.; Manager, Mr T. P. Duignan.—A. Bo-Kon, the great juggler, tops the bill here this week, and has met with a cordial reception. De Henau, the man who paints with his toes, wins loud applause for a very remarkable turn. Millie Harris, vocalist; Frank Dunlop, comedian; Rex Fox, wire artist; Eric Graham, comedian; Aladina, with her cockatoos; Ray Stella, comedienne; Barney Stuart, mimic; and Mephisto, contortionist, also appear.

PALACE.—General Manager, Mr G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr Fred Waller.—Another excellent programme is provided here this week, and the enterprise of the management is meeting with just reward. Vesta Victoria sings catchy songs, which compel encores nightly; W. L. Murray, the winner of the Sandow competition, is another very popular turn; and Percy Honri is welcomed here, as everywhere. Chanti, the marvellous electrical Protean artist; A. G. Spry, comedian; Ailsa Douglas, vocalist; E. J. Sheldon, comedian; Jubal and Joyce, patterers and dancers; Hayes Brothers, comedians; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope also have a place in the bill.

BOLTON.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Hermann.—Mr Frank Bertram's company is here with the domestic drama, The Convict's Daughter. Mr Bertram plays very cleverly in the part of Michael Grahame (Weary Willy). Other characters are capably undertaken by Messrs J. K. Walton, T. W. Hurst, G. Moreton-Williams, Alfred Terriss, and Misses Maud Osmond, Julie Alexander, and Edith M. Savery.

GRAND THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry Kenyon.—There is a very heavy programme here, headed by the Six Brothers Luck, who appear in The Hermit's Den, The Demon of the Cellar, and The Hotel Grande. Other clever turns are Charles Bignell, comedian; the Brothers O'Brien, triple bar experts; Gillin, entertainer and ventriloquist; Fred Horsfall, vocal and instrumental mimic; the Herald Comedy Four, in a comedy dancing speciality, The Indians and the Sailor; Mabel Thorne, soubrette; Mdlle. Pollo Jerome, gymnast on the trapeze; Hetty King, in a scena, "My English Sailor-man," and the Imperial Bioscope.

OHMY'S CIRCUS.—Mr Ohmy opened for the season on the Wholesale Market-ground with a good circus company on Monday. The programme contained among others the names of Miss Lilly, equestrienne; Minnie and Happy Harry, gymnasts; Ray and Miles, jugglers; De Carteret, equestrian Bashi Bazouk; Ariel and Astarte, trapezists; Mons. Fossett, with performing mule and dogs; Mons. Hanlon, on the triple horizontal bars; Craig, Rose, and Craig, chain performers; Zoza, bareback rider; and the Grovinis, acrobats, &c.

BROUGHTON.

VICTORIA, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr C. Smith-Wilkes.—The programme here includes Miss Lily Black, burlesque artiste, who causes much laughter; Mr Alec Kennedy, a good singer; Miss Evelyn Taylor, a good male impersonator; Fredo, illusionist; Miss Florence Gwyn Howard, funny in her impersonation of a stage-struck servant; Mr Herbert Shelley, a capable descriptive vocalist; the statuary act of Mdlle. Diane De Fontenoy; Ike Scott and Son; and some pictures.

BOSCOMBE.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr F. Mouillot; Manager, Mr Rowland Stewart.—Mr Tom H. Taylor's company is paying a visit here this week with A Female Swindler. Mr W. S. Hartford gives an excellent rendering of Jack Coulson, the criminal investigator; Mr Luke Forster is good in the many sided character of Billy Binks, and Mr Weldon Atherstone gives an effective representation of the villainies of Geoffrey Warden. Mr George Unwin makes a creditable Harold Travers, and Miss Florrie Kelsey is to be congratulated on her impersonation of May Andrews, while Miss Wills is capital as Mrs Poppem. Miss Violet Ellicott is eminently successful as Lu Valroy, the lady to whom the title refers.

BOURNEMOUTH.

BRADFORD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr John Hart; General Manager, Mr T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Richardson.—Mr George Edwardes's latest success, The Cingalee, was presented to a large audience on Monday. Mr Harold Thorley's acting and vocalism as the planter, Harry Vereker, are alike excellent; Mr Leedham Bantock is an amusing figure as Boobhamba Chetter Bhoy. As the bombastic Sir Peter Loftus Mr W. J. Manning is capital, Mr Jack Cannot plays Bobby Warren brightly, and Mr Frank Danby, with his funny derangement of epitaphs as Chambhuddy Ram, is a source of continuous laughter. Miss Florence Smithson's vocalism is excellent, and she is very charming as the little tea-girl, Nanoya; as Peggy Sabine Miss Eva Sandford is vivacious and clever; and Miss Anna Hickisch makes an attractive Lady Patricia Vane.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Francis Laidler.—Mr Wentworth Croke's No. 1 company presented, for the first time at this theatre on Monday The Christian. Mr Harry Scott gave a skilful interpretation of the character of John Storm, and the Glory Quayle of Miss Grace Chalmers was a charming presentation. Father Lamplugh was an excellent effort on the part of Mr Stanley Radcliffe; Mr C. B. Bedells effectively represented Lord Robert Ure; Polly Love was capitally played by Miss Lily Crammonde; and other impersonations having claim to special recognition were the Parson Quayle of Mr Charles Hill, the Archdeacon Wealthy of Mr C. E. Dering; the Horatio Drake of Mr Jackson Wilcox, and the Faro King of Mr Bert Conway.

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Limited; Resident-Manager, Mr E. Crawford Swann.—T. E. Dunville tops a good bill here this week, and, as usual, elicits roars of laughter. Horace Mills and W. H. Rawlins, too, are responsible for much hilarity in a comedy-oddity Mashing the Missus. Dot Hardy is diverting, and Ford and Hanson are capital in a burlesque musical turn. Josh Dixon, comedian, and the Densmores keep the fun going. The Sisters Lonnen contribute pretty dancing; Austin and Cowan's vocalism is acceptable; Harry Dent submits an amusing song; and Max Milian toys with heavy weights.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr E. Harrison.—"The chocolate-coloured coon," G. H. Elliott, had a fine reception and many encores for his vocalism on Monday, and the Brothers Ashley provided mirth with their comedy boxing turn. The Cecils made a successful début here, and Oliver Conroy contributed two good character songs. Johnny Alexander's pantomime company, in an amusing absurdity, elicited much laughter; in her scena, "'Neath the Shadow of Great Big Ben," Miss Emmie Ames won favour; the Leggetts were most diverting in their comedy sketch, Maid of Athens; Harry Bancroft, actor-vocalist, gave a distinctly entertaining turn; and a novel performance by Clown Zertho and his dogs completed the programme.

BRIDLINGTON.

ROYAL PRINCE'S PARADE.—Manager, Mr Charles Palmer.—The Royal Viennese Orchestra, under the conductorship of Herr Sigmund Winternitz, concluded their season on Sunday evening. This week Mr Palmer has engaged Mr Tom Carrick and his White Musketeers, who are appearing in a special musical and humorous entertainment. Included in the company are Miss Lily Carrick, a charming soubrette and dancer; Mr Jack Bangs, coon vocalist; Mr Squire Day, sketch artiste, in a clever act, "The Mechanical Doll;" Mr Fred Marks, comedian and pianist; and Mr Tom Carrick, in his cleverly executed songs and dances. On Monday evening the members of the Viennese Orchestra had a benefit in the theatre, when they were rewarded with a bumper house.

BRIGHTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr Harcourt M. Beryl.—Mr Tree's company opened here on Monday with The Darling of the Gods, which was admirably staged. Mr G. W. Anson gave a forcible and artistic impersonation of Zakkuri; Miss Lilian Stafford submitted a charming and graceful portrayal of the Princess Yo San; and Mr Alexander Calvert achieved distinct success as Kara. Miss Augusta Haviland's Rosy Sky, Mr Robert Gray's Banza, Mr P. R. Goodyer's Tanda Tanji, and Mr A. P. Kaye's Saigon were well played; Miss Lorraine Stevens sang in pleasing style as Nu, and able support was given by Mr Ernest Stallard, Mr Cecil Tresilian, Mr Irma Foldi, and Miss Rhoda Strauss. The incidental music, by Mr William Furst, was delightfully rendered; and the augmented orchestra, under the direction of Mr A. L. Spittle, acquitted themselves admirably.

GRAND THEATRE.—Under the entire control of Mr Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr W. F. Crowe.—Mr Fred Karno's company is here this week with His Majesty's Guests. Mr Dan

Eugene and Willie, acrobatic musical grotesques; Harry Clifford, comedian; Rose Harvey, burlesque artiste; the original O'Learys, in their Oriental burlesque entertainment; the Zenary Brothers, in A Meeting at the Club; Flo Challis, in her latest successes; Florrie Moore, the comedy girl; Arthur Norton and Jack Knibb, who appear in Jeffery Martin's new and original act, Wrestling Illustrated; and the Alhambra Pictures.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—The following are here this week:—Bonnie Goodwin and her Apollo piccaninnies; Wal Robins, black and white comedians; J. H. Scotland, baritone vocalist; Geraldo, juggler; Whit Cunliffe, comedian; the Three Romas, gladiatorial marvels; Mason and Bart, novelty gymnasts; the Valdares, in a cycle speciality; Mabel La Blanche, burlesque actress; John Terry and Mabel Lambert, in an entracte of melody, wit, and sparkle; and animated pictures.

NEW PALACE PIER.—Manager, Mr C. Thompson Ford; Entertainment Manager, Mr Drew Mackintosh.—A company, under the direction of Messrs W. T. Elworthy and Mr J. Buckley, is here this week with A Pair of Spectacles. Mr Orlando Barnett gives an admirable impersonation of Benjamin Goldfinch; Mr W. T. Elworthy is very successful as Gregory Goldfinch; and Miss Beth Elliott is seen to much advantage as Mrs Goldfinch. The other characters are creditably sustained. The Unforeseen was underlined for the latter half of the week.

WEST PIER PAVILION.—Secretary and Entertainment Manager, Mr A. D. Norman.—Mr Alfred Tapping's company is here this week with Jim the Penman. Mr Tapping achieves great success as Baron Hartfeld, Miss Alice Farleigh is an admirable Mrs Ralston, Mr Leonard Pagden gives an excellent impersonation of Jim the Penman, Mr J. G. Taylor is effective as Captain Redwood, and other parts are satisfactorily undertaken by Mr W. R. Staveley, Mr Alfred H. Majilton, Mr C. Levison Lane, Mr King Fordham, Miss Beatrice Mervyn, and Miss Nona Hoffe.

BRISTOL.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr James Macready Chute.—Mr and Mrs Kendal and company are here for the week. On Monday A Scrap of Paper was played to a large and appreciative audience. Mrs Kendal pleased all parts of the house with her humorous and artistic exposition of Susan Hartley, and Mr Kendal was highly successful as Colonel Blake. Miss Elsie Clarens was interesting and effective as Lady Ingram; Miss Mary Jerrold was well placed as Lucy Franklyn; and Miss A. B. Tapping was sufficiently amusing as Mrs Penguin. Mr Bassett Roe gave a good performance of Sir John Ingram; Mr Ernest Hendrie was successful with Dr. Penguin; while the remainder of the cast was in capable hands. Still Waters Run Deep, The Elder Miss Blossom, and Dick Hope have also been played during the week.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Ernest Carpenter.—Messrs Haddon and Louder's company is here with The Greatest Scoundrel Living, the drama being capitally staged and well played. Mr Jack Haddon acts well and with considerable power as Percival Haynes; the parts of Frank Fielding and Rosa Moulton are taken in convincing style by Mr Ernest Munro and Miss Nellie Thorne Hallam; and the comedy parts of Tom Masters, Sam Grub, and Bessie Bright are sustained with much spirit by Mr Wilton Bedford, Mr Harry Liddle, and Miss Lottie Pearce. Other characters are carefully performed by Miss Marie Rayner, Miss Marguerite Thorne, Messrs J. Cecil, Will Hadlow, George Herbert, W. H. Domony, Henry Watson, Walter Pringle, and James Thompson. The display of Oriental jewels is imposing.

PALACE.—Managing Directors, Messrs Livermore Bros.; Resident Manager, Mr Horace Livermore; Secretary, Mr Welchman.—The Kaufman Troupe of lady cyclists head the programme with a very expert turn, their various feats being both neat and clever. The Albert and Edmunds Troupe create much amusement with their comedy sketch, The Taylor. The Three Sisters Jonghmans present a pleasing vocal turn; Frank Cass, vocal comedian, is successful; Alix Lukos, vocalist and reciter, obtains applause; Reilly and Taylor amuse with their patter, &c.; Slippere, blind pianist, presents a good turn; Charles Vincent, comedian, has some new songs; Miss Nancy St. John, comedienne and dancer, is pleasing; Bob Baxter, comedian, is well received; Miss May Milburn, comedienne and dancer, obtains applause; and Miss Alma Obrey, comedienne, is successful. The entertainment concludes with a good display of animated pictures.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—Here we have a good company, including the Phillipi Brothers in their clever and amusing acrobatic speciality, "Shunting;" Joe Almasio, jumping juggler, who performs some difficult feats; Grahame and Harrington in a good dramatic sketch, A Daughter of Pleasure; Mr and Mrs Paul Knox, society entertainers, in a refined turn of song and story; Miss Rhoda Paul, a juvenile character vocalist of much promise; the Three Dagmars, clever acrobats and equilibrists; Miss Ella Rose, a pleasing vocalist; D. W. Watson, vocalist and cornet soloist; and Harry Walker, comedian. The performance concludes with some new animated pictures.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.

NEW THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr John Waller.—Messrs George Harris and Fred Terriss's company is appearing here this week in the naval drama, Why Woman Sins. Mr Wallace Campbell plays with vigour as Lieut. Harry Maxwell, the hero of the piece. Captain Herbert Carlton is a past master of villainy and is well placed in the hands of Mr Fred Terriss. Mr George Harris is amusing as Cecil Spencer, and Mr Lionel Ellis, Mr Bob Herrick, Mr F. Newburn, Mr Forbes Harrison, and Mr Charles Herberte, all shine in their respective rôles. Miss Winifred Preece represents Lily De Vere, a music hall star, in a pleasing and natural manner, singing nicely, and Miss Gussie Everett as Ida Valette, a woman with a past, is clever and convincing. Special mention should be made of Miss Effie Bartlett, who as Nell Desmond shows exceptional ability, and in her emotional scenes visibly affects the audience. Miss Georgina Thomas as Jack Smith, a waif, and Miss Mary West as Nancy Nibble both do well. The piece is effectively mounted.

BURY (LANCS.)

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling.—Mr Edward Terry's company is providing excellent dramatic fare here this week. Sweet Lavender was played to a good house on Monday. Mr Terry's Dick Phenyl is as good as ever; Clement Hale was played by Mr Hylton Allen with conspicuous ability; Mr Allan Pollock effectively portrayed the character of Horace Bream; Mr George Howard was a suitable Geoffrey Wedderburn; Miss Beatrice Terry a charming Sweet Lavender; Miss Olive Wilton an effective Minnie Gilfillian: and Miss B. Selwyn an attractive Mrs Gilfillian. The House of Burnside, The Passport, Love in Idleness, and The Trial of Bardell v. Pickwick are also in the bill.

OLYMPIA CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—General Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling.—This house reopened for the winter season on Monday. Miss Ella and her educated lions are the star turn. La Bella Nello, contortionist; A. P. Boswell, a Negro comedian; Denby and Dent, comedians; Tom Drum and Kitty Major, Charles Stevens, and Florence Yayman and Willie Haigh are also in the bill.

CAMBRIDGE.

NEW THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—On each evening this week Mr J. F. Elliston's company has appeared in Alone in London. Mr Henry George is an accomplished actor, and as John Biddlecomb he does himself full justice; Miss Madge Devereux acts Annie Meadows in an acceptable style; Mr Stephen Ewart is sufficiently villainous as Richard Redcliffe; Mr Lonnen Meadows is also good as Charley Johnson; as is Mr Stafford Smith as Mr Burnaby.

CARDIFF.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Robert Redford.—Old Heidelberg has been presented here this week by Mr Mouillot's company, by arrangement with Mr George Alexander. Mr George F. Tully as Karl Heinrich gives a portrayal that leaves nothing to be desired. The Kathie of Miss Irene Lavington is an impersonation of much charm, her more serious work being worthy of warm praise. Mr Clifford Bown gives a natural and easy rendering of Dr. Jettner; Mr Lionel Gadsden as the dignified Lutz supplies a good share of the merriment; and a fine piece of character acting is contributed by Mr Alec Murray as Kellermann. The staging deserves a word of praise.

KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Frank Bateman; General-Manager, Mr Robert Sawin.—Mr Edward Marris's company ably presents at the popular King's this week a new and successful drama entitled As Midnight Chimes. The favourite comedian, Witty Wattie Walton, makes his appearance as Tot Spavvin, and with his irresistible humour and happy smile adds to his reputation among Cardiffians. A fine piece of acting is the interpretation of the rascally Luke Dezzard by Mr Melville Bickford; Mr Frank E. Petley is a manly Dave Stannard; and a capital portrayal of Ezra Gamble is given by Mr Henry Beaufort. Miss Gertrude Price as Mary Stannard acts with an affecting pathos; Miss Annie Megson as Suzette displays ability; and the trying part of Zamora is safe in the capable hands of Miss Iris M. Ward.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Lea.—A particularly strong programme here has the following list of well-known names:—Marie Kendall, in old and new songs; Dutch Daly, the clever raconteur, with his concertina; the Maningos, exceptionally smart acrobats and equilibrists; the Four Milons, in an equally clever equilibristic act; Lawrence Barclay, humorous comedian; Goggin and Davis, in a versatile comedy acrobatic act; the Imperial Quartet of vocalists and dancers; Steve M'Carthy, the Irish coon; the droll Zarmo, in his comedy juggling; and Mabel Hind, in a pretty little scena entitled "A Little Japanese."

CARLISLE.

ALGIE'S HIPPODROME.—Proprietress, Mrs P. E. Veitch; General Manager, Mr C. Algie.—This popular place of amusement was reopened on Monday on the two-houses-a-night system, each house being literally packed. During the vacation considerable alterations and improvements have been effected, and a successful season is anticipated, Mr Algie having arranged for many startling novelties to appear. This week we have the Imperial Boys' Orchestra heading the bill, and their performances are highly appreciated. H. Sloan gives a fine equestrian act; Santo and Santa excel as acrobats; the Tarras present an interesting double juggling act; Mdlle. Dahlia meets with great applause for her gymnastic display; and Princess Annie and Sloan, in a double horse act, are much appreciated. Walter Payne's Bio-Photoscope concludes an excellent programme.

CASTLEFORD.

ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr Chas. Gadsby; Business Manager, Councillor Henry Masterman.—Mr W. H. Hallatt and company are presenting The Two Little Sailor Boys here this week. The play is well staged and mounted. Mr Hallatt submits a capital picture of Commander Noel Tregarthen. Mr Leonard Booker is a sufficiently villainous Lieut. Redstone. Captain Tom Yorke is well played by Mr Edward Warden. A capital portrayal of Admiral Grey comes from Mr George Cecil Murray. Mr Sid Cotterell and Miss Hilda Taylor keep the audience amused with the courtship troubles of Ben Baxter and Lucy Wilson. Mr Oscar Power makes an amusing Jack Jolly. Miss Blanche Steele displays considerable force in the part of Lola Grey, and suggests with subtle skill the selfish and pitiless character of the woman she represents. Miss Marie Daventry's performance of Mildred Grey abounds with some of the most tender touches of natural and womanly feeling possible. Mr Ambrose Horton is distinctly successful in his study of Jim Royston. The two sailor boys, Cyril Grey and Tom Yorke, find clever representatives in Miss May Day and Miss Ethel Francess.

CHATHAM.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs Mary Watson; Manager, Mr C. B. Fountaine.—Mr Julian Malvern's company occupies the boards here this week with I Defy the World. Mr Lewis Gilbert plays Leon Darville with conspicuous ability; Mr Joseph W. Worley scores heavily as Count de Beullen; Mr Charles Conway makes an able Laroche, and Andre is cleverly acted by Mr Horace E. Herbert. Miss Lina Nazeby exhibits great talent in the rôle of Blanche Darville; Miss Carrie Ellis is a delightful Pauline Delaporte; Miss Maud Lillian renders excellent service as Marie Wozzle; and the Fanchette of Little Flo Bevan is much admired. The drama is produced under the direction of Mr Charles M. Julian.

CHESTERFIELD.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr Holbery Hardy.—Miss Rosalind Scott-Watson and company occupy these boards this week with The Scarlet Woman. Mr J. E. Crawford as Richard Marchant gives a manly portrayal; Mr Edward K. Burke well renders the part of Philip Gordon; Mr Bert H. Ross shows up the villainy of Will Raymond, being ably seconded by Messrs J. E. Cowell and Tom Wheeler as Joe Cartwright and Jack Cartwright respectively; Mr Matt Melrose amuses as Samuel Hopkins; and Mr James Thompson makes an effective Jacob Isaacson. Miss Rosalind Scott-Watson gives a true interpretation of the title-rôle; Miss Muriel Allyne makes a pleasing Margery Honour; Miss Ruby Hamilton-Belasco does good work as Charlotte Simpkins; Miss Lalla Cowell makes a vivacious Fanchette; Miss Gracie Walker is an intelligent Jeanne; and Miss Lalla Cowell and Mr Mat Melrose execute some clever dances.

MEMORIAL HALL.—Lessee, Mr S. L. Urwick.—Miss Cissie Moxon's company pays a welcome return visit here with A Trip to Rum-Fum. Mr Willie Garvey as Larry O'Hooligan scores a great success; Mr W. S. Hutchinson as Biddy O'Hooligan enacts the part in a capable manner; Miss Moxon as Flossie Kixie fills a rôle which is well suited to her.

CHORLEY (LANCS).

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr G. T. Sante; Secretary, Mr J. Clay.—Messrs Beaudyn and Livesey are presenting a drama this week entitled A Traitor Prince. The play is excellently mounted. As Prince Rae Dalmierez Mr G. M. Montanini displays considerable talent, while Mr Austin Mortimer as Lieut. Frank Derrick gives an able and artistic rendering. Mr T. G. Vane is good as Hon. Bobby Dalrymple. Mr Carter Livesey plays Billy Bright with infectious humour, and in conjunction with Miss M. Crayson as Pansy Blossom keeps the audience in capital spirits. Mr Edward Hall undertakes the part of a half-caste. Mr A. M. Longford capitally represents the dual-rôle of Richard Vane and Colonel Vane. Miss Beatrice Western acts Vashti with exceptional power and effect, Miss Lilian Rosebery charmingly portrays the character of Lola Vane, Miss E. C. Matthews is capable as Mrs Martha Blossom, while Miss Annie Carrier and Miss Florence Bryne contribute some clever acrobatic dances.

CLYDEBANK.

NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr Frank Wilson.—The attraction here this week is The Still Alarm, presented by Glenville and Osmond's company. The part of the hero, Jack Manley, is ably sustained by Mr Matthew H. Glenville; the heavy rôle of John Bird gets careful handling from Mr Paul Lovett; Miss Mary Lovett looks and acts charmingly as Elinore Fordham; Miss Mabel Veriton makes a good Mrs Manley; Mr Tom Beasley is highly entertaining as Willie Manley; and the same may be said of Miss Hettie Zillwood as Carrie Wilber and Mr Fred Osmond as D. Wilber.

COLNE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr G. Harding.—The Carside, Knowles, and Ludlow company is here this week in the drama entitled The London Fireman. Mr J. F. Knowles as Hal Curtis, a young fireman, is well received. He plays his part in a creditable manner. Miss Mona Gray as the fireman's wife displays her talents to advantage. In the rôle of Countess Fleming Miss Violet Temple leaves little to be desired, and as Viscount Fleming Mr A. Pringle is decidedly good. The scenery is of a bright and pleasing character.

CONSETT.

NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr Lloyd Clarance.—Mr Henry Johnson's company is here this week with The Bank of England. Mr Hubert Chambers as Sherlock Holmes sustains the part in an admirable manner; Mr Edward Walton is good as Sir Sidney Barraclough, and as Bertie Burlington Mr Charles Gallier is satisfactory; Mr Juan De Alberti does well as Stephen Hartley, and the part of Gordon Isaacs is well filled by Mr Charles Ninian. Miss Amy Ellam does full justice to the rôle of Margaret Dane, and as Sylvia Barraclough Miss Ada Collins is all that could be desired. Miss Marie Loreth is excellent as Aminta J. Bean. The comedy element is well sustained by Mr Charles Goff as Tommy Sprouts and Miss Dorothy Normandale as Lucy Lockett.

CORK.

OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr John Horgan.—A Country Girl is here for the first time. As Marjory Miss Maud Boyd sings well. As Princess Melaneh of Bhong Miss Ethel Negretti renders "Under the Deodar" in a finished manner. The part of Nan is taken by Miss Le Hay, who portrays the character in admirable style. Miss Maud Prenton cleverly sustains the part of Madame Sophie. As Geoffrey Challoner Mr Robert Michaelis is excellent and sings well. Mr Charles R. Walenn in the part of Barry creates much laughter. Mr Joe Nightingale capably fills the part of Sir Joseph Verity, and Mr Arthur Leysham is good as Granfer Mummery.

CROYDON.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Lawson Lambert; Acting-Manager, Mr Reginald Lawrence.—Messrs Silvanus Dauncey and M. V. Leveaux are presenting Mr Arthur Bourchier's company in The Fairy's Dilemma. Mr Charles V. France does wonders with the rôle of Colonel Sir Trevor Mauleverer; Mr C. Herbert Hewetson acts cleverly the part of the Demon Alcohol; Mr Frank Stanmore gives a quaint and curious rendering of the Rev. Aloysius Parfitt; Mr Frank Collins is of valuable assistance as Mr Justice Whortle; and useful aid is given by Messrs Morris Harvey and Frank Norman as a shopman and trooper in the Life Guards. Miss Elise Cooke is a fascinating little Fairy Rosebud; Miss Ada Homer is charming as the Lady Angela Wealdstone; Miss Gertrude Hope makes a hit as Clarissa; and Misses Frances Wood and Florence Adale complete the cast as Mrs Grumble and a nursemaid. In the first piece, The Conversion of Nat Sturge, Mr Charles V. France gives a neat study of the Bishop of Minterweir; Mr Frank Collins is remarkably good as Nat Sturge; Miss Eva Turnour is praiseworthy as Julia; and Mr Morris Harvey is adequate as Raddles. Mr Leonard Gautier is a capable chef d'orchestre.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr H. D. Lyle.—A Modern Judas is the attraction here. Mr Percy Rhodes gives a noteworthy performance as Captain Melbourne; Mr Frank Beresford submits a fine, robust rendering of Jack Vavasour; Mr Willie Scott is very funny as Tom Hopkins; Mr Harry Brown is capital as James Rivers; Miss Violet King just touches the right note as Claire Rivers; Miss Ada Palmer makes a merry Agatha Pearce; Miss Dolly Harcourt is careful as Polly Hopkins; Miss Kate Walbran is skilful as Elise; and the remaining parts are in good hands.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Resident General Manager, Mr Eustace H. Jay.—The amusements here are of the best. Len Young is a rising character comedian; Harry Calvo's fine voice is heard to advantage; Edwards and Espinosa are a clever pair of speciality artistes; Professor Dunning is a smart ventriloquist; the Sisters Pine are amusing in a comedy act; Henri Bekker is an expert conjuror; Fred Herbert's topical songs are applauded; Ada Vernon is a favourite burlesque actress; Ross and Grayson score in their comedy turn; Katie Lawrence, comedienne, has some capital selections; the Four Andys are skilful acrobats; the turn of Bob and Jennie Leonard is much relished; Kahn and Kahn are entertaining in modern necromancy; and the Palace animated pictures still attract.

COVENTRY.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr Wm. Bennett.—A Sailor's Sweetheart is being produced at the above house this week by Miss Ida Molesworth and company occupy these boards this week with The Scarlet Woman. Mr J. E. Crawford as Richard Marchant gives a manly portrayal; Mr Edward K. Burke well renders the part of Philip Gordon; Mr Bert H. Ross shows up the villainy of Will Raymond, being ably seconded by Messrs J. E. Cowell and Tom Wheeler as Joe Cartwright and Jack Cartwright respectively; Mr Matt Melrose amuses as Samuel Hopkins; and Mr James Thompson makes an effective Jacob Isaacson. Miss Rosalind Scott-Watson gives a true interpretation of the title-rôle; Miss Muriel Allyne makes a pleasing Margery Honour; Miss Ruby Hamilton-Belasco does good work as Charlotte Simpkins; Miss Lalla Cowell makes a vivacious Fanchette; Miss Gracie Walker is an intelligent Jeanne; and Miss Lalla Cowell and Mr Mat Melrose execute some clever dances.

CREWE.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr Henry Taylor.—Mr Frank E. Burdett's company has been the attraction here this week. Miss Maud Digby in the arduous character of Ghuznah acquits herself excellently. Nebu Singh in the capable hands of Mr Villiers Stanley is an admirable portrayal. Lieutenant Manley is exceedingly well played by Mr H. Ryeland-Leigh, and Captain Manley has a good representative in Mr H. G. Brandon. Terry O'Brien finds a humorous exponent in Mr G. Scully. Mr E. Keand gives a forcible rendering of Ra Goonga. Mr W. S. Tindall is excellent as Major Ingleby, and Mr S. S. Sheddon scores as Abul Khan. Miss Bruce is an imposing Mrs Ingleby, and Miss Kingston finds favour as Kate Ingleby.

CROOK.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Wallace Davidson.—This week we have a return visit of Messrs Silvester and Sansome's company in Cissy. Miss Florence Barnes makes a dainty Cissy, a rôle she sustains with grace and piquancy, and Mr Harry Lovell does well as Victor. Mr Fletcher Sansome contributes a droll character study as Titus Thomas, B.A., and Miss Nellie V. Warden is a clever Mary Mopps.

DARLINGTON.

ROYAL.—Manageress, Mrs T. W. S. Jennings.—Few musical plays meet with a better reception here than The Girl from Kay's, and this company of Mr George Dance's is an excellent allround one. In the rôle of Winnie Harborough Miss Lily Lingard is piquant, and sings and acts in a vivacious style. Miss May Marton creditably portrays the part of Norah Chalmers, and as Ellen, her maid, Miss Pollie Prim plays with considerable dash. The eccentricities of Max Hoggenheimer could not be more humorously depicted than they were by Mr Johnnie Schofield, who is ably supported by Mr Tom Shelford as the Hon. Percy Fitzthistle. A capital representation is given by Mr Garnet Wilson of the character of Harry Gordon. The choruses throughout are well sung, and the dresses and effects are extremely good.

DARWEN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr E. L. Ormsby.—The ever popular play The Silver King is being performed here this week, by a capable company. Mr Lauderdale Maitland's portrayal of Wilfred Denver is indeed excellent, and was greatly appreciated by the audience on Monday. Miss Lillian Bethell is good as Nellie Denver, playing with feeling in the pathetic parts. Miss Violet St. Clair is also capital as Cissie, Denver's daughter. Daniel Jalkes is faithfully portrayed by Mr Ed. J. George. Mr W. V. Garrod, who appears as Captain Herbert Skinner, alias "Spider," is admirable, as is also Mr A. Wright as Elijah Coombs. Mr Philip Renouf plays the part of Henry Corket very well and Mr Byron makes a good detective.

DERBY.

NEW GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General Manager, Mr T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr Chas. Denley.—Mr Hunry Dundas and company is this week appearing in the familiar Drury-lane drama Human Nature. As Captain Temple Mr Henry Dundas submits a thoroughly successful depiction, and Miss Lilian Dundas makes a charming Cora Grey, her acting being an outstanding feature of the performance. Mr Henry C. Cooper is satisfactory as Matthew Hawker, and Mr C. B. Keston does well in the unenviable rôle of Paul De Vigne. In the equally undesirable parts of Joe Lambkin and his wife Mr Reginald Weighill and Miss Esther Carthew are praiseworthy. Miss Batho-Griffiths is to be complimented on her depiction of Nellie Temple, and Mr George Franklin and Miss Magdalene Douglas are in every way effective as the Rev. Arthur and Mrs Lulworth. The two juvenile characters are well played by Marion Ryder and Daisy Cooke, while the comedy element is mirthfully upheld by Mr Sydney Young as Spofkins and Miss Rose Hélene as Wilkins. The remaining characters are all in good hands. The Trafalgar-square scene has the added advantage of a full military band, and the scenic effects throughout reflect credit on all concerned.

PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr T. Allan Edwardes.—The Akimotos, as the star turn, are paying a return visit here this week, and as Japanese jugglers, balancers, and equilibrists of extraordinary ability are cordially received. Clown Alfred Barker, assisted by Miss Roziska, with his equestrian dogs, monkeys, donkey, and pony, cause much fun. Johnny Gilmore, the quaint Australian, scores an all-round success; and Lue Lord renders her songs in a charming manner. The Bendons, in their latest success, "That's how they say goodbye," are very amusing. Rennie, the singing ventriloquist, gives a creditable entertainment; and Ray and Rodney are diverting eccentric comedians. The Bioscope submits several interesting features.

DEWSBURY.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr Geo. Wildon.—Silly Billy Elliott is here starring, and has had a big reception. Souplessi, on the silver rings, gives a smart show, and Charles Clifford is also good with his harp selections. Saletos Trio have an excellent speciality, and the Stuart Quartet of lady vocalists go strongly. Will Letters, character vocalist, pleases, and Paddy has a new act. The Bioscope has a novel selection of pictures, and Miss Lucy Lovelace, singer of illustrated songs, also scores.

DONCASTER.

NEW GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Councillor J. W. Chapman.—A variety combination is put on the boards this week. Capt Alfonso Gerard's lions and tiger dogs go through their tricks cleverly; Lily Turner is popular as a vocalist; the Two Leons provide a good turn as duettists and dancers; Mdlle. Melita, international dancer, is good; Law and Norman, in their act, On Active Service, are droll; Mitzi is an able Japanese juggler; and Bill Bailey as an eccentric comedian and dancer is well received. Mat Wilkinson and company's sketch, The Registry Office, concludes the programme.

DOVER.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Dover Theatres, Limited; Managing-Director, Mr Fred C. Dew.—Miss Marie Auckland and company are paying a return visit to Dover this week, and presented The Triumph of Truth on Monday. Miss Auckland displays emotional power in the dual part of Violet and Lillian Anstruther, and her performance was received with much applause. Blanche Le Croix is played with intensity and passion by Miss Rosa El Dodd; Little Lena is made a pathetic study by Miss Nellie Kenneth; and Miss Lilian Ramsdale is audacious and versatile as Coralie. Mr Edward L. Louis acts with restrained power as the hero, Captain Jack Eversleigh, and Mr J. A. Keogh is successful as Sir Charles. Mr T. Renaud Lockwood as Raoul D'Orville is a brilliant if somewhat conventional villain; Mr Frank Radcliffe is amusing and makes the most of his opportunities as Pierre Choppard; and Inspector Danvers, the English detective, in the clever hands of Mr T. Arthur Elliston is a further example of the possibility of making a small part an important one. Mr Charles Herrick is vigorous and energetic as the revengeful Vitto Mascagni, and Miss Lily Rogers as Titty Bright and Mr Johnny Clegg as Tommy Woodhead enliven the play by their amusing interpretations.

DUBLIN.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee, Michael Gunn, Limited; General Manager, Mr Charles Hyland.—Mr George Edwardes's company is paying a return visit here this week with The Orchid, which has been heartily enjoyed. Miss Coralie Blythe as Lady Violet Anstruther wins applause for her pleasing and excellent portrayal; Miss Irene Verona has in Caroline Vokins a part that suits her admirably; Miss Ethel Griffies in the rôle of the adventuress, Zelie Rumbert, is clever; and Mr George Gregory is exceedingly funny as Meakin. The part of the Hon. Guy Scrymgeour is in the capable hands of Mr Lawrence Grossmith; Mr Sidney Vincent displays ability in the character of Zaccary; and Mr Ellis Ogilvie acts with skill the part of Mr Aubrey Chesterton. The Countess Anstruther is charmingly played by Miss Katie Leechman, and Miss Gertrude Gilliam gains favour for her excellent singing in the rôle of Josephine Zaccary. Mr Donald Hall gives a good reading of Dr. Ronald Fausset, and Messrs E. G. Woodhouse and E. Rutland are both amusing as the seconds. Miss Luna Love is an effective Thisbe. The gorgeous dresses make a pretty show.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr Arthur Armstrong.—The Cardinal, by Mr Louis N. Parker, was presented here on Monday by Mr E. S. Willard, who appeared in the title-rôle, and displayed considerable power and ability. Mr William Sauter gave a fine reading of Andrea Strozzi, and Mr A. S. Homewood was capital in his representation of Giuliano. Mr Charles H. Fenton acted well as Bartolommeo Chigi, and Filiberta was cleverly enacted by Miss Maud Hoffman; and Mr Walter Edmunds sustained the character of Guido Baglioni with great success. Mrs Russ Whytal submitted an impressive and effective portrayal of Claricia De Medici, in the rôle of Honoria Miss Edith N. Tombes was very good; and as the bellringer Beppo Mr Ulick Burke deserved praise. The costumes and the mounting were particularly fine.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. W. Whitbread; General Manager, Mr Kennedy Miller.—The Grip of Iron is being played here this week by Messrs C. H. Knight and George Denham's company. In the dual part of Simmonet and Jagon Mr Fred Powell meets with his usual success, and Miss Georgie De Lara is admirable in the rôle of Cora. The part of Alphonse De Cousou is ably sustained by Mr Harry Agar Lyons; as Marie Guerin Miss Hilda Baynton is most effective; Mr George Denham makes a capital Paul Blanchard; and Miss Nellie Grant is good as Sophie Blanchard. Mr Charles Grant is satisfactory as Lorentz De Ribas, and as Mdlle. Delaney Miss Annie Thomas is acceptable. Dodot is played in a capable manner by Mr John Brittain, and Miss Mabel Middleton makes the most of the part of Babette.

EMPIRE.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr A. S. Figgis.—Attractive fare is submitted here this week in the shape of the Caledonian Boys, whose clever orchestral performances elicit applause. Another interesting turn is Selma Braatz, in a smart juggling act, and Georgina Leonard is a pleasing burlesque actress. The Olive Trio are excellent comediennes, and Ernest Rees is quaint. The Brothers Redmond do an acrobatic turn of more than average merit; Marion Scott is a chic comedienne. The Two Graces, duettists and dancers, score a success; Harry Bickley is an acceptable comedian; and the Empire Pictures are also showing.

TIVOLI THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr Chas. M. Jones; Secretary, Mr H. A. Murphy.—The Okito Family in their Chinese magical wonder act are the attraction here this week, and are well received; Will Onda's sketch company, in A Quiet Night, causes much laughter; Maude Vera is a capital coon artiste; Harry Grey is successful as a society entertainer; and Billy Williams, comedian, is as good as ever. Carr and Rose, vocal comedy couple, are an excellent turn, and Clifton and Gibson do well as eccentric comedians. Marti and Julletta, spar experts; Jack Charman, boy vocalist; and Ada Marjatti complete the programme.

WORLD'S FAIR.—Proprietor, Mr C. A. James.—The following artistes are appearing here this week:—Jim Cookson, ventriloquist; Frank Bentley, descriptive vocalist; Charles Moore, comedian and dancer; Carr and Roll, duettists; and George Harcourt, vocalist.

DUDLEY.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Tom Prichard.—The Four Trees, comediennes and dancers, deserve first mention this week; Dora Grieve is a charmingly sweet speciality comedienne; Fraser and Mac have some exceedingly good patter; and David Poole is an up-to-date ventriloquist, his dialogue and manipulation of figures being extremely clever. Other good turns are supplied by Vosper, illusionist; Jimmy Shields, comedian and dancer; the Percys, speciality performers and dancers; and George Neno, comedian.

DUNDEE.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; General Manager, Mr Eade Monteflore.—The Girl from Kay's is paying a welcome return visit. Miss Simeta Marsden in the title-rôle has lost none of her charm. Mr H. C. Barry is still the Hoggenheimer, and his efforts to amuse meet with due reward. Mr Leslie Roy Cathie as Percy Fitzthistle gives a wonderful impersonation of a dude. Mr Charles Hanbury as Harry Gordon and Miss Alice Russon as Nora are alike excellent. Mr Fred Rolph makes the part of the porter stand out prominently.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Will Parker; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr Alf Ross.—Mr Cliff Ryland occupies the top of the bill, but appeared only on Monday and Tuesday. The Five Foys are the principal attraction again, and repeat their success of last week. The Sivronis made a successful appearance in their comedy sketch, Opera Gone Mad; Devereux's dogs go through a clever performance; Calile and Walker are amusing; Mona M'Donald sings well; Jennie Belmore meets with a hearty reception; Marie Reviere, serio; and Sardou, illusionist, also figure in the bill.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Dundee Empire Company, Limited.—Mr Sydney Vereker and company are here in The Red Signal. Mr Vereker supplies the comedy element, which so strongly dominates the piece. Mr C. V. Sandford and Mr Alfred Allan as the Bros. Darkwood are outstanding characters. Mr Cowell Clarke as Richard Culver has made a good impression. Miss Florence Culver is the character portrayed by Miss Norah Carrone. Miss Rose Lehmann is a captivating May Sorrell.

GAIETY.—Manager, Mr S. King Alexander.—Miss Marie Dagmar and company are appearing here in A Life's Revenge this week. The company includes Miss Dagmar, who as Princess Vanda Ivyala proves herself to be a skilled actress. Miss Catherine Eckhart as Marcia Vittoria gives a powerful delineation. Mr Walter Roberts deserves high praise for his portrayal of Michael Orloff, and as Prince Strogoff Mr Fred C. Somerfield has made an excellent impression. Mr John F. Traynor is a capital Paul Starovitch.

EBBW VALE.

KING'S.—Lessees, Messrs Arthur Carlton and Sam Duckworth; Manager, Mr Arthur Knight.—Frequenters of this place were exceptionally well catered for during the first three nights of the week, when Miss Marie Menzies' company presented A Rogue's Daughter. The scenery, dresses, and general effects left nothing to be desired. Messrs Alex. Wills, Wilfred Blair, Richard Ferris, Charles Stimson, Will Wilson, and A. Hall Menzies were particularly prominent in the male portion of the cast. Misses Millie Doris, Mabel Hall, K. Blair, and Marie Menzies also deserve special mention. For the concluding portion of the week Messrs Sidney C. Cranston and Sidney Dench's company played The Rich and Poor of London.

EASTBOURNE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr Samuel Lloyd.—Mr Henry Swinerd's company is appearing this week in Dare-Devil Dorothy. Miss Marjory Cecil is an attractive Dorothy Montrose, and she uses a capital voice of high compass in very effectively contributing her numerous songs. Miss Kathleen Gordon is completely satisfactory as Ruth, and Miss Nellie Harcourt is brimful of gaiety and brightness as Judith, and her dances are commendably smart and nimble. Miss Mabel and Miss Lily Blake are accomplished dancers, and thereby obtain very hearty applause, particularly with their "mirror" dance. Mr Arthur Verne as comedian, singer, and dancer is very much in favour, and as Silas Crump he is conspicuously successful. Mr Francis Green sings and acts in admirable style as Harold Vivian; Mr H. C. Ward does excellent work as George Fielding; and Mr Frank L. Oliver is a good Featherstone. Mr Arthur Lester is the musical conductor.

PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr George Hayes.—For the first three evenings of the week Mr Fenton and his company have been appearing here in If I Were King. Mr Frank Fenton, with a distinct delivery and a handsome appearance, contributes a picturesque and attractive performance as François Villon. A striking and successful rendering of the part of Louis XI. is cleverly given by Mr Clive Currie. Mr Fred Garrett is an effective Tristam, Mr Leonard Maxwell a strong Thibaut, Mr Lawrence a light and effective Noll, and Mr Will Barrett a very good Turgis. Mr Max Gordon does his little very well as Tolson D'Or, Mr John Franklin is a capable Colin, and Mr Richard Jackson a satisfactory Trois Echelles. Miss Marion Grey is a sympathetic and individual Katherine; Miss Louise Vansitter is entirely successful as the Abbess; Miss Una Gilbert is a very appropriate Mother Villon; and the remaining small parts in a long cast are suitably sustained.

EDINBURGH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs Howard and Wyndham, Ltd; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter Hollister.—Mr James Welch and company paid a return visit to this city on Monday with the successful farce The New Clown. Mr James Welch sustained his original part, Lord Cyril Garstone, with unflagging zeal and quaint humour. He was ably seconded by Mr G. H. Snazelle as the rollicking and kindly circus proprietor. Mr Cyril Harcourt was very acceptable as the Hon. Jack Trent, and Mr Harry J. Crane depicted the cunning ways of Thomas Baker in a clever manner. Messrs Leopold Profeit and Henry Belding were also good in their respective parts. Miss Audrey Ford was a bright and engaging Rosie Platt, and Misses Estelle Winwood and Alexandra Carlisle made successful appearances as Maud and Winnie Chesterton. Mr Louis N. Parker's one-act play, The Man in the Street, preceded the farce on Monday. Angelina's Lover has also been played as a curtain-raiser.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs Howard and Wyndham, Limited; General-Manager, Mr G. T. Minshull.—Mr George Alexander's latest success, Saturday to Monday, was presented at this theatre on Monday. The comedy received an excellent rendering by Miss Emma and Mr Percy Hutchison's talented company, and the dresses and scenery were complete in every detail. Mr Stuart Champion acted with finish and ease as Lord Culver, his love making being natural and simple. Mr Dallas Welford hit off the foppish mannerisms of Stanley Pidding to a nicety; Mr Thomas A. Braidon was an excellent Probyn Dyke, and Mr Thomas Sidney gave a good account of himself as the Rev. Samuel Toop. As Mrs Wendover Miss Moyra Creegan played with much fascination and brightness; Miss Madeline L'Estrange acted the rôle of Lady Diana Porchester with comic effect; and Angela was sweetly played by Miss Nancy Beresford. The parts of Ursula Toop and Miss Skeat were cleverly undertaken by Misses Josephine Raye and Ida Lawrie. Miss Olive Loftus Leyton was a neat and effective Thompson. A capital representation of Judged by Appearances preceded the comedy.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr H. E. Moss.—George Fuller Golden, American raconteur, appeared here on Monday night before a full house. Mr Golden possesses the art of imitation and story telling to a very high degree, and kept the audience convulsed with laughter. Clark and Hamilton made a welcome reappearance; the Lukushima Troupe, Japanese equilibrists went through some marvellous feats; and Manning's entertainers, in A Hotel Boots, caused great amusement. The Bros. Damm gave an interesting exhibition of acrobatic feats; the Bioscope showed some novel animated pictures; James Kurry and Charles Chard contributed acceptable items; and Annie Casey, comedienne, and Clown Ferroeros, in a musical act, completed a good programme.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Tom Ellis.—The attraction this week is the drama, Queen of the Night, by Messrs F. Tracy and Ivan Berlin. On Monday it had a highly efficient rendering by Mr James Stillwell and company, and the many dramatic situations were received with much applause. Mr Stillwell enacted the villain, Philip Stonsleigh with dramatic power, Mr Oswald Douglas was equally good as the hero, Frank Cavendish, M.D., Messrs Bert Atherton and F. Thorpe Tracey were responsible for the comic element; and Miss V. St. Lawrence acted with much ability as Paulina. Miss Pollie Denville was a bright and piquant Kitty White.

MUSIC HALL.—The announcement that Mr W. F. Frame, the popular Scottish comedian, was to give a concert at this hall, drew an overflowing audience on Saturday evening last. Mr Frame was in his merriest humour, and delighted his hearers in a host of new comic songs and characters. He was supported by a strong variety company, which included Miss Helen Martin, vocalist; Mr Austin Mahony, tenor soloist; the Norman and Leonard Trio, Miss Bessie Travis, lady ventriloquist; and the Jetneys, coloured comedians. Mr David Frame Flint presided at the organ.

EXETER.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Secretary and Manager, Mr Fred Pollard; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy M. Dunsford.—The boards are occupied here this week by Mr F. H. De Quincey and Miss Sime Seruya's répertoire company. On Monday Richelieu was successfully produced, the portrayal of Louis XIII. by Mr W. Henry Hargreaves being carefully studied. Gaston was successfully depicted by Mr Harold Weston, a resourceful and capable Baradas being found in Mr Montague Lane. In the name-part Mr F. H. De Quincey was seen to distinct advantage. Mr Baliol Holloway created an excellent impression as Chevalier De Mauprat, and Messrs Gordon, Chalmers, and Coates did well as Beringhen, Joseph, and Huquet respectively. Miss E. Stuart Innes was a picturesque François, Miss Sime Seruya charming as Julie De Mortemar, and Miss Lydia Busch well placed as Marion De Lorme. The Twin Sister will also be presented during the week.

VICTORIA HALL, LIMITED.—Secretary and Manager, Mr J. Dunsford.—On Monday Gilbert's Circus commenced a short season here. Mr T. Culeen, the manager, has made excellent arrangements. Eugene Cooke opened the performance with some clever equestrian achievements; Dubois, the man monkey, followed with an excellent imitation of the antics of a baboon; a fascinating jugglery exhibition was given by the Jalvans, their tricks being both neat and smart. The leading feature, however, is the appearance of the Colibris, a troupe of Lilliputian artistes, whose turn comprises trapeze and gymnastic displays, juggling on horseback, and an excellent musical entertainment. Little Rabbit proves as popular as ever, and further wit is provided by the antics of a couple of intelligent baby clowns.

FALKIRK.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr Horace W. Ebbutt.—The theatre this week has been visited by Mr J. W. Turner and his English opera company, whose répertoire consisted of Maritana, Bohemian Girl, The Puritan's Daughter, Daughter of the Regiment, and Faust. This visit proved a decided attraction, and good houses were the order. The singing of Mr Turner as Don Cæsar De Bazan afforded the audience on Monday evening great pleasure, and for his rendering of "Let me like a soldier fall" he was rapturously encored. Miss Alice Boaden, whose voice was eminently suited for the numbers she was called upon to render, gave an intelligent and artistic rendering to the part of Maritana. As Lazarillo Miss Jessie Dennis sang very sweetly, particularly "Alas, those chimes." The heavy part of Don José was exceedingly well taken by Mr John Ridding, who was recalled for his rendering of "In happy moments." The singing of Mr Sidney Clifford as Charles II., King of Spain, gave every satisfaction. The chorus singing was delightful, and was assisted by a specially augmented orchestra.

FARNWORTH.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr T. Morton Powell.—Mr Charles Macdona's company is here with The Gay Parisienne. Miss Jennie Richards wins admiration by her vivacious portrayal of Julie, and the Ruth of Miss Madge Soutter is decidedly smart. Mr Charles A. Maynard as M. Pompier works hard for the distinction he gains, and together with Mr Tom May (Ebenezer Honeycombe) they keep the house constantly amused. Mr Arthur Watts makes much out of the part of Major Fossdyke, and the Imperial Glee Singers are heard to great advantage in several quartets.

FOLKESTONE.

PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—Manager, Mr H. W. Rowland.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr Mark Blow's company, in Under Two Flags, has attracted large houses here this week. Mr Mark Blow is in every way well suited as Bertie Cecil Royellieu; Mr Reginald Harley West acts with judgment as Barklie Cecil; Mr Chas. Brooke does well as Lord Royellieu; Mr Geo. Norman Burt is meritorious as Lord Rockingham; Mr Will Hook is great as Rake; Mr Chas. D. Pitt excels as Colonel Chateauroy; Mr Fred Hilliard as Abe-el Kan has an impressive manner; Miss Celia Gordon scores in the rôle of Princess Venetia; Miss Joan Stean acts charmingly as Countess Olga; Miss Bertha Kingston as Lady Beatrice is all that could be desired; Miss Daisy Carlton is seen to advantage as Lavinia; and Miss Laura Walker is most charming as Cigarette.

VICTORIA PIER.—Lessees, Messrs Keith Prowse and Co., Limited; General Manager, Mr H. De Manche.—The artistes performing here this week include Miss Gertrude Williams, soprano, who renders several pleasing songs; Miss Mabel Manson excels as a New Zealand soprano; Mr Ernest Meads never fails to please; Mr Edgar Coyle, baritone, is much liked; and Miss Irene Asdale does well as an accompanist.

LEAS PAVILION.—Manager, Mr Frank Seabrook.—The vocalist here is Miss Alice Burriston, soprano, who is the possessor of a pleasing voice; Mr Oldbury Brough is a clever entertainer; and the Ladies' Band and the Animated Pictures are very popular.

GAINSBOROUGH.

ALBERT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Robt. Kirk.—Mr Harry Foxwell's company appeared here for three nights last week in Shadows of a Great City. Mr Howell Travis gave a good rendering of Tom Cooper; Mr Chas. Vivian supplied the villainous element as George Benson; Mr Arthur Tomlin was successful as the detective; and Mr Foxwell and Miss Mollie Mona were amusing as Abe Nathan and Biddy Roonan respectively.

GATESHEAD.

METROPOLE THEATRE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Straughan.—A strong variety bill here is headed by Hanvarr and Anna Lee, who provide an amusing comedy-juggling act entitled The Golfer and the Maid. The pantomime absurdity Nicodemus is productive of much amusement. The Violas provide a clever mysterious act; Tony Iveson, the "aristocratic ragman," gives an interesting turn, as does also Wallace Whitney, eccentric comedian. Fox and Melville, song illustrators; Fred M'Arthur, dialect comedian; the Boston Twins, comedians; and Miss Beattie Foster, ballad vocalist, also entertain.

GLASGOW.

ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy Humphrys.—Considerable interest is being taken in the visit of Mr Charles Wyndham and Miss Mary Moore, who opened here on Monday, in David Garrick. Mr Wyndham's acting was marked by the characteristic spirit which has made his portrayal of this character famous. Miss Mary Moore charmed the house by the sympathy, grace, and freshness of her Ada Ingot. Mr Alfred Bishop as Simon Ingot presents a clever performance; he has a fine grip of the character, and plays the part well. Mr Frank Atherley as Squire Chivey brings the part into due prominence. Mr Bertram Steer gives a good impersonation of Mr Jones. Mr Gilbert Farquhar is successful as Mr Smith, while Mr Brown has a worthy representative in Mr T. W. Rawson. Miss Ethel Maryatt makes the most of her opportunities as Araminta Brown, and Miss Emily Vining is a capable Mrs Smith. On Tuesday and Thursday Mrs Gorringe's Necklace was played, while Wednesday and Friday were reserved for the presentation of The Case of Rebellious Susan, preceded each evening by the lively comedietta The American Widow, in which Miss Lillas Waldegrave scores as Mrs Vanbright.

ROYALTY, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr Wm. M. Downie.—Mr John Hare and company opened here on Monday with Little Mary and 'Op o' My Thumb. In the Barrie play Mr Hare's acting of the Earl of Carlton was all that could be desired, the Moira of Miss Hilda Trevelyan also pleasing the audience immensely, while character studies of exceptional merit were seen in the Sir Isaac Pike of Mr Rudge Harding and the Terence Reilly of Mr Fred Grove. Miss Helen Rous looked and acted the part of the Countess of Plumbleigh admirably, and in their respective parts of Lady Millie and Eleanor Gray Miss Kathleen Gordon-Lee and Miss Beatrice Kelston gave valuable support. Mr Carter Pickford made a handsome Lord Rolfe, and Mr Eric Maturin achieved success in the part of the Earl of Plumbleigh, the Dr. Topping of Mr Clifford Brooke and the Deighton of Mr Edgar B. Payne completing an excellent cast. In 'Op o' My Thumb Miss Hilda Trevelyan appeared in her original part—Amanda Affleck—the Horace Greensmith being Mr Rudge Harding, the other parts having able exponents in Misses Helen Rous, Emily Grove, Innes-Ker, and Florence Wetherall.

KING'S, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr H. Macfarlane.—A crowded house on Monday welcomed the latest musical comedy, The Earl and the Girl. Mr Wm. Greet's company includes many clever artistes, and among them Mr William Stephens as Jim Cheese catches the fancy of the audience right away. His songs and dialogue are given with much humour; and he is ably seconded by Miss Dot Carey as his faithful donah Liza. Miss Aimée Grey is a charming and vivacious Elphin Haye, and acts and sings with much distinction; her songs and business with Mr Percy Carr, who is excellent as Dick Wargrave, are specially good. Miss Florence Imeson is a bright and animated Daisy Fallowfield, and her sporting song and "Sammy" are well received. Miss Gladys Fontaine as the massive Mrs Shimmering Black forms an amusing contrast to the diminutive Jim Cheese. Mr Tom Redmond makes a genial host of the Fallowfield Arms, and the three searchers for the missing Earl are cleverly acted by Mr William Walshe, Mr Will Hindson, and Mr J. C. Graves. Mr Bertie White as the inane dude Boodle is amusing; and Miss Helen Langton is a picturesque Virginia Bliss. A large and tuneful chorus and the augmented orchestra under Mr Evelyn Baker do every justice to the concerted music. The piece is beautifully staged, the setting of act one—the Fallowfield Arms—being particularly good.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S.—Sole Proprietor, Mr Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr Hugh Murdoch.—Mr Milton Bode's company provides the attraction with Woman and Wine this week. The part of Dick Seymour as played by Mr Frank R. Robertson is strongly dramatic and full of interest; Mr Fred Mace is powerful as the heart-broken father, Hugh Seymour; Alphonse Beaudet, a strong part, is strongly played by Mr Walter Thornton. Another interesting character is that of Professor Sawter, embodied by Mr Tom Tindall, whose son Charles is a humorous character in Mr Percy Dawsone's hands. Mr Herbert Landeck is admirably suited as Caliban. Miss Edith Blande as Marcel, the adventuress, is eminently fitted for a part that calls for much dramatic skill, and as Mary Andrews Miss Ernestine Holker is graceful and sympathetic. Miss Muriel Vox as Janet has a thorough grasp of all she has to do, and with Charles Sawter (Mr Dawsone) sustains what humour is in the play. As La Colombe Miss Nellie Lauraine sustains the interest with Marcel in several strongly dramatic situations. Madame Perinet (Miss Rose Galloway), Suzanne (Miss Lucy Langley), Phineas Collins (Mr Frank Eaglesfield), and Mark Perkins (Mr E. R. Beaumont) contribute to the success of the play. Particularly good are the Duke and Bob Tipton by Mr Henry Compton and Mr Ralph Lynn respectively. The Edene Troupe of lady dancers are deservedly recalled.

GRAND, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr A. Mascard.—Mr and Mrs Chalmers Mackey's company is appearing here in The Wearin' o' the Green. Mr Chalmers Mackey himself takes the part of Barney O'Hea, and from start to finish sustains that rollicking character in his well known droll style. Shamus M'Dermott finds a strong exponent in Mr Reginald Garland, and Mr H. Sainsbury scores as Sir George Courtenay. Mr Conway Hastings is especially good as Connor Martin, and Mr C. Guilfoyle Seymour is an excellent Michael Kenny. The Norah M'Garth of Mrs Chalmers Mackey is all that could be desired, and Miss Lalla Stanhope is very taking as Biddy M'Ginn. Mr Henry Danson as Gerald Courtenay and Miss Adele Liddon as Mrs M'Dermott are specially well suited.

METROPOLE, LIMITED.—Managing Director, Mr Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr John Dunbar.—Mr James Willard's company is here in the spectacular drama In the Shadow of Night, in which Miss Nellie Sheffield plays with much sprightliness the rôle of Molly. Mr Chisholm Taylor as Tom Nainby also adds to the comedy of the play. Miss May Richardson as Violet makes a charming heroine, while Miss Milly Gordon as a boy tramp is excellent. Mr George Harvey as Squire Allanton acts with quiet dignity, while Mr Howard L. Tracy gives a strong impersonation of Gordon Allanton, the squire's son. Mr Hamilton Deane as the villainous Clifford York varies the usual dramatic rascality by an admixture of jocular cynicism. Mr Fred Norburn gives a powerful representation of a poacher. Mr Archie Selwyn is amusing as a clergyman of the bandbox carrying variety, also doubling the part of a deaf old country postman. Mr Ern Carlton interprets naturally the part of a jolly farmer, and Mr Harry Ford makes a characteristic London cabman. Mr George Stoney as a waiter and Mr Dick Bird as a railway porter—with a few others—complete a strong cast. A big fire at a London dock and a plunge into real water are realistic effects.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr J. H. Oakden.—After a successful week at the Princess's the Craggs are delighting the Govan playgoers in Laughter Land. Mr Cremorne Cragg is very amusing as Billy. Mr Harry B. Lewis as Professor Wood and Mr Harry Rowley as Dick Marlow are responsible for most of the fun. Many bright songs and dances are introduced, and the acrobatic item by the Craggs is extremely clever.

WHITEVALE.—Proprietor, Mr George Green.—Mr Bert Wentworth's company is drawing good houses here with That Woman from France. Mr Jerrold Heather acts with much power in the exacting part of John Beaumont; Miss Marie De Roos makes a stately Camille Nichol; Mr H. Leonard Williams is well placed as the young lover, Cecil Charrington; the unscrupulous Philip Charrington is played with vigour by Mr Annesley Hely; Miss Evelyn Marrable infuses much pathos into the part of the young heiress, Beryl Stancliffe; Mr Bernard Dunstan is an amusing Latimer Louder; and the part of Winnie is brightly played by Miss Amy Maitland. Miss Lola Tempest as the housekeeper, Mr John B. Murray as Sir Esmond, and Mr William Artaud as the lawyer all give able assistance. The play is well mounted.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Limited.—There is a large and varied programme here this week. Alec Hurley gets a great reception in the "Coster's Friendly Lead;" the Haytors contribute a clever sketch, which causes much amusement; the gymnastic feats of the Devona Sisters are smart, and the juggling of Henri Kaiser is really clever; the patter of Tennyson and Wallis is responsible for much laughter, as also is that of the Anartos in their musical sketch; Harry Coates, the singing navvy, is well received; and the Three Sisters Sprightly give a smart and lively turn. The other members of the company, who are all deserving of notice, are Phil Herman and Ben Albert, both comedians; Leo Tell, the exponent of the equine language; and Gertrella, in her nicely staged scene "In Cupid's Garden."

TIVOLI.—Proprietors, Messrs Colquhoun and Armstrong, Limited; Managing Director, Mr Barney M. Armstrong; Acting-Manager, Mr Fred C. Ewing.—A good programme is provided here this week, and includes several novel items, notably W. Permane's educated bears. Another interesting item is that of Leonard Barry and company, in the comedy scena, The Moocher's Walk. The other members of a strong company include:—Harry Jennings, comedian and dancer; the Jansons, gymnasts; Dora Lindsay, vocalist; Linton, tight-rope artist; Tokio Trio, musical Japs; Bendon's Bioscope; Onda and Artell, comedy bar performers; and James O'Neill (Blind Jimmy), who accomplished the feat of walking from Cambuslang to London.

PALACE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs Rich Waldon and Thos. Barrasford.—Large and delighted audiences find their way to this popular house. Miss Annie Purcell, of operatic and musical comedy fame, sings in a charming style several equally charming songs; Mdlle. Clothilde once more delights with her clever and pretty parrots and cockatoos; and a pleasing musical turn, vocal and instrumental, is given by Nellio and Nora, their violin and pianoforte duet earning much applause. Japanese juggling is well illustrated by the Zanettos, and an eccentric and funny knockabout act is given by the Bros. Ward. Dion Wade is to the fore in Frank Leo's quaint melodies; Tray and Rich, black and white comedians, are an excellent and attractive turn, and win much favour; the contortionist, Mons. D'Musto, displays amazing agility; the Freydos are gymnasts of ability, grace, strength, and uniqueness; Bert Leslie is a good comedian. Japan's Handy Men is a spectacle at once interesting, amusing, and exciting, and Mr W. Selkirk has credit for the innovation. The lads take well. The ever-popular Bioscope is a fine close to the entertainment.

QUEEN'S.—Lessees, Messrs Colquhoun and Armstrong, Limited; Manager, Mr T. J. Colquhoun; Acting-Manager, Mr B. M. Armstrong, Jun.—Harry Pleon, comedian, tops the bill here, and is still in the front rank in his line of business. On account of the indisposition of Frank Coyle, the management secured the services of Blind Jimmy (James O'Neill). A clever sketch is submitted by Cecil Lidden and Elsie Haywood, entitled A Quiet Rehearsal. The rest of the company include Bros. Lang, comic boxers; Sehilla Barrett, comedienne; Bouverie Pleydall, comedienne; Grell and Grey, burlesque artistes; Astley's circus; and Prince Bendon's Bioscope.

HARMONIC CONCERTS.—Musical Secretary, Mr Wm. Biggam.—This popular series of concerts are now fairly under weigh for the season. On Saturday the artistes were Miss Bessie W. Matheson, soprano; Mr Peter A. Hope, who sang baritone songs in good style; the Lindsay Trio, pierrots and musicians of ability on many instruments; the Murray Troupe of international dancers; and Mr Alexander Still and pupils in their popular turn with clubs, &c. Mr Harry Clyo and Miss Rose Rochelle appeared in a comedy act; Messrs Baker and Rose in a similar turn; and Mr Billy Mueller and Miss Clara Coyne proved clever variety entertainers.

GLOUCESTER

THEATRE ROYAL.—Owners, Messrs C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr W. H. Weller.—Mrs Bandmann-Palmer, supported by a clever company, is being welcomed here this week. The répertoire consists of Mary, Queen of Scots, Sapho, East Lynne, Nell Gwynn, and Jane Shore. The first-named was presented on Monday, when Mrs Bandmann-Palmer appeared in the title-rôle, her scholarly rendering evoking frequent applause. Mr F. Skelu made an admirable Earl of Leicester, and the Earl of Shrewsbury was excellently played by Mr Boyd Pearson, and Lord Burleigh was adequately sustained by Mr Sydney Bland. Miss Katharine Herbert gave proofs of her undoubted ability as Queen Elizabeth; Mr G. Munro was good as the Earl of Kent; and Mr C. Kingsley did well as Sir Amyas Paulet. Sir Edward Mortimer had a praiseworthy exponent in Mr William Trant.

GOOLE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr John E. Tomlinson.—Miss Adria Hill and Mr Robert Ayrton's company is here for this week with the historical play entitled The Shadow of the Cross. Mr Robert Ayrton powerfully renders the part of Wulfere, King of Mercia, and the rôle of Edgar finds an excellent exponent in Mr V. Carlyle. Mr E. Pyne as Egbert acts with rare dramatic effect, and Mr H. Pyne-Warburton is admirably suited to the part of Chad, Bishop of Lichfield. The rôle of Werebode, a courtesan, is capitally portrayed by Miss Adria Hill. Miss V. Terry makes the most of her opportunities as Edelgitha, whilst Miss E. Clare displays the necessary dignity required in the part of Ethelinda, the Queen. Mr H. Ward as Ptolemy Geezer and Miss E. Lewis as Caleda are responsible for the comic element. Under Two Flags was played on Thursday and Friday.

GRAVESEND.

GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Captain H. E. Davis; General Manager, Mr David Hart.—At the top of an interesting bill, Albert Wyndham, the Shakespearian star, shines in Prince Arthur; Mdlle. Lucretia, refined burlesque artiste, captivates her audience; Arthur Royce, clever comedian, scores heavily; Cyrus Dare, in his unique performance, is highly appreciated; Eva Hamilton, styled La Belle Parisienne, is a brilliant dancer; H. F. Wilson, vocalist, renders some delightful tenor ballads; and Lord, Murray, and Lord, in their comedy "The Intruder," give a clever and amusing athletic performance.

GREAT GRIMSBY.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Mr Lewis Calvert's company has presented the charming play, Sunday, here this week, with Miss Nita Faydon in the part of Sunday. Miss Faydon's impersonation of the character is greatly admired, and her picture of the bright, unaffected Western girl is delightfully refreshing. The parts of the four "boys," as Sunday terms them, are admirably realised by their respective exponents. Mr Frederick Powell is decidedly impressive as Towzer; Mr John H. Manley makes an excellent Davy; Mr T. Norman Walter causes much amusement as Lively, whilst Mr Whitford Kane wins everybody's favour as Jacky. The character of Colonel Brinthorpe is played with distinction by Mr J. Edward Pearce, and the good-for-nothing brother, Arthur Brinthorpe, is admirably represented by Mr Charles B. Vaughan. The work of Mr Ernest A. Douglas as Tom Oxley, Miss Elizabeth Watson as Mrs Naresby, and Miss Olive Adair as the Nun is also to be highly commended.

HIPPODROME.—At the Hippodrome Charles Morrit has considerably mystified the audiences with his wonderful illusions. He has also presented his Blind Man, whose memory is simply prodigious, he being able to answer questions relating to dates of historic occurrences, and to give a vast amount of other information immediately demanded. A clever display of hand and wire equilibristic work has been given by the Three Alberts. Excellent dancing and charming singing has been contributed by the Sisters Selwyn. An exhibition of the peculiar but extremely pretty art of paper-tearing has been another interesting turn, for which Tony and Flo Vernon are responsible. Some smart club swinging has been accomplished by Duncan, whilst Bert Holmes has given an entertaining vocal turn, and comedy has been supplied by the Padleys in a speciality, "The Private Lesson."

KING'S HALL.—Tom Birchmore's variety company, including Satsuma, the Japanese juggler, opened here for a season on Monday.

GREAT YARMOUTH.

ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. W. Nightingale.—Mr Cecil Barth's company is here this week with the new American drama, An Actor's Romance. Miss Constance Elgin gives an earnest and powerful rendition of the rôle of the adventuress, Florence; Mr Guy Hastings is spirited and manly as Harold Davenport; Robert Livingstone is well represented by Mr Percy Ruston; Mr Percy Marmont is excellent as Jack Woodford; Mr E. H. Dobell is effective as the dude, Charlie Cummings; Mr John Detliv is Isidore De Valois; Mr Albert Wainwright as John Lennon; and Mr Maurice Lenton as Lester Bond are all good in their respective parts. Miss Bertha Northam is sympathetic and tender as Louise Davenport. Miss May Chatteris is bright and vivacious as Dottie Dillingham. The scenery is picturesque.

GREENOCK.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, the Executors of the late Mr Alex. Wright; Managers, Messrs A. B. Wright and J. J. Wright.—This week we have Mr Fred Bulmer's Sentenced for Life company. The drama is excellently represented, and is being performed nightly to appreciative audiences. Mr Richard Bosco is admirable as Sir Wallace Stilwell. Captain Derrick is capitally represented by Mr Ernest Vaughan, Mr Harry Lloyd fills the rôle of Lieut. Stilwell satisfactorily, the part of Rev. Martin Orris receives excellent treatment from Mr Chas. Whitlock, and Mr E. D. Allen is effective as Percy M'Gentle. Messrs Arthur Marchmont and Edward Finley are clever as Bill Sharkey and Toby respectively. Mr Lake Warden does well as George Wade, and Mr Hugh Faulkiner acts the part of Sir George Grey capably. Miss Georgina V. France is charming as Adele Grey, Miss Madge Douglas gives a realistic portrayal of Kate Rennel, and Miss Mary Dalby as Lady Stilwell deserves praise.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr H. L. Skivington.—Mr Skivington has provided an excellent company at this theatre this week. Abel and Welsh, grotesque comedians, are amusing; J. A. Cassells, Scotch comedian, is applauded; the Stanleys, vocalists and dancers, do well; Slade Murray, actor vocalist, gives an entertaining turn; the Boultons, sketch artists, are well received; Mdlle. Bartinelli is seen in a number of contortionist movements; Nellie Farrell, the Star of Erin, sings well; and the O'Malleys are genuinely funny.

HALIFAX.

GRAND THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling.—The Karnos' musical comical absurdity, Saturday to Monday, is here this week, and is serving its purpose by causing almost continual laughter. The piece is well put on, staged and dressed with effect, and the principal artistes are efficient in their respective rôles. Misses Aggie Morris, Gladys White, Carlotta Blondin, and Messrs Tom Wallace, Douglas Fox, Wilton Shale, Herbert Lewis, Henri Duval, and James Fletch play the principal characters admirably.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr Steuart Cecil.—Miss Lottie Lennox heads the bill here this week and is proving a great success. Her songs are rendered with discrimination and she is very popular. The other items on the programme include Gray and Welford, comedians; Ada Twibell, vocalist; Ted Young, comedian; Ruby Winstone, comedienne and dancer; Steely and Dowton, in a singing, dancing, comedy, and legmania act; Gintaro, a clever juggler and top-spinner; and Teb's monkeys.

HANLEY.

ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. Elphinstone.—Following closely upon the heels of The Earl and the Girl comes Mr George Dance's company, in The School Girl. The piece affords ample chances for the artistes engaged, and all the parts are admirably acted. The scenic effects leave nothing to be desired, and the chorus is strong and well balanced. Miss Grace Sinclair as Cicely sings cleverly and acts with much grace. Miss Mildred King as the Mother Superior gives a truly excellent performance; Miss Ethel Beech is seen to advantage in the title-part; Mr Lister Morrah as Edgar Verney acts with ease and sings capitally; Mr Cameron Carr's interpretation of Peter Overend is good; Sir Ormesby St. Leger finds a really fine exponent in Mr Leslie Holland; Mr Chas. Adeson as General Marchmont is interesting; and Tubby Bedford is capably sustained by Mr Alfred Leslie.

GRAND, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr James Wynes.—A fine house on Monday witnessed the Pantzer Bros. in their wonderful feats of hand and head balancing; Fred Ginnett's company, in their highly interesting sketch, viz., Rejected Remounts, are well received; Edgar Forrest's sketch artistes are seen to advantage; Bob Hutt, comedian, causes roars of laughter; Miss Dorothy Clark meets with an enthusiastic reception; and La Tostia contributes several cleverly rendered items on the mandoline; Fred Lincoln pleases everyone with his songs; Charles Mathews as a jumper is most entertaining; and the Grand pictures are full of interest.

HARTLEPOOL

EMPRESS.—Proprietor, Councillor Everton; Manager, Mr Harry Burns.—Ando's Happy Little Japs are creating quite a furore here this week with their amazing acrobatic performance. The company is a strong one all round. Nellie Coleman, the well-known female comedian, adds greatly to her already high reputation, her dancing and patter being very clever. The Gladenbecks are doing wonders on the silver rings; Dome, clay modeller, takes the house by storm; and Geo. Rapley and Fred Cathburn, comedians, are each enthusiastically received. The Rozells are captivating as well as smart on the comedy bars; Flo Hilton is a capital male impersonator; and Maria Santo is a good comedienne. Burns's Bioscope completes the bill.

HUDDERSFIELD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting Manager, Mr Percy G. Arthur.—Mr George Dance's company in A Chinese Honeymoon, on a return visit, met with an enthusiastic reception, opening on Monday evening. Encores to all the popular numbers were demanded, and the piece went briskly right through. Miss M. Sadie as Fi-Fi was very funny, and fairly roused the house to boisterous hilarity with her comicalities. Miss Marie Adair played gracefully and sang effectively as Soo-Soo. Miss Jose Collins showed much spirit as Mrs Pineapple, and Miss Alice Drummond was austerity itself as Mrs Brown. Mr Harry Brayne worked hard and successfully as Pineapple. Mr Percy Yorke was a manly Tom Atherton. Mr Frank A. Wood invested the part of Hang Chow with a certain humorous dignity. Mr Leonard May put in some smart work as Hi-Lung, and Mr P. Allerton Turner made the most of his opportunities as Chipple Chop. A marked feature was the bright, crisp, and tuneful singing of a particularly alert chorus. The dressing and general mounting of the piece were tasteful and complete.

HULL.

ALHAMBRA.—Resident-Manager, Mr C. J. Bartleet Perry.—Tom Lloyd is a successful top turn in some smart songs; the Waldrons are responsible for much laughter in some smart burlesque and dancing; Charles R. Whittle is another turn that suits the taste of the audience; Walter Bellonini, the juggler, performs some clever tricks; Ethel Yorke is a successful singer and dancer; and Alf Aubyn is a smart coon vocalist and dancer. Johnny Danvers, comedian, and Professor Welsen complete an all-round good company.

Odol is used by Dentists themselves.

By the authorities on modern Science Odol has been proved the Best for cleansing Mouth and Teeth.

HASTINGS.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr George H. Gaze.—Messrs Louis Calvert and Herbert Ross's company on Monday gave a capital presentment of Thomas Raceward's play, Sunday, for the first time in this borough. Miss Marie Polini submitted a fine performance of Sunday, showing a thorough grip of the character. Nothing but praise is due to Messrs Henry Stephenson, David Curtis, Alfred Phillips, and Arthur Somers for the support they respectively afforded her as Towser, Davy, Lively, and Jacky. Miss Dorothy Gordon played the Nun impressively, and Miss Maude Henderson ably impersonated Mrs Naresby. Arthur Brinthorpe was successfully impersonated by Mr W. Edwyn Holloway, and Mr Arthur Willoughby efficiently enacted Tom Oxley.

HASTINGS PIER PAVILION.—Pier Master, Mr R. Turner.—This week finishes the engagement of Ashton's Italian orchestra. These farewell concerts are augmented by the excellent contralto vocalist Miss Lilian Harvey and the popular humorist Mr Ronald Bagnall.

ST. LEONARDS PIER PAVILION.—Pier Master, Mr Elvey Thomas; Entertainment Manager, Mr Drew Mackintosh. — A superior quartet of vocalists, under the title of "The Roman Singers," in characteristic costume, are holding the boards here this week, including Miss Amy Aifford, an Australian soprano; Miss Maisie Riversdale; and Messrs Charles Edwards and Groves Watson; Mr Broughton Black being the humorist. They are artistes of a very high order, and their well-trained voices blend most harmoniously in burlesque opera and various musical selections.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General Manager, Mr Harold Penny.—An excellent company is here this week. The programme is opened by Miss Millie Denham, an attractive burlesque artiste. Mr Wisper is a remarkably clever and expert juggler; Miss Beattie Bloom, comedienne, obtains a flattering reception; Miss May Belfort, a sweet singer, is accompanied by some charming dark-hued vocalists in an interesting Negro scena; the Carlyles, in Spanish costume, are original in their dancing; the eccentric comedian Mr Charles Lilburn creates great amusement; the acrobatism of Messrs Hall and Earle is exceedingly smart and clever; an attractive feature also is the Bioscope up-to-date pictures.

HEBBURN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr W. A. Jackson.—Messrs George Mitchell and John Belton's company in The Conscript is appearing here this week. In the rôle of Karl Truevitch Mr Geo. Mitchell meets with distinct success. Ivan Manioff has a capable exponent in Mr Walter Spinner, and Count Paul Hardiski is cleverly embodied by Mr Fred H. Constable. Mr John Belton, who scores as Dor Doggeritch, is an actor of ability. A pleasing representation of Nadia Truevitch is given by Miss Mary Dawson. Miss Elizabeth Doone is admirable as Catherine Silka, and Miss Ivy Chandos gives an agreeable rendering of Wanda. Mr Frank Harvey as Michael Andreitch, Mr Frank Liliput as Tretch Trotoff, Mr Edw. Hill as Maxim Fredka, Mr Geo. Oliver as Wolf Stilvitch, Mr F. E. P. Case as General Korshoo, Mr W. F. Armytage as Commander Jolly, and Mr Harold Holmes as Captain Perston are also artists worthy of note. Little Elsie Baston does well as Little Karl, and Miss Maud Ranford makes the most of her part as Dame Katinda.

HORWICH.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Arthur Sandiford; Acting-Manager, Mr Alfred Holles. — Mr Hugh Osborne's company in The Sins of the Fathers, is here this week. The piece is very elaborately staged. Mr Cecil Ravenswood as Jim Hewitt gives a fine manly performance, Mr Max Coutts pictures Sebastian Brandt in lurid colours, Mr A. Traill makes an aristocratic Mr Harmsworth, and Mr Wallace Eastlake as George Armitage has a very hard part and does full justice to it. Mr Harry E. Thorpe as Deuteronomy Smith is very amusing, Mr Chas. Lock as Justice Thyme is responsible for some good dancing, and Mr Harry Leach is a stalwart Constable Thomas. Miss Dorothy Routh's impersonation of Edith Harmsworth is a fine sympathetic performance. Miss Edith Le Ray as Polly Popplethwaite is vociferously encored, Miss Beryl Ravenswood's portrayal of Camille Leblanc is most artistic, and little Miss Lulu Bowes in the dual-rôle of Nellie Hewitt, a dying child, and the Nipper, a juvenile coster, display great promise. The minor characters are in capable hands.

HOYLAND.

THEATRE METROPOLE.—Owner, Arthur Carlton; Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr G. S. King.—Miss Blanche St. Albans and Mr J. Leicester Jackson's company is here in Her One Great Sin. Miss Florence Creagh shows much ability as Grace Warhurst; Mr Sam Arthur does well as Reuben Warhurst; Mr Harold B. Ford is an amusing Jack Hundle; and Mr Fred Hodson as Jerry Jumble and Miss Nellie Lambert as Nancy support the comedy element. Arnold Thornhill is well played by Mr Frederick Lloyd; Dan and Bet Hundle are good studies by Mr C. E Lambert and Miss Louie Walton; and Mr F. Morton-Wright is a satisfactory Ben Barkley. The staging is very good.

HYDE.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Joseph W. Maloney.—A third and very successful visit is being paid here this week by Mr W. H. Kirby and company in The New Mephisto. As Dick Pilgrim Mr W. H. Kirby is exceedingly droll, and with Miss Marion Armitage, who appears as Becky Pilgrim, causes roars of laughter. Successful also in the mirth-provoking line are Messrs Herbert St. John and Willie H. Vernon as Lord Hummingtop and Major Bantam respectively. As Mr Mephistopheles, &c., Mr Fred Lyne displays remarkable versatility. Miss Lily Gullick is a charming Dolly, and sings and dances in a highly pleasing manner; and Mr H. P. Carr makes a manly Capt. Meredith, and scores as a vocalist. The three goey widows find vivacious exponents in the Misses Dorothy Cecil, Leah Howard, and Marion Keeley.

ILKESTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr L. F. A. Rogers.—Messrs Fred Moule and E. D. Nicholls' company is paying a welcome return visit this week with The Life that Kills. Mr Herbert Sidney gives a wonderfully life-like picture of the unscrupulous bookmaker, Kendal Croat; Mr E. D. Nicholls sustains the part of the Rev. Theodore Rodney, Lord Kelmarsh, with masterly tact, and Mr Hugh Metcalfe and Mr Morris Maud in their respective parts of Hector Rodney and Valentine Telford display marked ability. Mr Robert Lord is natural as Captain Montague, Mr Harry Howe is hilariously funny as Jack Joliffe, and the Samuel Flatfoote of Mr Wilton Drury is exceedingly droll. In the dual part of Tom and Johanna Dicks, Miss Mabel Kessler is seen to great advantage, her cornet and post-horn solos evoking applause; Miss Vyvyan Montgomery is powerfully pathetic as Laurie Linden; and the Brenda Croat of Miss Cathleen Cavanagh is artistically portrayed.

INVERNESS.

THEATRE ROYAL — Managing Director, Mr Cameron Burgess.—Messrs J. F. Preston and P. E. Doherty's company, with Secrets, is here this week. Mr George Davis does well as Lieutenant Markham; Mr Henry Rutland is capable in the rôle of Nouredin, and Mr J. Templar Ellis ably acts the part of Ibrahim. Miss Ellen Beverley is an admirable Zulieka, and Miss May Carlton does exceedingly well as Ismalia.

IPSWICH.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. G. Fisk.—The Duchess of Danzic has been played here this week by Mr George Dance's company. Miss Rita Presano was a charming representative of the Duchess, while Mr F. Moyes did full justice to the part of Napoleon. Mr Albert Champion was an admirable Lefebvre, his acting and singing being equally good; and Mr Colin Mackay was a humorous Papillon. Other members of the company who added to the success of the piece were Messrs Thomas C. Maxwell and Mesdames May Harries, Mabel Bailey, Amy Burton, and Edyth Carlyle.

HIPPODROME.—This place of amusement has attracted large audiences at two performances each evening. Duncan's Royal Scotch collies by their wonderful intelligence evoke much applause, while a couple of acrobatic artists called Cubicas do some marvellous feats. Other new turns include La Rola, a clever juggler; Harry Best, whose personation of London stars is well applauded; Rose Caban, a fine ballad singer; Miss May Lilian Levy, comedienne; Sandy and Carl, knockabouts; and Charles Paver, comedian. The Hippograph with new films is an attractive item in the programme.

JARROW.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Hugh Robertson; Secretary, Mr William Y. Oakes.—Messrs Carson and Granville's company is here with the drama entitled A Modern Adventuress. Mr Geo. D. Knight gives a good account of the rôle of William Delby, and Mr Charles Stirling is a manly Harry Delby; the part of Wallace Danton is done full justice to by Mr W. R. Winning; Mr Leonard Aardale submits a first-class portrayal of Pietro Donelli; Mr Geo. P. Lester is well placed as Walter Beal; and Mr Evan Roland is quite at home in the rôle of John Compton. Miss Beatrice M. Anderson is excellent as Violet Meredith, Miss Alice Detoe plays with great judgment the part of Vivette Delby, and Miss Mimi Fisher scores as Sally Hodges.

KETTERING.

AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Payne.—Mr and Mrs Kimberley's company is here in A Sister's Sin. Mr J. P. Royston played the hero in good style, and Mr Sidney Rennef is admirable as Walter Hastings. Mr Raymond Thomas is satisfactory as the unscrupulous George Oakley, and the Ikey Moses is effectively portrayed by Mr Ernest Frere. The comedy parts are in excellent hands. Mr Cecil Morand as Larry Murphy and Mr Elwin Kisby as Theophilus Hope keep the audience in good humour, and they are ably assisted by Miss Mabel Ray as Floss Perks and Miss Lillian Warren as Nellie Stubbs. Miss Cora Linda gives a charming rendering of Minnie Hastings, Miss Clara Santley is responsible for a fine performance as Charsel, and Miss Grace Jones is deserving of praise as Redempta. Masters Tiny and Dot Pape also add considerably to the success of the piece.

KIDDERMINSTER.

NEW OPERA HOUSE.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr R. C. Gudgeon, Jun.—Mr Auguste Van Biene, the well-known actor musician, and company are here in the play, entitled The Broken Melody. As Paul Borinski Mr Auguste Van Biene is excellent. He is ably supported by Miss Lena Burnleigh, who is admirable in the rôle of Mabel, wife of Borinski. Mr Arthur Bawtree effectively portrays the character of General Ivanoff, a police spy. The piece is mounted in first-class style.

KING'S LYNN.

NEW ROYAL THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, J. Bannister Howard; Business Manager, Herbert Leonard. — Mr Chas. Macdona's company, in A Chinese Honeymoon, opened on Monday to a crowded house. Mr Lester Carey makes a majestic Hang Chow; Mr Percy Stephens as the Lord Chancellor is good; Mr Geo. P. Ascot gives a droll rendering of Mr Pineapple; Miss Dorothy Vane acts and sings well in the part of Mrs Pineapple; Miss Cissy Schofield keeps the house in continuous roars of laughter with her comicalities as Fi-Fi; Miss Mamie Finbow makes a charming Soo-Soo; and Miss Julie St. George as Mrs Brown gives a capital impersonation.

LANCASTER.

ATHENÆUM.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Hy. Wilkinson.—Bigamy is being presented here this week by Mr Morton Powell's company. Miss Alwynne Ermon gives a vivid and realistic portrayal of Diana De Courcelle, and receives excellent support from Mr E. S. Earle as Edgar Craven. Another good character sketch is that of Lionel Craven by Mr E. J. Fare, and Miss Elsie Capel gives a clever study of Sylvia Dresden. There is plenty of humour introduced by Mr Fred Moule as Rufus Cherryball and F. Searle as Voltaire, a Frenchman.

LEAMINGTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs Edward Compton and Milton Bode; Manager, Mr Reginald Taylor.—The attraction on Monday and the two following nights was Messrs Murray King and Clark's company in Sweet and Twenty. Miss Rosalie Jacobi gave a dainty impersonation of Joan, and Mr Lionel Glenister as the erring but manly Douglas was well placed. Mr Robert Milsted came out of the difficult part of Eustace with flying colours; and the other parts were capably handled. Sweet and Twenty was preceded by that uproarious musical playlet You and I. For the latter part of the week Miss Fortescue and company in Moths and Ought We to Visit Her? are announced.

LEEDS.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr John Hart, General Manager, Mr Fredk. Vincent.—The charming comic opera, My Lady Molly, is the attraction here, and Mr Frederick Mouillot's company do the piece full justice. Miss Beatrice Edwards fills the title-rôle with distinction; Mr Harry Davies plays the dashing Captain Romney in effective style; and Mr Augustus Cramer is no less successful in his portrayal of Sir Miles. Mr John T. M'Callum wins great favour by his clever work as the comical servant, Micky O'Dowd; Miss Rita Everard is noticeable for a neat and artistic effort as Alice Coverdale; and capital presentations of other leading rôles go to the credit of Miss Kitty Upton, Miss Amy Cooper, and Mr Ernest Mozar.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; General Manager, Mr R. Ernest Liston. — The thrilling detective drama From Scotland Yard is being played here by Mr C. Finch-Hatton's company, and this well-known actor himself portrays Detective Jack Dale in effective fashion. Miss Renee Glendower renders capital assistance as Mad Marie; Mabel is an interesting study by Miss Marion Forrester; and the part of Dale's sister, Sybil, is equally well taken by Miss Mabel Verne. The villainous Dean Fordyce has an effective exponent in Mr C. H. Matthews; some welcome comedy business is introduced by Mr J. F. Firth; and Mr Mike Johnson and Mrs Nellie Hook also play a prominent part in the general success.

QUEEN'S THEATRE. — Lessees, Messrs Dottridge and Longden; General Manager, Mr C. H. Longden; Acting-Manager, Mr Chas. Bush.—The visit of Mr Tom B. Davis's company with Florodora is always a big attraction here. Mr Edward Lewis is again the irrepressible Tweedlepunch, and keeps his audience in a state of continual hilarity. Mr Fred Winn presents the part of Cyrus Gilfain in satisfactory style. Mr Leonard Russell acts and sings extremely well as Frank Abercoed, and Miss Lena Maitland is a charming exponent of the part of Dolores.

EMPIRE PALACE. — Moss Empires, Limited; Resident-Manager, Mr T. Gerald Morton.—A flattering reception has been accorded Miss Vesta Tilley, whose visit after an absence of two years is a most popular one. At Monday's performance a budget of new songs were sang in quite her best style, but still a delighted audience clamoured for more, whereupon Miss Tilley responded with a charming little speech. A good company supports, including R. H. Douglass, in a clever monologue; Phillips and Terry, with their amusing sketch, The Revolt of Man, and the Alaskas, in an expert comedy and acrobatic act. The Werner Amoros Troupe present their pantomimic sketch with great success. The Wedburns, patter comedians, appear again, and other interesting items are submitted by Rafayette, with clever performing dogs; Juan and M'Que, knockabout comedians; Ida Brophy, comedienne; and the Lannons, duettists and dancers.

TIVOLI.—Proprietor, Mr Thos Barrasford; General Managers, Messrs Charles Weldon and Edgar O. Waller.—Richard Sawade heads the bill here with his remarkably fine animal show, the troupe including lions, tigers, bears, and dogs. A popular comedian, W. J. Churchill, also finds great favour; whilst that clever vocal comedian, Will Godwin, is also a successful contributor. Vera Patey is an accomplished character-comedienne; the Cullane Trio submit a smart entertainment, The Dude's Dilemma, with good success; the Bros Donar are seen in an expert acrobatic and equilibristic act; the Waltons also appear in a similar line; and the programme is completed by Ida Gladstone, contralto vocalist; Merton and Rydon, vocal artistes; and the ever-popular animated pictures.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr F. W. Wood; General Manager, Mr J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr S. Jones.—A clever and amusing comic juggling act by Radford and Valentine is the leading turn here. The Watson Family present their musical and vocal entertainment with success. Of smart comedians there are no less than four appearing, namely, Alf Gibson, Dan Thomas, Tom Yorke, and Gus Hindell, and all are exceedingly clever in their own particular line. The Four Skandias perform gymnastic feats, and the Sisters Warner sing and dance in good style.

LEICESTER.

ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor, Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley; Acting-Manager, Mr C. D. Leigh.—A Royal Divorce, presented by Mr W. W. Kelly's excellent company, is fulfilling a return engagement here this week. Miss Edith Cole makes a conspicuous success as the Empress Josephine, her whole embodiment calling for the highest praise. Miss Ethyle Murray is an admirable Marie Louise, and Miss Helen Richmond as Stephanie De Beauharnais is also good. Mr Frederick Victor plays in a most powerful and effective manner as Napoleon. Mr Claude Agnew does well as Talleyrand, and Mr Trevor Lowe as the Marquis De Beaumont, Mr Alfred Grenville as General Augereau, Mr Ernest G. Batley as Marshal Murat, and Mr H. J. Powell as Dr. Corvisart are to be complimented on their respective delineations. As the innkeeper, Grimaud, Mr Dennis Bryan is capital. The play is well staged.

THEATRE ROYAL — Sole Lessee, Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley; General Manager, Mr John H. Clarke.—Her Forbidden Marriage, by Frederick Melville, met with a good reception here on Monday; Mr Horace Hunter as George Maddison, and Mr Clarence Hague as Charles Devereux the evil genius, are prominent with very clever portrayals. Mr C. Carte is good as Sir Geo Lancaster; Miss Doris Brookes does well as Lady Lucretia Lancaster; Miss Emily Hughes is effective as the Mother Superior; and Miss Isla Garnet Vayne as Lucy is satisfactory. Miss Marie Kildare as Pattie Lovejoy and Mr Harry Elliston as Timothy Tuttutt cause much merriment.

PALACE THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Leonard Vidal. —The premier turn here this week is Donaldson Bros. and Ardel and company, who cause the heartiest laughter with their pantomimic sketch, A Zoological Comedy. The Manhattan Comedy Four give a most enjoyable turn; The Brothers Egbert, the "happy dustmen," are very smart; Brown and Robinson are always sure of a flattering reception here; and the Mackweys score a success with their singing; the Mascotte Trio are seen to advantage in a clever and graceful gymnastic display; Johnny Dwyer, comedian, goes well; and Miss Norah Emerald and Miss Flo Burris also add to the enjoyment. The American Bioscope includes a capital film "Off for the Holidays."

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter Lapworth.—Johnny Holland and company, who star here, are giving with the greatest success their absurdity My Friend the Boots. Bertha Winder, the remarkably clever all-round dancer, is at the other end, and is having a splendid reception. Mdlle. Martha gives a graceful gymnastic display; Geo. Hyam, comedian, is very good; the Sisters Adelaide, duettists and dancers, are popular; the Mozandos give a capital show, the male member being a clever barrel jumper and tumbler; Andy Fagan, comedian and dancer, is also entertaining; Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope is retained over another week, showing "Off for the Holidays" and other entertaining pictures.

LEIGH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Dewhurst; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Dewhurst.—Messrs Gordyn and Gelling's company, in The Temptress, is paying a return visit here this week. As the Temptress Miss Violet Crauford is seen to great advantage, and combines grace with fiendish malignancy; Mr Percy Ballard as Lucas Denbeigh, the mesmerist, acquits himself admirably; and the acting of Mr Henry W. Hatchman as Pedro Gonzales, the wronged husband, is marked by fine distinction. Miss Ada M. Ryder as Madge Denbeigh exerts herself to the utmost in the exposition of a trying rôle. Mr George Daiper as Philip Melford, the hero, puts plenty of energy into his heroic speeches. Miss Vashti Wynne, the heroine, delivers her lines with much tenderness. Mr Herbert Williams creates much amusement as Bob Tanner, and much assistance is rendered by Mr Allen Charles as Francis Fitz-Fluke, Mr John Chippendale as Gregory, and Miss Mattie Everett as Rhoda Brown are all that can be desired. Mr Arthur Sheldon as the banker, Sir Oswald Fordyce, is commendable, and Mr Will Chanter makes a fine detective. The remaining parts are also well filled.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr T. H. Dunlop.—The company here includes Mr T. W. Barrett, comedian, who fully deserves the cordial reception accorded him; Les Bollingers, in their novel act, "The Rag Painters of Paris," are very good and smart; Mr W. Richardson, stump orator, an old favourite, is as amusing as ever; Arthur M'Nab, tenor vocalist, has a sweet voice; and Cinizelli, in an eccentric acrobatic act, is clever and amusing. Fred Collins, comedian; Miss Curtis, serio; Holger, novelty paper tearer; and the Hippodrome pictures make up a good programme. There is also a local sentimental singing contest.

CIRCUS.—Buffalo Bill's Wild West visited this town on Monday, and was well patronised.

LINCOLN.

ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr Frank King.—Miss Fortescue, after an absence of several years, reappears to repeat all her old triumphs locally. In Moths, on Monday, Miss Fortescue as Fuchsia Leach was completely successful, impersonating the character charmingly. Excellent support was forthcoming from Miss Gladys Jesson as Vere, Miss Madeleine Meredith as Lady Dolly, Miss Miriam Lewes as Duchesse De Sonnaz, and Miss Eugenie Vernie as Princess Nadine. An admirable portrayal of Zouroff was given by Mr Conway Wingfield; Mr Dalziel Heron excellently played Lord Jura; and Mr Cecil Newton was a decidedly good Raphael De Corrèze. On Tuesday The School for Scandal and on Wednesday She Stoops to Conquer attracted large houses.

PALACE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr Sydney Arthur; Assistant Manager, Mr Brandon Blake.—F. V. St. Clair, virile and versatile as ever, is singing up-to-date political and topical songs with any amount of dash and vim. The Villions, smart cyclists, are contributing a sensationally clever turn, and well-accepted items are also given by such old and new favourites as Lily Lassab, the Bransbys, Kittie Wager, Morny Cash, Charles F. Best, Fred Poplar, and Allis and Cassati.

LICHFIELD.

ST. JAMES'S HALL.—On Monday night Mr Chevalier appeared here and drew an excellent house. His programme included several of his new impersonations and not a few of his old favourites. His concert party was attractive, the accompanist, as usual, being that clever pianist Mr West.

LIVERPOOL.

ROYAL COURT THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE — Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr Arthur Lawrence.—A cordial welcome has this week been given to Miss Lena Ashwell, who is not unknown in the city on the Mersey, her present visit possessing special interest by reason of the fact that she has undertaken the responsibilities of managership. The work she presented is an adaptation from the French, La Montansier, termed Marguerite. Although the play cannot claim any particular strength, Miss Ashwell with her emotional talent infused into it immense interest, and won for herself hearty recognition. In the hands of an actress of less power the part of the heroine would have been a tame thing indeed. She was well supported by a capable company. Mr Frank Mills as the actor, Neuville, presented a noble and sincere lover, and shared the honours of the evening. Other principals included Mr Charles Groves, Mr Harry Halley, Mr G. Drayton, Mr Thomas Holding, Miss Helen Macbeth, Miss Beryl Mercer, and Miss Marie Hudspeth. The costumes and setting were admirable.

SHAKESPEARE THEATRE, LIMITED —Managing-Director, Mr J. M. Hardie; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Gaffney.—The Duke of Killicrankie made his initial appearance here this week, and received a warm greeting. The company is that of Messrs Charles Frohman and Arthur Chudleigh. Mr Langhorne Burton made a capital Duke; Mr Arthur Grenville was exceedingly funny as the fortune-hunting M.P.; Miss Doris Templeton gave a delightful portraiture of Lady Addison; and Miss Aida Jenoure's Mrs Mulholland was highly diverting. Miss Ellen Standing was the Countess of Pangbourne; and the other members of the cast worthily filled their small but necessary parts with credit. For Value Received was the curtain-raiser.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE. — Lessee and General Manager, Mr J. H. French —This old-established theatre, on the stage of which many old time comedians have often strutted, reopened its doors on Monday under the management of Mr John H. French, who recently gave up the Irving Theatre at Seacombe. The Prince of Wales's has had many viscissitudes, and for some considerable time has been closed. A few weeks ago the place was put up for auction, and withdrawn at £10,000, since which time nothing was known of its future until the announcement was made that Mr French had resolved to try his luck. The piece selected for the opening of what one can only wish may prove a successful season, was a three-act farce entitled Why William Lied. The author, Mr Philip Clifford, was a capital stockbroker, Mr Theo Jones, the colonel, other parts being taken by Mr G. Percy, Mr E Coutts, and Mr L. P. Hamer. Miss Alice Hunter created great amusement as the confused widow, Miss Lilian Piercy impersonated a Chicago heiress, Miss Mansfield was the Colonel's wife, and Miss Kathleen Clifford the heroine.

ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr M. Montgomery; Licensee, Mr J. G. Howard; Acting-Manager, Mr M. Montgomery, jun. — Charles Frohman's company is here this week with the ever-attractive play, Sherlock Holmes, with the result that large audiences have attended the popular north-end theatre and followed with interest the skilful working of the celebrated detective. Mr H. A Saintsbury held the title-rôle, which he has played 700 times, and certainly gave a masterly rendering for which he won well-deserved applause. He received large support from the gifted actress, Miss Vera Longden, who presented a graceful Alice Faulkner, whose strange case had to be investigated; Mr W. F. Stirling was a capital Professor Moriarity; and Mr Leslie Carter proved a good James Larrabee. The minor characters were in the hands of capable artists.

LYRIC THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr Fred Coles.—Claud Ginnett's sketch Rejected Remounts tops the bill here. Lily Marney delights the audience with her songs; the Great Vincent does some daring somersaults from the top of piled-up tables; Benson and Geoffreys, in their sketch A Bit of Bacon, are laughable; Paul Vandy is a clever juggler; Haig and Novel are smart and amusing dancers and acrobats; Thomas E. Finglas scores with coon songs; and Ada Devine is a singer of no mean merit.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr H. Fineberg; Acting-Manager, Mr M. Simmons.—A strong attraction is here this week, and on every evening crowded audiences have been the rule. The Indian actress, Go-Won-Go Mohawk, has paid many previous visits to Liverpool, and, especially at the Star, has always been received with enthusiasm, but this week Wep-Ton-No-Mah, The Indian Mail Carrier, which is from her pen, has been particularly well patronised, and has aroused much interest. The cast is a good one, and among the lady's principal supporters are Mr C. W. Charles, a dignified Colonel Stockton; Miss Minnie Goepel, Mr George Thorne, a villainous desperado; Miss Jessie Hart, and Mr Theo. Alker. Although the work is replete with daring episodes, a great deal of humour and songs and dances are introduced. The scenic effects are striking and exceedingly picturesque, and are illustrative of actual views in the Far West of America.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs Carson and Granville; Manager, Mr Fred Granville.—The powerful work entitled The Master Criminal is being given here this week for the first time in Liverpool, the company responsible being that of Mr Stanley Hope. The principal rôle of Telford Lestage, the master mind in a villainous combine, was undertaken by Mr Robert Forsyth with dramatic effect; while his partner in crime, Cecile, alias Lady Travennes, found an admirable exponent in Miss Nellie Thearle. Credit is due to Mr Herbert Skardon and Miss Enid Edoni for their well-rendered characters of Philip Manners and his wife, a persecuted couple; and also to Messrs Julius Wright and Stanley Hope as Ben Beauday, a detective, and Gentleman Jim respectively. The clever child actress, Miss Marjorie Lawrence, displayed much ability for her years, and the comic element was in the good hands of Mr Tod Squires and Miss Bella Bashall. The staging was effective.

EMPIRE THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr H. E. Moss; Acting-Manager, Mr T. A. Cook.—A capital evening's enjoyment is provided here, the programme being comprehensive and diversified. At the top we have Gus Elen, a Liverpool favourite, whose humorous coster representations are a source of keen delight. During the week he has been in good form and received much applause. Staley's Novelty Transformation company, introducing Cass, Andrew, and Miss Ada, provided a good turn. Their musical act, representative of a smithy, in which melodious sounds are produced in various ways with a quick change to a drawing-room, with its violin music and dancing, received the appreciative attention of pleased auditors. Stewart and Morgan render a number of songs illustrative of "Leaving Ireland," and show themselves to be vocalists of a high order. Big Ben Brown and Little George Le Clerq, black-faced comedians, create laughter in plenty, not only by their strange contrast in size, but by their antics in A Dark Night Before Us. Mr and Mrs Gene Hughes are a source of much merriment with their sketch, A Matrimonial Substitute. Carrie Lawrie's juveniles give a diverting kindergarten show; the Griffiths Brothers are seen in a smart burlesque entertainment; and others in the programme are "Silent" Tait, eccentric wizard; Stelling and Revell; the Kellinos with their speciality Venetia; Stave, the Indian comedy artiste; and James Grant and Tatten Hall, comedians.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—Crowded houses twice a night are the rule here, and this week especially has the patronage been great. The principal attraction is the popular Arthur Roberts, who brings his own company, with the musical sketch Where's the Count? The well known comedian received a hearty welcome, and his diverting playlet aroused much amusement. Another important engagement is that of Captain Woodward's performing seals and sea lions, which, although having been seen here many times, are as great an attraction as ever. Another set of performing animals is brought by De Gracia, who introduces a number of well-trained elephants. Miss Amy Augarde, an accomplished and graceful vocalist, proved herself a favourite with her sweet songs; the Four Sisters Merkel go through a neat gymnastic pot-pourri; a good turn is presented by Martina and Son, American song illustrators; Carola's miniature circus of trained ponies and dogs is watched with interest; and others in the bill are Daisy Martell, J. W. Hall, Will Johnson, and the Lombarts.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES. — Manager, Mr M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr F. O'Toole.—Achilles, "the premier British athlete," is here this week, and gives an exhibition of his great strength. The Three Martinettes are able comedians, whose actions are followed by much laughter; their act The Trainer and the Two Tramps; or, The Troubles of an Elephant, is as funny as it can possibly be. Included in the lengthy programme are Philip Percival, late of Moore and Burgess Minstrels, baritone and actor-vocalist; the Evremonds, comedy duettists; Miss May Fallowfield, coon songstress; the Two Dominos; George Wyres, comedian; Miss Issa Steel, ballad vocalist; Will Saunders; and Miss Lillie Le Breton.

NEW PARTHENON.—Proprietor, Mr Edwin Smith. This neat little place continues to enjoy public approval and each week popular programmes are provided. At present we have the Three Missouris, with their screamingly funny sketch, Captain Kettle and His Mates. The well-known acrobats have a deservedly good reception. Rose Tilley, the favourite burlesque actress, renders a number of acceptable songs; James Shingleton, the singing collier, earns loud applause for his efforts; and the remainder of the bill is filled by Edie Maddison, comedienne and dancer; Harry Carman; and Alf Stelling, actor-vocalist.

PADDINGTON PALACE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr J. Kiernan.—The company here this week is a strong one, and among the attractions are a number of photographic snap-shots of persons in the street, which are thrown on a screen. Anyone present detecting his or her picture is given five shillings. The idea has aroused some considerable interest. Agnes and Arthur Lynch present some neat sketches and sings stirring songs; George and Edwards are acceptable and able comedians; Pollard and Grey submit a racy and laughable burlesque; and others are Charles Bradford, Tronini, a man of mystery; and Harry Conder.

WESTMINSTER.—Proprietor, Mr M. Montgomery. —Principal here this week is the mystifying performance of Aga, the suspended flying maiden; Baroni and Kemp are a capital turn, introducing exceedingly quick change in their lively speciality, "Fun on Furlough;" Pulo, as a boy whistler, is wonderfully expert; the Sisters Terry are a couple of popular duettists and mimics; and others on the bill are Bandoni, Alice Maple, Carl Osmond, Lily Martell, Frank Whitely, and Guy Rider.

PARK PALACE.—Director, Mr James Kiernan.—The first appearance in Liverpool of Auto Atlas, a strong man, has been the great attraction here. Included in his feats is the lifting by means of his teeth of a motor car containing three people. The Sivado Troupe of trick acrobatic cyclists is a clever combination, and prettily perform some astounding movements. The Brooklands are a couple of dainty comediennes and dancers; the Esdale Bros. provide a refined entertainment; and others are Georgie Beaufort, vocalist and dancer, and George Mack, comedian.

LLANELLY.

ROYALTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr John Tully.—Hardie and Von Leer's company in Two Little Vagabonds is playing here this week to delighted audiences. As Dick and Wally Miss May Hart and Miss Dorothy Marsdin are exceptionally clever and charming; as George Thornton Mr J. W. Henson gives a capital representation; Mr Basil Hillier as John Scarth is very good; Mr W. Forster as Captain Darville, and Mr Alfred Russell as Bill Mullins are both most capable; the parts of Dido Bunce and the Cough Drop are well taken by Messrs Frank Gordon and Fred Archer; as Barbara Scarth Miss Nell Oliver does exceedingly well; Miss Laura Hansen is very good as Marion Thornton; and Miss Marie Pritchard as Biddy Mullins does well. The play is excellently staged.

LONDONDERRY.

OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr W. Payne Seddon.—Whitewashing Julia was played here on three nights at the beginning of the week. Mr H. Asheton Tonge was very good as William Stillingfleet, and Mr Willox Cadogan as Edwin Pinkney was capital. Samways was cleverly portrayed by Mr Archibald M'Lean, Miss Kate Bishop was excellent as Lady Pinkney, and Miss Ruth Maitland as Julia Wren gave a praiseworthy rendering of the part. Miss Marie Lohr was a delightful Trixie Blenkinsop, and Miss Kate Osborne was an admirable Mrs Benbow.

LONGTON.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr H. S. Howard. —In A Chinese Idyl the management has secured a bright attraction. To Messrs Dawson Dewick as Tang-a-Lang and Fred Dawson as the Viceroy must be accorded premier positions for their grotesque and mirth-provoking impersonations. Mr J. G. Maine as Ching-Foo presents a clever character sketch; Mr F. H. Dundas as Lieutenant West sings his "ditties" very ably; Miss Mabel Mainwaring as Pitti-Pat has a sweet voice, and uses it with distinction; as Belle Brighton Miss Bessie Frank gives a vivacious representation; and Miss Emmie Milsted as Princess Stephanie pleases the house with her sprightliness and dancing. The chorus is a strong one, and the Henrique Troupe of acrobats do well.

LOWESTOFT.

MARINA.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Ernest A. Smith.—Mr Walter Melville's company is here in the drama A Disgrace to Her Sex. The piece is well dressed and staged, the scenery being exceptionally good. Previous to the rising of the curtain some very interesting views are shown by means of the Biograph.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr Geo. Gilbert; Manager, Mr Pearce Butler.—The bill this week includes Luis Hardt, the boy Samson; Fred Gilbert, Little Clipp, Brothers Cooke, Helene and Emilon, Herbert Le Martine, and the Five Olracs, acrobats.

LUTON.

GRAND.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr E. Graham Falcon; Assistant-Manager, Mr Louis J. Beard.—Mr John A. Walker's company, in Why Smith Left Home, occupied the boards here for the first three nights this week. Mr Horace Lingard well sustains the part of John Smith. Mr Joseph Hudson's Major Duncombe is a capital performance, and Mr Robt. Grey scores as Count Von Guggenheim. Mr Herbert Dickeson is to be commended for his portrayal of the part of General Billet-doux. Mr Henry Grey is a diverting Robert Walton, and Mr Harry Panter is well placed as James. Miss Hilda Stericker ably acts the part of Mrs John Smith. Miss Marie Vere distinguishes herself as Julia, and Miss Mary Bates is responsible for the part of Mrs

Billetdoux. Miss Rue Daryll is a successful Rose Walton, and Miss Ethel Russell is a pleasing Miss Smith. Miss Constance Stephens deserves well-merited praise as Lavinia. Mr Herbert Hollister's company appeared in The Lights o' London on Thursday and Friday.

MACCLESFIELD.

ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr W. K. Gatley.—The Silver Cross is being presented here by Messrs Marston and Buckstone's company. Mr Syd Bazley as Tomkyns Quinton gives a humorous portrayal. Mr Bazley, who is an old Macclesfield favourite, is well placed, and his eccentricities are the life and soul of the piece. Mr Cliff Allen as Arthur Merton is particularly effective. Mr Frederick A. Marston as Ben Adams deserves special mention. Mr Harry Glenney as the scheming Philip Frewin is very good. Miss Maud Western as Ida Adams wins sympathy by some pathetic acting. Miss Poppy Danby as Sally Beadles is both amusing and clever. Laura Beechcroft is admirably sustained by Miss Cissy Glenny. The Sisters Vall win favour with some good duets and dances. Mr Buckstone does well as the Rev. Nicholas Frewin.

MANCHESTER.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr Edmondstone Shirra.—The Royal Carl Rosa opera company have occupied the stage here this week in a popular répertoire, beginning on Monday wioh Tannhauser, which drew, as usual, a crowded and appreciative house. A very fine rendering of the title-part was given by Mr E. C. Hedmondt, whose dramatic style is well suited to the extraordinary demands of the music; and Madame Sobrino's Elizabeth left nothing to be desired in point of range and expression. Madame Augusta Renard gave a telling interpretation of Venus; Mr Lewis James's Wolfram, Mr Edward Davies's Walther, and Mr Arthur Winckworth's Landgrave were each conspicuously well delivered; and the chorus and orchestra, exceedingly well handled by Mr Eugene Goossens, contributed a large share towards the total success. Tuesday's programme was Don Giovanni, an opera which has not been played in Manchester for some time, and in this three prima donnas—namely, Miss Lizzie Burgess, Madame Una Bruckshaw, and Madame Sobrino—were heard to excellent effect. Herr Charles Victor figuring to advantage as Don Giovanni The remaining pieces in the week's programme were The Bohemian Girl, Lohengrin, Cavalleria Rusticana and Pagliacci, Carmen, and Faust. Mr Walter Van Noorden shares with Mr Eugene Goossens the responsibilities of conductorship.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr George Lee.—Messrs Sylvanus Dauncey and M. V. Leveaux's company is once more at this theatre in Henry Arthur Jones's clever and interesting comedy Joseph Entangled. A capital performance was given on Monday, Mr H. B. Warner as Sir Joseph and Miss Mona K. Oram as Lady Verona playing very well up to the niceties of the situation, and adequate assistance being rendered by the remainder of the cast, of whom Mr Lawrence Grant as Jermyn Pyecroft, Mr Cecil Brooking as the Professor, Mr Horace Lane as Harry Tavender, Miss Shelley Calton as Mrs Tavender, and Miss Claire Cavendish as Mrs Knapman, may be singled out for special praise. A pleasing comedietta, Papa's Wife, precedes.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr W. H. Broadhead; Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—A powerful attraction is here this week in the shape of Miss Madge Girdlestone and her company in a spectacular and sensational drama, entitled The City of Millions. The play contains a good story, which is cleverly worked out, and the whole of the cast are equal to a really excellent rendering. Miss Madge Girdlestone is especially successful as Rosa De Valois, a woman of the world, and other notable successes are Mr Vernon Sansbury, Mr Martin Sabine, Miss Agnes Verity, Mr Sam Wilkinson, Mr Graham Herington, Mr Clairmont Gaskell, and Miss Gladys Vernon. The play is excellently staged.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Oscar Barrett: Acting-Manager, Mr H. M. Thorburn.—A capital attraction is here in the shape of The New Barmaid, one of the most popular of musical comedies. The company is under the direction of Mr Alexander Loftus, and includes such well-known performers as Mr Joseph B. Montague in his original part of Bertie White and Mr Harrison Brockbank in his original part of Captain Lovebury. These are admirably supported by Mr Alexander Loftus as William White, Mr Albert Weston as Mons. Bonsor, and Mr Herbert Cottesmore as Colonel Claymore; while Miss Gwadys Elvey, Miss Hilda Blanche, Miss Violet Osmond, and Miss Jean Gilmour are all successful in prominent parts. The piece is enlivened by numerous good songs and effective specialities.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—Good business is being done here this week with an excellent and attractive programme. The Paulastos, eccentrics, head the bill, and Will Hebden, comedian, is also particularly prominent. Other enjoyable turns are Victor Newman, a clever actor and mimic; Howard and Collinson, in a comic sketch; Tate and Tate, comedy acrobats; George Foster, comedian; Happy Attwood, the human oddity—a novelty in comic singing and mimicry; Forrest and King, in a speciality act; and the Wynford Brothers, barrel jumpers. The Metropole pictures are included as usual.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—Mr John Leopold's company, embracing the Original Leopolds, are here this week in their well-known farcical attraction, Frivolity. The piece is right up to date, and goes with a fine swing, Mr John Gerant figuring prominently among many who render valuable assistance to the Leopold Troupe.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Richard Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Berry.—Mrs Lewis Waller produced here on Monday a new play, entitled Vilma, a notice of which appears in another column.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—Rosemont and Claris's Philadelphian Vaudeville Company of American coloured artistes top the bill here this week, and contribute coon songs, cake walks, and sand dances in a pleasing and successful manner. Another capital item is Fred Southern and company in a highly amusing sketch entitled His Lordship's Birthday. The Sisters Andersen give a graceful and finished display of foot balancing; Edie Grey and Coons sing remarkably well; George Prince, the "crazy" comedian, makes a decided hit; and exceedingly clever are the Babusians, in their head-balancing feats. Smart patter and business is provided by Cribb and Cribb; Marie Winsome is a popular male impersonator; and Harry Zetter does some first-rate grotesque dancing. Other good turns are Winnie Scott, comedienne; Private Clark, the soldier vocalist; and the Hippodrome pictures.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—Warden Reed and Miss Glenny are seen to advantage here this week in an amusing farcical comedy entitled Married or Photographed. Bliss and Bliss create much laughter with their smart patter, and the comedy act of Avon and Crest is most diverting. Very clever items are provided by the Leotards, who do some surprising things in hat-throwing and balancing, and the Lulane Darrels, a troupe of gymnasts, whose ring performance is somewhat unique. Good turns are also those of Bennett and Martell, excellent knockabouts, with droll patter; Arthur Gilbert, who sings three songs in a cheerful style; T. W. Johnson, comedian and sand dancer; and the Toree Novells, society acrobats and tumblers. Kone and Kolly, comedians, who figure on the programme, did not appear on Monday night. Some enjoyable animated pictures complete.

TIVOLI.—Managing Director, Mr Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr Arthur B. Wilkes.—An excellent programme is provided here this week, including that lively and popular comedienne, Lily Burnand, and Jake Friedman, the well-known Anglo-German comedian, both meeting with a hearty reception. Well received also is Maude Venn, a charming and clever comedienne, who makes a great hit with "The house where the shutters are green," which is delightfully rendered. Mark Anthony is an amusing story-teller, vocalist, and mimic. Dan Conroy is a first-rate comedian with good songs, and other pleasing turns are A. C. Reveil, a smart up-to-date "electric" juggler; the Four Magnets, vocalists and acrobatic dancers; Lil Gorman, comedienne; and Geo. Globe, comedian.

GRAND.—Lessees, Messrs Thomas Barrasford and Will Sley; Manager, Mr H. C. Arnold, jun.—The programme here is good all round this week. Grant and Grant, American speciality artistes, charmingly attired, give a pleasing turn, their singing and dancing being excellent. Considerable amusement is caused by Fred Sinclair and Gracie Whiteford, in their comedy-sketch, Getting Even, and George W. Leslie and company are successful in a sketch entitled Chums Madge Grey, a talented dialect comedienne, makes a great hit, and gains tremendous applause; Kate Gourlay is responsible for a neat sand-dance; Keith and Merson are good acrobatic vocal comedians; Jenny Hartley, a juvenile soubrette, scores with some capital mimicry; Charles Somers, comedian, is quietly effective; and Baker Belphor, baritone, has a good voice.

PALACE.—Manager and Secretary, Mr P. Watson; Assistant-Manager, Mr J. H. Stringer.—George Lashwood figures at the head of the bill here this week, and scores his usual success with a series of characteristic songs. Another attractive item is the appearance of Joe Elvin and his company (after a fortnight in Over the Sticks) in a sketch entitled The Wrong House, a piece in which this popular comedian finds congenial exercise for his humour. Good turns are given also by Charles Cardow, a clever comedian; Ian Colquhoun, an effective baritone vocalist; Lotto, Lilo, and Otto, the well-known trick cyclists; Ada Cerito, a pleasing comedienne; Wilson Hallett, a smart whistler and child mimic; Alfred Bray, coster comedian; and Frances Earle, comedienne and dancer. The orchestra contribute a Wagnerian selection, and the programme is completed by a entertaining series of Palace pictures.

ARDWICK EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Will Collins.—A most delightful turn here this week is Miss Ray Wallace, the well-known voice mimic of music hall and other stars, who is accorded much deserved applause. A novel performance is given by the Grais' Baboon Prodigies, one of which loops the loop on a bicycle. Herr Fritz presents, with considerable success, some marvellous illusions; and the Tourbillon Troupe are first-rate cyclists whose tricks are decidedly daring. Some exceptionally good international and speciality dancing is done by the Northern Troupe; and a pleasing musical turn is provided by Zanfretta and Naplo, Continental grotesques, assisted by Mdlle. Vilbert. The British Quartet, speciality vocalists, are excellent glee singers; Robertus and Wilfredo and a clever dog are expert ball manipulators. Other good and enjoyable items are Marie Weston, an attractive vocalist, banjoist, and step-dancer; Bijou Russell, a capital sand-dancer; and the Four Olympian Stars, burlesque vocalists and dancers.

LESSER FREE TRADE HALL.—Mr and Mrs Victor André, the European Mahatmas, opened here on Monday for a short season. A first-rate programme is provided, Mr André himself contributing largely to its success. He appears in a highly amusing ventriloquial sketch, and presents with surprising rapidity a series of bewildering conjuring tricks, including manipulations and pure sleight of hand; and subsequently introduces a cleverly arranged illusion. Mrs André's "Dream Visions" are perhaps the chief attraction, being a remarkable demonstration of a wonderful gift, which is stated to be quite natural, and her thought-reading performance is also very interesting. Another good item is that of Yoko and Hama, clever exponents of Japanese magic; and the handcuff and other feats of Mr Victor André, jun., are smartly done. A humorous medley is rendered in fine style by Mr and Mrs Joe Hodgson, and subsequently Mr Hodgson appears with decided success as a female impersonator and as a child imitator. Enjoyable turns by Miss Grace Olivia, vocalist; Miss Edith May Ayrton, violin soloist; and a pleasing selection by the orchestra complete the entertainment.

MARGATE.

GRAND THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr C. F. Bawtree.—Lovers of opera have had ample opportunity of indulging their tastes by the presence here this week of the Moody-Manners Opera Company. On Monday Wagner's Tannhäuser was played, the following night Il Trovatore was the attraction, and on Wednesday the programme was again changed for Pagliacci, followed by the attractive opera Cavalleria Rusticana. For Thursday Lohengrin was billed, succeeded on Friday night by Mignon.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr E. Macknight; Business-Manager, Mr Charles E. Hardy.—Mr John Tully's company has been visiting here this week with the drama Uncle Tom's Cabin. The piece has been well produced and received with the favour and cordiality which have generally been accorded it in Margate.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr Will Smithson.—The Eternal City, presented by Mr Ben Greet's Company, under the direction of Mr J. Bannister Howard, opened on Monday to a full house. Mr Henry Deas plays David Rossi with much power and emotional ability; Mr D. Lewin Mannering was remarkably cool and convincing in his impersonation of Baron Bonelli; Pope Pius XI. was impressively played by Mr Leonard Grey; and Mr P. L. Julian presented a good study of Bruno Rocco. The Donna Roma of Miss Edith Laing was a capable performance.

MEXBOROUGH.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. H. Melton.—Mr Gus C. Livesey's company is presenting The Crimson Club here this week. Mr Gus C. Livesey gives a fine rendering of Richard Fenton; Mr Lionel Thompson presents a striking picture of villainy as Philip Garside; Mr Herbert Belmore plays creditably as Herbert Selby, as does Mr H. C. Gilpin as Silas Craddock; as Reg. Adolphus Garside Mr Percy Shaw displays rare humour and much ability as a siffleuse; Miss Bertha Cousins fills the rôle of Julia Marsden in good style; Miss Elsie Mesnerd invests the part of Muriel Lockwood with grace and charm; and Miss Lily Day is a capital Soponsiba, and contributes an excellent song and dance.

MORECAMBE.

ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Lessee, Lieut Julian Malvern; General Manager, Mr Chas. M. Julian.—During the last three nights last week excellent business attended the visit of Mr Norman Macowan with Monsieur Beaucaire. An admirable representation of this successful costume play was given, and especially charming was the Lady Mary Carlisle of Miss Violet Sterne, an actress of ability and promise. This week Mr E. Oswald Brooks's No. 1 company has been appearing in Charles Windermere's The New Housemaid, a well-constructed and highly diverting farce, in which Mr Ralph Roberts takes the fullest advantage of the many opportunities afforded by his assumption of the attire and manners of a slavey.

MIDDLESBROUGH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Directors, Messrs George and Charles Imeson.—Mr F. R. Benson and his Shakespearian company are fulfilling a week's engagement here. On Monday night Othello was presented. Mr Benson in the title-rôle was much admired. He played the part with his usual careful attention to details. Mrs Benson made an excellent impression as Desdemona; Mr Keightley appeared as Cassio; and Mr Arthur Whitby gave a clever reading of Iago. Miss Gertrude Scott was charming as Emilia, and as Bianca Miss Steddall submitted an effective representation. On Tuesday Richard II. was played, on Wednesday Romeo and Juliet, Thursday As You Like It, and Friday The Rivals was billed.

OPERA HOUSE.—Licensee, Mr T. Hopcutt.—Mr George Edwardes's principal company in The Toreador is here. Mr Lionel Victor as Sammy Gigg keeps the house in continuous roars of laughter, and Mr W. H. Pavell makes a decided hit as Pettifer, while Mr T. W. Volt as Sir Archibald Slackett is a most amusing Duke. Miss Nellie Bouverie as Mrs Walter Hoppings is deserving of much praise, and Miss Alice Oppitz is a clever Donna Teresa, Miss Daisy Stratton as Susan scores a decided success. Dora Selby is in the capable hands of Miss Dasie Wallace.

EMPIRE.—Managing Director, Mr John Brill; Manager, Mr J. W. Thornborrow.—The Seven Savonas Troupe, in their musical turn, and the Cycling Elliotts are here for another week, and still maintain their popularity; Will H. Fox, a skilful burlesque pianist, is a great favourite; and Charles Austin is a capital comedian; Lady Mansell's juveniles in their speciality act give a clever and refined performance; equally pleasing is the smart acrobatic show of the talented Trapnell Family; and Albert Christian, a singer of much talent, renders baritone songs in effective style; Ted Cowan has some good songs, and Miss Katie Cohen's vocal contribution pleases everyone.

OXFORD.—Lessee, Mr Wm. Peacock; Manager, Mr William Ainsworth.—The Achmed Ibrahim Troupe of acrobats are the principal turn here; the Countees also are harmonious and humorous singers; Ward and Adams are acrobats of much talent; and Prince Fee-Lung's conjuring and juggling are very clever; Fatmah Diard renders some classical songs effectively; and the Royal Victorian trio of dancers are popular; Tom Hayes is a talented mimic; Miss Ruby Bijou is a pretty dancer. The Bio pictures complete the programme.

MOTHERWELL.

NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Resident Manager, Mr W. Gillespy.—Mr Douglas Bruce's company is here in the drama entitled In a Woman's Grip. Mr Herbert Pearson is all that could be desired as the hero, Frank Haydon, and as Maurice Stanton Mr Bernard Copping is very good. Mr John H. Firman acts well as Ephraim Lambert, and Mr James W. Manning scores as Ralph Sharkey. Mr Frank Litchfield deserves praise for his portrayal of Dick Langley, and Mr Robert Purdie gives a grand display as the Mad Doctor. Miss Daisy Meynard as Molly Smithers and Mr Frank Ayrton as Joe Butters help to keep up the comic element of the play. Miss Marguerite Trevosper gives a pleasing representation of Lillian Fairley, and Little Dot Whitmore is lively and graceful as Little Mary. In the title-rôle Miss Beatrice May secures sincere and general admiration by her acting as Mary Langley, Convict 43, and the beautiful Princess Zaroff.

NELSON.

NEW GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs T. Greenwood Croft; Acting-Manager, Mr George E. Mudd.—On Monday the Osmond Tearle Shakespearian company had the usual lusty reception on its ever-welcome appearance in Nelson. A capital programme includes As You Like It, The School for Scandal, Romeo and Juliet, She Stoops to Conquer, Julius Cæsar, Merchant of Venice (matinée), and Lady of Lyons. Mr Alexander Marsh received the well-merited plaudits of thronged houses for his vigorous and well-studied impersonations of Orlando, Sir Peter Teazle, Romeo, Young Marlow, Brutus, Shylock, and Claude Melnotte. Miss Carrie Baillie, an old favourite here, won the hearts of all by her beautiful and unassuming style as Rosalind, Lady Teazle, Juliet, Miss Hardcastle, Lucius, Portia, and Pauline. Mr William Lowe, Mr John Burton, Mr R. S. Innes, Mr George Tearle, Mr Malcom Tearle, Miss Fannie Chamberlain, and Miss K. Magee go far in bringing the performances to successful issues. All the plays are well mounted and superbly dressed.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.

TYNE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr Fred C. Sutcliffe.—An interesting engagement is being fulfilled here by Mr H. B. Irving and Miss Irene Vanbrugh, who are appearing in Letty, and the performance of Mr Pinero's latest play has been followed with rapt attention. As Letty Shell, the lady clerk with ambitions, Miss Vanbrugh has material worthy of her high attainments, and her characterisation is at all times remarkable for its truth and accuracy. Nevill Letchmere scarcely wins our sympathies, and the rôle is handled with considerable effect by Mr H. B. Irving, who succeeds admirably in bringing out the finer traits of the man's nature. Mr Scott Craven as the wealthy "bounder," Bernard Mandeville, submits a capital piece of acting, and those two worthies, Neale and Ordish, have capable exponents in Mr Charles Troode and Mr Tom Heslewood respectively. Mr Leslie Victor does well as the enthusiastic photographer, Richard Perry. Miss Eleanor Souray hits off very cleverly the matter-of-fact disposition of Hilda Gunning, and her more earnest-minded colleague, Marion Allardyce, is skilfully enacted by Miss Beatrice Forbes-Robertson.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr F. Teale Lingham.—Here we are introduced to Madame Sherry, which musical play, attractively staged and costumed, is being successfully performed by Mr George Dance's company. Mr J. Robert Hale as Andrew M'Sherry acts with a lively humour, while as a dancer he excels. Miss Mabel Sealby's ability is amply demonstrated in the course of her bright performance as Barbara. It should be mentioned that Miss Sealby was called upon to play the part at short notice on Monday. Catarina has a spirited representative in Miss Georgina Delmar, who sings capitally. Much business of a mirth-provoking nature is introduced by Mr Fred Walton as Joseph and Mr Albert Bruno as Fritz, while Miss Nellie Dade creates laughter as Maud. Mr F. W. Ford as Colonel M'Sherry makes the most of the part. Favourable mention must also be made of Messrs Arthur Stroud, Ivan Berlyn, Frank Lennard, Misses Kathleen Grey, Ada Binning, and Ethel Darsley. The orchestra is directed by Mr Ernest Vousden.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr T. W. Rowe.—Mr Walter Melville's company is paying a return visit with the successful drama Her Second Time on Earth. Miss Hilda Beverley, who repeats her able impersonation of Dora Grey, has seldom been seen to better advantage. Prominent parts are well sustained by Messrs C. A. Melton, Chas. Franmore, Chas. Girdlestone, Wilton J. Selby, St. John Stuart, Percy Horton, and F. Ingram; Misses Elaine, Polly Marsh, Alice Wellmore, K. Garrett, and Nana Flensburg.

NEW EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Director, Mr Richard Thornton; General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr E. Leslie Conroy.—A prime attraction here is the appearance of Mark Sheridan, who is in great form, and his reception has been of the heartiest. R. A. Roberts again successfully presents his sketch Dick Turpin, wherein his quick changes are accomplished with marvellous celerity. A comedian with an excellent voice and style is Bert Weston, who is furnished with capital material in the song "At the Play," in which he hits off very adroitly various typical personages to be found in an audience. Charles Prinz appears with no less than seventeen lions under his control, and Miss Marcella gives a fire dance in the midst of the troupe. The Parros Bros. are decidedly smart equilibrists, and the dexterous dancing of My Fancy is again a feature. The Tally-Ho Trio are primarily noticeable for their excellence as vocalists, and their comedy business proves enjoyable. Howard and St. Clair, American comedy artists, make a welcome reappearance, and the Smythson comedy company merrily rattles through an amusing sketch. The Bros. Obo earn favour as laughing duettists, and Edie King is a smart comedienne and dancer.

GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, the Newcastle and Gateshead Theatres, Limited; Managing Director, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr Ernest W. Bacon.—There is a particularly strong company here this week, headed by Sims and Sims, two expert musical comedians, who give a very smart turn. The Eugene Family submit an exceedingly smart gymnastic performance; Wee Mona, a clever child comedienne, is very smart in a couple of songs; Bessie Willow, a vocalist with a good voice, sings in first-class style; Harry Sheldon, in a couple of catchy songs, meets with a flattering reception; and other artists are Rowland Hill, comedian; King and Rose, in a sketch, entitled Brother for Brother; Hill and Cox, in a comedy act; and May and Belle, duettists and dancers.

OLYMPIA THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs Thornton and Bacon; General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr Nelson Barry.—Mr Fred Jarman's company is appearing here in In Dark Siberia. Mr Fred W. Mussett as the British officer, Captain Gordon, gives a spirited impersonation, and "heavy" business has a capital exponent in Mr Chas. Osborne as Major Waroff. Miss Helen M'Culloch as Princess Orloff submits a praiseworthy impersonation.

PAVILION THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr Thos. Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr W. H. Boardman.—The first visit to this city of Miss Minni Letta's Sporting Girls is proving a very great attraction, and the various competitions introduced evoke much interest and excitement. Miss Letta herself is a great favourite, and exhibits unusual powers as a lady pedestrian. Minnie Hunt and Rhys Thomas are prominent in a musical sketch entitled Her Birthday. They display marked abilities as vocalists. The Arthur Saxon Trio of strong men perform some marvellous feats; Brown and Nevarro, who make their first appearance in England, contribute several American songs; the musical entertainment provided by the Four Maisanos is original and amusing; De Biere's tricks are of a sensational nature; the Bros. Kragg do some sensational work on the trapeze; and others who appear are Lily Cole, vocalist; T. W. Royal, champion dancer; and Marriott Edgar, vocalist. The Pavilion pictures are still a popular item.

NORTHAMPTON.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr W. J. Andrews.—Messrs Addison Bright and Walter Maxwell's company is here this week in Quality Street. Mr George A. Brandram gives a finished impersonation of Valentine Brown, Miss Florence Jackson is most admirable in the part of Phœbe Throssell, Mr Arthur C. F. Lysons is quaintly amusing as Ensign Blades, Mr Herbert Chown as Lieutenant Spicer is good, Mr Dan Dyer as the Recruiting Sergeant supplies a fine bit of character acting, Miss Grace Edwin plays well as Susan Throssell, and Miss Gwynneth Galton is an amusing Patty.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr Robert Barton.—The beauty competition is proving a great attraction here. The decision will be given at the first house to-night. The first prize is £5 in cash. Constance Juno is a vocal comedienne with an excellent voice and good songs; Nancy Renshaw is a clever Negro comedienne and bone soloist; the Hulines are good vocal and instrumental comedians; the Du Gros Trio give their clever act with great success; Herbert Maden scores in his songs; Newham and Latimer make a big hit; and Harry Benet, comedian, and Little Uno also furnish good turns.

NORTH SHIELDS.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Arthur Jefferson; General Manager, Mr Horace Lee; Secretary, Mr Gordon Jefferson.—The boards here this week are occupied by Mr Robert Perris's company, with A Fight for Millions, which has had a hearty reception. The character of Tom Manley finds a capable exponent in Mr Robert Perris, and Mr J. Newton Cowling presents an admirable portrayal of Hudson Rivers. Mr W. S. Stevenson's depiction of Richard Dudley is satisfactory; Mr Larry Clements scores Willie Neverwork; Mr Fred Acton makes quite a hit as Solomon Moses; and Mr Nicholas Conway is well placed as Harold Hobbs. Miss Evelyn Robson is clever as Helen Dudley; Miss Ida Purcell plays the part of Pearl Rivers in finished style; Miss Fanny Williams makes a capital Mrs Hudson Rivers; and Miss Winnie Acton is pleasing as Little Madge.

BOROUGH THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Arthur Jefferson.—The bill-of-fare at this comfortable resort is headed by Burn's Scamps, who have come in for a hearty reception. The Walleys, expert jugglers, present a skilful performance, and Messrs Weston and May, in their comedy act "Married Life," afford great fun. Mr W. H. Morgan, descriptive vocalist, has made a hit; Mr Ernie Myers, comedian, is smart; Messrs Varley and Sinclair, operatic vocalists, score a decided success; and Mr Will Lytton, comedian; Messrs Hill, Barry, and Lang, in their comedy act; and Mr J. W. Benwell, comedian, are all well received.

NEW CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Wm. Mould.—The Sisters Phillips and Brothers Lorenzi, with The Cook's Birthday, are meeting with much favour here. Mr J. H. Malva, the popular ventriloquist, is clever, and Mr Percy Hannan, baritone and actor-vocalist, is a great favourite. The Brothers Anderson, the Danish midshipman acrobats, are smart, and Mr Teddy May, comedian; Messrs York, Mack, and York, comedians; Little Marie Katusha, comedienne and dancer, are also successful.

NORTHWICH.

CENTRAL THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs Golden; Manager, Mr Percy Webb.—A welcome visit has been paid this week by The Rojah of Ranjanpore, and the company which Mr Morton has engaged for the representation is an excellent all-round combination. The selected music is bright and tuneful, the dresses are in good taste, and the piece from beginning to end goes with great éclat. Mr Alvin Sawyer gives a humorous presentation of the part of Horatio Chicks. He finds an able second in Mr Tom Breen as Thistles; Mr F. E. Welch deserves favourable mention for his depiction of Ted Perkins; Mr Sidney Bryant acquits himself creditably as Mr Stubbs; Mr Arthur Reid puts in good work as Captain Hertage; and Mr Charles E. Linney displays artistic talent as Ernest Travers, also proving himself to be a baritone singer of no mean order. Edith, principal boy in Chicks' company, is safely placed in the hands of Miss Minnie Blackmore; Eliza is undertaken with tactful vivacity by Miss Marion Walker; and Miss Nell Ascot displays intelligence in her rendering of Primrose. The Verona Troupe of dancers are clever exponents of the terpsichorean art.

NORWICH.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Manager, Mr Fred Morgan.—Mr Ben Greet's company, under the direction of Mr J. Bannister Howard, is appearing here this week in The Belle of New York. Mr Ricketts as Ichabod Bronson is highly successful; Mr Harold Wardroper is equally so as Harry Bronson; Mr Walter Emro is good as Karl Von Pumpernick; Mr Guy Ford is satisfactory as Doc Snifkins; and Mr Walter Uridge capable as Kenneth Mugg. Mr Mack Ollive deserves praise as Blinkey Bill M'Quirk, especially in his whistling turns. Miss Mona Hersee is charming both in voice and acting as Violet Gray. Miss Florence Hersee represents Kissie Fitzgarter and Mamie Clancy with much vivacity; her dancing with Mr Mack Ollive is particularly attractive, and she receives a well-deserved recall for her song "Sammy." Miss Helen Rose deserves praise as Fifi, as does also Miss Ida Grandison as Cora; whilst Mr R. L. Cody as Count Patsi Rattato and Mr Lionel Yeoman as Count Ratsi Rattato ably acquit themselves. Miss Hilda Corelli is exceedingly good in a coon song and dance in the last act.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr F. W. Fitt.—The chief attraction this week is Kardoc, the gaol-breaker. Burke, Andrus, and Frisco, in their sketch, After Covent-garden Ball, create endless fun. The Brothers Bellong are clever as bicyclists and equilibrists; the Mezettis in their triple-bar performance are a good turn; the Llewelyns, operatic vocalists, are well received; Muir and Bartlett are mirth-provoking in their sketch, The Lady and the Lunatic; Beanland and Bath, cartoonists, display much artistic ability; the Haywards in their speciality act, "A Dress Rehearsal," are very successful; Ray and Calden in an act entitled "An Artist's Ambition," secure much commendation; and George Antill proves an excellent comedian.

NUNEATON.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE, LTD.—Managing Director, Mr A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter J. R. Bryan.—Mr F. R. Benson's North company is giving a repertory of Shakespearian and other plays here. Each piece is capitally played, and good houses have been the order of the week. Monday opened with The Taming of the Shrew. In this play those gaining special favour were Mr Bernard Limpus as Lucentio; Mr Henry Herbert, Petruchio; Mr G. Wallace Johnston, Hortensio; Miss Dorothy Green, Katherina; Miss Christie Lawes, Bianca; and Miss Maud Garth, the widow. Romeo and Juliet, Merry Wives of Windsor, As You Like It, and The School for Scandal are also in the repertory.

DADDY CRISP.

In a recent number of the Fortnightly Review Mr J. B. Firth has a readable article concerning a dramatic author who, as he wrote only one play, and that not a success, does not possess sufficient claim to receive notice in any ordinary biograph. It has been left to Mr Firth to supply some highly interesting details concerning this unknown dramatist. It is his connection with the drama—slight though it be—that makes his character and career of interest to the readers of a theatrical journal. Samuel Crisp was a friend for many years of the once famous Fanny Burney, the author of "Evelina" and other novels; and, "but for her," says Mr Firth, "he would have remained unknown to posterity, save for a few lines in the annals of the London stage, a chance reference, perhaps, in a 'Life of Garrick,' and a glowing epitaph, in heroic couplets, that adorns the walls of an out of the way country church in Surrey. Probably not many visitors make their way to Chessington, between Epsom and Surbiton, and the casual stranger who happens to find the epitaph in situ may recall Dr. Johnson's famous saying, 'In lapidary inscriptions a man is not upon oath,' and smile indulgently as he reads. Who then was this paragon of a Samuel Crisp, who, as this tablet tells us, died on April 24, 1783, at the age of seventy-six? Curiously enough, until the late Mrs Ellis first edited fifteen years ago the 'Early Diaries of Fanny Burney,' his parentage had remained a mystery even to some of his contemporaries, who gave him a wrong Christian name and credited him with being in Holy Orders. Samuel Crisp was a great grandson of the Rev. Tobias Crisp, rector of Brinkworth, in Hampshire, in the days of Charles I, and he succeeded at the age of ten to his share of his father's estate at Merton and Malden, and to other property in Gloucestershire and Somerset which he inherited from his mother."

It was at Fulke Greville's house near Andover that Charles Burney met Samuel Crisp, and a lifelong friendship began. "Crisp was a polished and cultured man of taste, singularly free from the artificialities of his age, an ideal companion for a youth in the position of young Burney, who, in later years, described him as 'the guide and tutor of my early youth whose word was wisdom and whose wisdom truth.' Moreover, Burney called his friend 'Daddy.' Fifteen years afterwards Burney's children were to do the same.

"Burney's marriage and removal to King's Lynn in Norfolk separated the two friends. Crisp remained in the fashionable world, and wrote a tragedy on the familiar episode of Appius Claudius and Virginia. Through the influence of the Earl of Coventry the play was submitted to the elder Pitt, who returned it with a few words of praise, and the manuscript was sent on to Garrick. The actor-manager kept it by him without returning a definite answer. Crisp grew impatient and played his trump card. His friend, Lord Coventry, induced the Countess to take a copy of the tragedy and drive to Garrick's house in Southampton-row. She sent in word that she had a moment's business with the actor, who hastened to the side of her carriage. 'There, Mr Garrick,' she said with a smile, as she proffered the manuscript, 'I put into your hands a play which the best judges tell me will do honour to you and the author.' How could Garrick refuse such an invitation from the lips of the younger Miss Gunning, whose beauty was such that the King granted her a guard of soldiers to keep back the people who thronged to see her when she walked in the Mall? Virginia was put into rehearsal at once.

"Garrick wrote a lively prologue and epilogue, and did his very best for the success of Virginia. This was frankly acknowledged by Crisp in his preface to the published version of the play, where he thanks him for 'his masterly performances in the representation (that is nothing new) and for the friendly advice by which the play was rendered much more dramatic than it was at first' Garrick himself took the part of Virginius, the father of the heroine; Appius, the Decemvir, was played by the 'iron-throated' Irishman, Mossop; Johnson's friend. Tom Davies, the actor-bookseller, played Claudius, the tool of Appius. As Marcia, sister of Claudius, Mrs Graham, afterwards Mrs Yates, made her début, and her great beauty—it is said that Garrick was not at first very favourably impressed by her acting—helped to give attraction to the piece. Finally Virginia was played by Mrs Cibber, the most fascinating actress of her day.

"The play ran for eleven nights, which secured the author his 'three benefits,' and justifies Madame D'Arblay's statement that 'Virginia neither succeeded nor failed.' But it is evident that it was only saved from utter failure by the genius of the actors. Crisp, however, was bitterly annoyed when it was taken off, and continually pressed Garrick to give it a second trial. He made various emendations, and was prepared to make more, but Garrick was obdurate, and knew his business best. If Crisp, as Madame D'Arblay says, really thought that 'the performers had been negligent, Mr Garrick unfriendly, and the public precipitate,' he provides but another instance of the extraordinary incapacity that clever men often display in judging their own work. To his last day Crisp considered that he had been badly treated by Garrick—'his soul was little,' he said bitterly, many years afterwards—and he carefully treasured the manuscript of his play, which is still in existence, written in a beautifully fine Italian hand, with the parallel passages from Livy printed with the pen as footnoter. Mortified at what he considered his failure, and also finding that the expenses of fashionable life in London had made serious inroads into his capital, Crisp retired to Hampton. Subsequently he found a refuge at Chessington—then spelt Chesington—in a tumble-down mansion belonging to an old friend of his own named Christopher Hamilton. Chesington Hall became Crisp's 'fugitive sanctuary' from 1764 down to his death in 1783.

"Burney transplanted his family to London in 1760, and settled in the now dingy Poland-street, on the south side of the Oxford-road, and close to the Pantheon. Of the four Burney girls, Fanny was Crisp's special favourite. Her father used to speak of him as 'Fanny's Flame.' Crisp liked her old-fashioned ways—even as a child she was called 'the old lady'—and, when she grew up, the affection deepened.

"The success of Evelina gave Fanny Burney the entrée into the best literary society of the day. It led especially to her intimate friendship with the Thrales and Dr. Johnson—though she had already met them at her father's house—and with all the members of the Streatham circle. Fanny was delighted, quite naturally, at the cordiality of her welcome, and her letters to Crisp bear witness to her pleasure. Fanny's new friends had urged her to write a comedy—they all declared that with her skill in dialogue and her genius as a 'character-monger,' it was bound to be a success. Mrs Montagu, the Queen of the Blue Stockings, begged to be allowed to see the play in manuscript and make suggestions; Sheridan eagerly offered to accept it on trust before it was written. When it was finished, Fanny gave her comedy the name of The Witlings. The Streathamites praised it, but from Chesington there came an adverse verdict, in a letter which Fanny describes as 'a hissing, groaning, cat-calling epistle.' Crisp did not like the play, and prophesied failure—whether rightly or wrong we cannot tell, for the manuscript has not survived.

"Fanny replied that she would 'a thousand times rather forfeit her character as a writer than risk ridicule or censure as a female,' but it is evident from her 'Diary' that she was more than a little disappointed that her Chesington Daddy did not like her first and only essay at comedy. None the less, she bowed to his judgment, and her play never saw the footlights."

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MISS MARIE CLAVERING.

Miss Marie Clavering was originally trained for grand opera. A combination of circumstances intervening, however, she turned her attention to drama, making her first appearance at the Tyne Theatre, Newcastle, immediately scoring a success as Diana Vernon, in Rob Roy; Lilian, in New Men and Old Acres; and in many plays produced during that season. After many engagements in the best dramatic companies, where Miss Clavering played all manner of parts, she was engaged by Mr J. Emmerson for stock season at the Queen's Theatre, Manchester, adding greatly to both her experience and reputation, playing important rôles in Shakespeare, burlesque, farce, and comedy. On her marriage with Mr David Wood (a musician of some note, and the elder son of the late Mr C. Wood, managing-director, Rotunda Theatre, Liverpool), Miss Clavering for a time left the stage, returning, after her husband's death, to play Henriette, in the late Chas. Dornton's Two Orphans company. Next came a tour with one of our finest tragediennes, Miss Bateman (Mrs Crowe). Miss Clavering relates how she used to study the methods of this admirable actress, and wonder if she would ever be able to play Leah with such effect as Miss Bateman. She had her opportunity a few years later, however, when the Press and public were alike unanimous in their praise. More stock followed in the summer of 1890, this time at the Rotunda Theatre, Liverpool, in a round of all the famous Irish dramas. In 1891 Miss Clavering made a notable success as Jane Shore, playing the part for over 200 nights. After touring with Messrs Roberts, Archer, and Bartlett in old English comedies and making several "hits" (notably as Lady Teazle), Miss Clavering was engaged by Miss Emma Hutchison to play leading parts in her Criterion comedy company. This engagement was in every way most successful, lasting four years. Some of Miss Clavering's signal successes in this well-known company were Lady Maggie, in Pink Dominos; Mrs M'Manus, in Betsy; Effie, in Bronson Howard's Brighton; and the leading parts in Truth, Covent-garden Ball, Hot Water, &c. 1897 again saw Miss Clavering in drama, this time playing the leading part in Frank Harvey's The World Against Her, after which came an engagement by the late John Coleman to play Katty, in his Drury-lane drama The Duchess of Coolgardie. This was an Irish character part, and Miss Clavering's early training in Irish plays stood her in good stead, she making a great success, so much so, that Mr Coleman invited her to create the part of Oona in Soggarth Aroon. One incident of the late John Coleman is worth recalling. On Miss Clavering being approached previous to the second tour of Duchess of Coolgardie, she wrote saying she would rather play the Duchess. Mr Coleman's reply was characteristic of the man. He wrote, "I can get a dozen Duchesses. There are only two Kattis. You are one of them." Mr F. Jarman selected Miss Clavering to play the title-rôle in The Rebel's Wife, a part which she was extremely fond of, and which she played for 400 nights. Amongst her latest successes are included Marcia, in A Life's Revenge, and that difficult part the "Worst Woman in London."

MISS MAUD HILDYARD.

MISS MAUD HILDYARD.

Miss Maud Hildyard's first engagement was under the management of Messrs Morell and Mouillot in September, 1893, to play lead in The Dark Continent. She also played Lady Stutfield in A Woman of No Importance under the same management; then she toured with Messrs Saintsbury and Macdonald's Eleventh Hour company; after that she played heavy lead with Mr Warwick Major's Verdict company. She was engaged by Mr Leonard Boyne to play Kitty in Sporting Life on tour, being re-engaged by him for the heavy leading part of Mrs De Carteret on his next tour. Miss Hildyard also had two tours with Messrs Dottridge and Longden as Henriette, the leading part in The King of Crime, and she created the leading part of Nell Resdale in Messrs Connor and Carson's Heart of a Hero company. She then toured with her own company in A Beautiful Fiend for upwards of three years, in which she created the title-rôle. This resulted in Mr Walter Melville offering her the part of the Worst Woman in London for his London season at the Adelphi Theatre. This she was unable to accept owing to having to fulfil contracts in connection with her own tour, but he engaged her to play the leading part of Dora Grey in Her Second Time on Earth at the Adelphi; afterwards she created the part of Barbara Wade in A Girl's Cross Roads, Mr Melville's autumn production at the Standard Theatre, which piece ran for upwards of nine weeks to crowded houses nightly. During this engagement Mr Michael Morton (Mr Tree's representative) witnessed her performance, which resulted in Mr Tree engaging her to create the part of Rosy Sky in The Darling of the Gods at His Majesty's Theatre.

MR. EDOUARD JOSE.

Mr Edouard Jose was born in Rotterdam, Holland, in 1865. Educated in Paris, he left the Conservatoire with a first prize for piano, but much against his father's desire, who—a great musician himself—intended his son for the concert platform, he entered the dramatic profession, and at the age of twenty had already gained laurels in France, Holland, and Germany, where, being an exceptional linguist, he played leading work in the respective languages of those countries. In 1896 he came to England to learn our language, and after six months was engaged by the late Henry T. French to appear at the American Theatre, New York, where he made so favourable an impression that he remained in the United States for several years under the managements of Messrs Klaw and Erlanger, Edward E. Rice, Ziegfeld, and Evans and Mann. Then it became his heart's desire to appear in London, and being a distant relative of Mr Auguste Van Biene he accepted that gentleman's offer to become his business-manager and understudy him in the part of Paul Borinski, in The Broken Melody. Soon after Mr Van Biene became ill, and Mr Jose played Paul at the Wakefield Theatre, replacing the 'cello with the piano, with such success that he was immediately engaged by Mr George Day to create the important part of Carl Navourac, in A Woman of Impulse. The success he achieved in that character was extraordinary. Then Mr Jose received offers from Sir Charles Wyndham to appear in The End of the Story and from Mrs Langtry, but owing to his contract with Mr Day, was unable to accept either. After the termination of the provincial tour, Mr Jose rejoined Mr Van Biene for his South African tour. He, however, did not return with the Broken Melody company to England, but remained in South Africa, where he accepted a flattering engagement as manager for the important B. and F. Wheeler firm. In this capacity Mr Jose has piloted Mr George Giddens through the new colonies, and in combination with the management played foreign dialect parts in Mr Giddens' répertoire with marked success. Mr Jose will remain in South Africa for some time, but he has not altogether given up the hope of appearing in London some day.

MR. ARTHUR KNIGHT.

MR. ARTHUR KNIGHT.

Born in Birmingham, Mr Arthur Knight was intended for a commercial career, but after a varied experience as an amateur, he eventually took to the stage, and made his first professional appearance at Day's Music Hall (now the Empire), in a sketch called Khartoum. Afterwards, he had a short tour as Harry in The Private Secretary, and then was engaged by Mr Walter Bentley for small parts and understudy, in Shakespeare and old English comedy. He remained six months with Mr Bentley, gaining invaluable experience. Next followed a tour as Prof. O'Sullivan, in Jack-in-the-Box, after which a special engagement to play Lord Woodbie, in The Flying Scud, led to several engagements with the late Mr Andrew Melville for parts in his productions. Then came a tour as Tom Hall, in The Diver's Luck; a tour as Lord Woodbie, in The Flying Scud, under the management of Mr Alfred Davies; a tour with The Dark Continent, Mr Knight playing the Jew, Solomon Gartman; followed by a four years' engagement with The Silver King, under the late Charles Dornton's management. During this long engagement Mr Knight played Baxter, Coombe, and various other parts, and was also stage-manager. A short season with Mr Thomas Sidney at Brighton was followed by a special engagement with Mr Charles Arnold in Captain Fritz at the Prince's Theatre, Manchester. Then came a tour with Mr Harry Starr, Mr Knight playing heavy lead in Carl the Clockmaker, and a tour with Mr Fred Connynghame, during which he played the title-rôle in The Hand of Iron. An eighteen months' engagement with A London Mystery, Mr Knight playing Nat Travers and doing the stage and general management, was followed by a stock season at the Metropole, Glasgow, under the Morell and Mouillot management. He stage-managed and played such parts as Nathan, in Leah; Wild Murtogh, in The Green Bushes; Jem Dalton, Nicodemus Nobbs, &c. From this season Mr Knight was engaged by J. M. Hardie, jun., to produce and play Mad Marks, in The Two Mothers, afterwards touring with the piece. Then followed two tours with Mr H. E. Chattell as stage and acting-manager for When London Sleeps and The Worst Woman in London. A stock season at the Theatre Royal, Belfast, with Mr F. W. Warden—Mr Knight stage-managing and playing heavy lead—was followed by a tour as Jasper Grafton, in In Old Kentucky, with Mr J. F. Elliston's company; a summer tour as stage-manager with Our Boys and Caste, with Mr Charles Otley; a tour with Mr T. Morton Powell as general manager, and playing Gabriel Garth, in Honour Thy Father; two tours as general manager of Mr Walter Bellian's The Wicked City company. A short engagement for heavy lead in Her Second Time on Earth was followed by a re-engagement as Rodney Haynes, in When London Sleeps. Mr Knight has recently concluded a stock season with Mr Douglas C. Phelps, producing and playing lead and principal character parts in The World Against Her, Fallen Among Thieves, East Lynne, Nicholas Nickleby, and Woman of the People. His favourite parts are character comedy or strong character rôles, which he combines with stage or general management.

"MACBETH" AT CLIFTON.

The members of the Clifton and Bristol branch of the British Empire Shakespeare Society gave a reading of Macbeth at the Victoria Rooms on the 29th ult.

The Bishop of Bristol, who took the chair, said that was the first public appearance here of a new society. The society was formed some time ago in London, and had already spread to one or two important towns and cities; and, of course, if that was so, they were bound to have it in Bristol. The president of the society was Sir Henry Irving, and the vice-presidents were the Bishop of Ripon, an old friend of his, and some others. The patrons were the Archbishops of Canterbury and York. It was therefore a most respectable society, at any rate. It was called the British Empire Shakespeare Society, as these various important persons had formed it in order to spread a knowledge and love of Shakespeare among all the English-speaking race, beginning with the children. He was very anxious indeed that all their children should be brought up with a knowledge and love of Shakespeare; it was the bringing up he himself had, and he never regretted it should have been so. He then read the objects of the society from the prospectus, which stated among them the writing of essays on the plays of Shakespeare and readings by members and associates of the society. The Bristol branch was formed about ten months ago, and it was a hard-working branch. He was told that it met for the study of Shakespeare and the rehearsals of parts of his plays every week in St. Saviour's Schoolroom, and that evening it was going to bring before a large audience, and he was sure an interested audience, the fruit of some of those rehearsals. They were favoured by the presence of some who were not Bristol persons, but in the next performance, Twelfth Night, they would have nothing but Bristol amateurs, though they were glad that some very important persons had come down now to help them. His lordship, before retiring from the platform to take his place among the auditors, remarked that some of them had brought books of the play, and he would say that many parts were cut out, and if they found a whole scene was cut out they could pass on to the next and very soon take up the thread. The reading was then commenced.

The characters in the play were discriminated as follows:—Duncan (King of Scotland), Dr. T. M. Carter; Malcolm and Donalbain (his sons), Mr Cuthbert Hicks and Miss Hazel Butt; Macbeth and Banquo (Generals of the King's Army), Mr Acton Bond and Mr W. G. Harrison; Macduff, Lennox, and Ross (Noblemen of Scotland), Mr Geo. H. Holloway, Mr R. W. Mercer, and Mr C. E. Eyres; Fleance (Son of Banquo), Miss Gladys Gough; Siward, Earl of Northumberland (General of the English forces), Mr J. F. Holloway; Seyton (an Officer attending on Macbeth), Mr M. O. Pragnell; a Porter, Mr J. F. Holloway; a doctor, Rev. Professor Baynham; first Murderer, Mr M. O. Pragnell; second Murderer, Mr A. D. B. Parsons; Attendants, Mr R. W. Mercer; Lady Macbeth, Miss Greta Morritt; Gentlewoman (attending on Lady Macbeth), Miss V. K. Herapath; first Witch, Miss A Bishop; Second Witch, Miss Powell; Third Witch, Mrs F. W. Rogers; First Apparition, Mrs R. W. Mercer; Second Apparition, Miss Gladys Gough; Third Apparition, Miss Hazel Butt. The stage directions were read by Dr. E. H. Cook, and the reading was under the direction of Mr Acton Bond. The reading was quietly but intensely enjoyed. Mr Acton Bond artistically delivered the rôle of Macbeth, and Lady Macbeth has a careful exponent in Miss Greta Morritt. Between parts I. and II. of the reading a pianoforte solo was played by Miss Ianthe Brunt.

At the conclusion of the reading Mr Acton Bond was presented with a silver cigar case, in recognition of the services rendered to the local branch of the society, by the Bishop on behalf of the members.

The Bishop, in tendering the thanks of the audience to the members of the society, said he would not add for their entertainment only but for their instruction as well. They had shown not only the great power of the English language, but also the mastery over it which Shakespeare possessed. There were two great links between all English-speaking people—the English Bible and Shakespeare. They might, respecting the play, ask themselves, after hearing it read and seeing it acted (in the latter being lifted out of themselves by scenic accessories), which was the preferable. He thought it did them more good to listen to the reading than to having it acted. He would remind them that Macbeth was not a historical play, but it took its moral from the tragedy; as he believed Macbeth had a better right to the throne than Duncan, and they knew from history that he was a very able monarch. Neither was the play correct geographically, as he could tell, having lived for six years in the district; but all the more was the play valuable as its interest centred in the tragedy.

"THE CORONET OF THE DUCHESS."

A Comedy, in Four Acts, by Clyde Fitch,
Produced at the Garrick Theatre, New York, on Sept. 21.
(FROM OUR NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT).

The wicked English noblemen who exchange their titles for American dollars and carry off all the nice American girls have "caught it" this time, and no mistake. It is a popular tradition in the States that all the aristocrats who figure in these international marriages are blasé roués, spendthrifts, and wife beaters, that the married pair go "dead broke" in a few years, and that the wife finally has to return home to "mommer." America's most prolific playwright, in The Coronet of the Duchess, accepts this hypothesis, and tries to show us how it works out. The play begins in the library of a millionaire's mansion in New York. Millicent Hampton (Miss Clara Bloodgood), the daughter of a Wall-street "manipulator," is in a transport of delight over her engagement to the Duke of Sundun (Mr Ernest Lawford). Mrs Stafford, a discerning old aunt, asks the girl if she loves her intended husband, and Millicent replies that of course she does, but doesn't auntie know people are not so romantic nowadays as when she was a girl. In the second act the author shifts his characters to the stalls of a charity bazaar in the Queen's Hall, London. Millicent is now Her Grace the Duchess of Sundun. Wedded a year, she already begins to wish that she had spurned the Duke for Jim Burrell, a New York lawyer, who had admired her from childhood. Strange people come to the bazaar. The Duchess wears a string of pearls which the Duke has given her on the first anniversary of their marriage. Pussy Hawkins, a manicurist, who tarries at her stall, is also wearing pearls, and when the two necklaces are compared they are found to be exactly alike. The Duke has bought a double string of pearls, and given half to Pussy. Millicent raises a rumpus in front of her stall, and the Duke doesn't hesitate to admit that his "past" has been decidedly shady. In the third act the ducal pair engage in a fierce wrangle, which ends with Millicent realising that she loves her-plain-spoken American lover, Jim Burrell, who has turned up in London as an automobile agent. Divorce is talked of, and the Duke proposes a bargain. Pussy demands $10,000. If this amount be paid to her the Duke will let his wife go free. The aunt says she will gladly pay anything to secure Millicent's happiness, so the Duke makes himself scarce, while Millicent returns to America to obtain a divorce and marry Jim Burrell.

Miss Annie Hughes will appear on Monday and during the week at the Broadway Theatre, New Cross, playing her original parts of Angela Muir, in A Country Mouse, and Saucers, in A Bit of Old Chelsea, under the management of Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison.

NEW ENGLISH & FOREIGN PLAYS.

In order to assist managers and others in the selection of pieces for production and adaptation, we shall publish from time to time synopses of likely English and Continental plays, so that dramatic speculators may judge for themselves of the suitability of the plots for their purposes. Authors wishing for this publicity should forward synopses to "Playrights," care of The Era, from whom further particulars can be obtained.

"A HERO."

Satirical Comedy, in Three Acts, by Edmond Fleg.

Un Héros while a comedy of provincial manners, is a tragedy of the fickleness of fame, and shows the instability of such greatness as was thrust on one François Bidault. Bidault, the engineer of the firm of Laurier père, is a man of ingenious mind, frank, brave heart, and of silent tongue. Misfortune comes to him under the guise of popular fame for his brave deed in saving Laurier's little son from death.

ACT I.

The play opens with a short scene portraying French provincial characteristics after a good déjeuner that Laurier has given the Préfet and other friends Pasquier and Jacques have both eaten, &c., not wisely but too well, and indulge in small talk with Frederick, Laurier's eldest son. As soon as he can, Frederick secures Suzanne, Bidault's wife, for a conversation. He had, previous to her marriage, made love to her himself, and now tries to get her to consent to be his mistress. She repulses him and shows contempt for his poetic attempts at love-making. While they are speaking, her brother Jacques enters, and misunderstands her; Frederick slinks off, whereupon Jacques warns Suzanne as to the character of Frederick. She declares she needs no warning to make her detest Frederick, and goes out on the verandah to her friends gossiping there. The Préfet and Laurier père enter, the Préfet discoursing patriotism pompously and promising Laurier the Legion of Honour. Jacques, who is a socialist, joins in the conversation to their disgust. Suddenly a gardener rushes in shouting "Little Paul has tumbled into the mill-stream and is drowned!" Great commotion and terror, all are hastening off in confusion, when joyful cries proclaim the child's safety. François Bidault, at great risk, has saved the boy's life and become un héros! Everyone now showers benedictions and praises on Bidault. He has in a moment become the greatest hero of the century. The Préfet declares with emotion their country is the chosen mother of great heroes; such deeds of heroism belong specially to France. And the nation loves to honour its brave. He will obtain the Legion of Honour for Bidault. The little hero François enters in Laurier's clothes. Everybody wants to embrace him. Laurier strives hard to make a speech but fails; he then takes Bidault to his heart and declares he is no longer an employee of the firm but henceforward becomes a partner in the business for having saved the life of Paul. The Préfet makes another florid speech congratulating Bidault, congratulating Laurier, congratulating everybody as belonging to a wonderful Department of France; and the Act ends by everybody cheering for and embracing everyone, while the sarcastic Jacques remarks, "Let's wait to see the end of this."

ACT II.

The scene shows the sitting-room at Bidault's the next (Sunday) morning. Madame Durantin, whose one occupation in life is her knitting, sits and portentously knits, when Bidault, in slippers and carelessly dressed, enters and tries to engage her cheerfully in conversation. The precise old dame quickly gives him to understand he must live up to the reputation he acquired yesterday. Bidault goes out demurely to change his clothes and don his Sunday "best" as becomes a hero, although he prefers his old clothes. Suzanne, whose head has been turned by her husband's fame, comes in full of gush expecting to find him. Her mother takes her to task for the rumpus and confusion that has been introduced into their quiet little house; and then goes off in a fury exclaiming that Suzanne has spoiled her knitting. Bidault re-enters in his best clothes and new shoes, which pinch him horribly. Suzanne rushes to him like a playful kitten, purrs on him, fondles him, bores him terribly, while his new shoes are the very devil to his feet. As Suzanne is dancing round him like a spoiled child, the brother, Jacques, calls to sympathise with Bidault in his doleful greatness. She is forced to leave her husband, which she does regretfully begging him to get rid of his brother Jacques promptly so that the two of them can be alone all day. Jacques commiserates Bidault because people have made him a hero, and warns him of the perilous position he occupies, telling him he had better get ready to go with him (Jacques) to Tunis. Bidault receives this badinage in bad sort, and asserts that people appreciate rightfully all talent, bravery, &c. Jacques goes off smiling. Suzanne rushes back immediately to continue her gambols. She plays about her husband; then wants him to speak to her, to speak eloquently as befits a hero. Poor Bidault declares he cannot so speak; but at last he begins to talk on commonplace matters, greatly to Suzanne's annoyance. Moreover, he cannot stand his new shoes any longer, and goes off to change them, leaving her angrily exclaiming in her exasperation—"Et il va changer de souliers!" Laurier and his son, Frederick, are announced. They have come to pay Bidault a visit of congratulation. During the night old Laurier has been thinking how foolish it was to make Bidault his partner. He tells Frederick he has resolved that Frederick shall also be a partner. In that way Bidault will only get one-third profits of the business. He is annoyed, moreover, that Bidault should be named for the Legion of Honour before himself, and doubts whether he will now get it at all. When Bidault enters he finds them rather discontented. Thinking to amuse them, Bidault reads from the local Socialist papers a laughable attack on Laurier. Laurier is furious, and turns on Bidault most insultingly, making use of this article as a means to force Bidault to relinquish the partnership. The father and son depart in high dudgeon. Suzanne enters, disturbed, and upbraids her husband. There is a quarrel between them. He treats her with firmness. At last she begs him to restore their former peaceful, happy, humble life, and the curtain falls as Bidault exclaims—"Aie confiance en moi, Suzanne, aie confiance."

ACT III.

The scene opens as in the preceding Act II., Madame Durantin at her eternal knitting in Bidault's sitting-room. Frederick Laurier, incited by passion for Suzanne, comes in expecting to find her, but is disconcerted to see her mother, and a sarcastic little talk ensues. Suzanne quickly enters, and Madame Durantin, grumbling, goes off, leaving them together. There is a long dialogue between Suzanne and Frederick, who uses all his art of eloquence to captivate her. His fluent, sonorous periods fill her with admiration. Her silent husband sinks to a low degree in her esteem when contrasted with this eloquent word-spinner, and at last she acclaims Frederick as the veritable hero, her ideal, because he utters lofty, brave thoughts so eloquently. He begins now, of course, to press her with his love vigorously, but she runs off in fear—pretence of fear—as his father, old Laurier, is about to enter. Old Laurier has come determined to rid himself of Bidault as a partner. He has brought Pasquier and Jacques, his parasites, with him as allies, that the three of them may browbeat and overawe his quondam employee. Frederick does not care to be mixed up in this attack on Suzanne's husband, and he hastily goes away. Laurier converses in a half hypocritical way of his regard for Bidault, and how difficult he finds it to get on with a hero as partner. The two parasites easily take the cue, and poor Bidault is ridiculed for his pretensions and Laurier is exhorted to be firm. On Bidault entering he is upbraided for absenting himself from the works that morning, now that he is a partner. He replies that he is no longer willing to remain a partner in the business, greatly to Laurier's secret joy. Briefly then Bidault gives Laurier to understand that not only does he cease partnership but that he will never enter the works again. This angers Laurier, for he has no wish to lose his clever engineer while there are so many contracts on hand, and he retorts insultingly. His parasites continue a duet of sneers and insults until Bidault is roused to anger and orders them indignantly out of his house. Laurier wants to stay and contend further, but the others are afraid of Bidault, and take the old man away. Suzanne has entered and witnessed the end of the dispute. Her husband in a few words explains what occurred. She breaks out in long tirades, taunting him, accusing him of conceit, pride, vanity, &c., and there is a sharp scene between them which ends by Bidault deciding to go to Tunis with her brother, Jacques; she must accompany them there. She is furious at this, indignantly declares she will never go, and calls her mother to her aid. Bidault has a hard time between them, but remains firm. Suzanne, after declaiming Frederick's eloquent nonsense about the true heroism, at last submits to her husband and exclaims she is afraid to remain alone in France. Jacques enters to congratulate Bidault on his act of renunciation. While they are speaking the Préfet comes to announce that Bidault has the Cross of the Legion of Honour. Very gracefully the hero refuses the cross, bidding the Préfet to bestow it on the true hero, Laurier. The play ends with the Préfet politely congratulating everybody. "Felicitez-vous donc avec moi, que . . . nous ayons su sortir de l'ordre si noblement, et y rentrer si heureusement."

NEW MUSIC.

MESSRS ENOCH AND SONS, Great Marlborough-street, have recently published the following works:—"Love's Anthem," written by Frederick E. Weatherly, composed by Reginald Somerville, is a song in the spirit of "The Devout Lover." The sentiment of "Love's Anthem" is faultless, and Mr Reginald Somerville has set the pleasant verses to music worthy of them, at the same time without any technical difficulties to cause the vocalist trouble. The song is simple flowing, and sweet in melody, and the change of tempo in the second part is effective. The transition from common time to 6 8 time is quite natural and will not puzzle the amateur. "To the Fairies" is a song by Jeanne Malcolm, a young composer who has already made her mark under the more familiar name of Jeanne Langtry, being, we believe, daughter of the popular actress, Mrs Langtry. The fair composer does credit to her celebrated mother in the graceful and sprightly melody and artistic accompaniment of her fairy-like ditty. We have but one comment to make, and it is this—why should a talented young composer trouble about fairies when musical people have long ceased to believe in them? Let Miss Langtry take as her theme some incident of actual life and feeling, and we guarantee her success as certain. We say this not in disparagement, but merely pointing the way to popular recognition of ability which amateurs and professionals will readily endorse. "In the Far Beyond" is a song with organ accompaniment, composed by N. Zarde. It is one of the songs now so much in vogue which, without being exactly religious in character, have a sacred tone sure to be appreciated in the domestic circle. The verses of Mr Teschemacher well express the yearning for the "far beyond" which goes far to console us in the troubles of life. "A Portrait" is a vocal waltz by that delightful composer Mdlle. Chaminade, set to the French verses of Pierre Reyniel, the English version being by Mr Elkin. There is little need of eulogy in any composition of Mdlle. Chaminade. Everything she writes is artistic and musicianly. "United" is a song composed by Mr Herbert Bunning to verses by Arthur Chapman. It is an agreeable song with a pleasing sentiment. Another by the same composer has a more effective subject. It is "The Drummer," set to words from the Century Magazine. The "Rub-a-dub" refrain has much spirit, and would be warmly applauded by a music hall audience. "April's Here" expresses in a genial fashion a similar sentiment to that of the poet Browning, who says, "Oh, to be England now that April's here." The joys of spring are delightfully carolled by Mr Landon Ronald in a pleasing melody in the key of G major, with a bright, running accompaniment which without being really difficult requires to be played neatly and in time; otherwise the singer will not find the accompaniment helpful. With a little care in this respect, "April's Here" will be found a charming ditty. In Mdlle. Chaminade's "Waltz-Ballet" there are many elegant passages, melodious and effective always, and written in musicianly style. A portrait of the fair composer sitting at the pianoforte in a thoughtful mood adorns the title-page, and does justice to the expression and amiable countenance. Mr Herbert Bunning's "Impromptu Les Konigans" makes an excellent study for the pianoforte, and may be recommended to teachers of the instrument, who, however, must remember Mr Conder's admirable advice to be always in advance of the pupil. The "Picturesque Studies" for the pianoforte by Mr George H. Clutsam fulfil the purposes intended, and realise their title in every way. They are of various degrees of difficulty, but Mr Clutsam, like the excellent musician he is, does not weary the youthful student with passages merely cranky and eccentric.

MESSRS FRANCIS, DAY, AND HUNTER, who have done so much for the musical world, and who are so often cheated out of their just rights, have published Kopski's March, a composition played by the composer throughout the world.

MESSRS LEONARD AND CO. send "Maid Marion," by J. Warwick Moore. An odd name is that of "Maid Marion" for a pianoforte caprice, but a high authority has remarked "What's in a name?" and we certainly shall not object to the title of a clever piece. Mr Moore is evidently "master of his tools" as the French say. "White Heather," by Alfred Morland, is a sketch for the pianoforte not wanting in ability. Students will be pleased with its simplicity. Mr Josef Holbrooke is one of our rising composers who might be contented with an English-spelt Christian name. His "Marche Militaire" also shows foreign tastes, but his march is spirited and effective, and the change of key in the second part from B flat to E flat is cleverly managed, and makes a pleasing contrast. "Tumble to Rest" hardly suggests the title of a song, but it is intended for baby ears, and the author of the words, Mr Tischemacher, has supplied a fanciful theme for the composer, Geoffrey Lockhart, who has done his work in an agreeable manner. "Humoreske," by F. C. Maker—how often we meet with "Humoreske" as a title without discovering much of the humoreske quality in the music! Perhaps the best example is Beethoven's Caprice called "Anger over a lost penny," the most original piece of the kind with which we are acquainted. Mr Maker, if not particularly humoreske, writes fairly well, and in his "Polonaise" and "Grand March" are excellent pieces for the pianoforte. The same composer's "Woodland Voices" and "Silver Streamlets," if a little conventional, are good studies, which will repay the practice required. In "Murmures Evliennes" the composer has possibly been inspired both in the title and the music by the Parisian pianist and composer Ascher. Mr Maker has not slavishly followed the French musician.

MR FRANK ELLIOTT has been engaged by Mr Wilfred Cotton as Miss Ada Reeve's representative on her forthcoming tour.

HISTORIC PROVINCIAL PLAYHOUSE.

BY T. H. BARROW.—IV.

Baker died on Easter Sunday, 1770, largely involved in debt. He was an artist of some repute. Among his works were paintings of York Minster and Lincoln Cathedral, which became popular as colour prints. The responsibility of management devolved upon Tate Wilkinson, who signalised his sudden accession to supreme authority by spending £500 in new scenery. After a brief tour which included Newcastle-on-Tyne and Leeds, he reopened the York Theatre in January, 1771, with the York stock company. In July the same year Mr and Mrs Hitchcock, clever exponents of the histrionic art, left the Norwich circuit for that at York, and were soon warmly received by the best society in the metropolis of the north of England. Mrs Hitchcock made her first bow to a York audience as Rosetta in Love in a Village. Her husband was a dramatic author. His comedy, The Macaroni, produced in York in the spring of 1773 was well received. He proceeded to Dublin in 1781, becoming equally successful at the Dublin Theatre. His daughter married Sir Jonas Greene, Recorder of Dublin, and became the mother of the distinguished juris consult Sir Richard Greene, a Baron of the Exchequer in Ireland.

For Tate Wilkinson's benefit in 1774 the Rev. Canon Mason, a precentor of York Minster, wrote a piece called Elfrida — probably historical. At that time there appears to have been a close connection between Church and Stage. Three years later Mr Mason had produced for Mr Suett's benefit a play called Caractacus, also historical. I should imagine both pieces were in blank verse, for the grave and reverend poet was present and expressed his approbation of the performance. Caractacus, it is recorded, was a bold attempt to revive a taste for the ancient drama; though unsuccessful as a play, the odes it contained secured for it great admiration. Mr Mason was regarded at the time as "the greatest living poet in this country."

Mr Suett was undoubtedly a distinguished member of the profession, as his name was invariably starred in the bill. I have at hand a day-bill a hundred and twenty-four years old, which may be considered worthy of reproduction:—"For the benefit of Mr Suett. At the Theatre, York, on Saturday evening, March 4, 1780, will be acted a second time by desire a musical prelude called The Grenadier. The Grenadier, Mr Hudson; Ralph, Mr Suett; Jenny, Mrs Thornton. After which will be performed the favourite comedy called 'Tis Well It's No Worse. Don Carlos, Mr Kemble; Don Ferdinand, Mr Inchbald; Don Pedro, Mr Burgtall; Don Guzman, Mr Oram; Octavio, Mr Hudson; Drunken Coachman, Mr Leng; Lazarillo, Mr Death; Muskato, Mr Suett; Marcella, Mrs Inchbald; Aurora, Miss Emerson; Leonarda, Mrs Leng; Beatrice, Mrs Hudson. To which will be added a musical entertainment called Belphegor; or, The Three Wishes. Booze, Mr Suett; Belphegor, Mr Inchbald; Justice Soloman, Mr Oram; Collin, Mr Tyler; Farmer Wheatear, Mr Bowles; Dame Din, Mrs Leng; Phœbe, Mrs Thornton; to begin at 6 0 o'clock; tickets as usual, and of Mr Suett at Mr Barker's in Grape-lane."

Kemble, whose name figures in the above cast, was a poet as well as an actor, and on occasion no mean hand at both. Many of his printed sonnets showed the versatility of his mind. Here is an example (published in 1786):—

A rich'y-sailing, dimpled Boy,
Son of Venus, God of Love,
Grant my heart the feat of joy,
May thy Temple ever prove.

This is a trifle involved: the next is better:—

Let me sing and laugh all day,
Sweetly pass my nights away,
Then arising taste with you
Blessings lasting, raptures new!

He was a popular actor at Leeds as well as York, visiting that town as a member of one of the circuit combinations. In 1786 he wrote "an occasional prologue to a play acted for the benefit of the Infirmary at Leeds" Excellent in the sentiments expressed, it concludes with these lines:—

Where praise is merited let praise be giv'n—
To honour virtue is to act like Heav'n.
And sure your generous deeds may well demand
That angels sing them to the list'ning land;
For mindful ever of wealth's first best end,
You bid the Poor in you behold a friend.

Mrs Siddons, who had failed to gain the appreciation of London audiences at Drury-lane Theatre, made her debût at York on April 15, 1777, in The Grecian Daughter, and played during the rest of the season, which was concluded on May 17, when she took a benefit. With north country audiences she soon became a well-established favourite. Dr. Johnson said of her: "Neither praise nor money, the two powerful corruptors of mankind, seem to have depraved her." Mrs R. Trench in her "Romans" (1822) wrote: "There is no giving an adequate impression of the might, the majesty, and grace she possessed, nor of the effect on a young heart of the deep and mysterious tones of her voice." Samuel Rogers in his memorable work, "Table Talk," said that after Mrs Siddons left the stage she, from want of excitement, was never happy. "If you ask me what is a queen," said Tate Wilkinson, "I should say Mrs Siddons." Mrs Charles Mathews declared that, though a tragedy queen, Mrs Siddons had a strong bias towards comedy. So, too, had John Kemble, who formed the serious intention of performing Falstaff before his retirement, and actually rehearsed the part, but finally abandoned the idea.

A York magazine published in 1786 has the following, which, I feel sure, will be read with intense interest by provincial managers throughout the kingdom:—"The curiosity of the public was, perhaps, never more excited than by the appearance of Mrs Siddons at the Theatre Royal in this city. Her performances were received with that unbounded applause to which they were justly entitled. More company of the first distinction attended the Assizes than was ever known on a similar occasion. The following is an authentic statement of the receipts each night of her performing:—

THE OVERTON ENTERTAINER.

London: DEAN and SON, LIMITED.
160A, Fleet-street, E.C.

Reciters, both professional and amateur, are under under a debt of obligation to Mr Robert Overton for supplying them with suitable material for the drawing-room and public entertainments. Many of the characters whose acquaintance we first made in the pages of "Queer Fish," "A Round Dozen," and "Ten Minutes" have become popular alike on the platform and in the home, and several of the best, known recitations have been translated into Continental languages The work under notice has been compiled from the three volumes just mentioned, with the addition of a number of Mr Overton's latest written sketches for public and fireside reading or recitation. With three exceptions these selections are in prose, and comprise both serious and humorous recitations. "All Along the Line!" is a stirring ballad of the American Civil War, telling of the gallant deed done by Colonel Gray, who brought an order for the men of Vermont to charge "all along the line!" The paper containing these words was, however, clasped in a dead man's hand, for the brave bearer of the message had been shot as he sped across the plain, and fell lifeless from his horse:—

Next eve, when peaceful sunbeams gleamed the field of battle o'er,
The corse of gallant Colonel Gray with tender hands we bore:
A soldier's hasty sepulchre some sad-faced warriors made—
Where friend and foe together lie our valiant dead we laid.
No costly monument we reared to mark his place of rest,
But just these words we wrote upon the slab above his breast:
"He being dead yet speaketh"—and our meaning well they know
Who hear how by a dead man's word we charged against the foe,
All along the Line!

Prose narratives of heroism and self-sacrifice are to be found in such sketches as "Our Pardner," the story of a negro who loses his own life to save that of a little child, and "Jim: a Hero," a story told by a curate. The Bride of Audley Brow is the title of a playlet in which there are five characters. The plot reveals how Squire Burwash's son, Harry, falls in love with his father's amanuensis Vivie Cardigan, who, as she is a proud and penniless girl, refuses his offer of marriage. She, however, brings about a reconciliation between the gouty, crusty old squire and his brother Jack, who has returned with a fortune from abroad. Squire Burwash had intended that his son should marry a wealthy widow, but as Uncle Jack promises that Harry, on the day he brings home Vivie Cardigan as his bride, shall have fifty thousand pounds, the difficulties in the way of the young man's union with the squire's charming secretary are removed, and this paves the way to a happy ending. During the winter season now fast approaching, this volume is likely to prove most useful to the elocutionist in search of effective recitations and readings.

THEATRICAL PATENTS.

The following abridged description is specially drawn for The Era by Messrs Hughes and Young, patent agents, 55 and 56, Chancery-lane, London, W.C., who will give advice and assistance free to our readers on all patent matters.

10,251 Ozonising air, &c. Patentees, C. Wokes, 66, Brook-street, and F. H. Street, Humber Chambers, Prince's-dock-street, both in Kingston-upon-Hill. Consists of apparatus for producing ozone by electrically treating oxygen, and for purifying atmospheric air, mixed with oxygen or not, by the generation of ozone, such apparatus being applicable for use in connection with hospitals, theatres, dwelling-houses, and other places. An outer casing is provided with inwardly projecting rings, discs, ovals, or the like, while an inner insular casing carries external projections intermediate with the projecting rings, and internal projections opposite the spaces, between which rings, &c., mounted on an insulated or solid shaft are interposed. The air or oxygen in passing through the apparatus is ozonised by the silent discharge occurring between the electrodes, the outer casing and spindle being connected to the terminals of the source. Any number of concentric casings may be employed, and a modification is described in which one casing and a spindle are used for supporting the electrodes. These latter may be in the form of a helical projection, or of longitudinal strips or of other forms, instead of transverse to the barrel axis. The electrodes, of any suitable metal, alloy, or good electric conductor may also be so arranged that the edges or outer peripheries of the rings, &c., are opposite the edges of the rings, &c., and so on, instead of being opposite the spaces between them. The casings may be mounted on a loose support, with a bell mouth, but may be directly connected with pipes for conveying and delivering the air, &c., before and after treatment respectively.

THE second fancy dress ball of the season will take place at Covent-garden on Friday, Oct. 14, when six special and sixteen other prizes will be given for the best costumes.

BERLIN, THURSDAY, OCT. 6.—This is a piece of which there is not so much to say as is the rule about a Lessing première. It is a play which must be seen to be appreciated, and, above all, it appeals chiefly to an entirely German audience. Since Alt Heidelberg we have been satiated with pieces written round student life; Herren Holz and Jerschke go one better, and have produced a number of effective scenes, in which the German gymniast, or grammar-school boy, plays the principal part. There is exceeding humour in these scenes, and they pleased the audience the most The serious part of the plot is as follows:—"Traumulus" (the dreamer) is the nickname given by his pupils to Professor Niemeyer, headmaster of the college. Niemeyer is the kindest-hearted man in the world. He is full of ideals, an excellent pedagogue, and a devoted husband, but he is too confiding and too impractical. His trusting nature is abused on every side; his wife is unfaithful to him, and his pupils take advantage of him, yet he remains blind. The awakening comes with the action of one of the eldest boys, Niemeyer's favourite and most trusted pupil, who had been specially given into the head master's charge. The youth, Von Nedlitz, has a nocturnal rendezvous with a frivolous little actress, and it is the talk of the small provincial town in a trice. Niemeyer is censured by everyone; his prestige is lost, and driven to desperation he finally commits suicide. The development of events is excessively cleverly depicted, and the majority of the audience were deeply interested. There were, notwithstanding, a goodly number of malcontents present, who mingled their hisses with the boisterous applause. The acting was faultless in each case, particular commendation being due to Fräulein Eberty, Herr Bassermann, and Herr Reicher. The joint authors were called repeatedly before the curtain, and the play may, on the whole, be considered a success.

THE event of the week was the opening of the Lustspiel-Haus in the Friedrichstrasse on Saturday. Out of an old-fashioned dancing-room and adjacent buildings has sprung a handsome, well-appointed theatre, which takes its place triumphantly among our first houses. The lessee is Dr. Martin Zickel, formerly director of the Secessions-Bühne, mentioned frequently in your pages, and the new theatre could not well be in better hands. Dr. Zickel has got together a first-class company. Not the least deserving of consideration is his wife—a daughter of the famous opera singer Fräulein Mallinger, later Baroness Von Oye. Dr. Zickel is catholic in his programme; he promises us the best of every country, and has made arrangements for several English and French plays already. The initial performance was that of Otto Erich Hartleben's new comedy Ein Wahrhaft Guter Mensch (a really good fellow), which—though in some respects falling short of his other works—met with a cordial reception. It is the story of Josef Osterberg, a wealthy young man, with so many plans for bettering humanity in general that he fails in his duty to his own family, thereby very nearly losing his charming wife Valeska. That all comes right in the end is perhaps unnecessary to say. The several characters are drawn by Hartleben's unerring hand with the skill and humour to which we are accustomed. The figure of Valeska's happy-go-lucky father, Stanislaus—who, after trying his hand at many things, runs a variety show on his son-in-law's money — is particularly good, and that of Osterberg's friend — a loose-principled painter—is equally happily conceived. The cast was wonderfully even, the artistes all of best repute. Fräulein Mallinger (Frau Dr. Zickel) gave the difficult rôle of Valeska with much grace and power; Herr Fischer (formerly of the Deutsches) was capital in the name part; and Herr Schoenfeld gave a clever character study, full of humour, of the painter—one of the vampires who prey upon Osterberg. The Lustspiel-Haus stands well back from the road, with an imposing court. It is thoroughly up to date, is comfortable and luxurious, while everything has been done for the safety of the public in the way of exits. The theatre seats 600 persons, and is composed of stalls, or "parkett," as it is called here—really stalls and pit on equal lines—and one circle. The colours of the auditorium are a tasteful blending of crimson, white, and gold. The stage is a good size, and furnished with the newest and most approved requirements. All in all, the Lustspiel-Haus is a decided acquisition, and the long line of carriages before the doors each evening proves the interest and appreciation of the public.

A VERY fine performance of Rienzi was given at the Royal Opera on Monday evening. The evening was one long triumph for Dr. Muck, the conductor, who had to bow his acknowledgments repeatedly. Herr Grüning was admirable in the title-rôle. He has seldom been heard to such advantage. Frau Goetz and Frau Herzog sang beautifully in the parts of Adriano and the Herald of Peace, Fräulein Reisl made her mark as Irene, and the same may be said of Herr Joern as Baroncelli. The mounting of the opera was tasteful, and testified to the skill of Herr Droescher, the head stage-manager of the Imperial theatres.

A DISAPPOINTMENT was felt by public and managers last week, when, at the eleventh hour, the new National Theatre was declared to be unsafe by the fire police authorities, and the opening delayed for several days. When the necessary alterations had been made, the house was permitted to open, which was done with much éclat on Thursday last. It is a handsome building, and all arrangements appear to be good. The opening performance of Il Trovatore (Der Troubadour) was highly satisfactory, and a crowded audience applauded liberally.

AT the Luisen Theatre L'Arronge's most popular volks-play, Mein Leopold, has been received with customary success. The title-rôle was created here years ago by the late comedian Emil Thomas, and played by him many hundreds of times. He had been cast for it again the week he died, and an element of sadness prevailed in the theatre where he was last engaged, for Herr Thomas was as popular among his colleagues as he was with the public. The chief rôle was well rendered by Herr Huener, who understood how to make the utmost of each well-known point. The remaining characters were all satisfactorily sustained

THE Trianon is giving Ihr Zweiter Mann, the capital comedy by MM. Sylvane and Froyey, with which they closed last season.

"PERGOLESI" a three act opera by Guglielmi, has been obtained by Herr Prasch, and will be produced at the Theatre des Westens in a few days. On Saturday Die Kleinen Lämmer is to be given at that theatre. The bill there this week is a very varied one—Undine, Rigoletto, Traviata, and Der Freyschütz, so that all tastes may be suited.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

THE GRAND.

On Monday, Oct. 3, the Drama, in Four Acts, by George R. Sims and Robert Buchanan, entitled "THE TRUMPET CALL."

The revival of this ever popular drama has a special local interest, the 4th V. B. Royal Fusiliers taking up this popular theatre on Monday and Tuesday, as before, for the purpose of raising money for their prize funds. The selection of such a military play was excellent, as the interest of the performance itself was augmented on the first two nights of the week by various extra items contributed by detachments of the battalion, together with the bugle and military bands. Mr Davey, with his accustomed thoroughness in all matters pertaining to the theatre, had spared no expense in ensuring the object in view. The house both inside and out was most tastefully decorated with flags &c., and the opening performance was patronised by the officers and men of the battalion, together with a packed audience. The drama was produced under the watchful supervision of Mr Oswald Brand. Mr Ernest Leicester, who has established himself as a great favourite locally, gave an excellent performance as Cuthbertson. As Richard Featherstone Mr Joynson-Powell was equally commendable, his portrayal of the despicable character being very cleverly presented. Mr Hal Collier made Professor Ginnifer as humorous a character as could be desired; Mr Frank Stone was particularly good as Milligan, his brogue being effectively sustained; Mr Arthur Estcourt as Redruth showed intensity; and Mr Richard Mayne and Mr George Derrick were adequate in small parts. Miss Helen Bancroft in the singular rôle of Astrea again gave a performance of great merit and artistic value. Miss Kate Brand was also good as Constance, depicting the pathetic element in the character with much skill and judgment. Miss Winifred Leeson as Lavinia was again very pleasing, and Mrs Stanislaus Calhaem as Mrs Ginnifer gave another exceedingly good character study. Miss Sadie Gold was intelligent as the young son, and the remaining smaller parts were all in very good hands. The drama, which was succeeded by a historic pageant representing the development of the regiment, was received with every sign of cordial approval. Mr Davey's early door programme includes Mr Millis, the Australian ventriloquist, in his well-known performance, together with the Bioscope.

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, Oct. 3, the Drama, in Five Acts, by Arthur Shirley, entitled "THE GRIP OF IRON."

This highly successful and sensational drama is the attraction at the Standard this week, and if one is to judge by the enthusiastic reception the performance gained on Monday night, it is safe to say that the production continues to be a conspicuous success. Nor is this to be wondered at, for the artistes who sustain the various rôles have been carefully selected, and they all perform their duties admirably, leaving nothing to be desired. The mounting and staging of the piece are complete in every detail. For Mr Frank Lister as Jagon, alias Simmonet, we have nothing but praise. The character is one in which full scope is given to this clever actor to prove his histrionic ability, and without a doubt he makes the most of every opportunity that is offered, and gives a performance of the highest grade of excellence. As an effort in declamatory elocution his method and enunciation are of a high order, and his acting is impressive throughout, holding the close attention of the audience from beginning to end. Mr Frank Adair plays with considerable energy and skill as Lorentz De Ribas, and is very successful. Mr Frederick Melville thoroughly deserves the applause he gets as Paul Blanchard. He plays with all the pathos required in the part of the man falsely condemned, and is everything that could be desired. Mr Julian Cross cleverly depicts the business-like detective Alphonse De Coucou, whilst Mr J. T. Macmillan acts Dodot, a detective of the old school, in a decidedly humorous manner. Much laughter is caused by the untiring efforts of these two. Mr Cyril Vernon is well suited to the rôle of Robert De Belfort, and M. De Beaudin is fittingly portrayed by Mr Alick Macmillan. Mr Andrew Emm contributes a droll rendering of Loustalot, better known as the "Smiler," and squeezes a large amount of fun from the character. Miss Eva Dare speaks her lines well and plays admirably as Sophie Blanchard, and every praise is due to Miss Olga Audré for her fine interpretation of Cora, Simmonet's daughter. The rôle of Marie Guerin receives careful treatment from Miss Maud Stewart Drewry, who acquits herself with every sign of success. The minor characters are adequately treated by other members of the company.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, Oct. 3, the Musical Comedy, in Two Acts, entitled "THE BELLE OF NEW YORK."

Although this is the farewell visit of Mr George Musgrove's company in The Belle of New York, it is the first time it has appeared at the Pavilion, and it is playing to crowded houses this week. The piece is handsomely dressed and lavishly mounted, and the bright and successful work of the principals is ably supported by a large and capable chorus, whose work under the bâton of the musical director, Mr Leonard Hornsey, is very creditable. Several fresh numbers have been introduced, and the whole entertainment goes with such a delightful swing that it is quite refreshing. Miss Beatrice Lamotte gives a charming representation of Violet Grey, and Miss Lillian Digges is chic and fascinating as Fifi Fricot. Miss Winnie Browne makes a dashing Cora Angelique, and Miss May Angus-Young does well as Mamie Clancy. Miss Kitty Lindley is sprightly and animated as Kissy Fitzgarter, being encored for the inevitable "Sammy" in the second act. Mr Harry A. Meymott, a diverting Ichabod Bronson, takes full advantage of the humorous possibilities of the part, and is a great favourite with the audience. Mr Philip Leslie is well suited as Harry Bronson, although a little more vigour infused into the character would be acceptable. As Karl Von Pumpernick Mr Max Copland gives a really clever performance, and Mr Frank Lawton in his original part of Blinky Bill "brings down the house" with his admirable whistling and bone solos. Mr Cecil Burt is remarkably good as Doc Snifkins, and Mr Paddy Dupres gains favour as Kenneth Mugg. Mr Alfred Selby and Mr Albert Sealy are alert and nimble as the Portuguese Twins, and a word of commendation must be given to Mr Charles for his portrayal of the gateman at the railway station.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, Oct. 3, the Play, in Five Acts, entitled "UNCLE TOM'S CABIN."

A most enthusiastic reception by a crowded house was given to Mr Charles Harrington's company on a welcome return visit to Mr Bailey's popular theatre. In these days, when the decadence of the drama is so much discussed, it is indeed gratifying to find that a clean, wholesome play told in homely fashion, still possesses all its old attractions for playgoers. That this is so, the case of Uncle Tom's Cabin supplies convincing proof; for, despite the lapse of years since this play was first produced, its drawing powers are as great as ever, and audiences are still as eager to laugh and cry in sympathy with the joys and sorrows of Little Eva and poor Uncle Tom. Mr J. Carr gave his usual telling impersonation of Uncle Tom, a part that he is peculiarly fitted for. In the rôle of the slave owner, Legree, Mr John Henry Rogers acted in realistic style, bringing the brutal points of the character well into play. Mr B. Lenton did exceedingly well as Mr St. Clair; Mr Guy P. Ellis was particularly pleasing as George Harris; Mr John Gibson was a capable Mr Wilson; and Mr Charles Harrington secured his usual mead of recognition as the quaker, Phineas Fletcher. Miss Hettie Johnson sustained the rôle of Eliza Harris with a dignity and refinement that were most noticeable, and Miss Ida Fane was quite at home as Aunt Ophelia. As Emmeline Miss Emma Stuart deserves a good word, as does Miss Hero Hathaway as Mrs St. Claire. Little Minnie portrayed Little Eva in a gentle and effective way; Miss Sylvia Stella made a great hit as the shrewd but somewhat cunning Topsy; Mrs Carr was well suited as Aunt Chloe; and Miss Zerlina Zerbini (Mrs Harrington) gave her usual telling performance of Cassy. The play was staged and mounted in irreproachable fashion. In the Plantation scene the beautiful voice of W. H. Nott, the coloured tenor, was heard to great advantage, and a meritorious banjo solo by W. Pettit also calls for special mention.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, Oct. 3, the Drama, by Paul Merritt and George Conquest, entitled "MANKIND."

A capital representation of this favourite drama is being given this week at the Elephant and Castle Theatre, and, despite the many years that have elapsed since the play first saw the light of day, its vitality is apparently undiminished. The stock company succeed in giving an enjoyable performance, and their efforts have met with warm appreciation from large audiences. Mr George Conquest resumes the character of Daniel Groodge, and his acting throughout is handled with rare skill and judgment. Mr Conquest had capable assistance from Mr Ernest E. Norris, who in the part of Peter Sharpley (Groodge's partner) scored a success. In the Strangling scene in the fourth act both Mr Conquest and Mr Norris gave a distinctly clever piece of work, and thoroughly deserved the encomiums bestowed upon them by the delighted house. Mr J. C. Aubrey gave a capital impersonation of the villainous Edmund Sharpley, and Mr Jo Monkhouse as Richard Pimpool seemed quite at home in the part. Philip Warren received a manly and vigorous interpretation at the hands of Mr Paige Lawrence; and as George Melton Mr Norman Clark was very successful. Mr Harry Paulton, jun., worked indefatigably in the character of Barnaby Bright. Mrs Bennett was delightful as Alice Maitland, and played with all her accustomed skill and charm. Miss Agnes Paulton as Arabella Bright was most acceptable, her bright and vivacious manner being much to the liking of the house. Miss Judith Kyrle was a good exponent of the part of Mrs Bickerton; and Miss Ethel Houldsworth was earnest and sympathetic as Constance Melton. Miss Marion Hall renders a good account of Jane Agnes Frisby; and Miss Christine Williams played very naturally as the child. Numerous minor characters all received careful treatment; and the general mounting of the drama was of a high standard of excellence.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, Oct. 3, the Comic Opera, in Two Acts, Book and Lyrics by G. H. Jessop, Additional Lyrics by Percy Greenbank and Charles Taylor, Composed by Sidney Jones, entitled "MY LADY MOLLY."

The Camden-town folk on the first visit of My Lady Molly immediately took that fascinating young lady to their hearts, and by their reception of her this week on her second visit it is quite certain that they have not forgotten her charm, her piquancy, or her many melodious graces. It is now some eighteen months since she first made the West-end of London ring with her praises, and her career at Terry's was one long triumph from beginning to end. The opera, which is the work of many hands, has but one composer, and Mr Sydney Jones's excellent credentials, earned in such a tuneful work as San Toy—to mention only one of the many—make it a certainty that his score is melodious. The numbers given to the principal characters are grateful to sing, and have just that lilting character that is a sine quâ non of music destined to become popular with the masses. The period of the opera is in the picturesque days of squirearchy, when heroes were as chivalrous as they were bold in love, and when maidens had perforce to employ stratagem in order to evade the stern dictates of their sires. It is an artful ruse of the heroine that supplies the basis of the plot of My Lady Molly; and the simplicity and directness of the dramatic scheme are among the opera's chief recommendations. The company entrusted with the representation is under the direction of Mr Frederick Mouillot, the musical arrangements being in the capable keeping of Mr Leonard Leslie, who directs an augmented orchestra very skilfully. The title-rôle is entrusted to Miss Edmée De Dreux, whose archness and vivacity are of immense value in such a part. Miss De Dreux looks extremely well in her disguise, and her singing is always bright and expressive. She is often encored, and is heard to especial advantage in the number "Once too often." Miss Zoe Gilfillan is dainty and expressive in her impersonation of Alice Coverdale, and shows a keen appreciation of the humour of the situations with the disguised Lady Molly. She is particularly dainty and fetching in her rendering of "My Aunt's Elopement" Miss Mabel Carr is genuinely effective as Hester, looking particularly well and acting with decided grace and refinement. Mdlle. Ebba Darcier presents a vivacious portrait of the governess, Mdlle. Marabeau, and scores by her bright exuberance and Gallic coquetry. Mr Leicester Tunks makes a personable hero of Captain Harry Romney, being dashing and debonair. He secures a very decided demand for an encore for his rendering of "At my lady's feet. Mr Stuart Alexander's Lionel Bland was attuned to the spirit of romance, and his love-making passages with Miss Zoe Gilfillan are interesting episodes that are much appreciated. Mr H. Godwin Hunt is as splenetic, full-blooded, and unreasonable as one expects the squires of the good old days to be, and his Sir Miles Coverdale is a capital portrait. The reliance placed by the librettists on the humours of Mickey O'Dowd is amply justified by the favouritism accorded to that broth of a boy by the Camdentonians, among whom there are apparently no members of any Hibernian society to formulate objections to the stage Irishman. Mr Stephen Fitzgerald, to whom the part is assigned, is not unconscious of the happy effect produced by a timely and up-to-date gag, and his humorous business elicits loud laughter. He scores most unmistakably, too, in his rendering of "Mickey O'Dowd." Mr Dan O'Regan as Reuben Oats, Mr H. Beresford as the head groom at the Coverdale Arms, and Mr M'Closkie (who stage-manages) as Judge Romney are responsible for capable work; and Misses D. Vivian, Violet Lingard, Kittie Holmes, and Messrs Gally and Cashell are seen to advantage in minor parts. Miss Minnie Blanchard dances with surprising grace and deftness, and the lady members of the chorus look extremely attractive in their picturesque costumes. Mr Leslie Hughes is the courteous representative of Mr Robert Arthur, who is directing with much enterprise this fine suburban house, which is not surpassed for comfort anywhere in this overgrown London of ours.

THE KING'S, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Oct. 3, the comic opera, by Audran and Stuart, entitled "LA POUPEE."

Audran's justly-celebrated comic opera was received on its first representation at the King's on Monday evening with the enthusiasm it deserved, the pretty melodies and comical story earning all possible praise, and causing one to regret that there are so few real comic operas of this class. Mr C. P Levilly is to be commended for maintaining the standard with regard to the artistes and the elaborate scenery and dresses, everybody and everything being beyond complaint. Even two of the original Prince of Wales' Theatre company are included in the cast to revive pleasant memories of the original production, Mr Eric Thorne being a most humorous and painstaking Hilarius and Miss Stella Gastelle a handsome and talented Alesia. Their efforts alone would have won success for the opera. Mr Gerald Clifford as the simple Lancelot gains popularity by his pleasant singing and easy acting, and the Father Maximæ of Mr Newton Ide was in every respect a worthy performance, his singing of "A Jovial Monk am I" justly deserving the encore it obtained. Mr William Griffin as Loremois, and Mr Fred Seymour as Baron Chanterelle proved an amusing couple, quite to the taste of the audience. Mr Vernon Read made a staid Balthazar; Miss Madge Avery presented a pleasing picture as Madame Hilarius; Miss May Bradbury made an attractive Guduline; and Henri was brightly rendered by Miss Kitty Cavendish. The chorus is quite up to the work, the orchestra is well controlled by Mr Harry Rushworth, and the scenery and costumes are in admirable taste.

PRINCESS OF WALES'S, KENNINGTON.

On Monday, Oct. 3, the Play, in Four Acts, by Arthur W. Pinero, entitled "THE SECOND MRS TANQUERAY."

We are given to understand that Mr Pinero intended the character of Mrs Tanqueray to be played by Miss Olga Nethersole; but, unfortunately, she was not able to fill the part at the time, and that it was offered to Mrs Patrick Campbell, with the result that the latter in the character established the foundation of her successful career. Miss Nethersole, who has frequently represented the frail heroine in the provinces, gave a chance to her numerous London admirers to see her in the character on Monday at Kennington. It is not necessary to compare the two renderings—so essentially different—of the great creation of the dramatist. The "accidents" of her life, the enslaving conditions of fate and circumstance may have been and were probably due in Paula's case to the faults of temperament, and the dramatist shows by a sequence of merciless events that she should never have ascended from the muddled atmosphere of the half-world to a sphere whose cold conventions chill her very marrow. Mrs Tanqueray is not a reasoning, tactful woman. If she had been, we could imagine her taking up district visiting with Mrs Cortelyon and making up a whist party with the vicar. Aubrey expected something of this sort, or else he would never have dumped her down, soon after his marriage, among the frigid country society that was found so completely satisfying by the first lady who bore his name. Miss Olga Nethersole makes of the character a déclassée whose refinement has been lost in her numerous amours, and this reading of the character is consistently carried out in her interview with Mrs Cortelyon, in which the rudeness of the hostess of Highercombe was so accentuated on Monday that the guest might have reasonably departed in a state of indignation instead of adopting an attitude of pained disappointment. Miss Nethersole's greatest triumph comes in the scene with Ardale at the end of the third act. The implacable destiny that follows her, the sequence of unlucky circumstances that dogs her footsteps seem to strike her with horror, and the quiet despair of the distraught woman is powerfully presented. There is no lack of tenderness either in the scene of reconciliation with Ellean. Wistfulness, with an occasional sarcastic intonation, marks Miss Nethersole's delivery of the passage in which Paula, just previous to the final catastrophe, foretells to her husband the inevitable result of Time's ravages upon her physical charms. Throughout Miss Nethersole makes it palpable that Paula should never have broken away from her former life of excitement to become satiated with the dulness of respectability, but she gives one the impression that licence has coarsened her manners and robbed her of the refinement which should be innate in any woman chosen by Aubrey Tanqueray, whatever her past. Altogether the revival may be hailed as a most interesting one, as it enables London playgoers to witness an actress of great gifts in a part that has appealed to the dramatic instincts of such artists as Duse and Jane Hading, and Kennington playgoers watched the experiment on Monday with an air of keen expectancy, that developed into whole-hearted admiration as the play progressed. Miss Nethersole was well supported by Mr G. S. Titheradge, whose experience in the part of Aubrey Tanqueray served him well. He was restrained and convincing, the easy good nature of the part not being overdone. Mr Berte Thomas was clever and amusing as Cayley Drummle; Miss Frances Ivor sounded the right note of maternal solicitude and matronly dignity as Mrs Cortelyon; and Miss Madge Field made a cold and impassive Ellean—a reading of the character that quite accounted for that young lady's complete indifference to the advances of her step-mother. Mr Edward Fielding played exceedingly well as Hugh Ardale; and Lady Orreyed was effectively handled by Miss Rosalind Ivan. Mr Slaine Mills, Mr Harry Dodd, Mr Gerald Aylmer, and Mr A. E. Maskell were correct and adequate in their delineations of the other characters.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Oct. 3, the Play by J. M. Barrie, entitled "LITTLE MARY."

This "uncomfortable play" has been charming large houses at Brixton's popular theatre this week. So much has been written of the piece that further comment is unnecessary. Of the company engaged by Mr Chas. Frohman we cannot speak too highly. As the Earl of Carlton Mr Arthur Holmes Gore submitted an exceptionally clever reading of this trying rôle; as Lord Rolfe Mr Arthur Kightley was suitably cast; Mr A. W. Baskcomb as Terence Reilly was commendable; the erratic and learned physician Sir Jennings Pyke was in the always capable hands of Mr George Mudie; as the Earl of Plumleigh Mr Baskcomb caused much amusement; as Dr. Topping Mr Ean Macdonald was seen to conspicuous advantage; whilst Mr. F. T. Watts was well cast as Mr Deighton. As the Countess of Plumleigh Miss Elspeth Dudgeon submitted a suitably bombastic embodiment. Of the ladies we must accord first honours to Miss Christine Silver, as Moira Loney was charming, her every movement, her every word, indeed, her every gesture was a study in histrionic art. Miss Silver created a gigantic success. As Eleanor Gray Miss Faith Reynolds was admirable, as also was Miss Evelyn Neilida as Lady Milly.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE, N.

On Monday, Oct. 3, the Farce, in Three Acts, by George Rollitt, entitled "THE MONEY MAKERS."

For the third week in succession farce fills the bill at the Alexandra, Mr George Rollitt's amusing play The Money Makers, only recently withdrawn from the Royalty, having been presented during this week by Miss Emma and Mr Percy Hutchison's company. The adventures of the two young ladies who seek fortune by "tipping" winners have been followed by Mr Purcell's patrons with the greatest enjoyment, and the audiences that have assembled here this week have thoroughly appreciated the entertaining programme that Mr Purcell has put before them. Mr Frank Lacy, who appears as Captain Archie Fitzgerald, proves himself an admirable light comedian, and although the part is not a long one, his skilful treatment of it renders it a very prominent one. Miss Muriel Ashwynne plays Dot very cleverly indeed, Mabel being quite successfully presented by Miss Lorna Lawrence. Bella, the parlour-maid, who is largely responsible for all the trouble, is played with considerable spirit by Miss Frances Davie, and to these three ladies is due no small amount of credit for the large share they contribute to the general success of the performance. Mr Allan Thomas supplies a finished and clever piece of character acting as the old Scotchman, Matthew M'Dougall, and Miss Mary Griffiths contrives to give quite an original touch to the very ordinary part of the interfering housekeeper, Mrs Bannerman. Charlie Clifton is lightly and brightly played by Mr Edward Bonfield, and some clever character sketches come from other members of a very lengthy cast, those given by Messrs Edward Sidney, Townsend Whitling, Fred Porter, and Misses Violet Ley and Nita Alexander being specially noteworthy. The first item on the programme is Mr A. E. Drinkwater's smart little comedietta, Two in a Trap, in which Mr Frank Lacy and Miss Violet Ley are seen to decided advantage.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, Oct. 3, "ARE YOU A MASON?"

Hearty laughter is being indulged in here this week by capital audiences at Are You a Mason? as interpreted by Messrs Geo. Edwardes and Charles Frohman's company. Mr Harry Ashford succeeds in keeping the house convulsed with laughter by his most humorous reading of Amos Bloodgood. He is most capably supported by Mr Stephen Wentworth, who undertakes the part of Frank Perry with considerable success. Exceptionally clever, too, is Mr Anthony Fawcett as George Fisher, especially in his impersonation of a female, being sufficiently piquant without overdoing it. Mr Tom Mowbray gives a clever study of the retired farmer, and the eccentricities of Hamilton Travers, impersonated by Mr Frank Ridley (stage-manager, by the way), never fail to entertain the audience. Mr Valentine O'Connor does well as Ernest Morrison. As the exacting Mrs Caroline Bloodgood, Miss Harriet Trench is very convincing, and a better choice would be hard to make than the Misses Lily Beagle and Isla Glynn, who enact the rôles of Annie and Lulu Bloodgood. Miss Violet Graham gives a good and thoroughly painstaking interpretation of Eva (Mrs Perry), and Miss Mabel Yonge is by no means wanting in merit in the character of Mrs Halton, although it is only a small part. Miss Lucy Edwin scores as Lottie, and Miss Gertrude Spencer is also deserving of praise for her Fanchon Armytage. As curtain-raiser Mr W. Hall's comedietta Hushed Up is presented with considerable success by Miss Mabel Yonge, Miss Isla Glynn, and Messrs Valentine O'Connor and Tom Mowbray.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Oct. 3, the Adaptation, in Three Acts, of Alphonse Daudet's Novel, entitled "SAPHO."

Miss Olga Nethersole's company is appearing this week at the Dalston Theatre in Sapho, an adaptation of Alphonse Daudet's book of the same name. It is claimed for Sapho that it is, after all, nothing more than an interesting sermon, as sermons are generally preached from the stage—but showing in most interesting form the worst side, or, at any rate, the most frivolous side of life. It is undeniably a most telling "discourse," and no one is likely to go to sleep during the delivery. The part of Fanny Le Grand (Sapho) is taken by Miss Cecil Cromwell, who brings a considerable degree of power of expression and intense emotion to bear upon the representation. Miss Cromwell's assumption of the impulsive, passionate, but at the same time devoted Sapho is in every sense skilful and artistic. It would also be impossible to accord Mr Arthur Royston too much commendation for his rendering of the character of Jean, whose life is so bound up with that of Sapho all through the play. Mr Arthur Poole is well placed as Déchélette; Mr Cremlin is quietly effective and at times decidedly humorous as Uncle Césaire; and Mr Hodgson Taylor's career as Flamant, a forger, is watched with interest. Others in the very effective cast include Mr James Kenning, Mr Frank Melrose, Mr John Barnum, Mr John Crome, Mr Lawrence, Mr J. Masters, and Mr Knox Monk. In addition to Miss Cromwell in the title-role, the ladies appearing also include Miss Jessie Melville as Madame Hettema, Miss Florrie Rutter, Miss Maud Parry, Miss Jessie Melville, Miss Isabel Derrie, Miss Gertrude Wynter, Miss Rosa Sullivan, Miss Clara Halkin, Miss Minnie Summers, Miss Ethel Pearson, and Miss Beatrice Fairfax.

EALING THEATRE.

On Monday, Oct. 3, the Musical Comedy, in Two Acts, by Owen Hall and Paul Rubens, entitled "THE MEDAL AND THE MAID"

The Medal and the Maid was presented here for the first time by Mr Tom B. Davis's excellent company on Monday with great success. The mounting and dressing of the piece are good, and the full chorus of pretty and daintily dressed ladies help to secure the popularity this comedy deserves. Mr Tom Fancourt as Simon Pentweazle, who was recognised at once, being an old local favourite, played with his usual ability, and kept the audience in roars of laughter. Miss Rita Leonhardt as Merva Sunningdale sung songs which were appreciated, and greatly distinguished herself in the role. Miss Cissie Sephton as the fascinating Miss Ventnor cleverly enacted her part; she also has a sweet voice, which is used with effect. Josephine, the flower girl, was capably undertaken by Miss Maude Lake, and Miss Edith Blanche smartly displayed her skill in the portrayal of Mrs Habbicombe. Mr Tom Graves scored in the character of Levanter, which proved most amusing; Mr Campbell Bishop, the dignified Admiral Lord Belton, acted naturally; and Mr Cecil Kingsley played Allen Blyth in a commendable manner. The Misses Florence Cameron and Scott gave a graceful and artistic dance, which was received with applause, and Miss Lillie Learoy played prettily as Elsie Habbicombe. The Sergeant of Mr J. M. Dougall and the Kingsley of Mr Greville Hayes deserve passing notice, and a word of praise is due to Pauline Newton, who is a capable dancer and makes the most of her opportunities.

SHAKESPEARE, CLAPHAM-JUNCTION.

On Monday, Oct. 3, Dion Boucicault's Irish Drama, in Four Acts, entitled "THE SHAUGHRAUN."

This favourite old play has been attracting good houses during the past week, Mr Henry Wright as Conn being the life and soul of the piece. Miss Florence Wilton ably assisted him as Moya; Mr Percy Standing gained great applause for his excellent and soldierly rendering of the part of Captain Molyneux, while Mr Arthur Burn as the hunted Robert Ffolliott gave an acceptable rendering of the part Mr George Traverner made a fine-looking Parish Priest. Mr Frank Harding as Corry Kinchela, both in his make-up and the vigorous style of his acting as the villain, left nothing to be desired, the occupants of the cheaper parts of the house especially showing their detestation of him with unmistakable vigour. Harvey Duff, his companion in crime, received an amusing and capable interpretation at the hands of Mr Dennis Campbell. Miss Nellie Shirley made a handsome and pathetic Arte O'Neal, and Miss Nellie Howitt a sprightly Claire Ffolliott. Miss Emily Dowton was satisfactory as Mrs O'Kelly, as was also Mr E. Boddy as Sergeant Jones. The other parts were all in capable hands. The scenery and staging were effective.

LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Oct. 3, the Drama, by Dion Boucicault, entitled "THE OCTOROON"

The management, having determined on a short stock season, could not have given the direction of things to one more able to undertake the duties than Mr J. M. East, so long and popularly known in this district, and it was pleasurably noticed that he had enlisted in his company several of the favourites of former stock seasons. With The Octoroon as the pioneer, the stock season may be said to have successfully opened the ball, for Boucicault's drama attracted a large audience on Monday evening, who thoroughly enjoyed the sensationalism of the old play. Mr John D. Saunders rendered the rather melancholy George Peyton in manly fashion, and Mr Charles A. East gave an altogether interesting representation of the rough diamond, Salem Scudder. Mr J. J. Bartlett was quite at home revelling in the villainies of the rascally Jacob M'Closkey, while Mr J. Nelson Ramsey provided Wahno-tee with the necessary impressiveness. The boy, Paul, was excellently played by Miss May Henderson, and Mr Fred Groves deserves praise for his Mr Sunnyside. Mr Charles Groves was an emphatic Captain Ratts and Mr John Henderson acted capitally as "ole uncle," Pete. Miss Essex Dane renewed her hold upon the affections of the theatre patrons by her sincere portraiture of Zoe, the octoroon girl. Mrs Peyton was bravely enacted by Miss Meta Pelham, and Miss Ida Phillips gave a fascinating performance of Dora Sunnyside. The services of real Negroes were enlisted to illustrate the plantation choruses and dances, and they met with much approval.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Oct. 3, the Comedy, in Four Acts, by J. M. Barrie, entitled "QUALITY STREET."

Dwellers in London's Eastern suburb may prefer their dramatic fare served in somewhat more solid form than in the presentment of such a graceful and fragile play as Quality Street, but those to whom this class of piece appeals are receiving it with unbounded delight, and its return engagement this week at the Stratford Borough Theatre is a wise stroke of policy on the part of Mr Fred Fredericks, who well succeeds in his aim to provide variation in catering for the delectation of his numerous patrons. Messrs A. and S. Gatti and Charles Frohman's company is nearly identical with that seen here before, and the same high standard is maintained in the way of dressing and mounting. Mr David Glassford as Valentine Brown makes the young soldier as handsome and as debonair as ever, and repetition only seems to add, if possible, ripeness to his performance. Miss Grace Armytage Noble's embodiment of Miss Phœbe Throssell is a delightful piece of acting, and Miss May Whitty merits every praise for her enactment of Miss Susan Throssell. Mr A. Carlaw Grand cleverly realises the idiosyncracies of Ensign Blades; Mr Arthur T. Hill is capital as Lieutenant Spicer, Mr Gordon Tomkins makes a smart recruiting sergeant, and a Waterloo veteran is safely entrusted to Mr T. Langton Lane The Misses Willoughby are admirably portrayed by Miss Rollo Deas and Miss Bertha Woolcote; Miss Evelyn Mills does well as Miss Henrietta Turnbull; and Miss Charlotte Parratt is brightly played by Miss Alma Reeves Smith. Miss Lizzie Scobie is a most amusing Patty; and Miss Daisy Lee as Isabella and Miss Mabel Wynne as Harriett are quite satisfactory; while an intelligent rendering of Master Arthur Wellesley Tompson comes from Master Robbins.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Oct. 3, the Drama, in Four Acts, by William Bourne, entitled "WHEN DARKNESS FALLS."

Time has developed When Darkness Falls into a first-class dramatic attraction, and Monday night, which ushered in its third visit to Stratford, saw the piece gain an enthusiastic reception from a well-filled house. The drama is interpreted by a strong cast, and is mounted appropriately and with a due regard for detail. Mr Charles Boult is virile and earnest as the sorely-tried Captain Harold Montrevor; and Mr Frank Liston plays with sincerity and conviction as the Rev. Arthur Graham. Mr Ellis J. Preston contributes a sterling performance as the rascally James Woodruffe; and Mr Will Clement is responsible for unlimited mirth by his droll impersonation of the Hibernian Mike Cavanagh. Bertin is convincingly played by Mr Tom Roydon; Mr Dan Osborne makes an alert Inspector Digby; and Mr Henry Heyes fulfils all requirements as Willoughby. Miss Maud Buchanan plays with charm and sympathy as the much persecuted Helen Mortrever, in direct contrast to whom is the virago Mrs Woodruffe, whose jealous and vicious nature is portrayed with much dramatic power and feeling by Miss Amy Vennimore. Miss Lydia Hart has a capital part as the generous young vagabond Jim, whose depravity is more due to fate than nature, and she makes the utmost of her opportunities; and the well-intentioned youngster Harry receives most effective treatment at the hands of Miss Alys Eden. Miss Emmeline Glover gives a quite satisfactory rendering of Jenny.

OPERA HOUSE, CROUCH-END.

On Monday, Oct. 3, the Play in Three Acts, from the French, entitled "THE MARRIAGE OF KITTY."

This welcome return visit of Mr Frank Wilson's company has proved a great attraction this week. The piece needs no praise from us, its reputation having long ere this been established. The cast is a well chosen one, and the mounting—notably the scene of acts two and three—calls for recommendation. As the fickle-minded baronet Sir Reginald Belsize Mr Frank Wilson imparts an amount of vigour to the interpretation which is refreshing. Mr Sidney Orton as John Travers presents a good picture of the legal luminary; and Mr J. F. Leighton as Norbury and Mr Royston Keith, jun., as Hampton are both capable exponents of their respective rôles. Miss Averil May piquantly plays the French maid Rosalie; the impersonation of Madame De Semlano by Miss Kate Harwood is thoroughly amusing, and as the heroine of the play Miss Vera Fordyce's portrayal is worthy of the highest praise.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, Oct. 3, the Drama, entitled "ONE OF THE BEST."

A return visit is being made here this week by Mr Robert Arthur's company in Seymour Hicks and George Edwardes's stirring play. Mr Stanley Bedwell in the part of the wrongfully-convicted officer, Dudley Keppel, displays sound acting and elocutionary powers; Mr E. Bellenden Clarke plays with power as the rascally Philip Elsworth; good character work is contributed by Charles Medwin as the garrulous gravedigger, Jason Jupp; Mr Herbert Darnley once again delights an audience with his free and humorous impersonation of the Anglo-Scotch soldier, Private Jupp. Mr H. F. Maltby is excellent as General Coventry; Mr George Hart is a dignified Sir Archibald M'Gregor; quiet and impressive is the tone of Mr Wilfrid Beckworth's Dr. Penrose; Mr W. Templer Powell is incisive as the French spy, De Gruchy; and Mr Bland Randall scores well as Sergeant Hennessy. Miss Helen Haye shows good dramatic power as Esther Coventry; Miss Jeanette Le Gros is pathetic as Mary Penrose; Miss Lilla Norden is clever and pert as the lady's-maid, Kitty Spencer; and Mrs Spencer has a capable representative in Miss Nellie Gilmore. Intelligence marks the acting in several minor parts, and the stage-management is excellent.

GREENWICH THEATRE, S.E.

On Monday, Oct. 3, the Drama entitled "THE BELLS OF HASLEMERE."

Messrs Henry Pettitt and Sidney Grundy's excellent drama is ably interpreted by Mr Charles A. Chandler's capital company. Mr Chandler himself makes a notable success in the part of Captain Vere, and his death scene is most effective. Mr Leonard Yorke is a manly and earnest Frank Beresford, and plays throughout with unflagging energy and spirit. He is cleverly supported by Mr C. Cecil, whose Reuben Armstrong is a great feature of the production, and by Mr Douglas Hamilton, whose Matthew Brookfield proves him to be an actor of ability. Mr Montague Turner gives a clever and incisive rendering of the part of John Silkstone—always consistent and never exaggerated; Mr Fred F. Allen is good as Joseph Thorndyke; Mr Charles Clark is a competent Patrick Desmond; and Captain Salem is safe in the hands of Mr Powell James. The remaining male parts are well acted by Messrs Ted Stone, George Roberts, J. G. Kelly, Harry James, H. White, W. Stevens, and James Bode. Miss Mary Hardacre is a charming and pathetic Evelyn Brookfield; Miss Stafford Smith plays Mary Northcote admirably; Miss Lilian Rignold is a bright and pleasing Dorothy Tremble; and Miss Florence Chandler is excellent as Norah Desmond. The play is well mounted.

TERRISS THEATRE.

On Monday, Oct 3, the Drama, by Dion Boucicault, entitled

"THE COLLEEN BAWN."

Mr Dion Boucicault's famous drama, The Colleen Bawn, is the principal attraction at this theatre this week, and very good business is being done. Mr Newman Maurice is very amusing as Myles-na-Coppaleen, keeping the audience in a perpetual state of merriment during the time he occupies the stage. Hardress Cregan is remarkably well impersonated by Mr Felix Pitt, who thoroughly enters into the spirit of the part. Mr Lionel D'Aragon, who appears as Kyrle Daly, plays with an energy and will that are much appreciated. Miss Eugenie Magnus has excellently conceived her rôle of Eily O'Connor, and carries out the conception most effectively. A clever sketch of Sheelagh is presented by Miss Hulo Hodgson, and Miss Rosemary Rees gives a good reading of Anne Chute. The rest of the characterts are suitably cast. The production is preceded by what is described as a "mirth-provoking absurdity" entitled Out You Go, in which the principal part is essayed by Mr Newman Maurice. The variety element consists of Mr George Scott, a very capable comedian; and Jacko, the man monkey.

GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Oct. 3, the Musical Play, entitled "THE ORCHID."

Mr George Dance's company has been here this week, and has been playing to excellent business, for the people of Woolwich have not been slow to seize this, their first chance of seeing the latest Gaiety success at their own theatre. Miss Ethel Bryant was charmingly vivacious as Lady Violet Anstruther, and soon danced and sang herself into general favour. Her greatest success was undoubtedly her rendering of the "Little Mary" song, which was received with rounds of applause and repeated demands for encore verses. Miss Madge Lucas made a hit as Caroline Vokins, rattling through her part with great spirit, and fairly bringing down the house with some of her songs. Miss Irene Desmond was a graceful Josephine Zaccary, and has a nice voice, which was several times heard to considerable advantage. As Zelie Rumbert, an adventuress, Miss Eve Melville acquitted herself admirably; Miss Ida Chichester was a distinguished-looking Countess Anstruther; and Miss Poppy Wilkinson looked bewitching and danced gracefully as Thisbe. As Meakin Mr Bertie Wright was in his element, and kept his audience in a continual ripple of laughter, his sayings and doings being followed with the most eager attention throughout. The duel scene was a most ludicrous performance, and Mr Wright's final dash across the stage, armed with a huge two-handed sword, was received with uproarious laughter. Mr G. Davy Burnaby contributed a clever piece of acting as the Hon. Guy Serymgeour, and his duet with Mr Wright, "When will justice be done?" was loudly encored. Mr Ernest Darrell, cleverly made up to resemble a well-known statesman, was very successful as Aubrey Chesterton, his "pushful" song being one of the hits of the evening. Mr Edmund Page was amusing as De Cassignat. Mr Arthur P. Hemsley scored heavily as Zaccary, singing well and dancing marvellously. Mr Edmund Hollick made the most of his opportunities as Dr. Fausset, and Messrs W. Simpson and C. Campbell were amusing as the two seconds. The chorus was pretty and tuneful, and rendered the concerted numbers with good effect.

PRINCE OF WALES'S, RICHMOND.

The D'Oyly Carte principal répertoire company has been drawing crowded houses nightly at this theatre. Commencing the week with the ever-popular Mikado, the company gave an excellent performance of Iolanthe on Tuesday. In this opera Mr H. White was a most effective Lord Chancellor, and Mr Fred Drawater and Mr Pacie Ripple were equally successful as the Earl of Mountararat and Earl Tolloler. Mr Fred Billington was very diverting as Private Willis, of the Grenadier Guards. Mr Albert Kavanagh sang and played in irreproachable style in the part of Strephon, an Arcadian shepherd. Miss Theresa Ransam was very imposing as the Queen of the Fairies, and possesses a fine voice, which she used to great effect. As Phyllis, an Arcadian shepherdess and ward in Chancery, Miss Nora Maguire looked enchanting, and was a great favourite throughout. Miss Jessie Rose in the title-part sang prettily, and added greatly to the evening's enjoyment. The parts of the fairies—Celia, Leila, and Fleta—were admirably played by Miss Bessie Mackenzie, Miss Mabel Burnege, and Miss Maggie Marshall respectively. The chorus sang wonderfully well, and the orchestra was ably conducted by Mr T. Silver.

"THE MUSIC MASTER."

A Comedy-Drama, in Three Acts, by Charles Klein, Produced at the Belasco Theatre, New York, on Sept. 26

(FROM OUR NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT.)

Since he became a prominent figure in New York theatricals Mr David Warfield's skill has chiefly lent itself to depicting certain "East-side" Hebrew types. But now, as Herr Anton Von Barwig, in the play under notice, he has set aside the old characterisations and made his appearance in a line of work entirely new. Von Barwig was the director of the opera in Dresden. His wife deserted him, taking their little daughter with her to America. To find them becomes the one object in Von Barwig's life, for which he throws all else aside. He emigrates to America, and the proprietor of the Liberty Café engages him as leader of the orchestra, with the three members of which he lives in lodgings on the "East-side," leading a sort of happy-go-lucky bohemian existence. Circumstances bring his own child, now grown to beautiful young womanhood, and living in luxury with her supposed father, the man who has betrayed the old musician, to these lodgings to arrange for music-lessons. Von Barwig goes daily to her home, and from this point onward the dramatic interest centres in the two personalties, father and daughter, and the play of emotions when Von Barwig realises that his pupil is his own child; when he comes face to face with the man who has spoilt his life; and when he decides not to disclose his identity because it would ruin his daughter's prospects of happiness in her approaching marriage. With patient resignation Von Barwig decides to go away. But the daughter has begun to suspect the truth. She comes to him, and, in an affecting scene, succeeds in breaking down his resolution of self-sacrifice.

Mr Warfield gave a faithful portrayal of the old German maestro, and the critics have praised his performance very highly, pronouncing him one of the finest character-actors on the American stage. The play was produced in an admirable manner by Mr Belasco, who made a speech, in which he paid his respects once more to the combination of managers known as "the syndicate."

MR EDWARD GORDON CRAIG, has been commissioned to paint scenery for the Lessing Theatre, Berlin.

"THE VALUE OF BEING EXTINCT."

A New and Original Frivolous Farce, in Three Acts, by Charles James and Charles Goodhart Produced for the First Time at the Royal County Theatre, Kingston, on Monday, Oct. 3.

Alfred Wormsworth	Mr CHARLES GOODHART
William Shave	Mr SEBASTIAN SMITH
Austen Lee	Mr CLARENCE BLAKISTON
Fowler Lloyd	Mr H. TRIPP EDGAR
Kennington Butts	Mr REGINALD J. BARKER
W. Devereux Brown	Mr J. BRABOURNE
Jenkins	Mr G. BREWER
The Hon. Mrs Edward Littlejohn	Miss ELSIE CHESTER
Christabel Vere	Miss MADGE M'INTOSH

There is a good deal in Messrs James and Goodhart's farce, appropriately described as frivolous, that was not apparent to the audience that witnessed its first production at the riverside theatre on Monday night. As a skit upon poets, sculptors, critics, and book publishers, it is clever in its way, and, in addition, it is enriched by a plethora of smart sayings and poetic quotations that ought to command the admiration of the ordinary onlooker; but, unfortunately, these two features—and, apart from the plot, they constitute its chief charm—were lost upon the bulk of the audience.

The plot, briefly described, is as follows:—A certain Alfred Wormsworth, a book publisher, has a young poet of the name of Austen Lee in his following, whose works, however, never seem to take with the public. The poet of a rival publishing firm dying, and, as is frequently the case, his erstwhile unknown works becoming very much in demand, the mercenary idea occurs to Mr Wormsworth that if his poet could be prevailed upon to die also he might reap a rich return for the losses he has sustained. So the two confer together, and agree that young Lee shall pretend to have committed suicide by leaving his clothes on a canal bank and then disappearing, whilst Wormsworth will cheer his solitude with a substantial cheque out of the proceeds of the increased sale of his latest book, "Marsh Mallow and Silversand."

In the first act, in which this agreement takes place, we are introduced to the Hon. Mrs Edward Littlejohn, a lady with a sympathetic leaning towards all poets, and a young lady, Christabel Vere, her ward, who reflects this characteristic of her guardian in an exaggerated degree. The literary world is startled by the news of the supposed lamentable end of young Lee, and the astute publisher discovers, as he expected, that his book is greatly in demand by the public. By no one, however, is the book more eagerly read than the Hon. Mrs Edward Littlejohn and Miss Vere, the latter always carrying a copy of the precious volume with her wherever she goes, and quoting from its pages in season and out. But their grief at the tragic end of the author, whose works, by-the-way, they never thought much of when he was alive, is poignant, and in the second act preparations have just been completed to unveil a statue to his memory in the grounds of the elder lady's mansion. Amongst the company invited to witness the ceremony is a Mr Ernest Lee, who represents himself to be the brother of the departed. In reality, however, he is the poet himself, who, hearing of the new-born affection of the young lady for him and his book, has come to put the lady's affection to the test by declaring himself. The publisher prevails upon him to remain silent a little longer, but the youth's impetuosity cannot altogether be restrained, and so he announces that it was he who wrote the much-talked-of book, though he used his dead brother's name. This apparent attempt to tear the laurels from the brow of the dead only recoils upon his own head, for everyone upbraids him for it and leaves him, and then in a moment of anger he knocks off the head of the luckless statue of himself, which turns out to be made of plaster of Paris. Christabel is nearly distraught at the outrage, and in the third act, she is found talking words of love to the plaster of Paris head, as if it were a live thing, and heaping kisses upon it in the intervals. Two grotesque proposals of marriage by the critic and the sculptor do not at all tend to assuage her grief, and it is only when young Lee once more comes on the scene that her heart is touched. This time he comes dressed in his usual garb, and declares his real identity. The lady coquettes, and says that her love for the poet was only an intellectual love, and that it was his brother, Ernest Lee, who had really won her heart. But she is utterly disarmed when Lee discloses that he and Ernest Lee are the same. When everybody, except the publisher, seems very happy at the return of the young poet to life, a page boy makes the startling discovery that the much-talked-of book, "Marsh Mallow and Silversand," was a plagiarism after all.

Mr Reginald J. Barker's company, who appeared in the farce, did it every justice. Chief honours are due to Miss Madge M'Intosh for a charming impersonation of the impressionable Christabel Vere. Mr Clarence Blakiston also acquitted himself with distinction as the poet. Excellent work was done by Mr Charles Goodhart as Wormsworth, the publisher, and Mr H. Tripp Edgar and Mr J. Brabourne gave capital character sketches as Fowler Lloyd, the critic, and W. Devereux Brown, the sculptor. Miss Elsie Chester was an admirable Mrs Littlejohn, and the part of a page boy, William Shave, found a capable exponent in Mr Sebastian Smith.

The play was preceded by a new one-act play entitled

"A SOLDIER OF THE CZAR."

General Ivan Nickovitch	Mr CHARLES GOODHART
Captain Denhoff, A.D.C.	Mr FRANK HARRIS
Lieut. Alexis Garki	Mr H. TRIPP EDGAR
Sergeant Jasnisky	Mr G. BREWER
Madame Zuroff.....	Miss MADGE M'INTOSH

In this clever morceau the action takes place at the War Office at St. Petersburg, where we find a young captain of the name of Denhoff sentenced to death by General Nickovitch for allowing a prisoner to escape. Madame Zuroff, the general's mistress, pleads fervently for the young man's life, but unavailingly, except that, when the lady has left, the General gives Denhoff the opportunity of taking his own life. Denhoff retires, thankful for thus escaping the shame of a public execution, when the lady returns and renews her pleading, and it is only when she finds that the General is adamant that she declares that the condemned man is the offspring of their illicit love. But it is too late, for at that moment a shot is heard. Miss Madge M'Intosh was impressive as Madame Zuroff, and Mr Frank Harris gave a fine manly interpretation of the part of the young captain.

CHILDREN ON THE STAGE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—How vividly exemplified is the Scriptural allusion, "straining at gnats and swallowing camels," when the present mode of procedure compels us on a Monday morning to apply for a licence to enable a young girl of well over thirteen years of age to appear for a few minutes on the stage in Sapho. This child, together with her mother and myself, are sometimes compelled to wait half an hour or more listening to the most sordid details of the charges at an ordinary police-court on a Monday morning. My contention is—far more harm is done to a child hearing and seeing all this than half an hour's appearance in a well-conducted theatre, surrounded by ladies and gentlemen of the profession, and her every comfort attended to.

Why cannot these applications be made in the magistrate's private room, or, at any rate, at the commencement of the proceedings

Yours faithfully, HENRY TWEEDIE,
Manager, Miss Olga Nethersole's Sapho company.
Dalston Theatre, Oct. 5, 1904.

FAMOUS SCENIC ARTISTS.

MR. HAWES CRAVEN.

Mr Hawes Craven was born at Leeds, in Yorkshire. His parents were both in the profession. They were in the York circuit, so that he had plenty of moving about, and very early began to understand how things were done in a theatre. The dresses and the scenery had a wonderful fascination for him, so he began with a pencil to smake sketches of the characters, then the costumes, and the incidents of the various plays that touched his fancy or imagination. His mother soon gave up acting and took to writing for the local papers and stories for the magazines. His father still adhered to the theatrical work, and took his son with him about from place to place, ultimately to London, where they joined the old Marylebone Theatre, thence to the Strand Theatre, then called "Punch's Playhouse," under the management of Mr Copeland, of Liverpool. Young Craven had strong ideas of what he should like to be, and used to watch Dearlove, the scene painter, by the hour. One day he caught the lad peeping through the crack of the door. After asking him some questions, Mr Dearlove advised him to go to the School of Design, Marlborough House, and learn to draw. At the end of two years the youthful artist had carried off all the prizes for drawing in outline from the flat and the round. Then he got himself apprenticed to a clever scene painter, named John Gray, at the Britannia Theatre in Hoxton. Here he obtained a good deal of practice. They only did the special work such as the pantomime, a new piece, for Easter, and an autumn drama. Mr Gray having attracted attention by some really fine work, was offered a West-end engagement, and took young Craven with him to the Olympic Theatre, under the management of Alfred Wigan, which merged into that of Emden and Robson. Mr Craven recollects that the first piece they did was Catching a Mermaid, and a burlesque called The Discreet Princess. Having made some progress, he was offered the engagement of second painter. Then commenced his real experience, which came about through Mr Gray being seized with rheumatic fever. To use Mr Craven's own words:—"One day some gentlemen came up to the painting room concerning the production of a new piece, and the preparation of scenery for it. Mr Emden, who was manager of the theatre then with Mr Robson, asked me if I thought that I could do the work myself. The new scene was to represent the interior of a lighthouse. Another gentlemen who was looking through a portfolio of my sketches from nature, questioned me very closely. Had I ever seen a lighthouse? I said yes. Among my holidays I had been to Plymouth, and been to the Eddystone, further I had taken sketches, not only of the exterior, but the interior of the lighthouse and of its predecessors, which were hung and framed in the living room there. My old habit of drawing everything I saw stood me well then. They said they would like to see my sketches. Next day I brought them, and they came to see them. One of these gentlemen was Mr Charles Dickens, who passed them over to another gentleman, who decided they were of some merit, and to his knowledge particularly truthful—in fact, just what they wanted, the action of the play taking place in the living room of the Eddystone Lighthouse, a night scene with a violent storm. It was agreed that I should do the scene. As soon as this was settled the gentleman who had my sketches in his hand, produced one of his own—Eddystone Lighthouse during a storm, with a wild moonlight sky, a passing vessel, and some wreckage in the wild waters. This was one of the finest things I had then seen, and no wonder, it was Clarkson Stanfield himself I was talking to—Clarkson Stanfield, the great scene painter, the Royal Academician, the finest marine painter living. He said 'I want you to copy this, young man, for me, but do it large and do it in scenic colours on scenic canvas, that I may form my judgment. I will come in a couple of days to see it.' How I did work! I was at it early and late. I made a sketch 10ft. by 8ft. They all came to the appointment—Mr Clarkson Stanfield, Mr Charles Dickens, Mr Wilkie Collins, Mr Emden, and Mr Frederick Robson, the famous actor. 'Bravo,' said Stanfield, 'you shall paint that again—larger. You shall paint it as an act drop for this play for this theatre, as an idea of my own.' And I did. I also painted the scene and made my first success. Mr Stanfield gave me his own drawing as a reward, and the management raised my salary."

Thinking to improve himself, Mr Craven next joined the celebrated William Beverley at the Theatre Royal, Drury-lane, then under the management of E. T. Smith. The work done for the pantomimes at that period was quite Mr Craven's idea of what scenery should be. On one occasion, when the pantomime was in full swing and they were approaching Christmas, some disaffection occurred amongst the assistants, and most of them suddenly left, there being no written engagements. Mr Craven remained. Mr Beverley said nothing, but he did something. Every painting frame was filled at once with scenery to be painted which would have fallen to the lot of the assistants up to Christmas. Beverley worked on for fifty-six hours. Mr Craven is proud to be able to say he stood by his side working all the time. After that they worked a week the regular time, 10 0 a.m till 10 0 p.m. Again they had fifty-six hours consecutively. For refreshments they had sherry and eggs, dry toast and tea, nothing else. This went on till arrears were caught up and all was as if nothing had happened. These long hours reminded Mr Craven of an anecdote of an old scene painter at the Adelphi, named Tom Pitt, a worker who conscientiously ignored everything but what he had to do. He was hard at work for the new piece for Boxing Night—the night was Christmas Eve. Midnight was then striking. The bells from the churches round rang out their joyful peals. Poor old Tom Pitt—he heard them—gave a grim but determined smile, put down the brush, and said "No, I will have one evening to myself."

Another anecdote of a similar character. Mr Craven was working hard at Covent-garden, and had heard the midnight hour, then the hour of one, then the hour of two. He then gave up, and was leaving the theatre by the stage-door when he met Mr Augustus Harris, the father of the late Sir Augustus Harris. He stopped short, and, regarding Mr Craven with a surprised look, said "What, Craven, you're not going to leave off yet, are you? The new opera comes out next week. I am just going to begin." He went back with Mr Harris. They had sardines, dry toast, and a bottle of claret, and they both went to work till the next night, leaving off together as the clock struck midnight.

When the pantomime was over at Drury-lane, Mr Beverley and Mr Craven went regularly to Covent-garden Opera House. He recollects well when it had just been rebuilt after the fire. The new painting room was the largest and highest in all England. Then commenced Grand Opera. During the management of Frederick Gye, the well-known impresario of Covent-garden, he did then all the scenery for the great operas—Huguenots, Robert the Devil, Der Freischutz, Norma, Dinorah, Marta, and many others.

After some years Mr Craven joined Charles Fechter, and did most of the work for Monte Cristo, The Duke's Motto, No Thoroughfare, Black and White, Bel Demonio, The King's Butterfly, until the end of the Lyceum seasons under Fechter. In due course he was engaged by Mr H. L. Bateman for the Lyceum Theatre. Upon the death of Mr Bateman Henry Irving became manager, and the work that has been done at the Lyceum since that time speaks for itself, and is known the world over. The list includes Richelieu, Hamlet, Macbeth, Belle's Stratagem, Philip, Much Ado About Nothing, Faust, Charles I., Becket, King Arthur, Romeo and Juliet, Olivia, Coriolanus, Cymbeline, Richard III., The Amber Heart, The Dead Heart, The Cup, Eugene Aram, The Bells, The Merchant of Venice, Louis XI., Vanderdecken, King Lear, Corsican Brothers, Queen Mary, The Lyons Mail, Werner, Ravenswood, and many others. Sir Henry Irving considered it necessary that Mr Craven should visit the several countries wherein the scenes of the plays were laid, so that the impression of fidelity might be given to all the characteristics, only obtainable by working from the real thing, a practice Mr Craven has followed all his life, as necessary to success.

COVENT-GARDEN BALL.

The first fancy dress ball of the season, under the management of Messrs Frank Rendle and Neil Forsyth, took place at the Royal Opera House, Covent garden, on the night of the 30th ult. Judging by the attendance these festive gatherings will be as popular this season as they have been in the past. Glitter and gaiety were the predominating features, and the pretty and picturesque costumes of the ladies gave that attractive quality to the scene which makes these balls pleasant entertainments for those who do nothing but look on from the tiers of boxes. Mr Dan Godfrey's fine orchestra again discoursed charming music to which nimble and willing feet gracefully responded. Messrs Frank Rendle and Neil Forsyth had made many small improvements, dictated by the experience of years, for the comfort and convenience of their supporters, and the supper tables, in particular, which now command such a fine view of the ballroom, quickly found eager occupants. The inventiveness and ingenuity in design of the modern costumier were again strongly in evidence. Amongst the dresses which attracted special attention was one called "The Last Days of Pompeii," a handsome costume, supplied by Mr W. Clarkson. The skirt was of white satin, with frills of grey chiffon representing smoke, and was trimmed with jewels and red and white roses; the gaieties of Rome, a fight with the gladiators, and the Coliseum were portrayed on hand-painted panels. The bodice was of shaded chiffon, to represent fire and smoke, and was decorated with jewels. A striking headdress cleverly suggested a burning volcano, folds of chiffon, shaded to represent falling lava, depending from it. On the cloak was painted a volcano in eruption, with people rushing for safety to the seashore. The costume was brilliantly lit up with electric lights, which greatly enhanced its bizarre appearance. Other noticeable dresses supplied by Mr Clarkson were a charming dress depicting various episodes of 1904, the headdress taking the pretty form of a calendar, flowers in season each month representing them; "Nell Gwynne, Orange Girl," and "Harlequina." Though, as usual, gentlemen had not donned fancy dress as generally as might have been wished, there were various handsome and amusing disguises. Amongst the latter a gentleman in navvy dress, with tar and bricks as appropriate accompaniments, picturesquely represented that constant cause of annoyance to Londoners—Roads Up. Other gentlemen's costumes were the Marquess of Anglesea, Charles II, and "Sunny Jim." The first prize was well worth the winning, and so were the others, but the diamond and opal crescent brooch was the object which most fascinated the eyes of the fair section of those who were present. Mr Clarkson was successful in gaining second prize for "The Last Days of Pompeii;" also prizes for "Charles II." and Nell Gwynne," "Episodes of 1904" (fourth prize), "The Far East," "Encyclopædia Britannica." "London County Council Improvements—'Roads Up,'" &c.

A FAREWELL POEM.

The following verses were addressed to Sir Henry Irving at the close of his recent farewell visit to Wales.

Farewell, good Friend and gifted. We shall miss
Thy noble face and presence from the stage,
Thy strong endeavours and thy counsel sage,
The art that showed us what true acting is.
Thou leavest England's drama worthier far
Than when in olden days thou trodst the boards;
And this the lesson that thy life affords—
The stately waning of thy glorious star.
To seek perfection ever; not content
With things that brood upon the common plane;
But raise and purify to live again,
And gleam the brighter for new radiance lent.
"The utmost for the highest"—such the spell
Of thine own weaving. Let the memory be
Like to thyself, all greatness, purity
And truth. Good Friend, a lingering, long farewell.

NEWS has been received of the death in Paris of M. Samuel Rousseau, the well-known composer, after a long and painful illness. He was fifty-one years of age. He wrote Dinorah for the Opéra Comique, and then Mérovig, a lyrical drama, which was produced at the Grand Theatre, in the Rue Boudreau. In 1888 his Cloche du Rhin was performed for the first time at the Grand Opéra. The Dernier Bandit, composed by Rousseau at the request of M. Albert Carré is his last work. It is derived from the novel by M. Emanuel Arène, and its production at the Opéra Comique is looked forward to as one of the musical events of the coming season.

THE astute Mr Frank Curzon has acquired a powerful and original new song written by Herbert Shelley for Mr Farren Soutar, in Sergeant Brue.

AT the Opera House, Treherbert, Messrs Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company is appearing this week with The Village Blacksmith. Mr Sam Livesey as the Blacksmith is most effective; Mr Joseph Carter takes the part of Captain Leo in a distinctly clever manner; and Mr George V. Campbell causes laughter. Miss Ethel Kay as the blacksmith's wife takes her part exceedingly well; Miss Maggie Edwardes sings "Alice, Where Art Thou?" with good effect. The wrestling match is exceptionally exciting.

THEATRICAL ANECDOTES.

(BY AN ACTRESS OF EXPERIENCE)

IN playing Called Back, a young actor also essayed the part of the absent juvenile, and the Gilbert was to have said, "Her body goes to England with me, but her soul—is with the dead man in his grave."

The comforter should say "Take courage, Gilbert; things will end happily."

"It may be so," rejoins Gilbert, "if I could think so."

Cheerfully the comforter replies, "Let us hope so, Gilbert."

Now, Gilbert stopped at "her soul is with the dead man in his grave," and the comforter replied as above, hoping that it was so. It rather twisted things.

IN the last act of A Pair of Spectacles, as everybody knows, the whole plot rests on the return of the pair of spectacles, and then the owner takes a roseate view of life, and all ends amicably.

Without these identical specs, with conspicuous gold rims, the point is lost. I discovered no gold-rimmed spectacles could be found. No specs! What could be done? Happy thought! I rushed on the stage mysteriously. The actor playing the part stared at me—thought me mad, no doubt. Mysteriously I beckoned him. He came, looking much surprised. I bent down and whispered, "Where are the specs? I cannot find them."

"In my pocket," said he, sotto voce.

He also bent down; then he drew the specs from his pocket (concealing them) and said, "Oh, yes, yes, Joyce, here the keys are. Take them."

"Thank you, sir," said I, and popped off. One line and I returned with the specs. "If you please, sir, here are your specs," &c., and the piece finished happily as usual.

These are little bits of fun of which the audience never wots unless someone reveals the joke as I now do. By-the-way, this happened at Clacton-on-Sea. What a hot summer! What a price for digs!

IN The Stranger one of the characters should say, "How fast you walk, Mrs Waller; do you think I'm like the Sultan with the marble legs?"

But he was nervous, and said instead, "Zounds, Mrs Waller, do you think a—a—ahem—do you think I've got marble legs?"

ON one of our vacation tours in Scotland, some half-dozen of our company elected to walk. The ladies went in a waggon or any conveyance that could be got; no railway was near.

Naturally, the quickest walker got on ahead, and found himself far beyond his companions. He was a nice fellow, quiet, never in scrapes or any arguments. He simply would not quarrel. Well, he found himself in rather a bleak place; the rain steadily continued to fall. He tried standing under a tree. Not comfortable, so he decided to climb up, chose a nice seat, and got his book out. Feeling sure the other actors would pass the tree, resolved to have a little joke.

Sure enough, two presently appeared, and sheltered under the identical tree.

"Well, I'll not be sorry when the rain stops,' said one.

Up above, our actor gave a terrible groan.

"What's that?" said one, a bit nervous.

This he repeated till the joke was thin; then he called out, "Here we are again," and discovered his whereabouts.

"Good gracious" said one. "The good young man; the one—we've found him up a tree at last!"

He never heard the last of that. If I mistake not, Mr W. Glenney was the actor under the tree.

"No good opening to-night, there's a circus billed. Well, all meet at my house, and have a jollification." So spoke our manager.

Now, we were rather short of cash, but had the wherewithal to have a jolly time, as Widdy's sister's young man, who was something in the provision line, had sent Widdy some tinned meats and fish and other edibles. How we blessed Widdy' sister's young man! and how funny Widdy was! How he rang a big bell, and got people in to see our show! But I wander from the subject.

We had a lovely night at home. Well, next day the manager inquired, "How did the circus do last night?"

"Oh, they didn't show. They saw a theatrical company billed so they thought it no good. They just passed through the town, and put up with the cost of the billing."

Each frightened the other away. This happened in a little town not a hundred miles from Wincanton.

WE were playing After Dark, or was it The Scamps of London? I forget now, anyhow, one Herbert has an appointment to meet the Jew—the heavy man—at a certain dark archway. Our heavy man was rather careless of the cues he gave.

Our juvenile man was ill, so our baggage man, Beverley, undertook to play the part of Herbert. They joked him a great deal, but he was an earnest little fellow, and replied, "I shall speak the lines; I'll not be imperfect. You can say what you like, I shall study the words and speak them."

Now, when Herbert enters the Jew should say "You're here, my dear, you're here. They said you would not come."

"Tis false!" Herbert should reply.

What the Jew did say was this:—"Ah here he is—here he is! Ma tear, glad to see you, you're here, my tear!"

The Herbert placed one hand dramatically in his coat, and said in a loud voice "'Tis false!"

WHEN the late Barry Sullivan, the tragedian of the provinces, was playing Richard III. he arranged business as follows. After a big fight to rush down stage, sword in hand, and strike down the actor who stood extreme left down stage, waiting to receive the blow and be disarmed.

"You might do this, Howse," said Barry Sullivan to our comedian, William Howse. "Hold your sword firmly. I strike it down and disarm you."

Now, William Howse was a quiet, nice fellow—a little eccentric, perhaps, nervous or shy, or perhaps both, and was perhaps a little nervous of Mr Sullivan. And Sullivan was a strong, robust man, and very severe if any business he arranged was not done exactly as he wished.

Well, Howse was very nervous. That I saw. He was walking about rubbing his hands (an accustomed action with him when nervous), he would drop his head, look up timidly with his big, black eyes, and rub his hands most cheerfully, no matter what he did wrong. I think no one could have been cross with him; his manner disarmed severity. Well, the cue came; that is, the cue for Howse to rush on and firmly grasp his sword down stage. He did so. Sullivan (Richard) took one wild rush down, waving the sword frantically. Quicker than thought, before Richard could reach him, poor Howse dropped the sword, and ran. Away he went to his dressing-room.

Meanwhile the curtain fell. Barry Sullivan, the manager, and Cathcart—an old tragedian well known to many even now—were standing together, almost speechless. At last said Sullivan:—

"Where is that man!"

Poor Howse, who had been thinking that he must meet Mr Sullivan and excuse himself, had decided to return and apologise.

"Where is that man?" demanded Sullivan.

"Here, sir," said a faint, weak voice, and poor Howse entered from the extreme top of stage, his hands briskly employed in rubbing themselves together, his head down, his eyes up, with such an expression of shamefacedness, a mixture of remorse, apology, and timidity, that the whole trio roared with laughter.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

At a special meeting of the Theatrical Managers' Association, to be held on Oct. 20, the question of smoking in theatres will be discussed, and the advisability of applying to the authorities for an alteration of the clause that prohibits smoking in theatres will be strongly urged by certain provincial and suburban managers. There is no law against smoking, which is merely prohibited by the will of the Lord Chamberlain.

By the Prevention of Cruelty to Children Act, 1904, which came into operation last Saturday, it is ordained that any person who causes or procures any child under the age of eleven years, or, having the custody, charge, or care of any such child, allows that child to be at any time in any street, or in any premises licensed for the sale of any intoxicating liquour, or in premises licensed according to law for public entertainments, or in any circus or other place of public amusement to which the public are admitted by payment, for the purpose of singing, playing, or performing, or being exhibited for profit, or offering anything for sale; or causes or procures any child under the age of sixteen years, or, having the custody, charge, or care of any such child, allows that child to be in any place for the purpose of being trained as an acrobat, contortionist, or circus performer, or of being trained for any exhibition or performance which in its nature is dangerous—that person shall, on summary conviction, be liable, at the discretion of the court, to a fine not exceeding twenty-five pounds, or alternatively, or in default of payment of such fine, or in addition thereto, to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for any term not exceeding three months. The only exception is made in the case of an occasional sale or entertainment for the benefit of a school or charitable object.

It is also enacted that a Petty Sessional Court, or, in Scotland, the School Board, may, notwithstanding anything in this Act, or in the Employment of Children Act, 1903, or any bye-law made thereunder, grant a licence for such time and during such hours of the day, and subject to such restrictions and conditions as the Court or Board think fit, for any child exceeding ten years of age to take part in any entertainment or series of entertainments to take place in premises licensed according to law for public entertainments, or in any circus or other place of public amusement as aforesaid; or to be trained as aforesaid; or for both purposes; if satisfied of the fitness of the child for the purpose, and if it is shown to their satisfaction that proper provision has been made to secure the health and kind treatment of the children taking part in the entertainment or series of entertainments, or being trained as aforesaid, and the court or board may, upon sufficient cause, vary, add to, or rescind any such licence. Any such licence shall be sufficient protection to all persons acting under or in accordance with the same.

At the recent appearance of the "Kilties" at the Albert Hall a boy of eight years old, Master Max Darewski, conducted the orchestra. It must have been very galling to the members of the band, many of whom are musicians who have given their whole lives to the patient practice and study of their art, to be "directed" by a mere child, whose knowledge of conducting is in the elementary stage. What with the increase of infants and amateurs the members of the profession have a very poor chance of obtaining permanent engagements.

Mr Frank Lawton, the popular whistler of The Belle of New York, has received a great many letters of congratulation this week on the birth of his little son, who was born in London on the last day of September. He has been given the name of Frank, but it is too soon to say whether he has inherited his father's extraordinary talent for whistling and eccentric dancing.

Mr Richard Douglass took the chair at a meeting of the committee of the Scenic Artists' Association held at 5, Robert-street, Adelphi, on Monday. Mr J. Davies Massey, of Stoke Newington, Mr Harry Pierse, of Leeds, Mr H J. Craven, of Walworth, Mr J. I Keith, of Birmingham, and Mr Richard H. Halley, of Ealing, were elected members. The secretary, Mr H Lawrence Harris, 5, Robert-street, Adelphi, was instructed to appeal to theatrical managers, scenic artistes, and others for loan of stage models, sketches of scenes, and articles of historical interest connected with the stage for the Scenic Artists' Association first annual exhibition, which it is proposed to hold at an early date in the west-end of London. The secretary reported that the engagement bureau of the Association was working very successfully.

Mrs Lewis Waller appeared on Monday at the Queen's Theatre, Manchester, in a new Russian drama, by Paul Berton, called Vilma. A leading incident of the piece is a rape committed on an innocent girl by some military officers. The piece has been altered by order of the Censor; but, even with these modifications, the theme is not, in our opinion, a pleasant one, nor is such a play likely to elevate the drama.

Mr Leonard Boyne, who makes such a manly and expressive Prince Cyril in His Highness My Husband at the Comedy, is a thorough sportsman. Before he went on the stage, at seventeen, his ambition was to ride the winner of the Grand National. When he was on tour with Sporting Life he used three of his own horses in the play, and rode a race against a certain provincial sporting man who denied that Mr Boyne's steeplechasers were the horses mentioned in the bills. Mr Boyne won the race easily.

"Merely Mary Ann" at the Duke of York's Theatre is delighting all who witness it, and is drawing excellent houses. This is not surprising, for Miss Eleanor Robson's Mary Ann is full of sympathy and pathos, and Mr Henry Ainley, with his fine voice and picturesque appearance, makes Lancelot a most interesting and effective character. Mr Israel Zangwill's piece, with its domestic sentiment and real humour, ought to become a great favourite with provincial audiences; and, being inexpensive to mount, should prove very profitable on tour.

"The Prayer of the Sword," at the Adelphi, has been advantageously compressed since the first night, and is now presented in four acts. Mr Otho Stuart, who is making such a spirited bid with this fine poetic play for the patronage of the intellectual public, must be complimented on his high artistic endeavour, and if Mr James Bernard Fagan's cultured and deeply interesting work does not succeed it will be because its literary qualities make it soar above the heads of the playgoing masses. The representation throughout is admirable. Finer acting than that contributed by Mr Oscar Asche, Miss Lily Brayton, Mr Alfred Bryrone, Mr Lyall Swete, Mr Charles Rock, and Mr Walter Hampden has not been seen on the London stage. Mr Walter Hampden, who plays the chivalrous young monk Andrea, with his fine voice and warm, impassioned style, is a distinguished recruit to the profession.

Miss Kitty Gordon, who has been playing the part of Agatha in Veronique at the Apollo Theatre, was married on Thursday to the Hon. Henry Beresford, son of Lord Decies. The wedding was a very quiet affair, and we understand that the happy couple are spending their honeymoon in Paris. During Miss Gordon's absence her part in Veronique will be taken by her understudy, Miss Mabel Medrow.

The estate of the late Mr John Billington has been sworn for probate by his widow and executrix, Mrs Adeline Billington, at £374.

Mr Zangwill's play, The Serio-Comic Governess, has failed to please the New York critics, who pronounce it decidedly inferior to his Merely Mary Ann and find fault with the author's propensity for punning. The dramatis personæ are mostly caricatures, and one could not help wondering what an experienced actor like Mr Herbert Standing really thought of the character he was called upon to portray—that of Montmorency Josephs, nicknamed "Fossy," a music hall manager the like of whom never existed since the world began. When he means "suite" he says "suet;" collaborate he pronounces "colloborate;" and Hamlet is "Am-er-let."

In the third act Miss Cecilia Loftus, who as Eileen O'Keefe is employed as governess by Mrs Lee Carter, who dwells in Mayfair, is also known as Nelly O'Neill, of the music halls, and during an interview with "Fossy" in Mrs Carter's drawing-room Miss Loftus gives some of the imitations of prominent players which made such a hit at the vaudeville houses. This is the most interesting feature of the performance, and about the only one upon which the New York newspapers have bestowed any praise.

Miss Loftus has expressed her opinion of Mr Zangwill's "pictures" of music hall life pretty freely in an interview published in a New York newspaper. She says:—"I told Mr Zangwill his music hall people were impossible. I pointed out to him that no sane people ever behaved on or off the stage as he intended his music hall people to behave in the play. I told him that I and my mother before me had been familiar with the music hall stage all our lives, but there was no moving him. His conception of music hall artists was the public's conception. When the public expects flashiness and vulgarity in certain personages it should not be given repose and good manners. In his opinion the public would consider these attributes incongruous.

"He preferred to be true to traditions than to be true to life. The result is that the play is spoiled. Instead of acting spontaneously in it I have to act against the grain—against myself. I have to portray emotions which are contrary to my nature and to the nature of the character which I am supposed to portray. Imagine a musician compelled to play discords through the caprice of a composer. How can he play them with conviction or convincingness? There it is in black and white; he knows it is a false note, a crime against harmony, and yet he must strike that note. I feel just that way when I have to speak lines which I know are not human. Naturally I get out of myself and of the character and become consciously artificial. It's awfully hard on me, really."

Miss Cecilia Loftus has been telling an interviewer in New York what a hard struggle she had to get into the "legitimate." "Oh, it was a long time coming," she began; "for a year I went about from manager to manager offering my services—nay, begging imploring for a wee bit of a part with a dozen lines to it. 'Yes,' they said. 'You are rather clever at mimicking, but, don't you know, acting is different, and, of course, while you are all right on the music hall stage, you'd never do in straight cut-and-out comedy or drama Stay where you are.' No matter to whom I went it was always the same story. It seemed after awhile as if they had rehearsed that speech between them in anticipation of my visit. And I so wanted to get on, I was willing to do anything; I believe I would have accepted a position of wardrobe woman had I thought there was a possibility of my graduating from that into some small part or other.

"Finally one day after I had seen them all, and been refused by them all, I went to Madame Modjeska and poured out my heart to her. I told her that I did not want to be a mimic in perpetuity, that I thought there was more in me than that, that I believed I could act, and that I wanted to act. All the managers had refused to give me an opportunity; what was I to do? Madame Modjeska mothered me a bit and urged me to take heart. I had only seen her once before that, and I was not prepared to have her take so much interest in me. I convinced her that I had some talent, however, and she got up a performance of Twelfth Night for me.

"I was Viola and Mr Daniel Frohman was in the audience. That was the beginning. He signed me as a member of the Daly company, and I bade farewell to the music hall stage. I had little inoffensive parts in Lady Huntworth's Experiment and The Man of Forty, and then I joined Mr Sothern's company. I stayed with him three seasons, and then went with Sir Henry Irving. Now I am by myself, on the stage all the time, and in a play written especially for me.

"When I am in America," said Miss Loftus, "I prefer the British audiences, and when I am on the other side I prefer the American. There is one thing in England, however, which an actor or actress misses here—it is the personal relation which he or she establishes and maintains with his or her audience. When I was acting in England with Sir Henry Irving, in Faust, the curtain calls after the Dungeon scene were for me. If I failed to acknowledge the applause there would be cries of 'Loftus!' 'Loftus!' from the pit and the galleries. The actor's individuality is better recognised over there."

Messrs Perkins and Bacon, printers, are leaving their old house in Fleet-street this month after a residence in it of many long years. It was in this establishment that the late Wilson Barrett had his first situation, and old hands still remember his connection with the house. Perkins and Bacon printed bank notes before the Bank of England produced such interesting "editions."

Miss Ada Dwyer, who gives such an exceedingly clever performance of the Cockney landlady in Merely Mary Ann at the Duke of York's, has long been as well known in America as she now is in London. Born in the far distant State of Utah, she studied at the Boston School of Oratory, and became a reciter and amateur actress before playing her first professional part in The Private Secretary at the Madison-square Theatre, New York. Her second successful attempt was the Cockney boy in Alone in London. Although she had not visited "the old country" at that time, Miss Dwyer considers that her knowledge and love of Dickens's books helped her not a little in realising a character of the Poor Jo type. In private life Miss Dwyer is Mrs Harold Russell. She has one little daughter, and her home is in Salk Lake City, Utah. It is rather an interesting coincidence that the only part, except the Cockney landlady, that Miss Dwyer has played in England was in another of Mr Zangwill's dramas—Malka, the business woman, in The Children of the Ghetto. Her favourite character so far has been that of Roxy in Mark Twain's Pudden-Head Wilson. She played it for three years.

A special general meeting of the Royal General Theatrical Fund will be held at the St. James's Theatre, by the kind permission of Mr George Alexander, who will take the chair, at 2 0 p m., on Thursday, for the purpose of making an additional clause to the "N B" of Rule 10 The present "N B." of Rule 10 reads:—"No notice to be given to defaulters; the possession of a copy of the rules being deemed and declared sufficient notice;" and the proposed addition is:—"But the directors are empowered, in their discretion, to suspend the operation of the clause respecting arrears and the non-payment of fines, in any deserving case, for so long and on such terms as they shall deem fit."

"The Girl Who Lost Her Character," an entirely new play, will be seen at the Standard Theatre, for the first time on any stage, on Monday. It is written by Walter Melville, the author of A Girl's Cross Roads, The Worst Woman in London, Her Second Time on Earth, and The Female Swindler. Mr Melville has secured for the cast Miss Olga Audre, Miss Maud Hildyard, Miss Eva Dare, Miss Stewart Drewry, Mr Frank Lister, Mr Frederick Melville, Mr Andrew Emm, Mr Frank Adair, and Mr Julian Cross. The scenery is by Mr Richard Douglas, and the play will be produced under the personal direction of the author, Mr Walter Melville.

During the stay of Mr Melville's Her Forbidden Marriage company at the Coliseum, Oldham, last week, it was announced that a gold wedding ring would be presented to two young people in the town who were married within that week and within the conditions of the proposal. A youthful couple, after having witnessed the presentation of the play, claimed the ring offered, as they were getting married last Saturday. The wedding duly took place, and the happy pair were escorted to the church by Mr Gilbert Heron, the acting-manager of the Coliseum Theatre, and Mr Frank Mundo, the manager of the company.

Mr W. S. Gilbert was struck off the ownership list at a Revising Barrister's Court recently held at Harrow. The great satirist shared the fate of 128 persons who were similarly removed through a technical error on the part of the overseers, who had described them erroneously.

Mr Charles Frohman writes from New York:—"I believe the movement for an international memorial to Shakespeare will meet with a hearty and ready response from the entire civilised world. The debt of gratitude owed by the cultured and educated everywhere to the great English dramatist is openly confessed. There is not only no desire to shirk it, but I am convinced that an opportunity of the sort your suggestion offers, which will permit an acknowledgment, even in the humblest degree, of the obligation due will be quickly and generously embraced, and a tribute secured that will surpass anything of like character the world has ever known. What form this tribute should finally assume—whether a statue, a magnificent tomb, or a splendid memorial edifice—can be determined by a committee representative of the different branches of recognised art. There will be no trouble about obtaining the money to make it worthy of the man and his achievements, and I have no doubt that a committee chosen as suggested would be careful to devise a monument that would be fully expressive of the breadth and depth of the multitude of subscribers' meaning. The only place for this tribute, of course, is Stratford-on-Avon, where the thrills that now come to human hearts at sight of the present personal and local reminders of the poet might be given a grander and deeper sweep by the adjacence of an imposing monument in which the reverence of all humanity would be splendidly and convincingly expressed."

In How He Lied to Her Husband: a Warning to Playgoers, a "comediettina," in one act, by George Bernard Shaw, which was produced at the Berkeley Lyceum Theatre, New York, on Sept. 26, the author satirises his own Candida and those enthusiastic souls who took that play seriously and discussed it from every point of view. The three characters are called Her Lover, Her Husband, and Herself. The last-named is Mrs Aurora Bumpus, a commonplace New York woman, with a position in society, and the first-mentioned individual is a young poet, a sentimental ass, who writes sonnets about his Aurora, and wins her regard because he reminds her so much of Eugene Marchbanks. As for the poet, he is madly in love with the lady because he thinks she is the ideal Candida of real life. Some of the verses fall into the husband's hands, and the poet suggests that they go "hand in hand" to the husband and take "honourable leave" of him. This the lady might have done if her husband had only remained awake when she took him to see Candida. He would have understood had he seen the play. But unfortunately he was bored, and fell asleep, and missed it all. So the poet makes up his mind to "lie like a gentleman," and tells Bumpus that the verses were written years ago before to the Aurora Borealis.

Bumpus receives this with a sceptical laugh, and in his eagerness to acquit the wife the poet protests his utter indifference to the charms of Mrs Bumpus. This infuriates the husband. Hasn't his wife danced with three Presidents! Didn't one of his guests confess to Bumpus that he had feelings towards Mrs Bumpus that were inconsistent with his duty to his host! The idea that the poet doesn't admire her is a deadly insult to Bumpus. Then the poet faces about. He confesses that he is enamoured of the living Aurora and not the frigid one. And what does Bumpus do? Kick him out of the house? Nothing of the sort. A few moments ago he threatened to do so for not admiring her. Now he humbly apologises to the poet, and begs him to shake hands. Mrs Bumpus is radiant, Bumpus offers to have the sonnets printed handsomely for distribution among his friends, and all ends happily. In the same bill, as a curtain-raiser, is The Man of Destiny, in which Mr Daly as Napoleon and Miss Dorothy Donnelly as the Lady renewed the success they won in the same characters last season.

The O.P. Club will entertain Mr Lionel Brough at the Criterion, on Sunday, Oct. 30, to celebrate his jubilee on the stage, when the President of the club, Mr Alfred F. Robbins, will occupy the chair. The compliment which will be paid to that fine and experienced actor will be thoroughly well merited by his long and honourable career.

When The Prince of Pilsen company left for the States on Saturday last two of its members remained in England—Miss Camille Clifford, who is having a part written for her in The Catch of the Season at the Vaudeville, and Miss Kate Hardren, the whirlwind dancer, who represented New Orleans in the scene of the American cities at the Shaftesbury, and will shortly appear in a new sketch at a London music hall.

Mr Stanley Rogers, late manager of the theatre at Carlisle which was recently destroyed by fire, has succeeded Mr Coates F. Porter as lessee and manager of the Opera House at Workington, entering upon his duties on Monday. He was associated with Mr Milton Bode for a long number of years. His departure from Carlisle, where he had a large circle of friends, was deeply regretted.

Mr Lockwood's No. 1 La Poupée company, with which Miss Midge Clark (Mrs Lockwood) is travelling and charmingly interpreting Alesia, the doll, had a happy time at Morecambe. On the Thursday of their visit Lieut. Julian Malvern entertained the ladies and gentlemen of the company and the players in a cricket match between a La Poupée eleven and a local eleven to a recherché tea in the cricket pavilion. His thoughtfulness was greatly appreciated.

The generosity of a member of the Musicians' Company has enabled a course of free academical lectures to students to be delivered at the Guildhall School of Music. The lectures, which will be delivered by experts, are intended to show the best way to pass the examinations at the various universities for those entering for degrees in music. The course will begin next Wednesday, when Sir Frederick Bridge will give an address on "The Value of Degrees in Music." Other lectures will be given by Dr. W. H. Cummings, Dr. E. Markham Lee, Dr. H. A. Harding, and Dr, E. H. Turpin.

In the cast of Mr Pinero's new comedy, A Wife Without a Smile, which will be produced at Wyndham's Theatre on Wednesday, will be included Mr Dion Boucicault, Mr C. M. Lowne, Mr G. M. Graham, Mr Henry Kemble, Mr T Ryley, Miss Lettice Fairfax, Miss Dorothy Grimston, Miss Marie Illington, and Miss N. Moore.

Mr Charles Frohman, will, by arrangement with Mr Frank Curzon, present at the Criterion Theatre, early in November, a new and original comedy, The Freedom of Suzanne, written by Mr Cosmo Gordon Lennox, in which Miss Marie Tempest will sustain the principal part—that of a lady who obtains a divorce from a husband with whom she is dissatisfied, but eventually returns to the marriage fold from preference.

The last performance of The Golden Light at the Savoy Theatre took place on Saturday. The emotional frocks evidently failed to attract. Mrs Brown Potter has lost several thousand pounds by the failure of the piece, but she will shortly reopen the Savoy Theatre with a bill including Forget-Me-Not and a version of Cavalleria Rusticana—certainly a "strong" programme.

Miss Muriel Wylford has secured from Mr Somerset Maugham, the author of A Man of Honour, a comedy in three acts. Miss Wylford has secured a West-end theatre for the production of the piece early next month, and has engaged a company including Mr Aubrey Smith, Mr Ernest Leicester, and Mr Fred Kerr.

Mr Nat Goodwin has engaged Miss Ruth Mackay to join his company in America as leading lady. Miss Ruth Mackay played one of the convicts in Resurrection, at His Majesty's Theatre, and also appeared in The Gordian Knot She was engaged to create the leading part in The Master of Kingsgift, now in preparation at the Avenue Theatre, and has been released from her contract in order to go to Mr Goodwin.

In Mr J. H. Leigh's revival of Hippolytus at a matinée at the Court Theatre on the 18th inst. Miss Rosina Filippi will play the Nurse, Miss Tita Brand will be the leader of the chorus, and Mr A E. George will enact the Old Huntsman Hippolytus will again be played by Mr Ben Webster, Theseus by Mr Alfred Brydone, and Phaedra by Miss Edyth Olive.

Mr Edward Morton, the clever author of San Toy, and M. Maurice Ordonneau, the French dramatist, have collaborated in the libretto of a musical comedy, for which Mr Ivan Caryll is to write the music.

Mr Maitland Dicker, who is managing the Avenue season, which will open on the 17th inst. with Mrs Tom Kelly's new play The Master of Kingsgift, has for the last four years been actively associated with Mr Arthur Roberts. Mr Dicker was the original Captain Chepstowe, in H.M.S. Irresponsible, and his singing of the song of the mad officer was one of the features of the opera at the time he was connected with Mr Roberts. Prior to this Mr Dicker had for a couple of years the control of the business arrangements of The Gay Grisette on behalf of the Associated Managers.

Mr Tree's Shakespearian répertoire company is due at the Marlborough, Holloway, on Monday. Mr William Haviland, the Prospero in the revival of The Tempest, will take up the parts of Mark Anthony, in Julius Cæsar, and Master Ford, in The Merry Wives of Windsor, and, after to-night, the Prospero at His Majesty's will be Mr Lyn Harding, a gifted and versatile young actor. Before the production of A Snug Little Kingdom at the Royalty last January Mr Harding had not been seen in the West-end, but his personal success in Mr Mark Ambient's little piece has been followed by engagements at the Avenue, when he played one of the brothers in The Prophecy, and in Mr Tree's company, giving him the opportunity of appearing in such varied parts as the Duke of York, in Richard II.; Inu, in The Darling of the Gods; and Cassius, in Julius Cæsar. It is an interesting fact that Mr Lyn Harding, who has proved himself so successful a Shakespearian actor, is not a Bensonian.

We are glad to know the latest reports of the condition of Mr Walter Sealby, who has been so seriously ill, are more reassuring. A specialist was called in early this week, and took a most hopeful view of the case. Since then Mr Sealby has been out once or twice in a bath-chair. We sincerely hope the improvement now begun may be maintained and that he may be able to accept one of the several offers he has had for pantomime. Mrs Sealby (Miss Chrissie Ralland) has been most devoted in her attentions to her husband, and to her careful nursing is largely due his present satisfactory condition.

Mr George Graves, who has become so popular in Veronique at the Apollo, is a Londoner. His first theatrical ambition, when he was a very small boy, was to become a music hall star, with an ugly make up and ridiculous clothes. He was sent to school at Margate, but ran away to Portsmouth, and persuaded an old acquaintance, whose highly coloured descriptions of touring life were partly responsible, to give him his first engagement. It only lasted a fortnight, for parental authority checked his career, and the diminutive and disappointed comedian returned to Margate.

A few years later young George Graves was put into a lawyer's office, but his companions treated him in a manner that was painful to the dignity of sixteen. This was especially marked in the case of a certain clerk, who ordered him about and called him "boy." It was the habit of this clerk to drink a strong cup of tea while he was working in the afternoon, placing it beside him on the desk and taking a big gulp at intervals. One afternoon he apparently went mad; the tea looked the same as usual, but it had the effect of making him dance with fury. Young George had added to its strength by a good dose of blue-black ink, and he paid for his practical joke by losing his situation.

One of the first companies Mr Graves joined was advertised to play a burlesque, but as it failed to draw anybody into the theatre, the manager proposed East Lynne as a substitute. Having no "book," he wisely decided to leave the dialogue in the hands of the actors, and finding that Mr Graves, the youngest and smallest member of the company, was the possessor of the most presentable suit of clothes, he cast him for the part of the villain, Sir Francis Levison. To everybody's surprise there was a good audience on the first night, but unfortunately the company's talents did not lie in the direction of dialogue. Not one of them would attempt a long speech on the spur of the moment, and the whole of the story had practically been told before nine o'clock. But the manager was a man of resource. He ordered young Graves and another beginner, who was playing the comic policeman, to go on and "be funny." Then he stood in the wings on one side of the stage and put a big, ill-tempered man opposite, with orders not to let them escape, and the two boys played an impromptu comic scene that lasted nearly an hour, for the simple reason that they did not dare to end it, for whenever they tried to make an exit the manager or his assistant pushed them violently back, shook their fists in their faces, and muttered, with appropriate epithets, the fierce order, "Go on being funny!" Mr Graves has only recently returned to the Apollo. He took a brief holiday at the beginning of last month, and come back to Veronique in his usual good health and high spirits, but unfortunately his throat gave him some trouble, followed by an attack of illness that obliged him to again rest.

Mr Beerbohm Tree will give a series of Shakespearian revivals at His Majesty's during the "birthday week" in April next. The performances will take place in the afternoon and evening, the matinées being held in order that the company may be strengthened by the services of actors appearing in the evening at other theatres.

Miss Julia Neilson and Mr Fred Terry will produce at Newcastle, in November, a new romantic play, by Paul Kester, entitled Sweet Dorothy o' the Hall. The heroine is Dorothy Vernon, and one of the scenes is laid at Haddon Hall.

Mr Bernard Shaw's new play, John Bull's Other Island, will be produced at a matinée at the Court Theatre on Tuesday, Nov. 1, with a cast including Mr Louis N. Calvert, Mr Graham Browne, Mr Granville Barker, Mr Wilfred Shine, and Mr J. L. Shine.

The profit and loss account of the O.P. Club for the past year shows a balance in hand of £141 3s. 10d. The club has made £113 on the year—a very creditable result at a time when it is a general complaint that "no one has any money."

Miss Lillah M'Carthy, who was engaged to appear with the late Mr Wilson Barrett, in Lucky Durham, will, after all, be seen in London this season She is to play the principal part of Rosamund Charlton, in The Master of Kingsgift at the Avenue Theatre.

Mrs Tom Kelly, the authoress of the piece entitled The Master of Kingsgift, to be produced at the Avenue Theatre on Oct. 17, is the authoress of several works of fiction. She wrote a naval history of the Crimea War, her book, which went by the name of "With the Fleet in the 'Fifties," creating something like a sensation when it was published.

We regret to hear that Miss Carry Nelson has been lying dangerously ill at her residence, 97. St. John's Wood-terrace. Her many friends will be pleased to learn that she is now well on the road to recovery.

Garrick was born in Hereford, and there is a tablet to his memory in the Cathedral there. This is the reason that the go-ahead Mr Arthur Carlton has rechristened the Theatre Royal, Hereford, which will in future bear the name of the famous actor, and be known as the Garrick Theatre.

"His Highness My Husband," which is drawing crowded houses to the Comedy Theatre, will be preceded to-night and subsequently by the one-act piece, The Outpost, by William Akerman, which met with such a favourable reception when played at the Lyric Theatre during the run of Ib and Christina there. Miss Pattie Bell, Mr Philip Cuningham, Miss Dora Rignold, and Mr George Raiemond will be in the cast.

It may not be generally known that the late Mel. B. Spurr's last and only tour in Scotland was under the direction of Mr J. F. Calverto, of Glasgow. As recently as Aug. 20 Mr Calverto received a postcard with the postmark of Christchurch, New Zealand, stating how well the deceased was succeeding there, and how he hoped to be in London by May. Such is life!

Mr Charles Carey, who is back in town looking all the better for his somewhat lengthy holiday, and quite recovered, he says, from his recent illness, had an unpleasant accident one day last week. While driving a thoroughbred mare along one of those beautiful Worcestershire lanes a small boy ran quickly out of a cottage on the near side of the road cracking a whip right in front of the mare, who shied almost into a motor which was at that moment overtaking the high gig Mr Carey was driving. Mr Carey succeeded in saving the situation, but for a moment only, by pulling the affrighted animal right into the hedge. On regaining the road, however, she became very restive, kicking frantically, eventually broke both shafts, throwing the unfortunate driver violently to the ground, and bolting She was eventually recaptured by a friendly farmer some miles further on, not much the worse for her escapade, and, luckily, Mr Carey did not sustain more than a few bruises, and was able later on to quietly ride the mare home, and interview the afore-mentioned small boy on the way.

Mr Reginald Allan, the well-known musician, has perfected and copyrighted a new music paper which will prove a boon to composers, conductors, and copyists. The principal advantage of his system, which is now being placed on the market, under the name of "The modern British score paper," lies in the placing of the stringed instruments at the top of the score.

For The Fascinating Miss Kemp, an original comedy in three acts, by Gordon Holmes, which Mr Eugene Bertram is shortly taking into the provinces on a trial trip, a strong cast has been engaged; and Mr Bertram has been fortunate enough to secure the services of Mr Gilbert Hare to produce the play. Mr Hare is now busy at the Savoy Theatre on the production of Cavalleria Rusticana.

"Merely Mary Ann" celebrates its birthday this month, having been produced in the New York State in October last year. Mr Zangwill's charming play has not been on tour as yet in America, but when Miss Eleanor Robson is reluctantly obliged to leave London it will be for the purpose of fulfilling contracts to appear as Mary Ann in the principal cities in the States.

Mr Fred Kerr, who is to support Mrs Brown Potter in her forthcoming revival of Forget-Me-Not at the Savoy, completes his forty-sixth year on Tuesday. "The cynical actor," as he used to be called, is a Londoner, a Carthusian, and a Cambridge man. He is descended from the Miss Gunnings who were famous beauties of the Georgian days. He made his début in New York over twenty years ago. He has figured as an actor-manager at the Vaudeville, Terry's, and the Court Theatres, and his name will always be associated with the brilliant success achieved by Mr Pinero's farcical comedies. Mr Kerr got his opening in London in the following way:—He was a member of a provincial stock company, and in distributing the parts for The New Magdalen, by an error the stage-manager gave him the part of the German doctor who appears in the first act. The "old man" of the company was indifferent about the matter, so his young comrade seized the opportunity to give an excellent character sketch. Wilkie Collins happened to see him in a provincial theatre, and when the piece was produced in London he insisted on Mr Kerr being included in the cast as the German doctor.

Tuesday is also the birthday of Mr Eille Norwood. This clever young actor, producer, and author, who is now in America playing leading parts in Mr Nat Goodwin's company, is a Yorkshireman and an old Bensonian. His comedy called The Talk of the Town had a good run at the Strand Theatre three years ago, having been originally produced at Terry's under the name of The Noble Art; and his farce called Hook and Eye is well-known to professionals and amateurs. Mr Norwood made a success some time ago in Australia, where he toured under the Brough-Boucicault management, and was the first actor elected a member of the Melbourne Club. He has always been in great request as a "society" stage-manager, having superintended, among others, amateur theatricals for the Duchess of Sutherland and for Mrs Arthur Wilson, at Tranby Croft.

"The King shall have his own again!" is the burden of the song which is often introduced into His Majesty's Servant, which was produced at the Imperial Theatre on Thursday evening. The monarch in that case was Melodrama, which has come into its own at Westminster with all the pomp and circumstance of its class. The work of Misses Elliott and Hosford does not halt between two opinions. It is melodrama of the excellent old Adelphi type; full of marvellous and exciting adventures, misguided but interesting loyalty, escapes, combats, loves, hatreds, and revenges. Nor is the spectacular entirely ignored; and plenty of money has evidently been spent in mounting and dressing the play. The Imperial Theatre is, possibly, destined to take the place once occupied by the Princess's under Mr Wilson Barrett's management and by the Adelphi under that of the Brothers Gatti.

The story opens in Boscobel Wood, under the shadow of the branches of the Royal Oak. Here Geoffrey Mohun, hiding in disguise from the pursuit of the victorious Roundheads, meets his cousin Lettice Pierrepoint, and falls in love with her. Their conversation is interrupted by the appearance of Charles II., who has been concealed in the oak tree, and who entrusts himself to their loyalty. An ex-actor named Holden and his niece Damaris stop near the tree to warm their soup, and are taken into the King's confidence. Damaris is madly in love with Mohun, and offers herself to him boldly, much to his embarrassment. General Lambert, with his soldiers, comes seeking for Charles in the wood, and, after posting a cordon of sentries, composes himself to sleep. The King and Mohun spring upon him, bind him, and force him by threats of instant death to give them the password through the lines. Then they escape; and Lettice goes off with Holden to London, where, nine years after, we find her in the latter's bookshop. He is still loyal to the absent monarch, and there is arranged between him and Charles's adherents a system of secret communication by sending certain books to and fro by messengers. Thus, the Eikon Basilike forwarded to Charles at the Hague means "Come over; Monk has espoused your cause." Damaris, who has become disreputable, and has left her uncle's roof, turns up determined to ruin him and revenge herself on her rival, Lettice, and on the man who has scorned her amorous advances. Damaris, acting in concert with a Roundhead officer, Sir Ralph Ingram, hides in a cupboard in Holden's room, and thus learns the plans of Charles's friends. She conceives the diabolical scheme of forcing Mohun, by working on his fears for the safety of Holden and Lettice, to submit to be believed a scoundrel. Lady Holland, a grande dame to whose care Lettice has been committed by his absent Majesty, comes to take the girl away; and Damaris, presenting herself as a seduced and deserted maiden, accuses Mohun of having effected her ruin in Boscobel Wood. He holds his tongue in order to save his sweetheart; and then Damaris, disregarding a promise to the contrary, has him arrested by Ingram's soldiers and imprisoned in a room at that officer's house. Ingram is about to murder him in cold blood; but he escapes by the aid of a ready-witted Irish orange girl called Biddy, who ties a knife in such a position that Mohun can sever his bonds with it, and afterwards use it to slay his opponent. Mohun presents himself in the second scene of the third act at Holland House, where her ladyship is giving a grand ball. Charles II., who has been decoyed to England by the late Ingram, who made use of the Eikon Basilike "cypher," arrives at Holland House only to find that the summons has been a treacherous one, and that he has placed himself in jeopardy. However, Charles clears Mohun of the suspicion of having seduced Damaris. Then Lambert enters with his soldiers. He is about to search for the King, when Mohun, adorned with regal jewels, offers himself as a prisoner, and is arrested accordingly. The real monarch, by means of a secret passage, attains a pavilion in the grounds of Holland House, where the last act takes place. Monk and Lambert arrive on the scene, and their jealousy leads to a quarrel between them, and to Monk, urged by the eloquence of Mohun in the character of the King, declaring himself in favour of a Restoration. The now merry monarch reveals his identity, and Mohun and his lady-love are united.

Mr Lewis Waller played Geoffrey Mohun with his usual energy and vigour; but the part was too entirely conventional and too elementary to employ any of the actor's higher qualities. Mr Waller had only to be forcible, active, and gallant, and these things he did most satisfactorily and thoroughly. Miss Evelyn Millard's achievements were similarly limited by the rôle of Lady Lettice Pierrepoint, which she played, of course, soundly, carefully, and well. But the character was too simple and commonplace to elicit Miss Millard's best powers. Mr H. V. Esmond, an artist of real subtlety and penetration, was similarly handicapped by his task of embodying Charles II. It was impossible to make anything of the part, except what the authoresses had made of it; and Mr Esmond could do no more than be efficient on conventional lines. Second-rate rôles, played by first-rate performers, are, however, much more agreeable than the reverse arrangement; and, by their accomplished acting, these three artists contributed greatly to the success of the production. The piece was, indeed, cast much better than its artistic merits deserved. Miss Pollie Emery gave a distinct and clever sketch of Biddy, and made her mark by a most vivid, spontaneous, and striking performance. Miss Darragh's reading of the rôle of Damaris Holden was quite in harmony with the spirit of the play, and she spoke the malevolent speeches of the "villainess" with the true melodramatic "ring." Miss Mary Lewis was bright and animated as Lady Margaret Knollys; and Miss Mary Rorke as Lady Holland looked intensely aristocratic, and acted with the firm decision and excellent diction due to her ripe experience. Mr Henry J. Carvill hit off the characteristics of General Monk quite ably, and General Lambert's stern, savage, and morose nature was admirably depicted by Mr Norman M'Kinnel. Mr Owen Roughwood was very commendable as Lord Wilmot; and Mr Frank Dyall gave a most picturesque and telling impersonation of Sir Ralph Ingram. Mr John Beauchamp doing all that was required as Sir John Porter, and Mr M. Elphinstone being adequate as Sir Harry Taploe. An artistic and agreeable performance was the John Holden of Mr A. E. George; and the minor characters were all in capable hands. The scenery for His Majesty's Servant was well painted. Mr W. T. Hemsley's Boscobel Wood was a very realistic set; Mr W. Hann's Gilt Room in Holland House being very elaborate in its decorations. Mr R. M'Cleery's view in the grounds of Holland House for the last act was extremely artistic, and did the painter great credit. The play, produced by Mr Henry Hamilton, went smoothly, and Mr Leonard Chalk's incidental music was appropriate and effective. The reception of the drama was decidedly favourable, and Mr Waller and Miss Millard were called again and again, and bowed their acknowledgments in silence, despite injudicious demands for a speech.

DEATH OF MR. GEORGE DAVENTRY.

The news of the death of Mr George Daventry, author, actor, and manager, will be received with deep regret by his many friends, both in and out of the profession. He had been ailing for some time, but it was only during the last fortnight that doubts of his recovery were entertained. The end came rather suddenly on Friday morning, the 30th ult., when he peacefully passed away, conscious to the last, dying, as his often-expressed wish had been, in the arms of his wife, having previously been baptised into the Catholic Church. Mr Daventry was the author of the well-known drama The Indian Mutiny, which he and Mrs Daventry (Miss Claire Howard) successfully toured for several years. The funeral took place on Wednesday at Finchley Cemetery at two o'clock. Among the many who were present to pay their last respects to the memory of deceased were Mr Frank E. Burdett, who travelled all the way from Crewe for the purpose, and Mr Maurice Hoffman, who for a considerable time was a member of Mr Daventry's company. Mrs Daventry received almost a countless number of expressions of deep sorrow and regret, and the many handsome floral tributes from professional and private friends made the coffin and hearse a picture of beauty. Amongst the senders were the following:—Dr. C. O'Sullivan, Mr and Mrs Edmund Tearle, Mr Henry Furnival, Mr Frederick Annerley, Mr Celian Kottaun, Members of The Harvest of Sin company, Mr Augustine A. King, Mr Archibald J. King, Mr Anthony H. King, Mr and Mrs Fred Dickenson, Mr H. Tournier, Mr Edwin T. Blake, Mr Edward Blake, Mr and Mrs Batten, Mr Albert E. Parker, Mr H. Brooke and Miss L. Brooke, Mrs Hutchinson, Mr W. E. Wilmott, Miss Sylvester, Miss Marie Daventry, and the widow and two sons of the deceased, Harold and Geoffrey Daventry.

A THIRD COOPER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—I was very pleased to read in your "Theatrical Gossip" last week all the complimentary things said of Mr Frank Cooper and Mr Cooper Cliffe of their late father and the family the "two" brothers descend from. But I beg to inform you that there is a third and elder brother still in existence, who subscribes himself

Yours faithfully, CHAS. KEMBLE COOPER.
Savoy House, Strand.

A FIRST meeting of creditors was held on Thursday respecting the affairs of Mr Herbert Waring. The receiving order was made on a creditor's petition, the debtor, whose true name is Herbert Waring Rutty, being described as of 27a, Old Bond-street, W., actor. He furnished accounts showing liabilities £3,356 5s. 10d., of which £2,725 6s 1d. are stated to be unsecured, and estimated net assets £11 9s. 2d. The chairman said the debtor had stated that in June, 1901, a syndicate—Play, Limited—was in course of formation for the purpose of producing a play called A Man of His Word, at the Imperial Theatre. The debtor was induced to sign an agreement for the tenancy of the theatre on the understanding that he would incur no responsibility. Judgment, however, was recovered against him on July 16, 1903, by Lillie De Bathe, the wife of Hugh Gerald De Bathe, for £1,382 5s. 6d., of which £1,280 was for rent of the theatre. On the debtor's behalf it was stated that although held to be legally liable the debtor disclaimed all moral responsibility with reference to the petitioning creditor's claim. He was unable temporarily to meet his other liabilities owing to his being out of an engagement. The chairman intimated that the matter would remain in his hands as official receiver, and that he should apply for an adjudication in the usual course.

Mr Frank Elliott, who has been playing a part in the London production of Winnie Brooke, Widow, at the Criterion, has been engaged by Mr Wilfred Cotton, as acting-manager, to represent Miss Ada Reeve in the front of the house during her forthcoming tour of the musical version of the piece.—Owing to the sudden indisposition of Mr J. B. Montague, the representative of Bertie White, in The New Barmaid, who was taken ill in his dressing-room at the Blackburn Theatre on Wednesday, Mr George Russell was called upon to take up the part, and performed it satisfactorily.

Mr J. N. Maskelyne has practically rebuilt the interior St. George's Hall, taking in two adjacent houses. The stage is now 50ft. wide, and measures from curtain to back wall over 40ft. It is built of steel and hard wood, the stalls and balcony will accommodate 600; and 2,000 electric lights will be in use on the stage. Mr Maskelyne will shortly produce a dramatised version in a prologue and four acts of Bulwer Lytton's "The Coming Race," which has been written for him by Mr David Christie Murray and Mr Nevill Maskelyne.

Mr J. F. Elliston, when he made his twenty-fifth consecutive application for a dramatic licence for the Theatre Royal, Bolton, last week, told the local Watch Committee that this was a record for England, as no other theatrical manager now living was in a position to say that for a quarter of a century he had controlled the dramatic destinies of one town. Therein he made a mistake. Mr J. M. Chute and his brother George received the licence for the Prince's Theatre, Bristol, in August, 1878, so the present proprietor and manager of the house in Park-row beats Mr Elliston by one year. Many will remember how Mr Chute was presented with a silver bowl by his staff, rather more than twelve months ago, to commemorate the twenty-fifth anniversary of his management.

"Carmen" was performed on the 30th ult. in the bull-ring in Valencia. In the third act, when the Toreador enters the arena and Carmen remains at the door, a real bull-fight was performed, a Valencian toreo killing a bull by lamp-light.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Since writing last week I have learnt that the Asaph Lodge Masonic Benefit Fund have given Henry Crisp £10 immediate relief to enable him to buy some clothes, and 10s. per week for twenty-six weeks, beginning on Oct. 1. The Actors' Benevolent Fund were sorry they could not do more than allow him 5s. per week, as, of course, they have such a large number of poor souls to help who have nothing at all. However, this now gives Crisp another 15s. per week, in addition to his own 15s., for twenty-six weeks, but only for that period; and I hope that you and your readers will see the necessity for helping the poor sufferer largely and generously.

Yours faithfully, CYRIL MAUDE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—It is with the greatest regret that I hear of the terrible affliction that has fallen upon Mr Henry Crisp, a typical Thespian, genial and large-hearted as a man, and a most clever actor. I met him some years back in Jo (Miss Jennie Lee's company), and have since seen him in a series of parts which will always be associated with his name. Now is surely the time for his many companions and friends to come to his aid and support the fund which you have opened, and I earnestly hope it will be sufficiently substantial to relieve Mr Crisp's anxiety respecting the future.

Yours faithfully, CECIL BARTH.

MISS ELLEN TERRY'S UNDERSTUDY.

Miss Audrey Campbell, having gained considerable experience as an amateur actress in first-class dramatic clubs, joined Miss Ellen Terry's company, being engaged for the very important position of understudy to that distinguished artist. Miss Campbell is both pretty and clever, and has quite justified the confidence placed in her by Miss Terry. When the famous actress was unable through indisposition to play the part of Beatrice, in Much Ado About Nothing, at the Burton-on-Trent theatre, came Miss Campbell's opportunity, and admirably did she acquit herself. A local critic wrote thus in her praise:—"To state that Miss Audrey Campbell understudied Beatrice would be unfair, for to be paradoxical there was so much individuality in her work as to make it a creation of her own, and so much sympathy with the Terry school of acting as to render her a worthy disciple of such a leader. In elocution, in the gentle persuasiveness of her speaking voice, she was well-nigh perfect, and the rhythmical grace of her movements consummated the 'poetry of motion,' and in facial expression—a minor consideration in comedy—she made a decidedly interesting study." Another local critic bore testimony to Miss Campbell's charming embodiment of Beatrice, adding that "it was difficult to realise that she had only stepped into a casual vacancy, so polished and faultless was her performance." Trained in such an admirable school and enjoying the great advantage of being associated with so eminent an exponent of her art as Miss Ellen Terry, the young actress's future is full of the richest promise.

The Bandmann-Dallas opera company, numbering fifty, under the personal direction of Mr Maurice E. Bandmann, has sailed on the New Elder Dempster steamer Port Kingston for Jamaica. They will make an extensive tour through the West Indian Islands, afterwards playing at Mexico, the Bermudas, the Mediterranean, and Egypt. This is the third company Messrs Bandmann and Dallas have sent abroad this season.

In view of the success of Le Prince Consort, the 300th performance of which was given the other day at the L'Athénée, Paris, M. Abel Deval has decided to defer the production of Chiffon, and to continue the run of the first-named piece. Chiffon was due this week at L'Athénée.

The Prince of Wales's Theatre, Liverpool, reopened its doors on Monday after a lengthened closure. The house has had many vicissitudes, and a few weeks ago was put up for auction and withdrawn at £10,000. Mr J. H. French, the new lessee and general manager, has for some years been connected with the management of the Irving Theatre, Seacombe, and is a popular man in Liverpool dramatic circles. Mr Sidney Beltran is the new acting-manager, and Mr John Bayliss has returned to his former post as musical director.

His Highness My Husband may be described as a "pleasing" play. It is agreeable and amusing both in idea and plot; there is a "notion" in it, and that notion is developed neatly, concisely, and cleverly. Students of social politics can remember the difficulty of the "situation" when the late Prince Consort was married to Queen Victoria. There is a legend, still popularly believed, that, on one occasion, as a hint to the Prince to keep better hours the late Queen caused the guard at Windsor Castle to refuse him admission after a certain time at night. It is remembered, also, how earnest Queen Victoria was in supporting him in all the exertions he made to render himself a social force in England; and how, eventually, they together trampled over the prejudices of the old families and of the Court. The story of His Highness My Husband appeals, therefore, with peculiar reality to an English audience; and Mr William Boosey, in translating Le Prince Consort for the London stage, has given the piece a pretty sentimental turn, which decidedly commends it to the British playgoer.

The kingdom of Corconia is governed by a Council, under its young and handsome Queen, Sonia. It is desirable that a heir to the throne shall be provided; so Sonia's active and energetic Aunt Xenofa, and the elderly and officious President of the National Council arrange preliminaries for a union between the Queen and Prince Cyril, the son of the disreputable ex-monarch of Ingra, who consoles himself for the loss of his kingdom by a life of gay dissipation. Cyril has already fallen in love with Sonia; and as he is a manly, handsome fellow, she is much pleased with him. A public betrothal takes place; and, after a lapse of six months, we find Cyril fretting under the disagreeable humiliations of his new position. He cannot call even his time his own; for he must be ever at the beck and call of his wife. If he goes for a walk in the park, he has to say where he may be found and to fix the hour of his return; and when he endeavours to make suggestions respecting affairs of State, he is quietly "snubbed" both by Sonia and her prime minister. The situation becomes more and more "strained," and, at last, on the eve of the opening of the Parliament, when Sonia tells Cyril to prepare himself to escort her to the House, he "strikes," i.e., sends a message that he has gone to bed. By the advice of her councillor, the Queen despatches an officer and a file of dragoons to bring her husband to the royal presence manu militari; and, in resentment for this treatment, he flies from the Palace, and endeavours to cross the frontier. He returns, however, to discuss the situation with his wife and sovereign; and, in a passionate scene, they thrash the matter out, Cyril insisting on a divorce. Sonia, however, who is deeply in love with her husband, hits on a better way of solving the problem. She calls her Cabinet together, and announces to them her desire to place Prince Cyril in a position in the Government equal to her own. They demur to the change; whereupon she threatens to abdicate. As this would mean placing on the throne the "skittish" aunt and the old roué monarch, who have "paired off" together, the Council come to the conclusion that they will agree to Sonia's proposal; so Cyril is made King of Corconia, and the royal pair go out to reign happily ever afterwards.

An advantage connected with pieces dealing with Royalty is they afford excuse for the display of showy uniforms and costumes on the male side of the cast. Mr Leonard Boyne, in the second act of His Highness My Husband looked extremely handsome in the blue and gold of a Corconian hussar officer, and in the strong scene in the same act, in which Cyril and Sonia ardently discuss their mutual relations, Mr Boyne acted with remarkable power and feeling, and, though evidently nervous, carried the audience with him completely. He has immensely improved his performance since the first night, and has now made it very effective. Mr Eric Lewis played the ex-King of Ingra just in the required "touch-and-go" style, and with a background of dignity and grace which was very effective indeed. The rôle could hardly have been more completely and crisply sustained. Mr Herbert Ross, as the crafty President of the Council, supplied a character study of great sharpness of individuality, and, with a picturesque and graphic make-up, a cringing bow, and a cynical grunt, made the personage both striking and important. Mr Philip Cuningham was a magnificent Lieutenant of the Queen's Guard; and, in his towering plumes and shining breast-plate, looked a "perfect picture." He worked carefully and commendably, humorously indicating the shyness and reverence of the stupidly loyal Sandor. Mr Akerman May looked every inch a Chamberlain, and bore himself accordingly, and the members of the Cabinet were well represented, Mr Harvey Long being actively prominent as the Minister of War. Miss Miriam Clements gave an entirely delightful and charming performance of the part of Sonia. Her appearance in the regal "frocks" was exquisitely attractive; and the mixture of girlish simplicity and sweetness, sensitive pride, and warm affection in Sonia's nature was shown by Miss Clements in the most artistic and convincing style. Miss Lottie Venne as the amorous Aunt Xenofa, who goes to such lengths in her infatuation for the too-respectful Sandor, handled with delicate tact a part which in less light and skilful hands might easily have been found offensive, and acted with her usual quaint humour and comical precision. The ladies-in-waiting were well chosen, all being attractive and aristocratic in appearance. Mr Walter Hann's State Apartment set for the first act, and Mr Julian Hicks's Boudour and Library for the second and third, were appropriate and effective; and the piece, which was produced by Mr Gilbert Hare, went with great smoothness and had a decidedly favourable reception, Mr Boyne and Miss Clements being called with enthusiasm at the close of the performance and warmly applauded. His Highness My Husband is bright and amusing, and is likely to attract playgoers for many nights to come.

The King's Theatre, Sutton-in-Ashfield, was opened on Monday to a crowded house by Mr Henry Hare's Girl From Chicago company, every stall and second stall being booked in advance. The audience sang the National Anthem, and the following telegram was despatched to His Majesty:—"At opening of New King's Theatre, Sutton-in-Ashfield, to-night, the audience sang the National Anthem, and requested me to convey to your Majesty this slight token of their loyalty." A reply was received as follows:—"Balmoral Castle. The Equerry-in-Waiting has received the King's commands to acknowledge receipt of Mr Clayton's telegram, and to inform him that His Majesty learnt with much satisfaction of the expression of loyalty at the opening of the New King's Theatre, Sutton-in-Ashfield."

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, Thursday, Oct. 5.—The new work brought out at the Gymnase, although founded on Gyp's novel of the same name, has undergone a few important changes. The Comtesse De Martel—writing under the pseudonym of Gyp—was always an ardent anti-Semite, and in the troubled days of the Dreyfus affair distinguished herself by fighting in the front ranks of those who attempted to prevent an innocent man from obtaining justice. But Madame La Comtesse does not only devour Jews, whom she considers the enemies of mankind. Englishmen, too, share the same dismal fate, being, according to her, the foes of France. And if the personages in Gyp's novel had been transferred to the stage just as the authoress created them we certainly would have witnessed some violent demonstrations in the house. But M. Gauthier-Villars had no desire to raise trouble. All he wanted was to give Mdlle. Polaire, the well-known music hall star, an opportunity of displaying her talent on an important stage before an all-Paris audience; and, therefore, he not only weeded Le Friquet of all offensive remarks, but, with a liberal hand, rechristened several of the personages on whom Gyp had bestowed some suggestive but unlovely names. The story is simple and sentimental. Maffiu, a kind-hearted clown, has adopted a little girl he found wandering; and, in the course of time, she becomes an "artiste" in the same circus in which Maffiu performs. The latter has named her Le Friquet—the little sparrow—and that little bird has certainly a rough time of it. The proprietor of the circus is a hard taskmaster, and, like Mignon, she receives more blows than bread. Fortunately a Wilhelm Meister turns up in the person of Hubert, a wealthy young aristocrat, who rescues Le Friquet from the clutches of the brutal showman and engages her to look after his horses. As, however, the presence of a pretty young girl in his house might be wrongly interpreted, Madame Claparon, the wife of an elderly millionaire landed-proprietor, offers to take charge of Le Friquet. The latter is not at all pleased with this arrangement, which takes her away from Hubert, with whom she has fallen violently in love, and when in a touching scene the girl takes leave of the good clown Maffiu he gives her as a souvenir a huge clasp knife. In the second act Le Friquet has undergone a metamorphosis, and as Maffiu does not recognise in the young lady in an elegant white dress his little acrobat of a month ago, the young lady turns head over heels to convince him of her identity. Claparon, the elderly reprobate, fascinated by the attractive girl, makes love to her in an offensive manner, and is warned by her not to renew the attempt. Poor Friquet! She is anything but happy. One day she discovers that Hubert had a liaison with Madame Claparon, and she takes off her beautiful dresses and runs away from the house where she has to meet the man she loves and who does not love her. She knocks at the door of Baugé, a sculptor—a generous friend—who has offered her his heart and hand, and, borrowing from him a sum of money, she purchases a horse and gets an engagement at a fashionable circus, where she is to make a sensational début. When the curtain rises in the final tableau we are in Le Friquet's dressing room. She is alone changing her dress when she perceives the repulsive Claparon, hidden behind a screen. The man seizes her roughly in his arms, but she has grasped her knife, Maffiu's souvenir, and Claparon falls dead. Then she rushes out to do her performance, and we hear the audience shriek. She has seen Hubert seated next to Madame Claparon; she has dropped off the trapeze, and is carried to her dressing room, where, like the "Dame aux Camelias," she dies in the arms of the man she adores, holding the hands of her faithful friends, Maffiu and Baugé. The drawback of plays like Le Friquet made to measure for one particular artist, is that all the other rôles are necessarily sacrificed and become shadowy. For all that, Mdlle. Polaire had no easy task before her; and if she did not impress us with her histrionic powers she certainly gave us the sensation of something wild, something untamed, which suited her rôle to perfection. M. Numes as the clown, Maffiu, was most pathetic, M. Plan made the most of his impersonation of the repulsive Claparon, M. Andre Hall was a sympathetic Hubert, but their rôles are so woefully sketchy that we get but brief glimpses of these personages. And as to the ladies, if one did not hear their voices very often, they were at all events pleasant to look at.

"LE GRILLON."

Comedy, in Three Acts, by M. L. De Francomesnil, Produced at the Odéon, Oct. 1.

John	M. Dorival
Caleb	M. Janvier
Plummer	M. Gaston Severin
Tackleton	M. Cazalis
Dot	Mdlle. Sylvie
Mistress Fielding	Madame Dehon
Bertha	Mdlle. Taillade
May	Mdlle. Remy

Dickens' "Cricket on the Hearth," transferred to a Paris stage, met with a very cordial reception. It is a "family piece" which mothers can take their daughters to see, and it will interest them. Poor Bertha will remind them of little Delobelle, the pathetic figure created by Alphonse Daudet; and they will admire Dot and John's kitchen and the picturesque costumes designed by Maurice De Lambert. The work on the whole was well interpreted. Mdlle. Sylvie, an ideal Dot, proved herself once more a consummate artiste; and M. Dorival was an impressive John. M. Cazalis's Tackleton, on the other hand, was less satisfactory; and Mdlle. Taillade did hardly justice to the rôle of Bertha. Madame Dehon and Mdlle. Remy acquitted themselves well of their task.

The Variétés have inaugurated their operette season with Barbe Bleue and La Fille de Madame Angot, and it is probable that the present generation will once more be charmed by this pretty music. In the way of mounting, M. Samuel has, as usual, surpassed himself, but the interpretation was by no means good. The management seem to overlook the fact that the rôles have to be sung as well as acted, and good voices are sadly needed at the Variétés.

The revival of Le Demi-monde at the Comédie-Française has not proved a success. The work has grown woefully old-fashioned and no longer appeals to us. It was a praiseworthy attempt, but M. Claretie might have foreseen all this.

M. Mounet-Sully has nearly finished La Vieillesse de Don Juan, a drama in verse he is writing in collaboration with M. Pierre Barbier, and wherein he will, of course, interpret the principal rôle. The title certainly is curious. How will the author deal with his hero advanced in years? Will he show us a repentant Don Juan, or an old sinner—a kind of "vieux marcheur"? Nous verrons.

A curious experience has fallen to the lot of Miss Gladys Grenville, who in five nights has been called upon to play three principal parts in Mr Lubbock's Cherry Girl company. The difficult rôle of the Queen was taken up by her at a few hours' notice without rehearsal. At the conclusion of the performance Miss Grenville received the congratulations of, and a handsome present from, the management.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

(SPECIAL TO THE ERA.)

From time to time the need for an association to help one or other section of theatrical employees has been raised in The Era. Among these are the advance agents, members of the touring staffs, and attendants, but, so far, the wishes and regrets have gone no further than a more or less forcible letter.

These proposals do not lack arguments, or arguments that fully justify and demonstrate the usefulness of the various proposals, but associations do not come into existence by merely wishing for them, however unanimous or sincere those wishes may be. Some one person must take the initiative. Some one person must take the trouble to ascertain what the other good wishers and hopers mean. To help in arriving at a more practical conclusion than has yet been attained we invite all those interested to send their names to the writer of this column. Let us have some definite suggestions, and it will then be an easy matter to arrive at a decision. In the meanwhile those who are interested in the question can, at least, try to ascertain the views of their colleagues whom they meet in the course of business.

The members of the touring staffs have now every facility to join an association which is well established and in a position to provide substantial benefits. The National Association of Theatrical Employees includes every section of the stage working staff. Its Sick, Funeral, and Benevolent Funds and Employment Agency are open to all those eligible to join who wish to make provision by subscribing to such funds. All particulars may be obtained free on application to the secretary, 29, Wellington-street, Strand.

Here is a true story about Sir Henry Irving. When the needs of the play require him to die, the limelight man is instructed to show a grey light. On one occasion the limelight man put on a blue light, and at the conclusion of the act Sir Henry went to him and admonished him, in his gentle way, for being so careless, saying, "You don't know the agony I suffered as I lay dying"

The stage ship which has attracted so much attention at His Majesty's Theatre was made by Mr Asburner, master carpenter of the Broadway Theatre, Deptford.

Mr A. Jones, late property master with Sir Henry Irving, is asked to send his address to Mr W. Johnson, 29, Wellington-street, Strand.

The joint concert committee arranging the concert to be given in the Royal Opera House have obtained permission from Mr Frank Rendle and Mr Neil Forsyth to invite the assistance of any of the artists appearing at that theatre during the forthcoming opera season. A preliminary announcement will be circulated this week to all London theatres and music halls. All seats other than the 6d. tickets will be reserved. A large number of musicians and others have volunteered their services at the concert, and to aid the committee in completing their arrangements.

Mr. J. Sales, senior, an old member of the Empire Theatre staff, died suddenly on Wednesday. He was a member of the Funeral Fund of the N.A.T.E.

Notices and reports of meetings, &c., are invited from the various societies with which stage employees are connected.

BIRTHS.

Lawton.—Sept. 30, the wife of Frank Lawton (Mr George Musgrove's Belle of New York company), of a son. Both doing well.

MARRIAGES.

Reynolds—Davine.—Oct. 2, at Blackpool, Walter Reynolds, jun., to Clara Davine (Clara Lavinia Jones).

DEATHS.

Daventry.—Sept. 30, at 27, Witherington-road, Highbury, George Daventry, aged forty-five. "The world is poorer by his death." R.I.P.
Franklin.—Sept. 30, at Leighton Buzzard, B. Franklin, father of Francis Franklin and Jennie Franklin, R.A.M. (la femme Grossmith), aged seventy-five.
Halford.—Sept. 28, at 4, King Edward-street, Islington, N., John Halford Jones. Born Feb. 16, 1820. "Othello's occupation's gone." R.I.P.
Merrilees.—Sept. 27, at Newcastle onTyne, after a long illness, Andy Merrilees, aged sixty-three.
Shave.—Oct. 1, Sidney Arthur, only child of Alice and Arthur Shave (Shavo), aged eight months. Interred at Tyldesley. Deeply mourned.

In Memoriam.

Atkinson.—In loving memory of Emmie Atkinson (Archie Richards), who died Oct. 9, 1901. Never forgotten by her loving friend, Georgie Heaton.
Holden.—In loving remembrance of my dear father, John Holden, who died at Nottingham, Oct. 7, 1899. No time can efface thy memory.—Ada
Howard—In loving memory of Sarah Martin Howard (mother of the Brothers Howard), who passed away Oct. 2, 1902. Gone, but not forgotten by Ada (Madame Louie).
Keith.—In loving memory of our dear mother, Elizabeth Keith, who died Oct. 13, 1900. Gone, but never forgotten by her loving children.
Snowdon.—In affectionate memory of L. M. Snowdon, Esq., late of Theatre Royal, South Shields, who died Oct. 7, 1902.—E. and W. P.

At the Public Hall, Woking, the attraction this week is Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison's company in the comedy Saturday to Monday, presented by Mr Charles Macdona. Mr Charles Howitt as Lord Calvert of Alcester has proved himself a highly finished actor. Miss Adeline Lester as Lady Diana Porchester and Mr Donald Maclean in the rôle of Probyn Dyke both find much favour. Mr Jack Hampton is the cause of much laughter as Stanley Ridding, and the other members of a particularly strong cast were Miss Florence Tressilian as Thompson (the maid), Miss Charlotte Mead as Miss Skeet, Miss M'Aimee Murray as Miss Ursula Toop; Miss Haidee Hemsley as Angela, and Mr Edwin Ling as the Rev. Samuel Toop. The comedy is preceded by the one-act farce Judged by Appearances.

DAVID DAY'S DEPARTURE.

(BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

On Thursday morning a numerous company assembled at Euston Station to bid farewell to Mr David Day, of the well-known music-publishing firm of Messrs Francis, Day, and Hunter, the occasion being that gentleman's departure for a trip to Canada and the United States, a trip the dominant note of which will be pleasure. Mr Day, accompanied by his wife and eldest son, Mr Charles Day—both of whom are likewise voyagers—arrived at the station from their new West Hampstead residence shortly after 10·0 a.m., and the short time remaining ere the 10·45 for Liverpool departed was taken up with farewells, handshakings, and hearty good wishes, Mrs Day being the recipient of a most lovely bouquet of red roses from Mrs George Le Brunn. When the train started, with the punctuality for which the London and North-Western Railway is noted, that portion of No. 14 platform contiguous to the party's reserved compartment was well-nigh impassable for the crowd of personal friends and well-wishers, including several members of the staff, who pressed round the carriage for a final handshake, while "For he's a jolly good fellow" was sung, and three cheers were given. Just prior to the start Mr John Smith, the firm's manager, and Mr Joseph Thurlow, Mr Day's secretary, dashed along the platform and, intrepidly crossing in front of the screaming monster engine, proceeded some "little distance on the way" along the line, and gave one farewell hurrah whilst standing on the next metals as the train went by. Mr John P. Harrington, the well-known song-writer, who had journeyed expressly from his Bedford home by the "7 55 up" to St. Pancras to see Mr Day off, asked that gentleman's acceptance of an impromptu acrostical bon mot, which we reproduce, and which voiced to a nicety the feelings of all who were present:—

D avid, adieu! Nay, 'tis but au revoir!
A swift boat bears you to a far-off shore!
V isions of conquest tempt you o'er the foam.
I n far Columbia plant the songs from home,
D avid, e'er sunny as a summer's day.

D on't hurry, but—don't stop too long away,
A sight of you, ere Christmas comes, we need;
Y our long-time friend cries "Bon voyage! God speed!"

Among the many ladies and gentlemen present were Mr and Mrs William Francis, Mr and Mrs Harry Hunter, Mr Leslie Stuart, Mrs Westall and her son and daughter, Mrs Phelan, Miss Dorothy Phelan, Mr Fred Day, Mr Charles Taylor, Mr William H. Watts, Mr Edward St. Quentin, Mr and Mrs George Le Brunn, Mrs Edgar Bateman, Mr J. P. Harrington, Mr Bennett Scott, Mr A. J. Mills, Mr "Willie" Preston (of Musical Copyright Association fame), and two of the best-known artists on the variety stage, in the persons of Mr Fred M'Naughton and Mr Tom Costello, were also present, together with a contingent of heads of departments and representative members of the permanent staff of the firm, including Mr John Smith (manager), Mr Lester Barrett, Mr Fred W. Leigh, Mr Henry E. Pether, Mr Eyke, Mr John

MR. DAVID DAY.

Abbott (also a terror to pirates), Mr Fred Blott, Edgar Bateman, and Mr J. W. Thurlow (Mr Day's secretary).

From Liverpool later in the day the ss. Tunisian, of the Allian Line, en route for Quebec and Montreal, bore the party on the first stage of what all will hope may prove a delightful journey. Mr Maynard, a respected member of the firm's travelling staff, was among the last to bid them farewell.

The report is current in Australian dramatic circles that Miss Maud Hobson, now on a world's tour with Mr George Edwardes's company with Three Little Maids will marry a rich ranche owner in America at the close of the Australian season. Miss Hobson plays the part of Lady Mallory.

Mr Charles Frohman has secured the American rights of Mr Gayer Mackay and "Robert Ord's" play, Dr. Wake's Patient, which was recently produced at Liverpool.

Mr Harry Marvello, society entertainer, has been engaged to give his magical, musical, and ventriloquial entertainment on Tuesday at Mar Lodge, before H.R.H. Princess Louise (Duchess of Fife), his Grace the Duke of Fife, and party. This makes Mr Marvello's fifth performance before Royalty, he having appeared on several occasions at Balmoral Castle and Duff House. Messrs Walker and Co., of Aberdeen, are to present their well-known Cinématograph entertainment on the same occasion.

Mr W. E. Potts, of Theatre Royal, Dumfries, has arranged a lease of the Opera House, Dunfermline. Mr Potts managed this house with much success for the greater part of last season. Extensive alterations are to be made in the internal arrangements of the building. A beautiful entrance hall is to take the place of the present entrance to the stalls, dress, and upper-circle. The staircase to the dress and upper-circle is to be reconstructed, and a lounge room is to be fitted up for the convenience of the dress-circle patrons.

Mr Norman, having found A Trip to Chinatown so successful this autumn, is now adding a small chorus and a troupe of dancers to his already excellent cast of the piece, which opened the Irving Theatre, Seacombe, on Monday, for the season.

The Mayor of Leicester, accompanied by the Mayoress, Lady Rolleston, and Sir Thomas Wright and Lady Wright, opened on Monday an important addition to the Victoria Hall and Galleries there. The new institution is in the centre of Leicester, and is an imposing stone structure of five storeys, with a tower, designed by Mr E. Burgess, and erected at a cost of over £30,000. The Institution will be entirely devoted to the promotion of high-class music in the Midlands.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

MELBOURNE, Aug. 10.—A noteworthy and characteristic example of enterprise is to be credited to Mr J. C. Williamson, who, on the 6th inst., staged Sunday at Her Majesty's. Melbourne playgoers were therefore privileged to view a new and successful drama within a few months of the initial performance in London. The theatre was filled with an audience eager to see the new play, and also ready to welcome Miss Tittell Brune, who comes from America with a reputation associated with such parts as Camille, Fedora, &c. Miss Brune made her first bow to an Australian audience in the name part, and in the lighter comedy proved to be less convincing than when the opportunity permitted the expression of emotion or an outburst of passion. Her performance was graceful, and secured the hearty approval of Melbournian "first-nighters." It is safe to assume that this accomplished actress will prove to be even stronger when seen in more congenial parts. The quartet of miners consisted of Messrs Cuyler Hastings, Edmund Gwenn, J. B. Atholwood, and E. B. Russell, who played respectively the parts of Jacky, Lively, Davy, and Towser. This will be the final appearance of Mr Hastings, who has played lead in Mr Williamson's dramatic company throughout Australia and New Zealand during the past eighteen months. His interpretation of Jacky must be recorded as one of a succession of artistic performances, the greatest of which was Dick Heldar, in The Light that Failed. Mr Gwenn, who will shortly return to England with his wife (Miss Minnie Terry), gave a striking picture of Lively, and thus added one more character study of strong colour to his extensive list of low comedy parts. Mr Roy Redgrave made his first appearance in this country as Colonel Brinthorpe, and promises to be an acquisition of some value to the company, while Mr Gaston Mervale, who has just returned to Australia after an absence of several years, gave a forceful rendering of the wayward brother, Arthur. The remaining parts were allotted with satisfactory results to Mr Lumsden Hare (Oxley), Miss Mabel Lane (Mrs Naresby), Miss Minnie Terry (a nun), and Mr P. Scardon (a servant).

The final performance of The Light that Failed, which has just been displaced at Her Majesty's by Sunday, was also the occasion of the farewell appearance of two popular members of the company. The Masie (Miss May Chevalier) and Torpenhow (Mr F. Hamilton Stewart) leave Melbourne this week en route to London, their departure being regretted by a large number of local playgoers.

The Levinos, the Tossing Austins, Mr Pete Baker, Miss Katherine Dahl, Miss May Moore-Duprez, Little Cora Hamilton, and Fred Bluett are on the bill at the Opera House, where Mr Harry Rickards has also introduced the American game of push-ball. At the Gaiety Theatre Mr Frank M. Clark's New Folly company includes Steve Adson, the Lentons, and other vaudeville actors.

Mr Phillip Lytton, who has been successful in establishing a "dramatic art academy" in Sydney under the title of "The Players," has extended his operations to this city. During the past week, the Players produced The Liars and The Schoolmistress in a provincial theatre, and at the end of the present week Melbourne playgoers will have the opportunity of witnessing the efforts of local amateurs in the same comedies at the Bijou Theatre.

Princess's Theatre.—A good audience witnessed the performance of The Rose of the Riviera on Saturday evening. A number of new items were introduced, and all met with an excellent reception. The popular "Cosy Corner Girl" was successfully sung by Miss Beatty; Mr Edward Lauri was as amusing as ever in his latest comedy sketch, Woman; the Bovis Bros, Mr M'Naughton, Miss Garstang, and Miss Nixon also contributed largely to the evening's amusement. The Dandy Doctor is the next production.

Theatre Royal.—That highly sensational melodrama, Greed of Gold, still continues to please the patrons of this theatre. With an innocent man rescued from being crushed to death by moving machinery, a picturesque and fanciful ballet, a scene in an opium den, and a murder trial, resulting in the acquittal of the hero, the audience is quite content, and shows its appreciation by prolonged applause at the conclusion of each act.

Opera House.—The introduction of short bright comediettas into the midst of a number of music hall turns is an innovation which has achieved great popularity both in America and England. On the few occasions that these plays have been produced in Australia they have proved so successful as to encourage Mr Rickards to repeat the experiment. On Saturday evening the Levinos presented a little comedy which greatly strengthens the programme, and which will no doubt serve to establish them as favourites with Melbourne audiences. Both are clever comedians. Mr Levino is also one of the smartest lightning sketch artists we have had in Melbourne. Another novelty presented at this theatre on Saturday evening was a game of push ball, in which two teams of athletic young ladies were engaged. A number of interesting pictures were exhibited by the Bioscope. The rest of the company gave interesting turns.

Mr Frank Clarke's Folly Company at the Gaiety Theatre has been strengthened by new artists. Mr Steve Adson has proved a great success; the Lentons (acrobats), Miss Winnie Bond, Miss Jennie Thorne, and Miss Olive Robinson have also been well received.

SYDNEY, Aug. 16.—The Girl from Kay's is the latest musical farce mounted in admirable style by Mr J. C. Williamson at Her Majesty's and presented by Mr George Edwardes's company. The Max Hoggenheimer of Mr G. P. Huntley and the Henri of Mr Maurice Farkoa were both admirable. Miss Maud Hobson was warmly welcomed as the bride's mother. Miss Elsa Ryan made her début as Ellen, her acting, singing, and dancing proving most acceptable. Miss Madge Crichton was good as Winnie, and Miss Delia Mason made a conscientious Norah. Other parts were taken by Messrs H. V. Surrey, George Carroll, R. St. George, and Misses Eva Kelly and Kathleen Warren. The piece was staged-managed by Mr George F. Stephenson, and Mr Frank Tours conducted.

"Hoity-Toity" is another piece of nonsense by the American Travesty Stars at the Palace Theatre. It has absolutely no plot, but there is a cleverly arranged succession of fun, frolic, music, and dancing. The three drolls Max M. Dill, C. W. Kolb, and Barney Bernard have Teutonic rôles, and their travesty of social etiquette was extremely funny. Miss Maud Amber and Mr Winfield Blake have better opportunities and music than they had in Fiddle-dee-dee, and they showed to greater advantage. The soprano and baritone join in pleasing duets. Miss Lillie Sutherland again excels in "coon" work, and Mr Richard Goodall (who also stage manages) made King Kazoo most amusing. Mr C. M. Berkeley scored as Lady Grafter's agent, and Messrs Hart, Huxham, Saunders, and Snook, sang part songs excellently. Mr George Campbell supplied some pretty scenery, notably Monte Carlo. In this scene a very lively waltz chorus was sung. The ballet was specially spry, and Mr Harry James conducted.

Mr Bland Holt keeps his Royal audience deeply interested in The Prodigal Daughter, with its realistic steeplechase, but he will produce Henry Pettitt's drama The Romance of Life on the 20th, with adequate staging.

"The Struggle of Life" has entered on its last week at the Lyceum, and on Saturday next Mr Walter Sandford's American Players will put on a complete production of Uncle Tom's Cabin, with a host of real Negroes in plantation songs and dances to make the story as realistic as possible.

The Tivoli bill includes Will Van Allen, Eva Wellington, Malvena Moore, Ernest Sullivan, Lennard, Jones, and Elliott, the Musical Johnstones, Burke, Moller and Teller, and Nellie Kilburn. A new comer was Little Olive Carr, a juvenile song and dance artist.

Mr Harry Rickards, with his proverbial generosity, gave his theatre and company in aid of the sufferers by the Nemesis disaster, whole families being left destitute through the loss of the vessel. In this excellent object he was assisted by the American travesty company now performing at the Palace, and others. About £200 was realised by the performance.

Mr George Stephenson's musical comedy company, headed by May Beatty and Edward Lauri, is doing capital business in Melbourne, the present success being The Dandy Doctor, to be followed on the 27th by The Skirt Dancer, for the first time in Australia.

SYDNEY, Aug. 23.—In A Life's Romance—an old favourite under a new name—at the Royal, Miss Frances Ross was once more the Kate Denby, whilst Miss Harrie Ireland (Bella Greystone) and Mrs Bland Holt (Mary Maguire) completed the trio of well-acted principal female parts. Miss Brightie Smith was a capital boy as Jack Lee; Mr Walter Baker, a manly Walter Lee; Mr Albert Norman, a caddish Philip Padley; Mr Bland Holt, an amusing Titus Knott; Mr Arthur Styan, suitably eccentric as Bob Channel; Mr Charles Brown, an admirable Ivan Novitch; and Mr Max Maxwell, a carefully acted John Denby. All these contributed to secure an excellent all-round performance.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin," by Mr Walter Sanford's American Players, delighted a packed house at the Lyceum on Saturday, the 20th. Extra efforts were made to lighten the sad story of George and Eliza Harris by introducing a number of real Negroes in their plantation songs and dances. The encores were so numerous and insistent that it was near midnight when the curtain fell. All present appeared well pleased with Mr Sanford's playing of the part of Uncle Tom, and the strong representation of Legree by Mr George Kimkel. The vivacious and mendacious Topsy was ably embodied by Miss Adelaide Boothby, and an old favourite Negro, Charles Pope, made an excellent Aunt Chloe.

"The Girl from Kay's," with Messrs G. P. Huntley and Maurice Farkoa in the leading rôles, keeps Mr J. C. Williamson's patrons in good humour at Her Majesty's Theatre, but as the time at the disposal of the Gaiety Company is limited the bill will be changed on Saturday to Three Little Maids.

The Tivoli has "the Tossing Austins" to the fore as chief entertainers; Miss Katharine Dahl, the American soprano; Tom Bass, Burke, Moller, and Teller, the Musical Johnstones, Nellie Kilburn, Maud Faning, Irving Sayles, Ella Wellington, Maggie Fraser, the Diamond Duo, and Ernest Sullivan.

"GETTING EVEN."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—My attention has been called to a letter in your last week's issue (re our sketch Getting Even) from a Mr Bartlett. In reply to the same we beg to state that we produced ours at the Crystal Palace, London, in June, 1901, two years before Mr Bartlett's effort. Again, I did not get the idea from Family Jars. I wrote the sketch for four people, but found it go better by playing the four parts ourselves. I do not claim any originality for the idea or plot, as I daresay both have been done many years before sketches were made prominent; but by managers it is considered very smart in its way, and I trust Mr Bartlett will meet with the same success with his sketch as we are doing with ours.

Yours faithfully,
FRED SINCLAIR (Sinclair and Whiteford).

THEATRICAL GOLF.

"Duchess of Dantzic" v. "Florodora."

A golf match was played on the 30th ult. on the links of the Hallamshire Club at Sandygate, between members of The Duchess of Dantzic company, then appearing at the Lyceum Theatre, and those of the Florodora company, from the Theatre Royal. Teams of six a-side had been arranged, but two well-known artists from the Empire were subsequently included—Messrs Horace Mills and W. H. Rawlins. The full scores were as under:—

At the usual weekly meeting of the council of the Actors' Association, Wm Seymour Burrows, Esq., B.A., M.R.C.S., &c., 62, Old Steine, Brighton; Thos. Preston Gostling, Esq., L.R.C.P., &c., 39, Foregate-street, Worcester; Wm. Gorrie, Esq., M.B., &c., 12, King-street, Dundee; T. Moravian Carter, Esq., M.R.C.S., &c., 28, Victoria-square, Clifton, Bristol, were elected hon. medical officers of the "A.A." The secretary reported the result of certain proceedings in connection with a prosecution for alleged bogus management. The council voted a sum of money "as a contribution towards expenses of prosecution," and directed the secretary to attend the trial at the Sessions. The hon. solicitors reported they had advised certain members upon points submitted. The secretary referred to the notice sent out on the 1st inst. to members whose subscriptions for the current year remained unpaid. The hon. solicitors were requested to advise a member as to his right to claim damages for publication of his name in programmes, advertisements, daybills, &c., after he had left the company he had been engaged in. The secretary announced the receipt of "a contribution from C——G——, in memory of past favours from the committee and staff." The council received the report of the Finance and General Purposes Committee.

In Sergeant Brue, at the Prince of Wales's Theatre this evening, Miss Madge Lessing will take up the part hitherto sustained by Miss Olive Morrell.

Mr Douglas Gerrard, who has been playing Prince Kara in Mr Tree's north company of The Darling of the Gods, was taken ill a few weeks ago at Leeds, and he has been resting at his home in Ireland. He is much better now. Thanks to the courtesy of Mr Tree, he hopes to be able to rejoin his company in two or three weeks' time.—Mr Stuart Lomath has been engaged by Mr John F. Asche to star as Sir Clement Huntingford in the forthcoming tour of The World.—Little Tony has been secured by Messrs Forge and Dalton for their forthcoming pantomime at the Aquarium, Yarmouth, and for tour.

Herr Oscar Blumenthal's new play, Der Tote Löwe (The Dead Lion), which was about to be produced in Berlin, has been condemned by the police censor, and its performance has been forbidden on the ground that certain scenes in it are reminiscent of events which occurred about 1890, the year in which Prince Bismarck was dismissed from office. Der Tote Löwe will, however, shortly be given in Hamburg.

Mr Norman V. Norman will shortly revive Wycherley's comedy The Country Girl, which has not been seen in the provinces for some years past, with Miss Beatrice Wilson as Peggy.

Mr and Mrs Cyril Melton (Miss Ethel Sarjient) were on Tuesday, Oct. 4, the recipients of hearty congratulations from their numerous friends on their silver wedding.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NEW YORK, SEPT 21.—The fourth season of the Manhattan Theatre under the management of Harrison Grey Fiske is marked by the establishing of the Manhattan Company, a permanent organisation, with Mrs Fiske at its head, which will make this theatre its home and play there during the greater part of the season. Several players who have won prominence on the English and American stage have been engaged to support Mrs Fiske, and there is no question that the representations of classic and modern plays to be given at the Manhattan during the coming winter will appeal very strongly to discriminating playgoers. Mrs Fiske was seen once more in the rôle of Beck Sharp at the reopening of the theatre on the 14th inst., and added to her laurels by her admirable portrayal of that character. The revival gained an additional interest by the appearance as the Marquis of Steyne of Mr George Arliss, whose vivid embodiment of the terrible Zakkuri, in The Darling of the Gods, had left an ineffaceable impression. The lecherous old Marquis, as Mr Arliss represented him, was a man whose proclivities were plainly stamped on his physiognomy, and whose voice and manner were equally suggestive. It was a notable impersonation, both in respect of make-up and acting, and Mr Arliss has received full credit for it. Mr John Mason had his best opportunity as Rawdon Crawley in the third act, where the latter discovers Becky with the Marquis, and this scene he enacted splendidly. Messrs Robert V. Ferguson, William B. Mack, Henry J. Hadfield, and Stanley Rignold played prominent parts well. Langdon Mitchell's comedy was originally produced at the Fifth-avenue Theatre in 1899. Mrs Fiske will appear as Hedda Gabler during the season, and a revival of Tess of the D'Urbervilles is contemplated.

"THE KREUTZER SONATA," in which Miss Blanche Walsh will be seen this season, is not a dramatisation of Tolstoi's well-known novel but a tragedy of Jewish life, written by the playwright of the Ghetto, Jacob Gordin. It was produced in the original Yiddish at the Thalia Theatre two years ago. Ettie, the daughter of a Jewish merchant, is secretly courted by a Russian officer, a Christian, and although she knows that the alliance will break her father's heart she is ready to be baptised so as to become the officer's wife. But her lover's parents refuse to receive a Jewess into the family, and the young man commits suicide. Ettie is broken in spirit and disgraced by the illicit intimacy with her lover. Her father persuades her to marry a man whom she neither loves nor respects, and who merely wants her money. The young couple leave for America, and Ettie is ill-treated by her husband. When they are settled in New York they are joined by Ettie's younger sister, a frivolous girl, who begins to flirt with her brother-in-law. One day Ettie finds them together, and compels her sister to leave the city. But she soon returns to resume the intimacy, and in the end Ettie takes a revolver and shoots them both.

"THE WHITE TIGRESS OF JAPAN," a drama in five acts produced at the American Theatre, is quite up to date, for it deals with the present war between Russia and Japan. It is a melodrama of the good old-fashioned sort and a genuine "thriller." The White Tigress is the sobriquet bestowed upon Kinume, Countess of Ogawa. At the rise of the curtain she has escaped from exile in Siberia and her whereabouts have been discovered by the Russian Government. A Russian officer who has ruined her is ordered to capture her, and he and his minions pursue her through Japan, China, and Corea. Everywhere the fugitive Tigress is aided, and the pursuing Russians are baffled by Raymond Grant, an American naval lieutenant; his brother Bob, a pert young cadet; a ubiquitous newspaper correspondent called London Jack, and a resourceful Japanese man-servant, who is a gymnast of remarkable ability. The fugitives are brought to bay in the town of Ping-Yang. There is a street fight between the Russians and the Japanese, ending with the capture of the Tigress. This scene had a very exciting effect upon the audience. In the final scene all the characters, including the Tigress, are ushered into the presence of the Czar. Unseemly brawls break out, and an American lieutenant slaps a treacherous Chinaman in the face. A messenger delivers a letter to the Czar, who announces that an heir has been born to him, and proclaims a general amnesty to all political prisoners, including the White Tigress of Japan.

MISS FRITZI SCHEFF scored a success recently at Cleveland in a new opera entitled The Two Roses, which is a musical rendering of Goldsmith's comedy She Stoops to Conquer. Miss Scheff appeared as Rose Decourcelle, described in the reports as a sort of French Kate Hardcastle, and also as Rose Marie, a French barmaid. The cast includes Mr Roland Cunningham, the English tenor, who represented the bashful lover. The book is by Stanislaus Stange, and the music by Ludwig Englander, whose melodies are said to be delightfully suggestive of the simplicity of old English country life.

"MR WIX OF WICKHAM," an English musical comedy, by Herbert Darnley, was produced at the Bijou Theatre last Monday, and was well received.

MR PERCY SALMON has written, and Messrs Strangeways and Son have published, a bright and varied account of his experiences in taking photographs in Egypt, Palestine, Turkey, and Greece. The description of the difficulties which were placed in his way in the Holy Land are most amusing, and the book, which is agreeably illustrated, is commendable for its crisp actuality and dry humour.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER,

BY ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B.

Published at "The Era" Offices, 49, Wellington-street, Strand, W.C.

Copyright confusion is, like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr Albert A. Strong's new work entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his text-book on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" Office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases, what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee, July 28th, 1901

Those who are interested in "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" will derive much valuable intelligence by reading Mr Albert Strong's book bearing the above title, published at "The Era" Office.—Pelican, Aug. 3d, 1901.

Mr A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes" which is at present required.—St. James's Gazette, Aug. 2d, 1901

THE ERA

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1904.

MR. TREE AND SHYLOCK.

The announcement that Mr BEERBOHM TREE has decided to revive, eventually, The Merchant of Venice at His Majesty's Theatre will be hailed with delight by everyone The assumption of the character of Shylock by one of the most enterprising of our younger actor-managers is certain to be interesting; and the allotment of the various characters in the play to artists of the rising generation will, it is to be hoped, add to certain reputations and lead to the discovery of hidden talents Especially shall we await with curiosity the "view" taken by Mr TREE of the character of Shylock.

In the dark ages of Shakespearian adaptation, from 1701 of 1741, the prevailing view was emphasised in the Marquis of LANSDOWNE'S version of the play, which he garb'ed and maltreated sadly. It does not appear, however, that the crime of making Shylock comic should be set down to his Lordship's discredit. At that time the question whether the Jew of Venice was or was not a serious part was a moot point. ROWE for instance, wrote, "Though we have seen The Merchant of Venice received and acted as a comedy, yet I cannot but think that the character was tragically designed by the author." The piece was—strange as it may seem—received and acted as a comedy, the happy ending, apparently, outweighing in general opinion the very tragical action of the play. But, though DOGGETT is described as a "comedian," it is by no means certain that he played Shylock in the spirit of buffoonery DOGGETT himself had many of the qualities of the Jew—the obstinate persistency, the severe exactness, and the stubborn pride. MACKLIN, according to LEIGH HUNT, was "one of those actors whose performances are confined to the reflection of their own personal peculiarities." His features, "inflexible and coarse," as CHURCHILL called them, his mind, "as rough and durable as his body," and his overbearing and savage temper doubtless had much to do with his success as Shylock. He was the first, certainly, to represent the Jew of Venice with dignity. This, however, was more an accidental than a reasoned result. It was not so much that MACKLIN, an actor of only moderate ability, had instinctive insight enough to enable him to analyse and understand the character; it was that he could not play it in any other way than he did. As it was, the "reading" did not meet with general acceptance, and never took any great hold upon the contemporary public. It was in advance of the age; and the association of a Jew character with a comedian was too strong. The stage Hebrew was fixed as a comic type; and it needed time for public feeling to "come round." Even MACKLIN, though he gave Shylock a red hat, did not venture to dispense with a red wig, the mark of low comedy.

The facts seem to have been that, in the "early seventies," the Jew was even less respected than he was in the reign of King John. People simply refused to take him seriously. The power of capital was not then as absolute as it is at present; and the Jew had grown to be regarded as an eccentric, amusing, but convenient personage—a "stock" absurdity, like the Irishman and the Quaker The man who first thoroughly penetrated the character of Shylock was, of course, EDMUND KEAN. But here we come again upon the "personal factor." It was not only KEAN'S genius that inspired him as Shylock—it was his experience It is impossible to estimate all that KEAN must have suffered in his struggling days, or how bitterly he must have felt his hardships and humiliations. How the iron entered into his soul was shown by his behaviour to a certain provincial manager years after KEAN'S rise to fame and fortune He was engaged, in his youth, on the provincial manager's "circuit," and he bore the sordid slavery with patience. Years rolled on, and bad times came to the manager. KEAN was passing through the town where his former employer was staying, and the latter begged the actor to play for one night for his benefit. KEAN did so, and the receipts were large. He met the bénéficiaire in the public room of the principal tavern in the town and the latter made a "gushing" speech of gratitude. KEAN rose, and, in his reply, said:—"I don't play for you because you were once a manager. If ever a man deserved his destiny, it was you. If ever there was a family of tyrants, it was yours. I do not play for you from former friendship, but because you are a fallen man." He afterwards remarked to a friend, "When me and mine were starving that fellow refused to let a subscription be made for us in the theatre." KEAN therefore was supplied with all that "cruel indignation" which must serve as "steam" for the propulsion of a performance of Shylock. He was intense; and, in many parts, it is the degree of intensity and not the amount of intellectuality which "tells." Sir HENRY IRVING in his superb impersonation of Shylock—one of his grandest creations—combines the greatest dignity with the most powerfully intense expression of feeling.

The increase of humanity and toleration has made it difficult for us to realise a character like Shylock's. So many disabilities have been removed, so many prejudices outgrown, that we find it difficult to understand a nature like the Jew's. The only parallel to the latter's condition which is to be found at the present day is that of the tailor. The Venetian Jew was despised because he lent money at interest, an entirely commendable and useful practice, the condemnation of which seems as ridiculous in our eyes as it essentially is. The social prejudice against tailors at the present day is equally unreasonable and equally insuperable. Mr GEORGE MEREDITH, in his novel "Evan Harrington," shows a young man possessed of every advantage and beloved by a beautiful and rich young lady. but with the taint of near relationship to tailor-dom His struggles with his evil star and his ultimate triumph constitute the action of the fictive drama. And this digression illustrates the force of temporary prejudice. In DOGGETT'S time the Jew was accepted as comic, and as comic the public insisted on his being represented. The moderns insist equally on a tailor being contemptible in fiction; and all the argument in the world will not alter the opinion. The only tailor whom we remember in a modern play is Mr Gibson, in The Private Secretary—a vulgar fellow with vulgar aspirations to social advancement. MORONI'S portrait of a tailor in the National Gallery is a masterpiece, and the man, in his reflective pause, is entirely fine and admirable. We do not find R.A.'s choosing as their models one of the head cutters of our great West-End clothing establishments. It will need all Mr TREE'S marvellous power of imagination to realise the feelings of an unjustly despised and outlawed class. Mr TREE, however, is an actor of genius, and it is the especial faculty of genius to vanquish the difficult and achieve the almost impossible. His appearance as Shylock is certain to be one of the most interesting events of next year.

THE Moody-Manners Opera company is at the Broadway, S.E., this week, and has attracted large and delighted audiences. On Monday Faust was played. Mr Charles Manners scored a great success as Mephistopheles, his singing and acting being loudly applauded. Madame De Vere as Marguerite easily won the favourable verdict of the audience. Valentine had an admirable exponent in Mr F. H. Erle, and Faust was ably embodied by Mr Wilson Pembroke. On Thursday night the company performed Ambroise Thomas's Mignon. A packed house testified to the popular favour of this tuneful and delightful opera. The burden of the story, of course, falls upon the capable shoulders of Miss Fanny Moody, who delighted everybody with the charm of her acting and singing as Titania. Miss Ada Davies as the dashing actress fairly electrified the audience by her singing of that most difficult and florid polacca "Je suis Titania." In the runs and trills of this most difficult solo she rivalled the Nightingale itself. The manner in which she managed the mezza voce produced a deliciously sweet, soft tone. The accomplished artist thoroughly deserved the "bravos" which rewarded her at the end of the song. Mr John Child, the tenor, won his way to the favour of the audience. The opera was excellently mounted. The orchestra, under Herr Eckhold, was well under command, and proved that he had a very excellent body of musicians obeying the movements of his bâton. The week's répertory also includes Maritana, Tannhäuser, Carmen, and The Bohemian Girl.

A certain obscurity about the authorship of Mrs Lewis Waller's latest venture, Vilma, which was produced for the first time on any stage at the Queen's Theatre, Manchester, on Monday, may be ascribed to the fact that a few days previously it was found necessary to make many textual alterations in deference to the Censor, who, it seems, refused to license it in its original form. All that one can be certain about is that the Censor had apparently good grounds for objection, the plain fact being that the pivot of the play is an act of rape committed under the most brutal conditions, a situation which even now gives at least the first two acts a most unpleasant atmosphere. Plays of this kind, it may be noticed, seldom contain anything heroic, the place of which is taken by sentimentalism more or less morbid. Certainly heroism is lacking in Vilma; and such sentiment as it possesses, apart from the conventional variations, is coloured by the author's feverish attention to the details of his idea. It is the sentiment of sexuality; and it is wanting in fragrance as it is wanting in common-sense.

The action of the play takes place in Russia, and in the first act, with a rural cottage in the foreground, and a huge palatial building, designated the "Cabaret Rouge," in perspective, we are asked to suppose ourselves in St. Petersburg. Vilma is the innocent daughter of a worthy couple who live in the cottage, and who dream fondly that their child must surely some day marry high and honourably. During their absence, however, three drunken officers of the Imperial Guard, on their way to an orgie at the Cabaret Rouge, abduct Vilma just as she is returning from a visit to a sick neighbour, and they take her forcibly to their infamous resort in lieu of a couple of stage creatures who have quarrelled with and left them. What happens there—"in the dark"—we are left not too vaguely to conjecture. After her parents have discovered, through a servant, what has become of her, Vilma makes her reappearance, distraught. She has managed to escape in the confusion of an unexpected police raid, and her one thought is to assure her parents that what has happened to her, before God, was not her fault. It is especially worthy of note that the ringleader of the trio of offenders, Lieut. Count Alexis Souvaroff, who behaves in this unspeakable style, is the hero of the play; and he is the kind of person whom the ordinary melodramatic hero, or the person of everyday life, would be constrained to horsewhip. In the second act he figures scarcely less despicably. Vilma's father, Peter Varensky, having on his side the friendly influence of the Countess Souvaroff, aunt to Alexis, has put the matter to the police, and is bent on vengeance. He seeks the Countess in her palace; he cannot say what are the names of the offenders; but his daughter must surely recognise them—one of them, at least—could they be brought face to face. The Countess, never dreaming who it is she moves against, approaches the Czar. The result is that the Czar issues orders for investigation of the affair; and the upshot is the lining up of all the officers of the Imperial Guard to be examined by the Grand Duke Ivan. It is a rather impressive scene. In default of individual confession, which the officers as a body will not consent to, Vilma is brought in, overwhelmed with shame at the ordeal through which she must pass. She is encouraged to move down the line, and is thrilled when face to face with Alexis. Alexis stands forth as the culprit; his two companions in the act of abduction stand out also, like good comrades. Thereupon sentence is pronounced upon them; they must lose their possessions and go to Siberia. The shock is dramatic. But this is not all. Alexis is commanded to marry Vilma first. The refusal of Alexis is also dramatic; but, curiously, though the idea of a Souvaroff linking his noble name to an unknown family is so frightfully repugnant to his honour, he presently moves like a lamb to the ceremony, which is performed by an attendant priest. Vilma thus becomes the Countess Souvaroff. Vilma's attitude meanwhile is rather characteristic of the play. She remembers that one of her abductors, while all were in the dark, said to her "I love you;" and it would seem that if only she were sure it was Alexis who made the protestation, the words might justify and condone the wrong he had done her, compensating her more amply than the mere act of marriage could do. She is, however, brutally repudiated. From this point her position in the play is changed. Cast off by the aunt of Alexis, she is no longer the victim, but the heroine, who can override the pride and opposition of the family into which the Czar has placed her. Her object is changed by love of Alexis to that of redeeming herself in the eyes of her graceless husband, who is busy drinking himself to death in exile. The feeling of the audience that she is much too good for a man who seems to possess no virtues at all is, of course, entirely against the possibility of one's being convinced of the reality of her emotion. Women do love scoundrels in real life, but even if scoundrels are ever loved by good women, it is not an edifying spectacle for the stage. Vilma goes to Siberia, and has a long interview with the intoxicated Alexis, without her identity being discovered. She has brought with her the pardon of the Czar, which she leaves behind her, together with her wedding-ring. In the last act Alexis, restored to his regiment, publicly replaces the wedding-ring on her finger, and so the plot ends.

The story, as a whole, is interesting. Monday's audience applauded the performance. That it is unworthy of the great emotional talents of Mrs Lewis Waller is really the thing that matters. The bare situation is like a stain upon so choice an artist; so admirable is she that her shame in the ordeal of the second act seemed too painfully real.

Mr Eric Mayne as Alexis rendered a thankless part cleverly and with occasional dramatic fervour. Miss Lena Macnaughton also figured well as the Countess Souvaroff—a character which, however, can scarcely be described as drawn consistently. Miss Ethel Warwick did exceptionally well as the sophisticated Baroness Olga Boroff, acting throughout with an easy and cynical humour. Quite a good performance was that of Mr Edmund Lea as Peter Varensky, and Miss Minnie Rayner acted sympathetically as the mother. Mr J. R Spurling deserves a word of praise for a vigorous and soldierly rendering of the Grand Duke Ivan, and mention should be made also of Mr William Calvert as Colonel Mazoff, Mr Edmund Waller as Lieut. Boroff, and Mr Edgar J. Coyne as Lieut. Olitzky.

THE KING'S THEATRE, KILMARNOCK.

The King's Theatre, Kilmarnock, in Titchfield-street, was opened on Saturday evening. Mr Ernest Stevens, chairman of the Kilmarnock Theatre Company, Limited, presided, and Provost Hood declared the house open, giving some interesting reminiscences of former theatres in the town, and expressing a hope that the new venture would be a success. Mr R. C. Buchanan, managing-director, replied on behalf of the directors. Mr John Sturrock proposed a vote of thanks to the architect and contractors, to which Mr Alex. Cullen and Mr. Robert Forrest replied. An enjoyable musical programme was carried out by Miss Essie Eunson, Mr J. Kirkwood Campbell, and Mr Graham Morrison.

The first performance in the theatre took place on Monday evening. Mr Lewis Waller's company in Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner was highly appreciated by a very large audience, hundreds having been turned away from the doors. During the evening Provost Hood introduced Mr R. C. Buchanan to the first audience as the managing director of the new theatre, complimenting him upon his past successes, and remarking that the Kilmarnock public had been very fortunate in securing such a gifted and experienced manager. Mr Buchanan expressed his great pleasure at seeing such a large audience there that evening. The company had several theatres in other parts of the country, but in every respect this night had beat all previous records. It would at all times be his endeavour to place before them the very best possible entertainment, and he might mention that among other engagements they had secured A Country Girl, The Belle of New York, Florodora, Are You a Mason? and Mr Edward Compton's company. Mr Buchanan then read the following telegrams which he had received:—From Sir Henry Irving—"I wish you all success with the King's Theatre, Kilmarnock." Mr Beerbohm Tree—"I hope the inside will be worthy of the outside." Mr Lewis Waller—"His Majesty's servant wishes all possible success to the King's Theatre. Long may it reign." Mr Martin Harvey—"Many years of prosperity to yourself and Kilmarnock theatre." Mr Edward Compton (who opened the old Opera House in town)—"My love to Auld Killie, and success to the new theatre." Mr Edward Terry wrote—"I congratulate our friends in Kilmarnock on the possession of such a beautiful temple of the drama, and so enterprising a manager as yourself. I shall be glad of an early opportunity of adding the guid folks of Kilmarnock to the other friends I have in Scotland. Wishing you every success, I am, yours sincerely, EDWARD TERRY."

MR CHARLES FROHMAN'S Duke of York's Theatre company, in Letty, which is meeting with such enormous success throughout the provinces, will appear at the Alexandra Theatre, Stoke Newington, on Monday, with Mr H. B. Irving and Miss Irene Vanbrugh in their original parts.

ON Saturday the promenade concerts at the Alexandra Palace were continued in the Central Hall. The band of H.M. 2nd Life Guards was in attendance. The vocalists were Miss Violet Ludlow and Miss Fredrica Richardson, and the solo violin Senor Jose Gomez. The programme met with well merited appreciation, and the several redemands were responded to. The menagerie in the conservatory, under the superintendence of the well-known lion-tamer, Capt. Henry, is drawing special attention, and the pretty winter garden redounds to the credit of the Alexandra Palace officials.

GEORGE ADE'S comedy The College Widow, particulars of which were recently given, has scored an emphatic success at the Garden Theatre, New York, which was opened on the 20th ult., under the management of Mr Henry W. Savage.

MRS E. W. BAYLY, wife of the manager of Romano's Restaurant, opened new afternoon tea rooms at the Queen's Hotel, Leicester-square, on Tuesday. The rooms, on the first floor, are artistically decorated, and she hopes to make them a fashionable resort for afternoon tea.

ASSAULT ON AN ACTRESS.

At Marylebone Police-court, on the 30th ult., Alexander Decsi, a miniature artist, residing at 81, Maida-vale, appeared before Mr Curtis Bennett to answer a summons for assaulting Doris M'Leod, an actress, sister of the prosecutrix in the recent case against a hairdresser, and living at 68, Portsdown-road.

Mrs M'Leod said she had been an actress since she was ten years old, and was the widow of a well-known theatrical manager. On Sept. 16 she was at the house where her sister had a flat, and was waiting on the landing for her sister to return home. The defendant entered the hall and rang her sister's bell twice, knocked at the door, and rattled at the letter-box. She went down and asked the defendant what he wanted, and he replied, "The lady of the house." She told him she was not in, and asked what he wanted. He replied that he had some jewellery and trinkets for sale. She was suspicious of him, because her sister had told her a man called the night before and asked for somebody who did not live there, and when she tried to shut the flat door the man (not the defendant) put his foot in the way, and puffed tobacco smoke into her face. The defendant went away, and she watched to see if he called upon anyone in the neighbourhood, and as he did not she followed him. He stopped and asked what she wanted, and she told him she required his name and address to see whether he really had any jewellery. He refused to give the information asked for, but opened his bag, and all she could see was a quantity of tissue paper. He again asked what she wanted of him, and she told him she believed he had called at Miss Desmond's flat under false pretences, and she should want to see his pedlar's licence. Witness followed the defendant to his house in Maida-vale, and when he entered his garden she pushed open the gate and went in after him. He then got hold of her arm and screwed it round, causing her such pain that she thought her arm was broken. A woman opened the front door, and he entered, and the door was shut. She took a cab and went to a police-station, and secured the assistance of a constable.

The magistrate convicted the defendant, and fined him 40s., with £3 costs, or one month's imprisonment.

MESSRS PUTTICK AND SIMPSON sold on Wednesday, at 47, Leicester-square, W.C., the valuable copyrights, engraved and stereotyped music plates, and stock of printed music of the late Mr Walter Whittingham, music publisher, of Little Marlborough-street, W. The sale, which produced a total of about £3 700, included many successful works, and the following were the principal prices:—"In the gloaming," Lady Arthur Hill (royalty 2d), £124 19s. (Leonard); "Sailing," Godfrey Marks (royalty 2½d.). £122 (Phillips and Page); "Fairy Barque," William Smallwood, £1,424 10s. (Phillips and Page); "Rippling Lake," by the same, £324 (Leonard); Cuthberts, "First Steps in Theory" (royalty 1d.), a catechism of the elements of music, £131 10s. (Larway); D. J. Loders, "Celebrated Violin Tutor," £78 15s.; and Theo. Bonheur, "Standard Pianoforte Tutor," a popular guide to the piano, £780 (Larway).

MR WILLY CLARKSON has been commissioned to supply all the wigs, dresses, and properties for a revival of The Gondoliers at Port Elizabeth by a theatrical company.

MUSIC HALL GOSSIP.

We shall have to wait some months yet before there is any prospect of the passing of the Bill legalising the production of sketches on the music hall stage. It was introduced last session into the House of Commons by Captain Jessel, Sir George Fardell, a former chairman of the Theatres and Music Halls Committee of the London County Council, and Mr T. P. O'Connor, and the measure is drafted on the recommendations of the Theatres Commission which sat in 1892. This body reported in favour of legalising in music halls "Those performances called sketches, if the duration of each such performance shall not exceed forty minutes, and no more than six principal performers take part therein, and if there shall be an interval of at least thirty minutes between any two such sketches, and no two sketches performed on the same evening at such place of public entertainment shall have a connected plot."

Until some such law is passed we shall have a continuance of such prosecutions as that which occupied the attention of Mr Kennedy at Marlborough-street on Monday. If the law is invoked all over London we shall be most likely to get some informative opinions concerning the magistrates, and there is little doubt that the fines imposed will greatly vary. The music hall syndicates and proprietors, we are given to understand, are protecting themselves by inserting clauses in artistes' contracts which will prevent them appearing in pantomime.

Mr P. J. Rutland, solicitor to the London Entertainments' Protection Association, of 67, Chancery-lane, seeks information concerning a will of the late Mr Herbert Campbell. The draft of the will of Dec. 15, 1900, is in safe keeping, and only temporary inconvenience is anticipated from the mislaying of the original. The executors are Mr John Brill, late proprietor of the Royal, and now landlord of the Red Lion, Barnes, and Mr J. L. Graydon. Any person who has the custody of any other will of the deceased gentleman, or can give any information with reference to any other will, is requested to communicate with Mr Rutland.

We are glad to be in a position to contradict the ridiculous exaggeration of the daily papers in their account of an accident near the Metropolitan to a lady who was reported to have been killed by the fall of a portion of the roof. It appears that workmen engaged upon the telephone wires pulled at them till a stone ball was dislodged. The injured lady is recovering.

Mr Fred Miller is to be heartily congratulated on his lucky escape from a serious accident whilst he was out shooting during the brief holiday he was able to enjoy last week. Had things happened differently—but we need not conjecture! The Canterbury has declared a dividend of five per cent. for the year ending last July. Mr G. A. Payne has been re-elected managing-director.

A survey of the building operations in progress at the Lyceum discloses the fact that the reconstruction is making rapid headway. With the placing in position of the heavy steel girders which carry the main building the work will have reached a most interesting stage, and preparations are now being made for commencing the excavations for the formation of the pit. The girders weigh in the aggregate 300 tons. Nineteen rows of seats with two tiers of boxes are to be erected in the gallery, which is supported by a girder weighing 35 tons. In the dress-circle there are to be seventeen rows of seats, with six boxes, supported by girders weighing 18 tons and 25 tons respectively. The auditorium has a span of 90ft., and the pit will have a depth of 100ft. Seating accommodation is being provided for nearly 3,000 persons. The new Lyceum will be ready for opening by the new year.

Miss Kate Hardren, the whirlwind dancer, who appeared as New Orleans in the scena "American Cities," which was one of the biggest attractions of the recent Shaftesbury Theatre production, The Prince of Pilsen, is likely to be seen at the London halls shortly. She is having a sketch written for her, and Mr J. E M'Manus, the author of "Wait a week or two," and other poems that have been recited with such success by Mr Leo Stormont in the halls, is also commissioned for special songs. Miss Hardren is having a trial trip next week at the Southend Kursaal.

Though visions are not about, "illusions" are in the air, "Dida" is the name given to a new and extraordinary one which Mr George Scott will nightly invite a voluntary committee of investigation to solve at the Alhambra. It will be first exploited there on Monday evening, the 24th, after baffling the ingenuity of a large number of experts in Continental cities.

"Zutka" is the title of a new show to be presented at the London Hippodrome on Monday. In America they say, "Get wings on your feet," which, to say the least, is "mercurially" expressive. Mr Moss promises something by which we shall have to get "wings on our eyes" in order to fathom the mystery of "Zutka." "Zutka" is contained in a small box, 2ft. high, 2ft. long, and 18in. wide. How it is contained there is a problem which not one person in ten thousand could solve on first sight. The fact of putting a gallon of material into a teacup may be accomplished by means of liquid air, but to put "Zutka" into so small a box is a puzzle for the scientific world. This simple box was conveyed through the main streets of London on Thursday, and created much curiosity.

Charles Coborn, writing on board the Etruria, says: "In case my many friends do not know why I am going to America, please tell them it is to fetch Bill Bailey home," and then he goes on to say "The voyage has begun well, at any rate. Though Britannia has not ruled the waves quite straight, there is nothing particular to complain about. I am a very fair sailor, but can't answer for the missus. She began by pitying herself, but managed to make a very good high tea, so, to quote the well known bard (I forget his name), 'Everything in the garden's lovely.' All being well, we shall arrive at New York on Saturday, and go on to Toronto on Sunday night to be in time to get one's breath and rehearse for Tuesday night, Oct. 11, at the Great Massey Hall. What I shall be doing after that lies in the knees of the gods at present, but I hope to 'bob up serenely' at the Palace, Bordesley, on Nov. 21."

Matinées have been established at the Islington Empire, and at the first of these on Monday afternoon last the attendance was so encouraging that they are to be continued. The programme given was practically the same as that which drew two crowded houses in the evening.

Chirgwin, the white-eyed Kaffir, has a great belief in the two-houses-a-night system, and anticipates its universal adoption. In the course of a conversation on this subject with an interviewer, he said it was better for the artistes, better for the managers of the halls, and better for the audiences. He was of opinion that a two hours' performance was sufficient for anybody. He also pointed out that this idea was not new, as thirty years ago the Brothers Chirgwin had done two houses a night at Harwood's, Hoxton.

A new orchestral chief has not yet been appointed to the Brixton Empress; but Mr A. Petersen, the musical director, has been busy during the week organising the band there, and will control until the arrival of the new conductor.

The Britannia, Glasgow, opens its doors once more on Monday, Oct. 17, under the able management of Mr Geo. Saphrini, who has satisfied the requirements of the licensing authorities. The cosy little hall should have a successful career.

North of England variety managers met in conclave last week at the Manchester Palace with the object of forming a defence association. The meeting, which was private, was adjourned for a week.

The building operations in connection with the Palace Theatre of Varieties, Grimsby, are now nearing completion, and we are informed that the establishment will be opened under Mr Macnaghten's management, on Monday, Dec. 5.

Sir Thomas Robinson, the chairman of the Kingstown (Ireland) Pavilion Company, Limited, has just completed arrangements with Mr Frank Macnaghten for the supply of vaudeville artists to the establishment mentioned. Mr Macnaghten's first company of variety performers opens in Kingstown on the 31st inst.

Messrs Bostock and Fitt, proprietors of the Norwich Hippodrome and other establishments throughout the country, are about to erect a new and up-to-date building in Ipswich to be known as the Hippodrome, and which will be run on the two-houses-a-night plan. The plans, by Messrs Frank Matcham and Co., London, were passed some weeks ago by the Ipswich Corporation. Messrs Bostock and Fitt's new Hippodrome will be a palatial and commodious structure, capable of accommodating about 2,000 people. The site, which was purchased from the Corporation, is one of the finest obtainable in the city, and the building when completed will be of the most handsome design, and will form an interesting addition to the architecture of the borough. The internal arrangements will be of the most modern type.

Mr R. A. Roberts produced for copyright purposes at the Empire Theatre, Edinburgh, on Sept 30, a flippant Protean farce entitled My Double, which is described as a story of quaint deception. Mr Roberts, who wrote and invented it, plays no less than nine characters. They include:—William Wagstaffe, a solicitor, and his double; Judkins, his clerk; Miss Flossie Mildew, his only client; Major Wagstaffe, his father; Montague Montmorency, an actor; Pat Doolan, a carrier; Josef Valero, an Italian chef; and Mrs Cooper, a housekeeper, of whom we have already heard so much from her friend Mrs Twiddles.

There was a crowded house at the Empire Theatre of Varieties, Belfast, on Thursday evening, the 29th ult., on the occasion of the first annual benefit to Mr Charles Brock, the energetic acting-manager. Mr Brock has gained hosts of friends in the Ulster capital. He is popular with all classes. On this red letter occasion the ordinary programme was much extended. By kind permission of Mr Henry T. Downs, of the Alhambra, Messrs Carr and Rose, a talented comedy duo, and Mr Harry Grey, an exceedingly droll comedian, were allowed to appear; and an enjoyable feature of the performance was the playing of the selection, Cavalleria Rusticana, by the augmented orchestra under the direction of Mr W. L. Richards, I.S.M. In the course of the evening the bénéficiaire thanked the audience for their presence, and Mr Adam Findlater and his co-directors for their kindness, and he hoped to make the Empire the most popular house in the city. Mr Brock also thanked Mr W. L. Richards, the talented musical director, and Mr Robert Campbell, stage-manager.

The Brighton Town Council on Thursday accepted the proposal of Messrs Sallmayer and Rizareli, both residents of Brighton, to take a lease of the Aquarium at a yearly rental of £1,000, in addition to a further charge of 4 per cent. on the capital expenditure by the Corporation on alterations to the cost of £12 000. The Aquarium will in future be known as the Grand Aquarium and Winter Gardens. Application will be made by the Corporation to the Local Government Board for sanction to borrow the money required for the necessary alterations, which are to include the enlargement of the theatre and auditorium and the improvement of the terraces.

Mr. L. C. Everett, of Blackpool and Bradford, the composer of the "Inspiration," "Veleta," and the "Majestic" barn dance, the dances that took the former place by storm, has been spending a holiday in London, after the fatigue and stress of a heavy Blackpool season.

Mr Arthur Boyne, who is just now fulfilling a successful engagement on the Barrasford tour, is engaged, through the agency of Messrs Austin and Co., Bedford-street, by Mr Mulholland, for the principal comedy part in that gentleman's pantomime at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith.

Mr W. Snell Robinson, conductor and pianist, has been secured by Mr Jack De Freece for the Metropole Theatre. He has a capital little orchestra of ten men.

Mr John Porter, manager of the West-end Pier, Morecambe, and Mr W. J. Ferguson, Morecambe, have leased the Palace, Lancaster, and will open with a strong variety bill on Monday next. The two-houses-a-night system will be adopted.

Mr James Sale, the musical director of the Grand, Clapham, has just received a very handsome solid silver cigarette case as a mark of esteem and appreciation from Mr Edgar Romaine.

Miss Lily Burnand has purchased two songs, entitled "Darling May" and "'Neath the flag they love," both written and composed by Cecil Lidden.

Messrs C. W. Murphy and Dan Lipton (the former of whom was implicated in the writing of the most successful English song of last season, "Little Yellow Bird") have co-operated in the production of some capital new numbers for the coming season. Prospective pantomime principals will find it to their advantage to hear these songs, which are thought by the "powers that be" at the Charing-cross-road "Songeries" to show signs of becoming dangerously popular.

Miss Queenie Leighton has this week purchased from Messrs John P. Harrington and George Le Brunn three new songs entitled respectively "In Vanity Fair," "All Pretty Girls are Angels," and "Tall Girls Always Get the Best of It." Two, at least, of these she meditates introducing into her part of principal boy at the forthcoming Drury-lane pantomime.

Prior to his departure for America this week, Mr David Day purchased three songs for immediate publication from Messrs John P. Harrington and George Le Brunn. These consisted of a song specially written and composed for Miss Queenie Leighton, entitled "All Pretty Girls are Angels," also a pretty "allegorical" lyric with the title of "The Silk Dress and the Cotton Frock;" and, thirdly, a dashing, rollicking pantomime song, "The Children's Circus."

Mr Ted Young has been specially engaged to play the part of Widow Twankey in Aladdin, in the forthcoming pantomime at the Brixton Theatre.—Mr W. F. Frame, who gave a concert on Saturday at the Music Hall, Edinburgh, was only released by an enthusiastic audience after he had made ten appearances. "Hooch aye!"—Fred Curran is making a success in Liverpool with some clever songs written by Murphy and Lipton.

Mr Joe Elvin has just fulfilled a highly successful three weeks' engagement at the Palace, Manchester, with the well-known sporting sketch, Over the Sticks, which had one of the longest runs on record when it was produced by Mr Harry Lundy at the Oxford. Mr Walter Gibbons has now secured it as his chief attraction for Monday next at the Duchess, Balham, and with it the popular Cockney comedian will commence the Stoll circuit at the Empire, Hackney, on Oct. 17. In the big scene some famous steeplechasers are introduced.

Miss Ada Blanche, of whom we have such pleasant recollections as the Telephone Girl, and more lately as Mrs Habbicombe, in The Medal and the Maid, will make her re-appearance in the London suburbs at the Metropole, Camberwell, on the 17th inst., in a comedietta known as Becky Bounder. This has been produced this week at the Empire Theatre, York, of which house Mr Wm. Peacock, Miss Blanche's brother-in-law, is managing-director, and the new piece has been "arranged" by Mr Robert Courtneidge, another brother-in-law. It will be presented on Monday next at the Palace, Manchester. Miss Blanche plays the nom-rôle, that of a laundress; Mr Norman Partriege appears as Bob Perkins, a naval officer; Mr William Morgan will delineate a solicitor; and Miss Sylvia Morris will embody the part of the solicitor's wife.

The Water Rats, who have their wigwam at the Vaudeville Club, will give a flying matinée at the Hippodrome, Brighton, on Thursday afternoon next. The company includes Joe Elvin, Wilkie Bard, Michael Nolan, Harry Tate, Lil Hawthorne, Kate Carney, Cliff Ryland, Agnes Hazel, Little Tich, Eugene Stratton, Florrie Robina, and many more.

Mr Charles Wilmott, author of the three last Britannia pantomimes, has just completed for Miss Gipsy Woolf a novel miniature musical sketch, which she has in active rehearsal for early production. Mr John S. Baker has written the incidental music. Miss Woolf will appear as a Mexican gipsy, and will introduce an American song, which is expected to repeat the success it has obtained across the pond. Special scenery and costumes are being devised, and one of our leading maitres de ballet will have the arrangement of the dances, Papa Woolf being determined that nothing shall be wanting to make the production complete in every detail.

Mr Fred Miller has been presented with a solid gold matchbox by Mr Georges Hackenschmidt. The gift was handed to Mr Miller before Hackenschmidt left England for Australia, and it was intended as a token of the esteem and respect in which the general manager of the Canterbury and Paragon is held by the champion wrestler.

Mr Alfred Butt, who is directing affairs in the absence of his venerated chief, has another very attractive turn on his bill next week. It is a charming octet known as the Eight Palace Girls, who will join the company on Monday. These young ladies have been specially trained for the Palace, where they will appear in a medley of song and dance.

Mr Walter Gibbons is initiating a beauty show at the Islington Empire on Monday next, and Mr Will Spearman, the energetic manager, has already received upwards of 700 letters from would-be competitors. The ladies taking part in the competition will appear in contingents in each house during the week, the semi-final and final selections taking place on Friday evening next. Competitors will be divided into three classes, the first being confined to Islingtonians over the age of sixteen, the second to Islington children under sixteen, and the third is open to all England. The first prize is a saddle-bag suite of furniture, and another will be a set of furs.

Mr Teddy Giles has also arranged a beauty competition, to commence on Monday, when the belles of Battersea will appear before audiences at the local Empire. The first prize is to be a Singer's sewing machine, the second a costume, and the third a dressing-bag. The final decision will be announced in the second house on Friday next.

Miss Agnes Hanson made her appearance at the Bedford on Tuesday, and such was her success in the song "Oh, the photograph," that she was at once engaged by Mr A. F. Lovesy. Miss Hanson evidently has hereditary ability, as she is the daughter of Johnny Hanson, a well-known farceur at the halls, who was chief comedian in most of the late Mr Ambrose Maynard's sketches. He also appeared with success in the part of Buttons in one of the late Sir Augustus Harris's Christmas productions at Drury-lane. Miss Hanson has been taught dancing by Mr John D'Auban and her father, and should have a successful career.

Mr Frank Brown, who is on a few months' visit to Europe from Buenos Ayres, left London on Thursday night for Paris, where he will stay for a fortnight, for the purpose of booking turns.

The 375th meeting of the executive committee of the M.H.A.R.A. was held on Tuesday afternoon, Mr Harry Mountford presiding. The secretary reported that fourteen new members had joined during the past week, making the total number since the commencement of 10,596. The procedure of the general meeting was considered, after which the meeting was adjourned.

Mr James Stewart, who was the first music hall artist to do a "tramp act" at the piano, ends his present engagement at the Palace the week after next, and goes on tour until January, when he opens at the Oxford. This week he has been working four halls a night—Battersea, Shaftesbury-avenue, Clapham, and Brixton. He expects to continue his musical tramping for a long time yet—he is booked up to 1907—but he has a new turn in preparation.

Mr Stewart, his brother, and the driver of a brougham figured in a little comedy that took place last week. The driver was intoxicated on the first night, drove recklessly, and was dismissed in consequence. He threatened vengeance, and for the five following evenings called at Mr Stewart's house, fiercely demanding to be re-engaged. On Saturday night the musical tramp was accompanied, as he often is, by his younger brother, who is quiet, shy, and not at all aggressive. After Mr Stewart's first turn his cabman saw him and said, "I've saved you a lot of trouble to-night, Sir! That man you discharged said he was going to 'show you up' before a crowd of people outside the hall. He meant to demand payment for the whole of this week, but what do you think I've done? I've told him your little brother is a champion boxer, who will knock out a man double his size as soon as look at him." The musical tramp told his brother, who accordingly walked out first, stared the enemy coolly in the face, then said, "Come on, Jim!" and held the door open for Mr Stewart to get into the cab. The enraged driver of the brougham took one step forward, again met the eye of the supposed pugilist, meekly touched his hat, and bade him good-night.

Mr Harry Poole, who is business-manager for, as well as brother-in-law to, Mr Will Evans, sends us a most amusing poster advertising that comedian's method of building a chicken-house—on the stage. The designer of the poster is Dominic A. Hand.

Lawrance and Gifford, the well-known song writers, have been very busy on pantomime songs recently. Chief among them is G. H. Elliott's "Ma Havannah Queen," which he is scoring with all over the country, and which bids fair to become the coon song of the year.

Mr Edgar Hyman brings his long stay in England to a close on Saturday next, Oct. 15, when he sails for the Cape on the liner Norman. After his marriage, it will be remembered that he paid a visit to America, and his journey in that country has left him with many pleasant reminiscences, and some newly formed and valued friendships. To him and his family we can look for the development of music hall enterprise in all our South African colonies—new as well as old; for in the near future he will be occupied with the scheme of erecting a new empire in the important city of Durban, Natal.

Monologues and scenas are multiplying rapidly, and the comedian with a turn for inventiveness is able to exploit his mirth-moving powers in a novel and attractive manner. Though Mr Harry Tate has by no means exhausted the popularity of his famous sketch Motoring, he is about to secure fresh comic triumphs in an original concoction entitled Fishing, which has been written by Mr Wal Pink, the author of a score or so of farcelets for Mr Joe Elvin. Mr Pink is himself an enthusiastic angler, and, therefore, is quite cognisant of the droll side of the gentle art. The production will be given for the first time on Monday at the Pavilion, and Mr W. T. Hemsley has painted a special scene for it.

Mr Charles Morton's health is improving, and he hopes to resume his business duties in a week or ten days.

Mr Harry Randall, who was announced to appear at the Tivoli on Monday, was too indisposed to do so, but will return there on Monday next with new songs from the pen of J. Bernard Dickson.

La Motogirl, who appeared at the Palace about a year ago, is paying a return visit to the Winter Garden, Berlin, where she formerly made such a hit. The clever little American was so successful in Paris that one of the cleverest Parisienne mimics gave an imitation of her "act," having previously consulted Mr Frederick Melville, La Motogirl's manager, who kindly gave her a few lessons in some of the mechanical movements.

The Dandies will be at the Palace for another four weeks. This bright little party of five singers and dancers was originally organised by Signor Bocchi about a year and a half ago, to give concerts at Prince's. It is now under the management of Mr Henry J. Corner, whose bookings include a Moss and Thornton tour after his London season, a return visit to the Continent, and perhaps a trip to America. One of the Dandies' most interesting experiences was the appearance before the King and Queen at Sandringham, on Her Majesty's birthday last December. Mr Bransby Williams contributed half of the programme on that occasion. The clever Dickensonian actor hit on the happy idea of making-up with his face, instead of his back, to the audience, thus giving them the opportunity of seeing how it was done; and the King's appreciation of his performance was shown by a complimentary letter from Sir Dighton Probyn, accompanying the gift of a heavy silver cigarette-case, adorned with the Royal monogram.

The Dandies wear very effective costumes. The ladies' dresses are of flame-coloured chiffon, fading into pale yellow, with thick lace and sparkling golden sequins falling from the shoulders and the full elbow sleeves; big yellow roses are worn in the hair, and even the little high-heeled shoes are of the same brilliant hue. The two men wear Court suits of black velvet with orange-coloured lapels. They were greatly annoyed during their recent Continental tour to find, on reaching Lucerne, that their baggage had been left behind. It was only an hour or so before the performance, but the manager was determined not to disappoint the audience. He succeeded in hiring stage costumes, but the patrons of the stalls and boxes of the Kursaal were probably surprised at the appearance of the English "dandies." The two gentlemen were in ordinary evening clothes much too big for them, and the three ladies made their entrance in long Greek robes.

The Noisset Troupe, a Continental combination, will make their first appearance in London at the Hackney Empire, on Oct. 17. They are just finishing a successful engagement at the Folies Bergére, their act consisting of a novel bicycle race on a revolving table, set in motion by an electric motor.

Sam Mayo, singer, author, and composer, has just written a very successful song, entitled "My Wife Ran Off." He sang it for the first time at Hanley last Saturday evening with great success.

A motorist travelling at a high speed near Grivelliers, on the 29th ult., ran into a travelling circus in taking a turn in the road. A tiger's cage which he struck was shattered, and one of the animals was killed on the spot. Another bellowing with fear bolted, and has not been seen since.

Miss Nellie Wallace made her first appearance on Monday evening at the Oxford, and at once "struck ile."—Miss Emma Don has successfully produced a new vocal scena, and is now introducing her Black and White Quartet of vocalists.—Friends of Mr and Mrs Bon Bon will be sorry to hear that their two children, Harry and Lily, are lying very ill in the Liscard Hospital, New Brighton.

Rezene and Robini's new production, "The Little Japaneasy and the Russian on the Rush," met with a most encouraging reception at Holloway on Monday.—Mr Tom Dunmore opens at the Britannia, Hoxton, next week. He is fast booking up 1905.

The second anniversary celebration of the Battersea Empire, under the new regime, took place on Thursday evening, and proved a highly successful function. Mr E. E. Giles, the general manager, whose portrait adorned the front page of the programme, was busily engaged in welcoming his many friends, and in acknowledging their hearty congratulations. Many gentlemen well known in the music hall world were present, and the celebration passed off in the happiest manner possible. The entertainment commenced at seven o'clock, and was contributed to by a large number of variety artists. Mr J. G. Johnson and company appeared in the dramatic sketch, The Streets of London, which was well received, and previous to this Miss Daphne De Rohan's little piece, Oh, My Wife, was performed. Miss De Rohan repeated her successful embodiment of Ena, and Mr Harry J. Worth did well as Jack, the husband, who endeavours to cure his wife of her partiality for amateur theatricals.

Mr Harry Champion rattled through two of his songs with his usual glibness of utterance, and other comedians included Mr Frank Benson, Mr Gus Gauntlett, Mr H. E. High, Mr Alf Passmore, and Regal, the furniture smasher. Mendel, the blind pianist, played a selection from the opera of Faust, and an imitation of a street organ. Others in the long list of artists included Miss Katie Lawrence, Miss Eva Nelson, Miss Cissie Uneeda, Miss May Bass, Miss Dora Lyric, Miss Mab Venus, Sisters Carlton, Sisters Edwards, Sisters Gilbert, Helm and Cozens, Fred Keason, Harry Lynx, Harry Phydora, Martin Rochester, George Scott, Phil Sinclaire, Miss Lily Lawrence, Miss Flo Raynor, Miss Annie Read, Frank Hardie and company, in For the Honour of the Regiment; Curtis Leo, Amy Vee, Mansell Fane, and Aldridge, Bligh, and company. There was also a photograph competition. Mr Richard Lincoln was the energetic stage-manager, and Mr W. Hinkinson was in charge of the hard-working orchestra. One of the most interesting events of the evening was the presentation of a gold pendant to Mr Giles, subscribed for by a few of his friends, and embellished with his initials in diamonds.

The monthly meeting of the members of the Music Hall Sick Fund was held on Wednesday afternoon at the York Hotel, York-road under the presidency of Mr Frank Heath (hon. treasurer). Other members present were Messrs W. J. Wainratta, W. Brisco, C. Waterfield, W. West, H. E. High, W. H. Handley, and J. Mulcaster. It being made obligatory by a clause in the Friendly Societies Act that the funds of the Society should be invested in Government securities, the Chairman reported the purchase of Consols to the value of £1,000. It was resolved to make arrangements for a special benefit performance to take place at one of the halls some time before Christmas, and the proceedings closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman.

Mr Charles Warren, Messrs Witmark's London manager, is to be congratulated on the tuneful number entitled, we believe, "Trouble," issued by the enterprising house. As interpreted by Miss Amber Austa the haunting melody has captivated the Metropolitan habitués hugely during the past and previous week.

Messrs Francis, Day, and Hunter make an important announcement elsewhere in this issue. The firm's pantomime song books are now available for artists engaged in the forthcoming annuals, and to these alone will the books be issued. The five volumes (which are bulkier than ever this year) include books of songs suitable for principal boys, principal girls, low comedians and dames, fairy queens and descriptive, and a book of "free" songs suitable for all of the foregoing lines of business.

The anniversary of the first birthday of the "Sixpenny Pops" evoked congratulatory cards, letters, and wires from all parts of these islands. Mr David Day could not return thanks individually, owing to preparing for the tour to Canada and the States now begun, but would have liked so to do.

La Loie Fuller, who was giving her "Fire and Lily" dance at the Camden Theatre last week, has just returned to Europe from a tour in South America. She is now in Paris, but comes to London for a short visit at the end of next week. La Löie will shortly appear in a new rôle—that of authoress. She has written a short book dealing with radium, and a large volume on America and the Americans. Negotiations are now pending for the publication of the latter in England in the near future.

The Follies return to the Palace Theatre for a five months' run at the end of October. Mr H. G. Pélissier and his delightful company of pierrots and pierrettes have just concluded their summer tour, having given ninety-three shows in nine weeks. The Follies have met with several amusing adventures. Some time ago they were engaged to give a performance at a large open-air fête. The directors of entertainments showed Mr Pélissier the tent allotted to him, and then remarked, "By the way, I'd better tell you that we have arranged a brass band contest outside the tent while you are giving your programme. It will keep the people amused who don't go in, and I'm sure you won't mind."

Mr Charles Carlin (late of the Carlins and Carlin and Price fame) is laying in 13a Ward, Holborn Union Infirmary, Archway-road, N., London. He has entirely lost the use of his limbs, and is unable to leave his bed. He thanks one and all for past favours, and would like to see some of his old professional friends to cheer him up.

The death of Mr George Daventry recalls to our mind the fact that he wrote a number of sketches for the music hall stage, besides his well-known drama, The Indian Mutiny, which was also presented in a shortened form on the variety stage. In most of the dramatic trifles from his pen the deceased gentleman played the principal part, and was assisted by his clever and devoted wife, Miss Claire Howard, who was at one time a member of Mr Frank Harvey's dramatic company, and was also a popular member of the stock company at the Pavilion, Mile-end. Mr Daventry adapted Ouida's novel, "Under Two Flags," for presentation at this theatre, and in this Miss Howard played the part of Cigarette.

At the Alhambra, on Monday, a little original pantomime act, entitled A Pierrot's Romance, is to be produced by Signor G. Rossi, who is also the author. Three of the cleverest dancers in the ballet will take part in the act, which will last about ten minutes.

Miss Ella Shields, a well-known American soubrette, who created quite a sensation last season when she toured through the States with the Eight Bells company, arrived in England last week, under contract to Mr Frank Macnaghten, and opens on Monday at the Forresters' Theatre. We understand that Miss Shields will play the part of Alice Fitzwarren in Mr Macnaghten's forthcoming pantomime of Dick Whittington at the Pavilion Theatre, Mile-end. That gentleman has received numerous offers for the young lady's services, and, while Miss Shields talks of returning to America in the spring, it is possible that she may make London her home for some time to come.

Another of Mr Macnaghten's engagements is that of Messrs Jordan and Harvey, Jew comedians, who arrived in Liverpool from the States on Wednesday per ss. Teutonic. Jew comedians of this class have not been seen in England for some years, and as the act of these two newcomers bears the reputation of being very original and novel, no doubt it will form a welcome addition to London variety programmes. Messrs Jordon and Harvey open on Monday week at one of the Macnaghten houses.

Mrs Allan M'Askell, through the influence of the Mayor, Mr Morgan, was admitted to Scarborough Hospital last Sunday morning. Her condition is causing much anxiety.

It may be interesting to our readers to get an idea of the total amounts paid for admission to the music halls in Paris. The total receipts at the different halls for the month of September are as follow:—Folies Bergère, 204,107f.; Olympia, 165,000f.; Alhambra, 103,900f.; Moulin Rouge, 54,018f.; La Scala Theatre, 73,798f.; Eldorado, 58,892f.; Nouveau Cirque, 57,066f.; Cirque Medrano, 47,799f.; Cirque d'Hiver, 41,160f.

The North London Burns Club will hold their Halloween Bohemian concert in the Hamilton Hall of the Great Eastern Railway Hotel on Saturday evening, Oct. 29. Among the artists who are to appear on this occasion we notice the name of Mr Alex. M'Nab, a fine baritone singer, whose vocal efforts have wrung forth praise at the early-door entertainments at the Grand Theatre, Islington.

M. George Bertrand, the painter, who lives at Versailles, has invented some new puppets, of which great things are affirmed. They are called maquettes animées, and are said to beat anything of the kind seen before. The artist has been at work on his figures for about fourteen years. He has given them indiarubber muscles, and all the puppets work perfectly. The figures include Mdlle. Cléo de Mérode, who dances; Polin, the impersonator of comic soldiers, whose songs and patter are reproduced by a phonograph; and a clown who juggles, fiddles, and beats a drum. M. Bertrand proposes to exhibit his marionettes in Paris in November, and he states that the Duke of Marlborough has asked him to show them in London during the next season.

THE LONDON MUSIC HALLS.

THE EMPIRE.

Quite an important part of the entertainment at the Empire Theatre is that supplied by the admirable orchestra. How wide is the range of choice in the matter of the selections which are performed here is shown by the fact that this week F. von Suppé, Lacombe, and Wagner have been laid under contribution, the performance of the introduction to the third act of Lohengrin being received with hearty applause. Our variety theatres are certainly doing good work in popularising the creations of the great musical masters. A contrast to the powerful effect of the full orchestra is the achievement of Mr Georges Schindler, who manages to get very pleasing results from ordinary mouth-organs. He uses them very adroitly, muffling the sound with his closed hands. He plays a pot-pourri of well-known airs, and the quality of the note which he obtains is extraordinary. The Barinkaï Trio appear in picturesque Hungarian costumes, and sing and dance with all the fire and abandon which we associate with the Magyar race. The ladies are especially active and vivacious, and are, besides, attractive in appearance and manner. Mdlle. Valesca's personal charm is, no doubt, a strong factor of the success of her juggling entertainment. Attired in an acrobatic costume, she does difficult things with various articles, her handling of hats being, perhaps, the most skilful part of her exhibition. She concludes her turn by juggling with staves at the end of each of which is a coloured electric lamp. Mdlle. Valesca has an arch smile and a laughing eye, and wins the hearts of the audience by her merry manner as much as by her dexterity. The Delbosqs are hearty fellows and strong and active tumblers. They do their knockabout and acrobatic business in a breezy, happy way which gains for them warm favour; and the concluding feat of one of them, who accomplishes a double somersault over the heads of sixteen men, secures the success of their appearance. Mr Tom Browne's whistling turn is made peculiar by the clever character sketch which he gives of that cool and civil functionary, the American "bar-tender." His double-note whistling is really remarkable, and his imitations of knife-grinding, &c., are most realistic. The Luppu Trio's quadruple bar act is capital, and the feats performed by the trio are done with apparent ease, which, however, does not conceal their immense difficulty from the discriminating audience, who heartily applaud the Luppus and recall them with enthusiasm. Mr Syd May's burlesque skit on Hackenschmidt remains one of the funniest things to be seen in London, and Melot Hermann's clever conjuring tricks well deserve the plaudits they evoke. Miss Marguerite Cornille continues to charm and delight all by her dainty and spirited singing, and by her brilliant appearance in some fascinating "frocks;" and with the aid of the Biograph some very amusing and artistic films are shown and are keenly appreciated. The pretty and artistic ballet High Jinks continues to delight, amuse, and astonish by its varied beauties. It is, indeed, a most brilliant and attractive entertainment, and, in its improved shape, is drawing hundreds to admire it.

THE OXFORD.

The fine and large programme at the Oxford, notwithstanding the sketch prosecution of Monday last, contains that full-sized drama The Fighting Parson, in which Mr George Gray, who is assisted by 100 auxiliaries, appears in the title-rôle. There is nothing new to be said of a production which has won success at every hall in London and at most of the larger provincial establishments. The Epping Forest and New-cut scenes are full of life and movement, and the set-to between the parson and the Clincher is uproariously applauded. Early in the evening appears Miss Rita Resdan, a smart and natty male impersonator, who gaily sings of a certain Charlie whose name has of late been in much request at the halls. This Charlie has a natural weakness for the fair, and in his own estimation is quite a lady-killer, being mostly seen with one of the weaker sex on his arm. There is plenty of laughter and applause for the Three Woodbee Wonders, who are most aptly termed comedy acrobats. This droll trio, with huge limbs and false muscles and a grotesque appearance, burlesque in most amusing style the strong men of the halls; but they work much harder in some daring and skilful acrobatic work in which are interspersed many humorous effects and poses. The show is a novelty, and its enjoyable nature is nightly proved by the warm reception accorded to it. Mr W. H. Clemart's ventriloquism is very cleverly employed in the vocal endowment of some excellent mechanical figures, who may be called seaside visitors. The walking nurse is a genuine surprise, and the old gentleman who lights and smokes his pipe is really wonderful. The old lady sings that ancient ballad, "The Lover and the Bird," and a comic effect that appeals with irresistible force to the happy fathers among the audience is the squalling infant. Miss Myra Stansfield, a bright exponent of burlesque, has a successful song in "Visitors are requested not to touch," with a special verse referring to the Union Jack. Mr Andie Caine, who hitherto has mostly confined himself to imitations of the principal exponents of musical comedy, has a melodious and well-rendered song entitled "Here's your hat—what's your hurry?" In one verse of this number the singer is advised by a coon to give up hanging around a house after a girl, the advice being followed by the appearance of a thick-lipped gentleman of colour, who comes on the stage armed with a thick stick, much to the apparent terror of the vocalist, who is loudly applauded for a clever dance. Bella and Bijou present an amusing trifle, in which an agent and an aspirant to fame on the stage have some amusing dialogue. Mr Harry Freeman's characteristic numbers, "That's Him" and "I'm going again to-night," bring him much applause; and Miss Bessie Featherstone, whose fine figure is well set-off by a principal boy's costume, has the house with her in a well-written item, "The latest London betting," in which there is a special political verse concerning Joe Chamberlain, and another quatrain concerning Japan. The Collins-Stella Troupe, an octet of attractively dressed and smart girls, sing and dance with animation and charm, executing some difficult movements and Terpsichorean manœuvres with capital effect. The return of Mr George Robey, the prime minister of mirth, has been hailed with immense satisfaction by the Oxfordians. "Say no more about it," George's first song, derives most of its humour from his many grotesque asides and by-play; and it is as a gladiator, armed with breastplate, helmet, and umbrella, that the popular comedian scores. "Frantic the Fearless" boldly invites an imaginary person behind the scenes to "unleash the lion and let loose the fighting parson." Mr Robey also has many droll things to say concerning Brutus's benefit at the Coliseum, and there is little doubt that the new creation will take rank with his "Prehistoric Man." Miss Nellie Wallace, who is making her first appearance at the Oxford, has at once established herself as a warm favourite, and her oddly conceived low comedy, her grotesque make-up, and her droll notions of burlesque make her turn one to be looked for and thoroughly enjoyed. Kelly and Gillette retain their well-deserved popularity in their clever and original entertainment, "Fun in a Billiard Room" Miss Queenie Leighton has much improved her song scena, "On and Off the Stage," since we first noticed it at the Tivoli; Mr Wilkie Bard, who causes shouts of laughter, may be looked upon as one of the most successful comedians of the day; and other turns in an excellent bill, watchfully supervised by Mr Albert Gilmer, include the Doherty Sisters, Happy Fanny Fields, and the Boisset Troupe, in their well-known speechless extravaganza, The Bricklayers. Visitors during the week have much enjoyed the performance each evening by Mr William Burgess's fine orchestra of Warwick Williams's new morceau entitled "The Mirage."

CAMBERWELL PALACE.

Mr Jesse Sparrow carries out to the letter his oft-repeated determination to give the best and brightest entertainment at Camberwell, his programme this week presenting such a lavish display of the resources of variety that the supply of seats at the pretty hall has been inadequate to the demand. A full measure of approval has been bestowed upon the performers, the largest share of which has fallen to the favourites of established renown who embellish the bill. Miss Lily Langtry is among those who have secured chief honours. Her description of a day at Alexandra Palace proves exhilarating to all among the audience, who can recognise in every movement the type of London lass deep in the little dissipations of homely enjoyment. Miss Langtry has the feminine frolics at her fingers' ends—and at the tips of her toes as well, for her flying feet help the illusion marvellously. One seems to sniff the air and partake of the revels of the historic heights when she sings of "Good Old Hampstead Heath," and her vitality never flags till the end, when the audience endeavour by loud and enthusiastic cheers to bring her back. Another favourite artiste who gains the maximum of popular acclaim is Miss Millie Lindon, whose singing of "The Angel of my Dreams," is illumined by an appealing pathos which is only equalled by her sweetness and charm in "The rain came pitter-patter down." Dressed in a fanciful costume, quaint in pattern and with prettily contrasted hues, Miss Lindon entrances the audience, who are lost in admiration of the art by which the clever lady moves her hearers with equal facility to sadness or to mirth. Mr Mark Melford is the cause of peals of laughter in Between Two Stools, a sketch that under another name has won merriment many a time before. Mr Melford's depiction of the crafty and avaricious old man who covets his maid-servant's legacy is surrounded by a wealth of comic detail, and Mrs Melford skilfully puts on the airs and graces of the comely servant-girl. Mr Tom Maxwell and Miss Virginia Francis are also active in the furnishing of fun, and are liberally applauded for their medley of popular songs. Grace and skill are agreeably combined in the lady's dance, which has distinction and method that is well recognised. Asra's "juggling in the billiard-parlour" is neatly done, and the applause throughout his act is continuous, more especially when he puts on a cap containing cups, in which he "pockets" the balls from a billiard table, afterwards playing a tune in a similar manner on bells attached to his head. Tots and Ettie Davis appear with effect in a scena of pathetic interest entitled "The Flower Girl and Blind Sister," and Miss Ada Martine does remarkably well in song and dance. A series of realistic impersonations is supplied by Miss Dollie Harmer, whose representation of the turns seen at a music hall includes those of a coster, an Irish girl, and a miser, the last-mentioned being a portrayal of considerable power and intensity. Miss Marie Collins holds out in song the advantages presented by the colonies to the fair maids of Albion, inviting them to emigrate for a husband, and in her second song is loud in denunciation of her spouse, a lazy, good-for-nothing, who is a brass-finisher by trade, but who practises his profession only in finishing the funds of his fair helpmeet, who exacts the sympathy of all by her plaintive tones and her attractive appearance. The Lindon Vaudevilles in "Monks at Play" introduce three friars in their brown habit, who sing in concert on the banks of a stream, until a pierrette suddenly appears and so demoralises them with a love lilt that they assume the character of pierrots and join her in a dance. Suddenly the monastery bell recalls them to a sense of duty, and they resume their monastic garb. The singing of the quartet is very good, especially that of the lady, and the comedian finds in a reddened nose and a shambling walk sufficient humour for his purpose. Alexandre and Hughes are refreshingly droll and original in the sayings and doings with which they embellish their playing on concertinas; Miss Effie White secures appreciation for her kaleidoscope dances; the Sisters Wingrove fascinate in their dancing and singing; the passage of the sketch Jail Birds by Mr Fred Karno's company of comedians is marked by uproarious mirth; and the extensive programme, which includes Miss Lily Simmonds, Mr Charles Russell, Mr Andie Caine, and Mr J. A. Wilson, is concluded by an excellent display of animated pictures. The first-class orchestra is directed by Mr Leon A. Bassett.

THE METROPOLE.

Unqualified success has crowned Mr Jack De Frece's spirited venture in changing the class of entertainment at this theatre. And it is safe to predict, with the advent of the London County Council's music hall licence next month, which carries with it the privilege of smoking in the auditorium, the patrons of the theatre will undoubtedly increase, until Mr De Frece will find a difficulty in accommodating them all. For the entertainment there can be nothing but praise, for from the brilliant orchestral overture "Stradella," played under the skilful bâton of Mr W. Snell-Robinson, until the final notes of "The King," it is one continual flow of genuine amusement and enjoyment. The pièce de resistance is the little drama, set in two scenes, entitled The Girl I Love. This is capitally staged and well acted throughout by Mr Frederick Maxwell's carefully selected company. The story is one of confidence betrayed, murder, false accusation, and retribution. The scene opens in England about the period of 1840. "when criminals were transported to convict settlements and flogged for any breach of discipline," when we find that sweet Bessie Donovan has loved not wisely, but too well, and her brother Max overhears her pleadings to her betrayer to marry her, and so learns her secret. In his rage at the disgrace he threatens, in the hearing of their blind grandad, to kill her, but repents and forgives his sister. The villain, Stephen Adair, returns, and finding that Bessie is determined to be his wife or expose him, he brutally murders her. Max, who is a soldier in a Highland regiment, discovers his sister, and learns from her dying lips the name of her murderer; but Stephen Adair being the supposed brother of "the girl he loves," Max, when accused of the murder of Bessie, says nothing, and being put on his trial is convicted, but by the intercession of Rose Adair's father gets his sentence commuted to penal servitude. In the second act we find all the principals at the convict station in Australia, where sweet Rose Adair is staying with her uncle, Colonel Grant, the governor of the settlement, so that she can be near the man she loves. But Stephen Adair has come with her, and in his dread of Max revealing his secret conspires with the restless convicts to kill Max and the Colonel and get free. He then goes to the Colonel and accuses Max as being at the head of the mutiny. The Colonel orders Max to be flogged, but finds afterwards that he has been deceived by Stephen, and sets Max free. Max finds that the villain Adair is not the brother of Rose, but only an adopted son of Rose's father. He catches Stephen in the act of robbing the Colonel, and tells the story of his martyrdom to the mutinous convicts, and hands the villain over to their tender mercies. A volley immediately afterwards denotes his fate, and the final scene, with Max holding in his arms the girl he loves, graphically tells the remainder of the story. As Max Donovan Mr Frederick Maxwell has a part that fits him as perfectly as his uniform, and is throughout manly, earnest, and thorough. Miss Lois Du Cane as Rose Adair is sweet, winsome, and delightfully natural. As Bessie Donovan Miss Louise Biddulph early wins the sympathies of the audience, and gives a highly effective performance with taste and delicacy. Mr Frank Carlile as the villain Stephen Adair imbues his part with all the necessary villainy In the dual part of Colonel Adair and Colonel Grant Mr Sam Harcourt plays with a due appreciation of these characters. As the convict Hogg Mr Alfred Raynor is very good, while the blind grandad is ably depicted by Mr Gerald Blake. Variety enough and to spare is provided by a galaxy of talent, and taking them in the order they appeared, Miss Agnes Hazel gained first approval for a serio-comic song. "Oh, you Men," in which the fair singer informed us that "If it wasn't for woman mere men would not be here at all." To the familiar melody of "Hiawatha" two old favourites, Hector and Lauraine, gave much satisfaction with their funny properties and upside-down boxing match. Kisbey in a bright little scena entitled "The Call Boy," kept his hearers amused with smart up-to-date patter, quick changes, lively songs, and a dance of marvellous activity. Miss Mamie Brickwell is a dainty little comedienne, and gave point to her song, "He was dense, dense, dense," while her recit. and song, "I do like a man, don't you?" is given with a naïveté and expression all her own. De Voy, Hurst, and Ricks in their screaming darkies' absurdity The Dark Town Insurance Depot keep hilarious fun rolling merrily. Their business in their burlesque medical examinations is original and excruciatingly funny. Mr Het Moore won a series of well-merited recalls for his lifelike impersonations of noted actors and comedians, including such popular favourites as the late Wilson Barrett, Herbert Campbell, Arthur Roberts, Dan Leno, R. G. Knowles, and Wilkie Bard. Royston and Royce are a young couple full of verve and vim, who keep the audience amused with merry cross-talk and wheezes, while their buck dancing is full of untiring energy and intoxicating activity. Miss Mamie Iris is a hard-working little artist, and has a catchy song in "My Girl from Dixie." The animated pictures displayed by the Mutograph, although the last item, are far from being the least of the list of attractions. A cosy theatre, popular prices, and an excellent company, what more can Camberwell pleasure-seekers require?

MARRIAGE OF MISS LELIA ROZE.

Miss Lelia Roze, the charming burlesque artist, was married on the 28th ult. in Liverpool to Mr Edward Downes Martin, J.P., a landed proprietor of Killoskehane Castle, co. Tipperary. The ceremony took place at the Church of St. Mary Magdalene, Kempston-street, and was solemnised by the Rev. G. H. Lunn. The service was attended by a large number of persons mainly connected with theatrical and music hall circles. Mr Harley, solicitor, of Belfast, acted as the best man, and the bridesmaid was Miss Veronica Phillips, niece of the bride, who was given away by her brother, Mr W. Barker Roze, electrical engineer, of Belfast. Mrs Roze, the mother of the bride, of Shrigley Hall, county Down, was also in attendance. Mrs Roze is a retired music hall artiste, who in her day was known by the nom de théâtre of Laura Honey. The wedding took place from Carlton House, the residence of Mrs Robinson, 146, Islington. The bride and bridegroom left Liverpool at a quarter-past twelve from the Central Station for London, and are at present staying at the Lord Warden Hotel, Dover, previous to their departure for the Continent to-day.

The bride, who has engagements to fulfil on the stage for the next twelve months, will not, however, appear in public until Christmas, when she will take a principal part at the Grand Theatre, Leeds.

ISLINGTON EMPIRE.

A commendable spirit of enterprise characterises the management of this popular North London place of amusement, and its latest development is the experiment of Monday matinée performances. The first of these took place on Monday last, and complete success attended the new departure. The house was crowded, and the experimental policy of Mr Walter Gibbons was fully justified. The energetic manager, Mr Will Spearman, cheerfully undertook the additional responsibility involved in arranging for three "houses" a-day; and the Monday matinée has apparently come to stay. The same artistes appeared who are engaged for the evening performances, with the exception of Mr G. H. Chirgwin, in whose unavoidable absence some special attractions were introduced. However, the White-Eyed Kaffir has been delighting evening audiences with the quaint business which years ago first won him the enviable reputation he enjoys. The audiences greet him as an old friend whom one is always glad to meet again. One of the best things that Mr Chirgwin does is the song addressed to his violin, and of course we must not omit to mention the immortal ballad of "The Blind Boy," which the popular comedian has sung to thousands of variety theatre patrons and in all parts of the kingdom with undiminished success these many years. All the old cheeriness of manner distinguishes Mr Chirgwin from the moment he enters with the well-remembered hat cocked over the right eye, and it is also noticeable that his voice retains that clearness and power which render his vocal contributions so acceptable. Another favourite comedian is Mr George Mozart, whose droll style is much appreciated. He has found material for mirthful treatment in a visit to a racecourse, depicting in his own funny way some of the characters he encountered there. Thus we have the lady who patronises sport and the foolish young fellow and the card sharper, the wrong man being "run in" by a blundering policeman. Mr Mozart also causes much merriment with his imitations of the manner in which various people cross a busy thoroughfare, and the startling effect of an angry shout from a loud-voiced cab-driver. The quartet known as the Dandies are here this week, and their refined musical entertainment meets with distinct approval. They have revived the old song, "The Torpedo and the Whale," which was first heard at the Strand Theatre years ago. It should be noted that the torpedo has become a Japanese one. "Excelsior" is given as a duet, and imitations of various kinds of songs, together with some lively dances, bring their performance to a satisfactory conclusion. Miss Millie Lindon sings her songs with a charm of manner that makes her a general favourite wherever she appears. "The Angel of My Dreams" is a pretty ditty, and is done justice to by Miss Lindon. "The rain came pitter-patter down" is another of her selections, which the audience listens to with evident delight. Valoni juggles skilfully with a number of articles, but the special feature of his performance is the trained pigeons which take part in it. Two of these very intelligent birds work with their feet two balls round a circle, while another pair set in motion a sort of revolving swing, the whole being balanced by Valoni. Miss Dinah Morris and her Southern State Piccaninnies appear in a lively act called The Missing Coon, in which singing and dancing are happily blended. There are some pretty lighting effects, and this item in the bill affords unlimited satisfaction. Mr Sam Mayo rattles off his ditties in his own peculiar style, and enjoys a most flattering reception. Mr. Edgar Budden distinguishes himself as a bone soloist and a skilful dancer on skates, and the Sisters Wingrove do well as duettists and dancers. Mr Will Spearman is very busy in connection with the beauty show which takes place at this hall next week, over 700 entries having already been received.

HOLLOWAY EMPIRE.

An attractive programme is again submitted at the Holloway Empire this week; and all the artistes engaged receive a cordial greeting. None more so than Mr R. G. Knowles, who is described in the bill-of-fare as "a great gun," and who certainly fires off his witty stories with great effect. The popular American comedian is a philosopher of the footlights. He has a good deal to say concerning love, courtship, and marriage. He can point a moral as well as adorn a tale. His ditty, "The girl, the woman, and the widow," contains many reflections not altogether flattering to the fair sex, but then Mr Knowles is the soul of good humour, and the ladies present laugh as much as anybody at his witticisms even when they are themselves the object of his amusing comments. "Bevare of the vidders, Samivel," said Mr Weller to his son. Mr Knowles in effect repeats the same caution, and advises his fellow men who are single to run away from them. He has a capital budget of diverting stories, and his "Saturday Night" ditty is well received. Mr Knowles's genial manner enables him almost at once, to get on good terms with an audience, and they are always loth to part with so merry and witty a companion. It is not easy to find anything new to say about the drolls known as Rezene and Robini. They have been seen on the boards of the variety theatres these many years, and their comic business has undergone little alteration. Their make-up varies a little, that is all. Rezene bears with the utmost indifference the many assaults committed by Robini, and the couple go through their eccentric performance on the trapeze with their usual success. The Ashers appear in an act entitled The Dude and the Soubrette. The lady opens with a ditty on "the little piece of lace," but is interrupted by the gentleman, who impersonates a dude seated in the front row of the stalls. The soubrette pretends to be annoyed in spite of her admirer's flattering remarks, but he makes his way on to the stage and suggests that he and the lady shall tour together as duettists. They try a song and conclude with a smart dance. The Young American Quintette also consist of vocalists and dancers. Their voices blend harmoniously, and the young people are under the leadership of Miss Mattie Boorum, who is exceedingly energetic and successful in her coon and other dances. Verno and Voyce are duettists who gain a favourable hearing for their dramatic scenas. In the one entitled Father and Son Verno appears as a white-haired old man who has been brought to the verge of ruin by risky speculations on the Stock Exchange. His son, however, attempts to cheer him, and, bidding him hope that brighter days are in store, leaves him with the object of obtaining a loan from a staunch friend. In his absence the old man produces a revolver and is about to commit suicide, when the son returns and takes the weapon from his hand. He has good news conveyed by a telegram, and he has also obtained a substantial loan to tide over present difficulties, so that the little story ends happily after all. Voyce has an excellent recitation called "Capital and Labour;" and altogether the turn is much appreciated. Mr George Brooks in the character of a dame contrasts "the old-time girl" with the girls of the present day. He also makes a hit with the ditty "And his day's work was done." The Florador Quartette are appearing with satisfactory results in their bustling sketch Naughty Nin, the extravagant business causing considerable merriment. Miss Lizzie Daniels in the character of a working girl carols gaily of the lively time she and her giddy companions had at Hampton-court; and the Princess Pauline sings "Don't it tickle your fancy?" in her usual dashing style. Another pleasing turn is that given by Miss Marie Reeve, comedienne and step dancer. Mr Chas. W. Adams is quite successful in his careful direction of affairs in front of the house, and Mr Thomas Gray remains in charge of the orchestra with entirely satisfactory results.

AGENTS AND CLIENTS.

In the Westminster County Court, on Wednesday, before Mr Justice Woodfall, Mr Fred Zola, known as "Little Zola," a comedian, was sued by Mr Herbert Blackmore, theatrical agent, for the recovery of £25 commission for a theatrical engagement at the Princess Theatre, Manchester, in 1903.

Mr Blackmore's case was that in the early part of 1903 Zola called at his office in search of an engagement for Christmas pantomime. Plaintiff introduced him to Mr Oscar Barrett, and an agreement was arrived at between Mr Barrett and the defendant for pantomime at the Princess Theatre, Manchester, at a salary of £25 a week. The customary commission of 10 per cent. on the first ten weeks' engagement was claimed, but Zola said Mr Barrett had agreed to pay the commission. This, however, was refused.

Cross-examined, Mr Blackmore denied the suggestion that Mr Arthur Collins made the introduction. It was perfectly true that one night at the Green Room Club Mr Collins said in the presence of Mr Barrett and himself that he was not using "Little Zola" at Drury-lane, and perhaps he (Mr Blackmore) would look after him. He was not aware, however, that Zola was getting nearly £50 a-week at Drury-lane.

Zola went into the witness-box, and denied that plaintiff represented him or completed the contract. Mr Blackmore answered his advertisement in The Era, and suggested introducing his name to managers. After he completed the contract with Mr Barrett, he received demands for commission from Mr Blackmore, but he returned them unsigned. It was the custom only to pay commission to the agent when the contract was successfully completed by him.

Expert evidence to prove the question of custom having been called, Judge Woodfall said that, although artists showed a remarkable capacity for amusing the public, when they came to deal with these business matters they displayed a remarkable incapacity. These theatrical cases always presented considerable difficulty to the tribunal before which they were tried. He did not believe, however, that a custom existed which allowed the artist to use the office, the time, and the influence of an agent, and then not to pay anything for it. He gave judgment for the plaintiff, with costs.

THE HIPPODROME.

Those who are inclined to decry the value of the modern variety theatre should note that it is not only a place of recreation, but one of instruction also, where the marvels of modern science are displayed to the admiring eyes of audiences, and facts are driven home by actual demonstration. For instance, no patron of the Hippodrome who has visited that establishment this week can have failed to come away deeply impressed by the powers of that curious product, "liquid air." The temperature of this strange stuff is—so Doctor Maxim Boyd, who conducts the experiments in the arena, tells us—340 degrees Fahrenheit below zero—a statement that positively makes one shiver. It is usually contained in vacuum vessels lined with silver, of a round shape; but Dr. Boyd dispenses it chiefly from a kettle, from which proceed clouds of steam. Borrowing a silk hat and a handkerchief from one of the audience, Dr. Boyd washes and dries the handkerchief by putting it into the hat and pouring liquid air upon it. A peculiarity of liquid air is that it turns certain articles saturated with it hard. A haddock and a sausage placed in a frying-pan and subjected to the action of liquid air become as chips of wood; and an india-rubber pipe dipped in the liquid air is made crisp and brittle. By the aid of the air the Professor makes ice-creams, which are handed round for consumption by the audience; and he ends by creating a brilliant flame on an immense block of ice. Dr. Maxim Boyd's exhibition has been quite cordially received at the Hippodrome, where the audience has shown warm interest in the experiments submitted to it. A striking and sensational turn now being done here is that of Paul Conchas, who juggles with shrapnel and Krupp shells. The arena is set with three small tents, and Mr Conchas is assisted by a servant attired in military uniform, who is a genuine comedian, and who may claim at least half of the credit due to the success of the entertainment. Conchas is particularly daring in his handling of immense shells, one of which he balances on his chin on a stick in the same way as is usually done with billiard balls. He is an adept at casting up a cannon ball and catching it on his shoulders; and an apparently very difficult and critical achievement is that of jumping upon one end of a see-saw, so as to throw into the air, and towards him, a large shell, which he catches on his shoulders. Doubtless the skill of the artist deprives these tricks of any real danger; but they have the appearance of being extremely hazardous, and the audience watches their execution with breathless anxiety. Carl Hertz has some capital illusions. In one of these a young lady in a black velvet suit is placed in a big basket, which is soon found to be empty, the lady coming out of a cabinet. In another instance, Hertz spirits away a barmaid who has taken up a position on a shelf in front of a looking-glass; and he concludes by extracting the flags of different nations from a large map, which disappears, disclosing a juvenile Britannia sitting on a swing. Hertz's feats are indescribably bewildering, and are done with confusing rapidity and convincing neatness. Charles Baron creates hearty laughter by his burlesque wild beast show. Dogs thoroughly trained are dressed up to represent lions, a tiger, and a leopard, and are shown in a barred enclosure. A mimic alligator is introduced, and does a tight-rope walk. Baron has also some well-trained cats, and a youthful assistant ably embodies a Polar bear. Joko and Koko, two educated baboons, appear earlier in the evening and ride round on ponies who are admirably trained. The Miles-Stavordale Quintet continue to be enthusiastically applauded; the Alfonso Trio do a smart and pretty juggling act; Bard and O'Brien's comedy wire act is amusing; Salmonsky's "fire horse" turn is both picturesque and clever; Marceline is as droll as ever; and the Wille Brothers win warm applause by their head and hand balancing. Siberia continues to occupy an important part of the Hippodrome bill, and the dramatic spectacle, splendidly mounted and admirably acted, is as effective as ever.

THE DEMON KETTLE.

It was not supposed that the Magic Kettle, first produced in London at the Palace Theatre, would remain long in the field without a rival. The rival turned up on Monday last at the Canterbury in the shape of the Demon Kettle, the new show being brought out by Mr Carl Hertz, the famous illusionist. The Demon Kettle is somewhat smaller in size than its brother at Shaftesbury-avenue. The show is run on precisely the same lines as at the Palace Theatre. Mr Carl Hertz, a capital showman, who manipulated the Demon Kettle, first borrowed a hat and a handkerchief. Placing the latter into the hat he poured into it some of the contents of the Demon Kettle, and immediately there issued forth clouds of vapour. After the handkerchief had been "washed," both it and the hat were handed back to the respective owners without having suffered the slightest injury. Three empty metal goblets were next called into use. Into one of them a rubber ball was placed, the Demon Kettle was called into use, and what was formerly an elastic rubber ball, was made as brittle as an egg-shell. White chrysanthemums were put into another goblet containing the magical compound, and the once soft and pliable leaves were transformed into a hard, crinkling material. Ice-cream making was the next experiment. An ordinary chafing-dish was placed over a lighted oil-stove, and into the dish were placed an egg, some cream, sugar, and flavouring essence. Then the mysterious Demon Kettle was brought into play, and the result was that delicious ice-cream was made in less than a minute. Members of the audience to whom the delicacy was sent round stated that they had never tasted such pure ice-cream before. A fine imitation of Vesuvius on a small scale was shewn by the aid of a slender vase into which some of the contents of the Demon Kettle had been placed, and the effect was a most striking and picturesque one. The act concluded with the burning of a large block of ice to the wonderment and delight of the audience.

AT Marylebone police-court, on Wednesday, a man, who refused his name and address, was charged, on a warrant, with obtaining credit by false pretences from George Tegg, the landlord of the Pembridge Castle public-house, Ledbury-road, Bayswater. Last Thursday the prisoner, about 10 0 p.m., arrived in a brougham, and represented to Mr Tegg that he was Mr George Spry, of Spry and Austin, the well-known music hall artists, who were to perform at Hammersmith the following week. The prisoner, who remarked that he was a devil to feed, was supplied with supper, a bed for the night, and breakfast the following morning at a cost of 5s. He left the house between ten and eleven, and neither returned nor paid the money. Mr George Spry, of Spry and Austin, said that the prisoner, who bore a strong resemblance to him, was a stranger to him. He was now appearing at the Middlesex and Cambridge with his wife, who took the name of Austin. The first time he heard that a man was going about using his name was on Aug. 16. The prisoner was remanded.

MR ARTHUR ST. GEORGE will produce in the London halls about Christmas time a dramatic scena entitled The Dead Heart, written by A. St. George and Cayley Calvert, the music being composed by Mr W. G. Gliddon. The scena is to be produced on an exceedingly lavish scale.

THE TWO BEKS (Harry and Flora Blake) leave town on Monday for six weeks on the Stoll Tour, after a long run in London. Their "Hiawatha" scena is still a great attraction, and Mr Stoll has requested them to repeat it.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

(COPYRIGHT.)

(FROM A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

THE ancient charter under which the fairs of Birmingham originated gave the right to hold a fair within the festival of Whitsun and another during the festival of "Holy Michael and All Angels." The Whitsuntide fixture still remains; but in order not to clash with the Birmingham Musical Festival the Michaelmas date was altered to the last Thursday, Friday, and Saturday in September. It was not until the year 1851 that the town began its control of the fairs. The pomp and ceremony of proclaiming the fair is still within living memory. The officers of the Court Leet, the High and the Low Bailiffs, preceded by the town crier and a band of music, perambulated the principal streets. With these officials walked the prominent men of the town.

AT certain stopping places the fair was duly proclaimed, the quaint wording of the Charter setting forth the Fair Rights and Franchises of the people of Birmingham as well the Lord of the Manor to hold a "mercate" or "fair." The fair was held in the heart of the town, the principal sites being the Bull Ring, the lower part of Bull-street, the whole of High-street, part of New-street, Dale-end, Digbeth, Allison-street, Spiceall-street, Jamaica-row, and the whole of Smithfield. In 1860, the Town Council failed in their effort to abolish the fair. One thing the Town Council could do and it was done. That was to limit the corporation fair ground to the bull ring, Smithfield Market, and the upper part of Digbeth.

THE puritanical majority on the Council dare not face the people and obtain their end and purpose with the popular consent. They gradually narrowed down the available ground for holding the fair, and in 1875 arbitrary decisions were made by the Borough Council (1) "Not to let any corporation ground for shows or exhibitions," and (2) "Not to allow the streets of the town to be used by stalls or temporary erections during the weeks of the fairs." Thus by a resolution of the Borough Council the Ancient Charter Fairs were deprived of their accustomed use of the market and borough fairgrounds. This was in 1875. The Showmen's Guild did not exist in those days. The travelling showman was at the mercy of any Jack-in-office or elected person. Had the showmen been organised in those days as they are to-day the people of Birmingham would have been roused to defend their ancient fair rights and privileges.

IT is a curious legal point that Birmingham's Charter Fairs still remain with all their vested rights as secure as when first conferred in the reign of Richard II. Corporations may refuse facilities for holding the fair. They may forego the resultant revenue from tolls, &c. Yet the fairs still exist until properly and constitutionally abolished according to statute law. The City Fathers of the great Midland metropolis found out that without the consent of the people they could not abolish the fairs. Birmingham has held its fairs without intermission, though not on Corporation ground.

A GREAT deal of the success of Birmingham fairs and their popularity is owing to the admirable business management and perseverance of Messrs Collins Brothers and their up-to-date coadjutors on the great Midland Round. It is no exaggeration to say that Birmingham Great Onion Fair as a popular holiday is dearer than ever to the hearts of the people. On the first day of the fair over forty special excursion trains from all parts of the midlands—from Manchester, Liverpool, Bristol, Wales, and the east coast—poured their thousands of cheap trippers into the town. The stalls in the Bull-ring and in the Market were loaded with strings of onions, still linking the old fairground with the traditions of the past.

THERE was no doubt as to where the people were wending. Every tramcar going to "the Old Pleck," the locale of the modern fair, was loaded. No distance ever daunts your true lover of the fair. So

Off to the fair, all in a row.

So sang the ballad-monger in the olden time.

NOW we are in the midst of a surging crowd—the old Pleck Fairground, the legitimate successor of the famous bull-ring, is reached at last. Oh, the swing and joy of it! The magnetism of its thousand and one attractions; the extraordinary blend of much music; the bright and varying effects, gold, and glitter; the show fronts in their blaze of electric light; the whirling gondolas; the bewildering switchbacks; the rampant horses; the airships; the life and joy of a vast multitude, all with one accord on pleasure bent. This is the undying charm of the fair. There is nothing like it. It is ever new. As well try to fight the stars in their courses as to stay a multitude in one mind. The fairground lessees are Messrs P. Collins, Limited, of the Gondola Works, Walsall. The arrangements on the ground were in the able hands of Messrs S. Jeffries and F. T. Salva, acting for the company.

THE shows were again numerous, at the head of which were Mr George H. Kemp's current history, Mrs F. Collins's superb electrograph, Mr James Crighton's Cinématograph, Mrs E. Baker's Continental circus, Buff Bill's (Mr William Kayes) lady lion tamer, Prof. Robert Buckley's performing birds and hares, Sahib Leo's Egyptian hall, Mr John Cordwell's fine art show, Madame Salva's handcuff king, Mr Sol Reeder's two shows (the crocodiles and the mare and foal), Mr Chas. Relph's diminutive equine, Mr John Cooper's Parisian exhibition, Prof. Bob Burden's assault-at-arms, Mr Thos. Watson's coronation bullock, and Orao, the missing link. The four machines of the limited company, the No. 1 and No. 2 sets of racing cockerells under the management of Messrs P. Whyatt and W. Summerhayes; rolling gondolas, No. 1 set, manager, Mr W. Mullett; the four abreast gallopers were under Mr W. Bastable's care. Mr John Collin's twin yachts and motor bicycles, and the Newmarket gallopers of the same proprietor; Mr Chas. Farrell's farmyard and juvenile flying machine, Mrs Shepherd's Venetian gondolas, Master Patric Collins' twin tugs, Russell's three-abreast, and Tom Jervis's steam swings concluded the machine list. The photographic saloon of Mr Joe Caddick and the first-class shooting concerns of Messrs Geo. Ford, Wm. Dobson, Thos. Hughes, Wm. Oxford, and Chas. Farrell were all in evidence.

THE supplementary fun of the fair was contributed by Messrs John Cordwell, jun., Sam Mercer, John Cordwell, sen., James Cooper, Harry Scarfe, Alf Birch, Wm. Chaplin, S. Wirsper, M. Hotchkiss, I. Wainwright, E. Humphrey, and G. Ford.

ALCESTER FAIR, held on Monday and Tuesday last, attracted, as usual, a goodly array of the best concerns on the Warwick and Worcester circuit. Here were Chipperfield's Royal Show, with all the latest pictures of the Russo-Japanese War and many interesting local films. Mr Thomas Clarke's aggregation of fairground novelties included his superb set of electric switchback gondolas, the fine range of highfliers, the rifle saloon, and coker sheet. Mr Strickland exhibited a first-class set of steam horses, a range of park swings, a bottle battery, and a coker sheet. Mr Wilson's concerns were the shooting gallery, the variety stall, and Emma sheet. Mr Chipperfield had two novelties, the variety stall and Emma sheet. Stalls, varieties, roll-up boards, &c, were provided by Messrs Seaton (two), Taylor (two), Smith, Kemp, Phipps, and Herbert.

RETFORD October Fair was held on Saturday and Monday last. The principal attractions were supplied by Councillor Geo. T. Tuby, of Doncaster, who exhibited three of his high-class roundabout machines, the switchback gondolas, the superb Venetian gondolas, and the Excelsior steam horses. He had also a capital range of park swings and highfliers on the ground. The shooting concerns included rifle saloons by Messrs Tuby, sen., and Gilliatt, and a bottle battery by Hunt; Emma sheets, coker-shies, and varieties by Messrs Illingworth, Hunt, and Gilliatt. The next fair will be on March 23, 1905. The interests of the showmen are well cared for by the courteous market superintendent, Mr John Boulby.

Two cases of more than usual interest and importance to showmen came before the local authorities last week. We refer to the prosecution—which failed—of Mr Andrew Purchase, of menagerie fame, and the imposition of a fine upon Mr William Hancock, of Messrs W. C. and S. Hancock, the well-known show and roundabout proprietors, of the Winter Gardens, Plymouth. We reported the police-court proceedings last week. The performing lion, it was proved to the satisfaction of the Bench, was so admirably trained and entered so thoroughly into the spirit of the performance that cruelty was absolutely out of the question. Trained lions are, in truth, too valuable to admit of possible ill care or cruel treatment. The startling act in which both the animal and trainer exhibit their skill is too valuable an asset for any proprietor to depreciate by either reckless treatment or neglect. The Society for Preventing Cruelty to Animals had better confine their labours to the over-worked beasts of burden that disgrace from time to time the busy roads of town and country. We trust Mr Andrew Purchase and his trained lion will now be left in peace to exhibit their skill without let or hindrance.

MR HANCOCK'S case is even more remarkable as an exhibition of how to misinterpret the real sense and meaning of an Act of Parliament. The object of the Act under which the prosecution took place was to prevent sweated child labour in dangerous trades and industries, and to provide time, at least, for bringing neglected children under the educational machinery of the state. One can well imagine Mr Hancock's indignation at finding himself classed in the same category as brutal parents and sweaters of child labour.

THE Hancocks' name is synonym for charity in the West of England. The little girl herself was so used to animals from her cradle, having her life in the show, that to her the lions were daily friends. She loved them and they loved her. To bring the machinery of an Act of Parliament to bear in a case of this character, where no possible cruelty or danger exists, is a strange exhibition of how not to administer justice but to bring it into contempt. Then again, to prevent the showman's child getting that true training for after life—which the outside parade and dance mean—is to do the child a lifelong wrong and injury. It is to be hoped that the busy people who carry on the work of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children are in truth as humane and as charitable as the Messrs Hancock are known of all men to be in caring for the fatherless.

AT Alvechurch Fair were C. Herberts' riding circus, park swings, shooting saloons, cokernut sheets, stalls, and other numerous attractions.

BURTON-ON-TRENT Statutes Fair this year followed immediately after Birmingham, the fair day being the first Monday in October. Mr Hanson, the Superintendent of the Borough Markets, set out the fair with his usual skill, every possible site being fully utilised. It is a quick one-day fixture. The shows, &c, draw on the allotted ground at six a.m. on the fair day, and the ground must be cleared by six a.m. next day. The necessity for this will be apparent when it is stated that the available market space is very limited indeed, and the greater bulk of the concerns at the fair have to stand in the streets branching out from the market. Mr Hanson is to be congratulated on the admirable arrangements under these very difficult circumstances. The shows were:—Arthur Twigdon's Electrograph, Dr. E. Lawrence's Bombardment of Port Arthur, John Proctor's Eventograph, Sahib Leo's Egyptian Hall, Sol Reeder's two shows, Buff Bill's menagerie, Mr Chas. Relph's exhibition, Matson's giant bullock, Mr J. Cordwell's fine art; the photo. booths of Messrs A. C. Tyler and Joe Caddick; the Morris tubes of Messrs G. Weir, W. Hall, G. Neal, H. Saunt, and S. Hall. The machines were as usual—Mr Fred Hodder's rolling junks, Mr Geo. Twigdon's British fowls, Mrs Weir and Sons' steam farm, Messrs J. Wilcock's, M. Chapman's, and G. Neal's juvenile roundabouts. Coker shies, roll-ups, bogies, &c., were supplied by Messrs S. Case, A. James, S. Mercer, J. Cordwell, H. Hall, F. Westrop, and A. Burton.

BEVERLEY Market place was, on Saturday last, a scene of great animation, Mr Wm. Murphy, of gondola fame, having been successful in leasing the market ground from the Corporation. The erection of Mr Murphy's superb machine "Golden Venice" and the many other concerns of showmen on their way to Hull Fair caused no little excitement in the otherwise, at ordinary times, sleepy little borough. Saturday being market day, the country folk crowded the town and thoroughly enjoyed the fun of the fair. In addition to the lessee's concern we noticed Messrs Baines and Steward with their bazaars, Ashcroft with cokers from the West Indies, Peters' merchandise stalls, the freak calf show, and many minor fair ground novelties. The indefatigable agent of the lessee, Mr George Campbell, had charge of the arrangements, which were altogether satisfactory.

BOSTOCK AND WOMBWELL'S No. 1 aggregation are announced to visit Beverley to-day (Saturday) en route for Hull Fair. The fair at Hull is advertised for Monday, Oct. 10, continuing to Saturday, Oct. 15, inclusive. There is every prospect of a most successful fair this year.

OUR Leicester representative writes: — The Leicester pleasure fair, which had been considered by certain Puritanical faddists to be a thing of the past, is to blossom forth in all its old glory on Thursday, Friday, Saturday, and Monday next week, when, to celebrate the opening of the new grounds, which are situated on the Belgrave-road Building Estate, Ross's-walk, there is to be ox-roasting and other free sights, including Prince Alexander, who will perform on the high rope, and Aerian and Ostara on the flying trapeze. The new pleasure grounds are well situated for their purpose, and no doubt the worthy showmen will now be able to carry on their legitimate business without any further interference from the Corporation and other so-called "reformers," as the Town Clerk has informed a candidate for municipal honours that the Corporation had now been rendered powerless in the matter, and could not interfere. The railway companies are running special trains, and the lessees of the fair, Messrs P. Collins, Limited, J. Collins, jun., and A. Twigdon have left no stone unturned in the way of advertising, the walls and hoardings all over the town displaying large posters, pictorials, &c. The public of the town, who, it will be remembered, both held public meetings and petitioned the Home Secretary in favour of the retention of the fair in Humberstone-gate, will thus not be deprived of their carnival, which has always been looked forward to by them with pleasure, their friends from long distances making it a point of being present. We may record the fact that lively satisfaction is expressed on all hands here that the enterprise of the showmen has been successful in finding a new "pitch" after the unnecessary trouble and expense to which they have been put.

SUMMERCOURT, nigh unto Bodmin, Cornwall, has a fair of ancient lineage. Situated in the heart of the county, it has always been an ideal gathering-ground for east and west, and, verily, the people do come to Summercourt. From Truro and Bodmin, and even from distant Launceston, the people trooped to the fair. Vehicles by the hundred lined the roadside and occupied adjacent fields; and they were of every shade and description, from the costly motor to the humble donkey cart. To count the cycles would be almost as difficult as to count the people. They evidently go early and stay late. With hundreds of them it is the day of the year, and to sacrifice even an hour of it would to them amount to a sin. They must stay it out, even though they be dead tired by midday. Favoured by splendid weather, Monday was an ideal day for seeing the fair at its best. The fair field itself is not large, but no one can say the most is not made of the room. Certain it is that after the fair was over many of the stands in the centre had to wait until those on the outskirts had gone before they could get out themselves. The pleasure fair arrangements were in the capable hands of Messrs W. C. and S. Hancock, who exhibited their well-known aggregation of roundabout machines and show novelties, attended by the usual crowd of minor concerns.

THE tragic death of Lorenzo Crick—a well-known and highly respected Lancashire showman—calls for our deepest sympathy. Mr Lorenzo was driving his waggon between Bolton and Tyldesley, when suddenly an electric car crashed into the caravan, and Lorenzo was thrown from the driving seat and cast under the car. The unfortunate man was killed. The coroner at the inquest animadverted strongly on the danger to the ordinary traffic by the monopoly of our roads by electric tramways and light railways. Lorenzo in former days was a clever trainer and exhibitor of dogs and monkeys. Many of the Lancashire showmen attended the funeral, and great sympathy with the family was manifested.

WE are now in the full cycle of Midland mops or hiring fairs. Gloucester rejoices in two mops. The first of these was held the early part of this week. The new fair ground proved an immense success. Mr Jacob Studt, the lessee, provided a splendid array of fairground novelties, including his splendid Cinématograph show and various machines. In fact, under modern conditions, a new lease of life is now guaranteed to Barton Mop Fair at Gloucester.

TAMWORTH annual statute fair was held in fine weather yesterday. There was an absence of hiring of servants. Located in Lady Meadow, the pleasure fair was well attended by visitors, of whom there was a large number.

THE action of the King's Norton District Council in enclosing the village green has dealt a severe blow at the "Mop." This year, in consequence of the Council's action, the Mop is being held in a field hired for the occasion. Showmen and others began to arrive last Thursday, but a number of them, on finding that they were not allowed to stand on the green, left the next day, while others, in spite of the Council's warning, pitched their stalls on the forecourts of the houses near the Bull's Head and Saracen's Head Inns. Compared with previous years there are not so many shows, and the usual amusements to be found at a village fair, owing to lack of accommodation in the field. A start was made on Saturday night, but the Mop proper did not take place until yesterday, when it was in full swing long before noon. During the day it was visited by crowds of people.

AT Mrs Strickland's Victoria Theatre, now located at Pershore, a capital run of popular plays by an excellent stock company is drawing capital houses. The répertoire includes The Oath of Silence, The Adventures of a Stowaway, Macbeth, The Woman in Red, The Land We Live In, and the pantomime Little Red Riding Hood.

MR FINSHALL, travelling photographer, whose portable studio was completely destroyed by fire recently, whilst attending the Lancashire wakes, has this week received a cheque for the whole amount of his loss under a fire insurance policy made with the Times Insurance Company, of Bedford-row, London. Mr F. F. Pope, of Abingdon-on-Thames, the travelling agent for the company, informs us that this is the third claim paid to showmen during the past season.

IN another column will be found the appeal of the executive committee of the Showmen's Guild for funds to maintain its work in that state of efficiency which has made the Guild a model trade protection society.

We venture to point out to all interested in the vast and varied business of entertaining the citizens of the Empire that the showman's case is an illustration of the way in which public bodies—if allowed, without let or hindrance, to have their own sweet ways—may penalise all entertainers, and destroy the people's right to seek and enjoy such amusement and recreation as their workaday life demands.

When we see the enormous powers now placed by Act of Parliament in the hands of corporations we are prone to regret that; like the travelling showman, the more permanently fixed caterers of the dramatic and musical art did not begin in time to scrutinise and to oppose the jurisdiction over entertainments assumed, by power of bye-law, by public bodies.

The showmen have found—and other entertainers, had they been similarly led and organised, would have found too—that Parliament is intensely conservative of individual and public rights; and that corporations, if vigorously opposed, will not be given autocratic powers. It must be borne in mind that the showmen have laboured and fought the question step by step for six years past, and that now it is only necessary to show that the powers sought for are in excess of the general law. When the showmen first took action in the matter, they were told that only ratepayers in the district affected by the proposed bye-laws had any right cognisable by law. But the showmen persevered, and—backed by influential friends like the Hon James Lowther, T. Gibson Bowles, and the then member for Hornsey, Mr Stephens—they were at last allowed recognition at the Home Office and at the Local Government Board, and permitted to oppose inimical legislation in their collective capacity as the Showmen's Guild.

In this struggle, and even before it commenced, we had done all we could to organise, advise, and help the showmen. The Rev. T. Horne, whose connections with The Era goes back fully ten years, has spoken for the showmen and written for them unceasingly. Now he, with others, can see the demand of the show-loving public for justice completely won.

There still, however, remains the urgent duty of constant vigilance—vigilant scrutiny of every Bill, private or public, that attempts by additional power clauses to make bye-laws. This work will continue until that good time comes when watching will not be necessary, when corporations will cease to overweight their Parliamentary Bills with vaguely-worded clauses giving powers to penalise entertainers and their trade.

This was in our issue of April 2 this year. We reviewed the position of showmen defence work, and with a new session of Parliament before them it is high time that showmen set their house in order, and, by strengthening the protection and defence work, prevent further encroachments on their business rights and privileges. We commend the appeal to all sorts and conditions of entertainers—in fact, to the whole showman world.

LLANELLY FAIR was held last week, and there was a good attendance of showmen. Foremost amongst them were Mr Henry Studt and Son with two fine machines. Mr Haggar with his electric Bioscope was here, and as usual was quite up to date. Cotterell's swimming show also came once more, after a long absence, and did well. Orecraft's lion show and cinématograph were likewise present. There were numerous shooters and Mollies, including Boswell's, North's, Day's, O'Brien's, &c.

PAULINE NEWSOME, wife and professional partner of James Newsome, the well-known circus proprietor, passed away last week at Cleethorpes. Sixty-four years ago Newsome, equestrian pantomimist, was a member of Batty's circus company, which, after a successful provincial tour, was compelled to take refuge at the Lambeth Baths owing to the destruction of Astley's by fire. From thence they moved on to the Surrey Theatre, and afterwards to the White Conduit Gardens, pending the rebuilding of their house over the water.

IN the year 1849 Newsome joined a fine circus company which appeared within the classic walls of Drury-lane Theatre. It was at this period that he married Pauline Hinné, a native of Berlin and a beautiful and accomplished horsewoman. She had sprung from a circus stock, her brothers and sisters being in the profession, while her father was the proprietor of Clinizelli's Circus. Proceeding to Paris with her husband, she was in that city when Mr Newsome began to apply himself to the breaking of horses for the haute école, an art then little known in England. The Newsomes toured several years on the Continent, and in the year following the Great Exhibition entered upon a circus season at the Vauxhall Gardens, which were closed for ever on July 25, 1859.

FOR forty years the Newsomes have been household words in the English provinces and in Scotland, particularly in Edinburgh, where they built a fine circus which was subsequently destroyed by fire. They were not only talented equestrians themselves, but they were parents of children who worthily upheld the traditions of the family name. Mr Newsome is now eighty years of age, and the death of his wife and helper brings a reflection of sadness to those who remember "scenes in the circle" in the palmy days of the dead past.

ON Tuesday, for two performances only, the Horse Show Field, Bolton, was occupied by Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show and Congress of Rough Riders of the World, headed by Colonel W. F. Cody. The spacious enclosure was well filled at each performance.

THE annual Bridgwater Fair was held on Sept. 28 and 29, business being, however, continued until Oct. 1. The principal attractions were:—Marshall Hill's circular switchback, Chas. Heal's gallopers, P. Collins' (Limited) steam horses, Chipperfield's Electrograph, Messrs Anderton and Rowland's Bioscope, Alf. Wright's boxing saloon, Prof. Howard's "lion-faced lady," Dooner's Bisley rifle range, and many smaller exhibitions and shooting galleries, cokernut gardens, booths, stalls, &c. The weather was fine, and business brisk. Holloway's portable theatre is here for a month or two, and is doing fine "biz," on some nights actually turning away money. The following plays are billed for this week:—Octoroon, Dead Hand, Mary Warner, Jane Shore, Beggar's Petition, London by Night, with a laughable farce each evening.

AT Wallingford Fair, on the 29th ult., were:—Bailey's switchback, Fulcher's switchback, Willson's, Bird's galloping horses, Purchase's menagerie and waxwork, Taylor's electric living pictures, Ball's Bioscope, Gillham's boxing saloon, and Bailey's fine-art exhibition.

AT Studley Mop were H. Strickland's steam gallopers, park swings, shooting saloons, cokers, &c., Kemp's Oriental bazaars, and other attractions by Messrs Herbert Smith, Phipps, and Newman.

AT King's Norton Fair, held on the town field, were Mrs Collins' switchback railway, J. Collins' bicycles, Collins' midget horses, C. Farrell's gallopers, C. Farrell's midget ponies, H. Holloway's great show, Wright's fine art exhibition, Farrell's fine art exhibition, Naylor's varieties, swing boats by Messrs Farrell, Collins, and Wright; shooting saloons, &c., by Messrs Farrell, Wright, Dixon, Hughes, Kemp, Eccestone, Lewis, Cartwright, Andrews, Monnox, Martin, Boswell, Harris, Cooper, Coley, and many others.

THE agricultural shows in October of possible use and importance to showmen are few in number. The Cork Agricultural Society and winter show of roots, &c., will be held at Cork on the 13th and 14th; the Ayrshire Show at Kilmarnock on the 20th and 21st; Clay Cross is dated for the 25th; and Collingham for the 27th.

THE horse and cattle fairs of importance are as follows:—Glastonbury, 10th; St. Ives, 10th; Denbigh, 11th; Falkirk, 11th; Cockermouth, 12th; Drogheda, 12th; Tavistock, 12th; Abergele, 19th; Dundalk, 19th; Hereford, 19th; Devizes, 20th; Market Harborough, 20th; Lincoln, 21st; Melton Mowbray, 24th; Leighton Buzzard, 24th; Rugby, 24th; Gainsborough, 25th; Wigton, 26th; Antrim, 27th; Limerick, 27th; Horncastle, 28th; Ely, 29th; Wellingborough, 29th; Carlisle, 29th; Falmouth, 31st.

THE pleasure fairs ahead next week are Abingdon, Alloa, Chipping Norton, Cirencester, Fazeley, Gosport, Grimsby, Halesowen, Lancaster, Tewkesbury, Leicester, Hull, Mitcheldean, and Sherbourne, on the 10th; Basingstoke, Bridport, Daventry, Burwell, Faversham, Henley-in-Arden, Highworth, Hougham, Kingsclere, Ledbury, Lingfield, Lowestoft, Marlborough, Nuneaton, Ramsbury, Sittingbourne, St. Ives, Thame, Tring, Tunbridge Wells, Whitney, and Wooler, on the 11th; Axminster, Bedford, Colne, Hitchen, Ickberrow, Needham Market, Stratford-on-Avon, Tavistock, Warwick, and Wymondham, on the 12th; Ashton-in-Makerfield, Ockley Heath, Shipton-on-Stour, and Torrington, on the 13th; Caistor and Workington, on the 14th; Banbury, Buckingham, Burley-in-Wharfdale, &c., City-road (Bradford), Farnsfield, and Wantage, on the 15th.

BRAINTREE, Essex, had for its October fair the following entertainments:—John Barker's Venetian gondolas, switchback set, park swings, and rifle saloon, and Mrs Charles Bibby's steam horses and rifle saloon. Mr Barker and Mrs Bibby also provided the minor fun of the fair in the shape of coker sheets, &c.

LISKEARD, Cornwall, held its October fair on Monday and Tuesday last under the successful management of the Brothers Hancock. Hancock's animated picture exhibition was a big success. The Hancocks also exhibited two high-class machines, the switchback gondola set and the steam gallopers. Messrs Charles, Chapman, and Ball with their swings, highflyers, and skyscrapers; and Messrs Frampton, Jones, Ildridge, Whitlegge, and many other local showmen provided rifle galleries, bottle batteries, coker sheets, varieties, and pannum stalls.

"COMING events cast their shadows before," and now is the time to cast careful thought ahead for the late autumn and winter season. Messrs T. and T. E Read of the Royal Agricultural Hall, are now busily booking spaces for the World's Fair at Islington. (See their advertisement in our columns.)

JOHN COLLINS also is arranging a first-rate run of fixtures right up to Christmas, when Liverpool will have its winter carnival and great world's fair in the covered-in Haymarket.

F. COLLINS, Limited, also advertise their excellent back-end circuit, with Wolverhampton and Birmingham for the Christmas and New Year.

WE hope to deal with other forward winter fixtures and openings for show business next week.

OUR Special Commissioner will give a graphic account of Nottingham Goose Fair (now proceeding), in our next issue.

WE notice with pleasure that Mr James Leo, the originator of the portable Egyptian Hall, Sahib Leo, the esoteric, mystic Buddha I. of the fair ground, is now on the grand tour of the back-end fairs. His tour of the Scotch fairs has been a brilliant success. During the Scottish run the Egyptian Hall entertainments have astounded and delighted vast crowds at Selkirk, Larkhall, Addington, Greenock, Johnstone, Pathhead, Thornton, Kinross, Cupar Fife, Bridge of Allan, Beith, Ayr, and other places. On the way north the show was the surprise of Carlisle, Penrith, and Hawick.

WE congratulate Mr Leo on the up-to-date enterprise and sterling ability of his entertainment. Leo is a man to be reckoned with.

AT Newcastle-on-Tyne we have Fred Durland's No. 3 section of Savage South Africa exhibiting in the Great Market. At Shields-road, Byker, Capt. Eagle Davis and his combination from the Far West are doing good business.

INFORMATION relating to Shows and Fairs, suitable for this column, should be addressed to THE EDITOR, "The Showman World."

Further donations or subscriptions may be sent to the hon. treasurer, Mr Edward Ledger, The Era Office, London, for the metropolitan district; to the treasurers or secretaries, as above; or to H. M. Horne, secretary, 137, Burton-road, West Didsbury, Manchester.

The executive officers of the Guild confidently place their case for generous assistance before you, and earnestly plead that the defence may be made fully effective for the necessary work and purpose.

Lord George Sanger, President; T. Horne, (Rev.), Hon. Organising Chaplain; T. Hurst, Hon. Secretary; H. M. Horne, General and Financial Secretary, West Didsbury, Manchester.

AT the Marylebone Police-court, on Saturday, Frederick Peplowe Maples, forty-five, an artist, of Belle Vue Park, Thornton-heath, and Albert Crosiley, fifty-seven, engaged in the musical sketch, The Fighting Parson, in the character of a policeman, living at Titchfield-street, Marylebone, were charged, on remand, before Mr Curtis-Bennett, with stealing a lady's crocodile-skin dressing-case and its contents, the property of Miss Margaret Corry, a lady residing at 39, Park-hill-road, Croydon. Mr George Gray, the "Fighting Parson" at the Oxford Theatre of Varieties, said he attended the court because of the statement made at the previous hearing that Crosiley was engaged as a policeman in the sketch The Fighting Parson. When he saw the statement in the papers he questioned the three men who were so employed at the theatre, and each of them assured him again and again that they knew nothing of the case. He therefore wrote to the magistrate to that effect. It now appeared, however, that Crosiley, or Penford, as he was known professionally, had deceived him. In the end Mr Curtis-Bennett discharged Crosiley, saying that he had been extremely foolish, but no jury would convict him on the evidence. Maples was further remanded.

AT Marlborough-street Police-court, on the 30th ult., Mr Fred Trussell, manager of the Hippodrome, attended with Sub-divisional Inspector Smith and the Alphonse troupe of jugglers, requiring licences for the two junior members of the troupe—a boy and a girl. It was explained that the children simply "served" the articles used in the performance, some of which, from a photograph, appeared to be delicate china articles which, no doubt, were caused to fly about the stage without the disastrous results arising from the "juggling" of the average domestic servant. Police and medical inquiries being satisfactory, Mr Denman granted the licences asked for.

THE GRANVILLE.

At the pretty Granville Theatre of Varieties, Walham-green, the acting-manager, Mr Ernest Bridgen, is in high feather at his recent discovery of the missing Oxford undergraduate, Mr Arthur Norris, of Bath, partly through the instrumentality of the cowboy hypnotist, Ahrensmeyer, whose patient he had become. Crowds flocked to the hall last week to witness the hypnotic illustrations, and maybe also to take a peep at the cute acting-manager, Mr Ernest Bridgen, who was able to pick out a youth by his resemblance to a printed photograph among the multitudes who frequent the Granville, a feat which certainly ought to enhance his reputation for acumen and smartness. A capital programme is as usual presented at this theatre of variety, where the performance is now continuous from 7·30 p.m. to about 11·0 o'clock, with no special time apportioned for the interval. Mr Fred Karno's company of comedians, in their screaming travesty on the modern (sic) music hall entitled Mumming Birds, takes the pride of place. This is a genuinely funny, original, and harmless whimsicality, which keeps people in a roar of laughter, while it could not offend the susceptibilities of anyone who witnessed it. Especially droll are the occupants of the stage boxes, the irrepressible youth who "guys" the whole performance, and the inebriated gentleman in Box B, whose displeasure so many of the performers are unfortunate enough to provoke. Miss Rosie Lloyd is eminently well suited in the lively ditty, "Girls will be girls and boys will be boys," and her more serious effort, "You ain't ashamed of me" also goes down well. Mr Sam Mayo, the immobile comedian, is so diverting in his one song of nonsense verses, sung to the tune of "So early in the morning," that we would fain have heard more of him. Miss Marie Collins also rendered her ballad, "Oh, girls, why don't you emigrate?" with such dash and verve that another equally good song would have been very welcome indeed. Mr Harry Champion, quick and quaint as ever, rattles through a couple of inconsequent ditties, "Ping-Pong" and "Oo-er" being the burden of the refrains. Vernando, the ventriloquist, with his deaf figure, Brown, is vastly entertaining, and clever withal. Mr Victor Travers, in his coon song parody and eccentric dance is immensely popular. Jimson's circus of clever and cultivated dogs, in which our canine friends show themselves marvels as exponents of dumb-show comedy, gains great and deserved applause, culminating in some fun with a real live pig dressed up as a baby in a pram. The animated pictures on the Edisonograph are very high class, and replete with effect and novelty. The presentment of the "Three-Card Trick," and the ensuing struggle in the train and the chase of the malefactors is exceedingly clever and realistic. Mr Laurie Wylie with his mimicking mannikin is a distinct addition to any show, his manipulation of the figures and their dancing, and his expressive features giving zest and realism to the performance. He imitates Fred Wright, jun., as Captain Pott, in The Messenger Boy, George Robey, in "The Prehistoric Man," Eugene Stratton, in "The White Coon," and winds up with a dose of Dan Leno. The Morton Comedy Trio make music and melody much to the delight of all assembled; Alexandre and Hughes provoke much laughter by their musical comedy; and George Barron, eccentric comedian; Miss Lilian Travelli, soubrette; Sam Dalton, character comedian; the Karno Trio, in their well-known laughable sketch, The Traveller's Rest; the Maples, specialty dancers; Miss Flo Raynor, comedienne; and Hector and Paulus, capital comedy equilibrists, complete a long and strong programme.

MUSIC AND DANCING LICENCES.

A special meeting of the West Ham Town Council was held last Tuesday night at the Town Hall, Stratford, to deal with applications for music and dancing and stage plays, the Mayor (Councillor G. A. M'Dowall) presiding.

There were 105 applications, including four requests for new licences—one for music by Mr Francis Gomm, of the Railway Tavern, Angel-lane, Stratford; one for music and dancing by Mr A. C. Davis, of the Queen's Hall, Queen's-road, Canning-town; and two for stage plays, by Mr A. W. Chescoe, for the Forest-gate Public Hall; and by Mr R. Mailer, of the Tate Institute, Silvertown.

The Factories Sub-committee of the Works Committee, since the receipt of the applications, has visited all the houses for which licences were asked.

At the Borough Theatre, Stratford, the Theatre Royal, Stratford, and the Royal Albert Music Hall, the sub-committee recommended that fire-resisting asbestos screens be provided, and that they be raised and lowered once at least at each performance. Gangways not less than three and a-half feet wide were also required to be provided in the centre of the stalls and pit; and in other halls where chairs are used these are to be battened together in sets of not less than three not more than twelve. At the Town Hall, Stratford, for which the town clerk is licensed, the sub-committee recommended much better sanitary provisions and the non-letting of the gallery in the future.

It was resolved, on the proposition of Alderman Ivey, that each applicant as he came forward should state if he was willing to fall in with the sub-committee's recommendation, and if he did not that his case stand adjourned for a fortnight.

In the case of the application of Mr Chescoe, of the Forest-gate Public Hall, Mr F. A. S. Sterry, solicitor, said that the recommendations of the sub-committee would be carried out. He, however, pointed out that the hall had only been built three years ago, and a great deal of money had been spent on it. He desired, too, to ask the Council to remove the restrictions on the hall that no intoxicating liquors be sold there, and urged that this should be done because the Town Hall, Stratford, with which the Public Hall, Forest-gate, was in competition, had no such restriction. The hall was forbidden by its lease to have a bar, and all applications to have intoxicants would have to go to the justices of the borough.

Mr Frederick Fredericks, on the part of the Borough Theatre, Stratford, said that the fire-resisting screens were in hand, and would soon be in place, but he objected to the proposal as to the central gangway in the pit and stalls, and one as to sub-letting.

The Council considered the whole of the matters in camera, and when the public were admitted the Mayor announced that, with a few exceptions, the whole of the licences would be renewed on the same conditions as last year. The exceptions were:—The Great Eastern Railway Mechanics' Institution, Stratford New Town Hall; the Royal Albert Music Hall, Canning-town; the Borough Theatre, Stratford; the Theatre Royal, Stratford; and the Empire Theatre, Stratford. Those applications would stand adjourned, so that the applicants could study the position they were put into by the proposals of the sub-committee. But so that they might be put in perfect order, the Council would grant to them each a provisional order to cover the next fortnight.

A COMEDY DUOLOGUE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—In reference to the letter headed "A Comedy Duologue," in your last issue, it is a further coincidence that I produced a duologue with practically the same plot at the Theatre Royal, Grimsby, on Jan. 4 last.

Yours faithfully, GEORGE ELSWORTH
(the Elsworths).

Queen's, Fleetwood, Oct. 4

WE are glad to hear that the operation undergone by Mrs J. E. Cheevers on Monday was entirely successful, and that the popular lady is making good progress towards recovery.

THE PROSECUTION OF SKETCHES.

At the Marlborough-street Police-court on Monday, the Oxford, Limited, were summoned before Mr Kennedy for producing a stage play entitled The Belle of the Orient at the Oxford Music Hall in August and September without authority of letters patent or licence from the Lord Chamberlain.

Mr Bodkin, in opening the proceedings, said he appeared on behalf of the Theatrical Managers' Association, the summons being taken out under the Theatres Act, 1843. The Association numbered among its members Sir Henry Irving, Sir Charles Wyndham, and Mr Tree, and there was no spirit of jealousy or retaliation in these proceedings. In this prosecution the Association held that an important principle was involved. The piece in question consisted of two acts and three scenes, and had ten speaking parts. There were also a chorus, dialogue, action, scenes, and a connected plot. It occupied forty minutes. Since the first prosecution about a year ago there had been eight or ten prosecutions, some of which were not instituted by the theatrical managers, who proceeded only against what were really "plays." They attacked none of the flimsy sketches that could not be dignified by such a name. For some years past such sketches continued, and were not in the least interfered with, but the music halls, having been given an inch, eventually took an ell. Music halls were of a "free and easy" character, and had not the censorship that was placed over theatres. The former could produce a sketch and employ words that were prohibited with regard to the latter places of amusement. Provincial managers very seriously felt the competition, and it had been left to the Theatrical Managers' Association to prosecute. In conclusion, Mr Bodkin said it was very desirable that the exact legal position of the parties should be clearly defined.

The first witness, a clerk from Somerset House, produced a document which showed that the defendant company had a capital of £100,000.

The next witness proved the rateable value of the hall, which was £3,334 per annum.

Mr Bodkin—There has been no difficulty in paying the rates since these sketches have been played?

The Witness—No, never.

Mr J. H. Riley, an actor of thirty or forty years' experience, was next called, and described the piece in question as a comic opera. In it the heroine was drugged and abducted by the agents of the "Sultan of Upopo," and "Lord Exmoor" offers £50,000 for her release.

Mr Bodkin—And do they all offer to earn the £50 000?

Mr Grain (interposing)—I think they say, "D—— your £50,000."

Mr Bodkin—If those words are used, it is clear this piece cannot be licensed by the Lord Chamberlain.

Mr Riley, continuing, said that in the second act the characters were seen en route for the Orient with Lord Exmoor disguised as a bill-poster. The third act showed the Sultan's harem.

Mr Bodkin—Was it like a harem?

Mr Grain—Don't give yourself away, Mr Riley.

Continuing, Mr Riley said that the Sultan came in and announced that he had got a new wife, who turned out to be Miss Ruth Verney, the heroine. One of the actors succeeds in giving the Sultan some of "Havemall's special Scotch whisky," to which he succumbs. Lord Exmoor then claims his bride, and the £50,000 is earned and paid to the Jewish gentleman in the piece.

Cross-examined by Mr Grain—The piece was a farce—comic opera—but he could not say whether it could be called a burletta. It was certainly not a tragedy or melodrama.

Mr Grain read out portions of the dialogue, and remarked that it seemed so absurd that it could not be called a play. In it one character exclaimed, "Hullo, Bill Bailey—how much on the rug?" Another said, "It's too good for a palace; you ought to make it into a pub." The "Jewish gentleman" suggested that it would make a good pawnshop.

Mr Riley, continuing, said he had seen the piece twice, and had come to the conclusion that it was a stage play.

Mr Bodkin—On the second occasion were you just as clear that it was a stage play? The Witness—Yes.

Mr Grain—I hope you don't suggest that he had some of "Havemall's Scotch Whisky"?

Mr George Alexander Redford, examiner of plays in the Lord Chamberlain's department, deposed that he was a witness in the case with the knowledge and permission of the Lord Chamberlain. The piece in question was in his opinion a stage play. He knew of "machinery" in his department for the prosecution of a case of this kind. Such a case might possibly be submitted to the Home Office.

Mr Grain, in defence, said that the prosecution was not a fair one, undertaken in the interests of the public, but was, on the contrary, a selfish one, undertaken from purely selfish motives. Counsel then dealt with the history of the music halls, pointing out their great development since they were merely a room attached to a public-house in which a "sing-song" was given. He asked the magistrate in this year of 1904 to take a common sense view of the matter and not rely on practically an "antediluvian" Act. He would not take the point in argument that this was not a stage play, but would leave that to the magistrate. If this were not a stage play there was an end of the case. Could not this strife between the theatre and the music hall be put a stop to? In other decisions there had been penalties inflicted, it was true, but then there was something more than this "rubbishing trash." In the case, heard before Mr Denman, of the opera of La Toledad that piece had been previously licensed by the Lord Chamberlain, but the present one had not.

Mr Kennedy—I should think it might have been.

Continuing, Mr Grain said it was nonsense to assert that the Lord Chamberlain could not prosecute, as he could go to the Home Office. Everything had been done to maintain the friendship of the halls and theatres, and a Bill was drafted with a view to get a common ground for the pursuit of their business without friction. Lastly he would point out that if these sketches were put down by heavy fines a large number of deserving people would be thrown out of employment.

Mr Kennedy said it was quite clear to him that the piece in question was a stage play within the meaning of the Act, but he would adjourn the case, so that he might consider the amount of the penalty.

NEW-CROSS EMPIRE.

A programme of great excellence is presented this week, and is duly appreciated by the large audiences that assemble at each performance. Mr Shackleton conducted the excellent Empire orchestra, which gave a spirited rendering of "Egypt," which was followed by the piccolo solo "The Linnet." Miss Alice Ormond charmed all present with her clever performance. Mr Fred Earle is a great favourite, and fully deserved the flattering reception he obtained. The famous Risley performers, the Kremo Family, are wonderfully smart in their own particular line. Mr Horace Wheatley was warmly welcomed and loudly applauded in his capital Irish songs, of which "We are proud of the Irish now," was the most popular. Mr Wheatley is an exceptionally clever dancer. Mr Walter King created much merriment with his really funny patter and clever character acting as a cat's-meat man, and as a lady who bemoans the many misfortunes that have befallen her since her marriage. In Artful Jim Mr Walter Groves and his clever supporters score a decided success. The sketch is most amusing, and is excellently acted by all concerned. Mr Burt Shepard sang some good songs in his own peculiar style, and was rewarded with loud laughter and applause. The first was a medley song, commencing with "Ever of thee," and finishing with some topical subjects of present interest. But Mr Shepard's greatest success was his last song, "Just about to fall." Mr W. C. Fields gave a clever comedy juggling performance, and his manipulation of billiard balls, hats, and other articles was extraordinarily clever. Miss Amy Russell looked very handsome in her gorgeous dress, and she sang "Bluebell" with great taste and skill. The performance concluded with the entertainment contributed by the Rayfords, which delighted all present.

£100 FOR A WALKING-STICK.

The sale of the Marquis of Anglesey's treasures has excited no little interest all over the country. Messrs Hunter and Co., Argyle-street, Glasgow, bought a large number of the jewels, &c. In looking at the collection the impression forces itself that the erratic Marquis was determined to go outside the scope of the average individual in securing novelties, and also that he was fairly successful. Few of us nowadays are over anxious to go the length of £300 in selecting our walking canes; yet that must be a modest estimate of the value of one which was bought at the sale by Mr Hunter, and which is undoubtedly the most expensive cane in the world. The head consists of upwards of 300 diamonds, rubies, sapphires, emeralds, and numerous other precious stones, which are arranged in a most artistic manner. Dr. Walford Bodie, the well-known hypnotist and electrician, has just purchased the stick from Messrs Hunter for the sum of £100 to add to his already large collection of valuables. He has been offered already £150 for the stick, but he will not sell it. The doctor also possesses the watch of the late Abingdon Baird, the millionaire, which weighs seven and a-half ounces 18-carat gold, and the monogram studded with ninety-eight diamonds. The centre stick in the illustration above, marked Lot 792, is the famous stick. Dr. Bodie can boast of having one of the most expensive walking-sticks in the world.

THE CENTRE STICK MARKED 792, IS SET WITH OVER 300 PRECIOUS STONES (RUBIES, PEARLS, TURQUOISE, SAPPHIRES), LATE THE PROPERTY OF THE MARQUIS OF ANGLESEY, PURCHASED BY DR WALFORD BODIE FOR THE SUM OF £100.

MR ARCHIBALD FORD, the well-known automobilist, made a triumphant entry into the arena of the London Hippodrome on Saturday evening, after having beaten the world's record non-stop run of 2,350 miles. His appearance with his motor was the signal for enthusiastic applause. His car had been going continuously for nine days.

THE Fine Art Society, 148, New Bond-street, has forwarded us a set of four handsome plates, in colours, by Lance Thackeray, illustrating a hand at Bridge. The subjects of the Bridge set are:—"May I Play to Hearts?" "I Double Hearts," "Chicane," and "Ruffing a Black Suit." The plates are 16in. by 11½in. in size, with a wide margin. The artist's proofs will be limited to 300 sets. Adepts at the all-popular game will keenly appreciate the humour of the allusions; and the cleverness of the drawings must be admired, even by non-players.

AT Greenwich Police-court, on Monday, Mr Rundell applied, on behalf of the manager of the New-cross Empire, for a licence to allow three children belonging to the Kremo troupe of risley acrobats to perform at the music hall twice each evening. Inspector Hexemer said that Mr d'Eyncourt, on a similar application being made at the North London Police-court, refused the licence on account of the delicate appearance of the children. On Sept. 26, however, the licence was granted by Mr Dickinson, but for one performance nightly only. Mr Rundell, in reply to the magistrate, said the children would be on the stage only about twelve minutes, at 7 30 and 9 30. He produced two medical certificates which stated that the children were in good health and fit to perform. Mr Baggallay granted a licence for the two performances, adding "Not later than 10 o'clock."

PRESENTATION.—On Tuesday, prior to leaving Yarmouth after a successful season's management of the Britannia Pier Pavilion, Mr Edward Gray was presented with a purse of gold by a few admirers and friends in recognition of his courtesy and business qualities, and was also presented with a handsome cheque by Mr J. W. Nightingale, the managing-director of the company.

EMPRESS, BRIXTON.

An exceptionally enticing list of talented turns has been held out this week at the Empress by Mr Nelson Francis, who, in his management of the popular hall, is giving every evidence for his fitness for the post, and as a consequence the spacious and handsome building has been packed to its utmost limits. The bill is especially strong in comedians, and laughter is continuous during the occupancy of the stage by that eccentric and resourceful mirth-provider Mr Will Evans. This popular droll's first contribution is a comic lecture, "Food versus Love," in which it is soon apparent that the speaker has little sympathy with the "tender passion," his arguments in favour of food—and plenty of it—being illustrated by a loaf and the savoury saveloy, which is hungrily devoured by "the crowd of 10,000," a part which is admirably played by one of his assistants, who largely adds to the merriment of the skit. In the "Barmaid's Lament," the ludicrous wail of blithesome Birdie, a damsel of some forty odd summers, Mr Evans also has full rein for the display of his extravagant humour, and his reception is of the most flattering description. Another popular favourite in the programme is the one and only white-eyed Kaffir, Mr G. H. Chirgwin, who has returned to town after a successful stay across the Border, where he has been amusing the canny Scot with his funny little snatches of parody, his pretty and cleverly rendered "My fiddle is my sweetheart," and, of course, the always demanded "Blind Boy." The white-eyed one's abilities to amuse are many and varied, and he has the happy knack of getting on good terms with his auditors directly he makes his appearance. Early in the evening Miss Rosie Archer, a dainty and talented mimic, gives some keenly appreciated imitations of Miss Connie Ediss, in a selection from The Silver Slipper, Miss Nellie Wallace, Miss Marie Lloyd, Miss Kate Carney, and other well-known artistes; and some faithful portraits of male footlight favourites are forthcoming from Mr George Newburn, whose imitation of the voice and mannerisms of Mr Harry Randall is particularly lifelike, other excellent impressions being his Harry Ford, George Lashwood, and Gus Elen. Mr George Faning, a Negro comedian and patterer who contributes an amusing and original turn, funnily describes his experiences when brought before Mr Plowden, and his subsequent confinement in gaol, and sings a couple of ditties to the evident delight of his auditors; and Stirling and Love, variety artistes, contribute an enjoyable interlude of vocalism and instrumentation. The gentleman of the duo plays the cornet and one-stringed fiddle with cleverness, and gives a funny burlesque oratorio and an imitation of a slide trombone on the cornet, the lady singing "Eileen Alannah" with much charm. The pair are loudly acclaimed at the conclusion of their smartly worked turn. Miss Peggy Pryde sings in her own inimitable fashion "Now then, 'Liza, chuck yerself about," in which she humorously gives her experiences as a coffee-house waitress who is more than able to hold her own with any customer who may be inclined to argue with her; and also pleases greatly with a pretty song and dance, "Pinky-Panky-Poo." The successful and amusing coster romance, Me and 'Er, is given to the usual accompaniment of laughter by Duncan and Godfrey, both artistes being admirably fitted to the parts they undertake, and making every point tell; and another "screamer" is Major M'Phee, M.P., a sketch in which Driscoll and Beattie are seen to much advantage. Handsomely and effectively gowned, Miss Victoria Monks scores a big success with "You'll have to read your answer in the stars," and her clever impersonation of a Negro singing "If time was money I'd be a millionaire," the accomplished artiste being warmly recalled at its conclusion. The craze for the coon song is funnily burlesqued by Miss Jessica Grace, who receives valuable assistance from two little Nigger boys in the concluding dance, which is smartly executed and keenly enjoyed, the fair vocalist also pleasing with her first selection, "All Ladies are Angels." In the fine programme also are the Two Bells, a couple of dainty and decidedly smart duettists and dancers; the favourite comedian, Mr James Fawn, whose humorous ditties can always be relied upon to raise a smile; Dandy George and his wonderfully intelligent and cleverly trained little dog, Rosie; and the Daunton-Shaw Troupe, trick cyclists.

BARNARDS PALACE, GREENWICH.

An excellent and varied programme has been cleverly arranged this week for the amusement of their patrons by Messrs L. Barnard and Bert Dent, and continuous laughter and applause nightly bear ample testimony to the fact that the management knows exactly how to cater for the taste of Greenwich audiences. After a brilliantly executed overture by the band, under the directorship of Mr Archie Howells, came on Monday the amusing comedy sketch Hoaxed, which was warmly received. Mr Frank Gee then sang in excellent style "Let the matter rest," "For her dear sake," and "Jilted." An exceptionally good extra turn, whose name did not appear, was responsible for a good number entitled "Coastguards." This was most effectively rendered, and was followed by Ruffles' Bioscope, with films illustrating many popular subjects, including "Bill Bailey's Come Home." Miss Maud Dewey contributed some wonderful imitations of birds and animals, including the canary, the chick, the thrush, the sparrow, the nightingale, the yellowhammer, the blackbird, the skylark, and the homely but useful pig. Miss Dewey whistled marvellously well. After a selection from The French Maid had been played by the orchestra, the Athlones (gladiators) appeared, and caused much wonderment and admiration by their clever feats of strength. Another extra turn contributed patter, and then Miss Dorothy Francis sang in pleasing style "Sing me to sleep" and "Violets." Messrs Wright Aitken and company pleased all with their well-acted dramatic sketch, entitled The Oath of Vengeance. Viviana, the dancing girl, by her charming appearance, agility, and grace, soon established herself a warm favourite. Mr Gus Foster, justly billed as the versatile comedian, pleased the audience vastly with his really funny patter and song called "The Coster and the Swell;" and a very enjoyable evening's entertainment was brought to a successful close by a clever and amusing acrobatic entertainment.

NEWPORT.

LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Sidney Cooper.—The New Clown is being played here by Mr Stanley Cooke's company. Mr Cooke plays with true humour the title-rôle in such a manner as to cause roars of laughter; Mr Herbert Greville's Mr Dixon is a capital study of a vulgar but good-hearted showman; and Mr Fred Paul is successful as Capt. the Hon. Jack Trent. Mr James Benwell (Billy), Mr David Beattie (Mr Pennyquick), Mr Fred Lake (Thos. Baker), and Mr Spencer Allen (Mr Lamb) all do well in small parts. Miss Katie Yates as Rosie Platt, the circus rider, is very natural, and Miss Evelyn Maxwell and Miss Violet Greville make the best of Maud and Winnie Chesterton. Ping Pong, a wonderfully clever animal, shows good training as the circus donkey. The comedy is preceded by a one-act farce, The Test, in which Mr David Beattie and Miss Violet Greville appear.

EMPIRE.—Moss Empires, Limited; Managing-Director, Mr O. Stoll.—Bransby Williams is one of the chief attractions here this week. Assisted by Mr F. Morland he gives a dramatic episode, The Veteran's Birthday, the whole being most interesting. The Bros. Cavallini create roars of laughter in their burlesque bull-fight; Buriere and Jules give a performance on the parallel bars that is unique; and Belle Braham's singing of selections illustrated by portraits of popular singers is proving a novelty. The Bandurria Quintet are skilled performers on the mando in and guitar; Albert Whelan, the Australian entertainer, gives a miscellaneous turn, including a whistling solo, for which he is justly applauded; and Miss Marguerite Broadfoote, a charming comedienne, sings nursery rhymes in a pleasing manner. Harry Ford gives a couple of songs in a quaint and clever style.

NOTTINGHAM.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr Howard Finney.—The Duchess of Dantzic has struck the right vein for the annual carnival week here. A veritable triumph is scored by Miss Evie Greene as the loving, warm-hearted, but impetuous Sans-Gêne, and her impersonation is natural, realistic, and effective. Mr Holbrook Blinn capitally embodies the stern and imperious Napoleon, and looks the part to the life. Mr Herbert Clayton plays Lefebvre with real earnestness, and Mr Leonard Mackay in the dual-rôle of Vicomte and Adhemar sings and acts with genuine ability; Mr Courtice Pounds is vastly amusing as Papillon, and his drolleries draw forth abundance of applause. Miss B. Burke imparts a charming piquancy to the rôle of Lisette, and Miss Adrienne Augarde makes an ingenuous Renée. The Empress is carefully taken by Miss Mabel Sorrell, and the spitefulness of the Emperor's two sisters is well shown by Misses Elizabeth Firth and Doris La Tour. Mr Halton conducts an augmented orchestra with his usual ability.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Chas. P. Cooke.—Messrs C. and F. Renad's company occupies the boards this week, and is attracting large audiences, who keenly enjoy the boisterous fun of the pantomimical comedy, The Swiss Express. The Messrs Renad as the two eccentric flunkeys are most indefatigable in their efforts to amuse, and are ably assisted by a good company. As Virginia Miss Marie Millward is pleasing, and sings and dances exceptionally well. She is supported by the Four Brighton Girls, specialty song and dance artistes, and also by her four bridesmaids, who make a good chorus. Mr Alec Wylie deserves praise for his performance of the part of Dudley Green, and Mr Wilford Bailey is very hard-working, richly deserving his success in the rôle of Dr. Gondimar Gull.

KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr A. W. Bull.—The Traitor makes a good bid for popularity here, and Messrs E. Hill-Mitchelson and Harris Fineberg's company received a hearty welcome on Monday. Mr Wellesley Draper shows admirable tact and submits a fine performance in his dual-rôle of Colonel Nervi and Prince Rudolph. Mr Stephen E. Scanlan plays the name-part with the requisite vehemence and malevolence, and as the Avenger Miss Theresa Osborne makes a strong and effective feature in the drama. Miss Isabel Hunt acts with touching pathos as the Little Martyr, and Miss Hettie Senior as Elsie Duprey cleverly overturns the schemes of the Traitor. There is an abundance of fun provided by Miss Anena Walton as a Japanese girl, and Mr Frank Sutherland, a son of the sea; and minor parts are capitally taken by Messrs James E. Abbott, Edward Duff, Edward Jenner, and Cyril Maitland.

OLDHAM.

EMPIRE, LIMITED.—Manager, Mr Ernest Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr Hulme.—The Edge of the Storm is the attraction here. Mr Henry Renouf as Jim Poulett is a great success, while Leta, the Hungarian maiden, is ably represented by Miss Jean Sterling Mackinlay. The Szentes Wilma of Miss Ada Marius is finely portrayed; Mr Alan Borthwick as the pompous Major is very amusing; Mr Arthur Fitzgerald as Captain Stent, Mr Louis Palgrave as Ensign Partridge, and Mr Leon M. Lion as Mootooswami, Poulett's "boy," are well embodied; and the French Governor of Mr Julius Hagen and Bakonyi Ferenz of Mr Frederick Annerley are very successful.

ROYAL.—Proprietors, Oldham Theatres, Limited; Manager, Mr Ernest Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr George Knowles.—The premier turn here is Goldin, who is assisted by Miss Jean Fransicola and company, in a remarkable illusionist performance. Stylo is successful in a hoop performance; the Sisters Hall are two charming vocalists; the Yoricks are well received in their original "Natty Nick Nack" performance; and Emma Don and company are entertaining in a song-scena entitled London Life. Ryder Slone, character comedian; Mdlle. Du Roche, ballad vocalist; Mdlle. Henriette, a young 'cellist; and Gus Harris, Hebrew delineator, conclude a capital programme.

GAIETY.—Proprietors, Oldham Theatres, Limited; Manager, Mr E. J. Dexter.—An excellent programme here includes the Chicago Quintet, who are applauded for their harmonic and amusing entertainment. Johnson and Beet's act A Queer Customer is well received; Miss Marie Gibson, soprano vocalist, gives an artistic rendering of some classical songs; Francisco introduces a marvellous juggling performance; Miss May Moodie, piccolo soloist, contributes some delightful selections; and Oswald, handbalancer, is a great success. Raymond's Bioscope is as entertaining as ever.

OXFORD.

NEW THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr Thomas Lucas, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr C. C. Dorrill.—Mr Frank Bateman's company is here this week with the drama At War with Women. Miss Lizzie Montague gives an effective rendering of Auriel

Romanoff; Miss Mabel Leigh is an amusing Katinka; Mr Shaun Glenville, who dances cleverly, gets all the fun that can be extracted from the character of Jerry Blake; Antolski is impersonated by Mr Clinton Baddeley; and General Malakoff, Clovitch, and Lieutenant Alexis are effectively played by Messrs Fred Vaughan, S. Flinders, and E. Ouston.

Empire Theatre.—Lessee, Mr Albany Ward; Acting-Manager, Mr H. G. P. Wells.—This week Mr Penfold Field's company is proving an attraction here with Fatal Fortune. Mr H. Farrell is a manly and convincing Jack Weston, Mr A. Elliott Ball is uncommonly good as the villainous Capt. Desmond, Mr Percy Boucher is highly amusing as Tim Larks, and Daniel Salmon and George Thornton find most capable exponents in Messrs D. J. Bosher and C. M'Leod. Miss Madeline Clifford gives a sympathetic and powerful performance as Mary Western, and Miss Florrie Hall is a bright and piquant Becky, and with Mr Boucher contributes some capital songs and dances.

PAISLEY.

Paisley Theatre.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. H. Savile.—Again is A Country Girl delighting playgoers here. Good audiences have testified to the continued popularity of the musical play, which is not only very well represented by Mr George Dance's company, but capitally placed upon the stage. Chief honours must be given to Mr Johnny Osborne for his clever and humorous impersonation of Barry; it is an extremely diverting performance, and is much enjoyed. Mr Cyril Thompson as Geoffrey Challoner acts and sings throughout with conspicuous merit, and Mr George Mudie, jun., is particularly effective as Sir Joseph Verity. Sufficiently good are the assumptions of Douglas Verity by Mr Willie Hartill, Lord Anchester by Mr Scrope Quinton, Lord Grassmere by Mr J. Bruce, Sir Charles Cortelon by Mr G. Lorraine, Major Vicat by Mr Edwin Stanley, Rube Fairway by Mr Stephen Dellett, and Granfer Mummery by Mr Tom Sheridan. Miss May Glen is a decided success as Nan and renders her vocal scores in admirable style. Miss Maud Harvey submits a clever and finished portrayal of Marjory, her singing being exceptionally well received. Sophie is charmingly impersonated by Miss Veronica Brady, and Miss Aimee Roberts gives a graphic rendition of the Princess Melaneh. Miss Edna Knollys as Mrs St. Quinton, Miss M. Jolly as Lady Anchester, and Miss Lilian Champion as the nurse render good service.

Empire.—Lessee, Mr J. H. Savile; Manager, Mr Delno Fritz.—Louie Hurman, burlesque actress, and Jack Foley, comedian, are deservedly prominent in the programme here this week. Mueller and Coyne (Billy and Clara), novel variety entertainers, score heavily, and Hewitt and Ritchie, comedians, hit the mark with their comic singing and patter business. James G. Ross, Scotch comedian and dancer, is well received. A capital turn is supplied by Misses Dorothy Riddell and Amy Roeine, and Messrs George Beverley and Edward Avery are engaging in a sketch entitled Four in a Room.

PENTRE.

Lyceum Theatre.—Sole Owners, Messrs Carlton and Duckworth; Manager, Mr Sam Duckworth; Resident-Manager, Mr Eugene Hardie.—Interest continues unabated in the variety season here, and the clever turns are witnessed by large audiences. The Sisters Manlier keep the audience spellbounnd by their marvellous feats on the triple bar; O'Connor and Brady convulse the house with their drolleries; Urquhart, Risley equilibrist, is exceedingly clever; a charming scena is introduced by Gertie Gitana; the Three Clarions are a trio of clever dancers and comedians; the Bodina Troupe contribute an excellent vocal and harmony speciality, being greatly assisted by the band under the bâton of Mr C. Weldon. The Falcons in their comedy acrobatic act are good; and Rose Waller, the popular vocal comedienne, and Andy Burn are two clever twins.

PERTH.

Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr Frank Aldridge.—Mr William Greet's No. 1 company is drawing large audiences here this week in The Sign of the Cross. Mr F. F. Woulfe's Marcus Superbus elicits loud applause; Mr A. Bernhardt Turner gives an excellent portrayal of Nero; Mr Charles Aldred is seen to advantage as Tigellinus; Mr J. Wetherall does well as Lucinius; Mr Frank Wood causes agreeable diversion as Glabrio, and is well seconded by Mr C. Arthur Fairfax as Philodemus; Mr Hayden Clifford ably enacts the treacherous part of Servillus; Mr Harry Jones is effective as Strabo; Mr L. Winning is favourably received as Viturius; and the calm and fervent piety of Mr Robert Hare's Favius and Mr E. J. Carlin's Titus is most impressive. Miss Ethel Land is successful as the majestic Poppæa; Miss Alma Bolton and Miss Cissie Carlton give excellent portrayals of Berenice and Dacia respectively; Miss May Fairclough is really clever as the fiery Ancaria; Miss Ivy Millais richly earns the repeated applause accorded her in the trying rôle of Stephanus; and Miss Evelyn D'Alroy is seen to decided advantage in the rôle of Mercia. The singing of Miss Tessa De Alberti and the dancing of Miss Violet Holland are much appreciated.

PETERBOROUGH.

Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr A. Darville Vernon.—The Fisher Girl is the attraction here this week. The Vanderdecken of Mr J. M. Jones is satisfactory; Mr C. Innis Bowen's well-trained voice is heard to the utmost advantage in his rendering of "The Steersman;" Mr Walter Champney is distinctly good as the Baron; Mr Frank Couch does well as the Innkeeper; and Mr Charles Fisher as Hendrick distinguishes himself vocally. Miss Marie Rito sings with considerable taste as Elsbeth; Miss Susie Rusholme makes a charming Nana; and Miss Alma Evelyne is well placed as Jan's wife. Mr Will Raymond and Mr J. G. Forde provide the fun as Nickel and Klaus.

PLYMOUTH.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr Langdon Lee.—Cousin Kate, who has made her initial bow to a Plymouth audience this week, has created a very favourable impression. In the person of Miss Lilias Earle she proved gifted and attractive, and in company with Mr Yorke Stephens, who enacted the part of Heath Desmond, provided acting of a high order, especially in the chief scene in the second act. Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison are touring a strong cast, which includes Miss Helen Leyton, who impersonates Mrs Spencer; Miss Hilda Honiss, who plays Amy; and Mr Walter Kingham, as the Rev. James Bartlett, all of whom acquit themselves admirably.

Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy Williams.—A wealth of exciting incidents, relieved by a plentiful supply of comedy, combine to make Honour Thy Father very popular. Mr T. Morton Powell's well-organised company does full justice to the piece. Mr J. W. Evelyn is natural to a degree; the rôles of Garth's wife and Lilian Garth are satisfactorily interpreted by Miss Kate Newton and Miss Mabel Coleman respectively; Mr E. Hartington is a spirited Duncan Bly; and Mr Douglas B Watson a capable Jack Halyard. Mr W. H. Melrose (Ned Pennycomequick) and Mr Fred W. Graham (Mitre Copplestone) contribute much to the success. A word of praise is also due to Miss Maud Grey, who takes the part of Violet Wilfred.

Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr J. Field; Acting-Manager, Mr Carlton.—O'Gust, is the chief attraction here this week, and crowded houses are cheering him nightly; refined acrobatic feats by the Four Herberts include many popular novelties; and the Mountebanks act and sing in pleasing style. A genuinely funny sketch Four a.m., is put on by the M'Connell Trio, and the Sisters Dacre are clever comediennes. Will Dalton courts favour with a song written round the Beck case; Elly Adair dances in delightful fashion; Pattie Bella's turn is enjoyable; and Bob Vokes has some lively character songs.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr A. Carlton.—A well-balanced company is appearing here in Life's Sweetest Sins. Many novelties are introduced, including a realistic representation of a submarine, and the piece, as a result, is going strong. In the rôle of the heroine Miss Madge Morley is a great favourite. Success is also achieved by Miss Amy Rudd and Miss Sara Dudley. Mr T. Arthur Jones as Captain Marston makes an ideal hero, and Mr A. Bartlett Garth, who is entrusted with the portrayal of the villain, is a sterling actor.

PONTYPRIDD.

Royal Clarence Theatre.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr Milton Bode; Business-Manager, Mr Rex Dooley.—Mr Edward Neville's company is here this week in The Anarchist Terror. Chief interest is centred in Mr Edward Neville, whose acting is excellent; Mr T. E. O'Connor submits a powerful impersonation of Lieutenant Armstrong; Mr Gus Bowerman displays histrionic ability as Ishmael; Mr J. Nelson-Turner is worthy of praise as Silas Washington Goldstraw; Mr Will White is good as Mikey Doolan; Miss Lola Esmonde is worthy of praise as Kitty Malone; Miss Annie Brunette shows artistic ability as Maritzka; Miss Phyllis French is a typical Columbia Goldstraw; and Miss Cecile Byrne as Zara and Miss Kate Parr as Floretta are effective.

PORTH.

Poole's Opera House.—Manager, Mr W. Bynorth.—Mr T. Morton Powell's company opened a six nights' engagement on Monday in Greed of Gold. Mr Carthage Caldcleugh gives a capital rendering of Harry Hood; Arthur Errol has an admirable exponent in Mr Wilson Summers; Mr T. G. Warry is successful as Mr Brightson, K.C.; Miss Daisy Hallisy displays considerable ability as Dora; Mr B. Fox has a good reception as Tom Wolstead, his acting being much appreciated; Miss Grace St. John is decidedly good as Mrs Maxwell; Mr H. Shea keeps the house in good humour as Conn Creamer; Miss Florrie Woods as Cecil capably embodies the part.

PORTSMOUTH.

Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Manager, Mr J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr Armstrong Bell.—The Negro musical comedy, In Dahomey, is here this week. Mr Dan Avery, by his eccentricities and patter as Rareback Pinkerton, and Mr Chas. Hart, by his stolid quaintness as Shylock Homestead, create roars of laughter. Mr Pete Hampton is a capital Hamilton Lightfoot, Mr Fred Douglas is good as Dr. Straight. The ladies all score, but mention may be made of Miss Laura Bowman as Cecilia, who sings very prettily; Miss Stella Hart as Mrs Stringer is successful; and Miss Pauline Freeman scores as Rosetta Lightfoot. The chorus is a strong one.

Prince's Theatre.—Licensee and Manager, Mr J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr T. E. Agate.—Messrs Dottridge and Longden's company, under the direction of Mr James Willard, opened here on Monday, in The Midnight Mail. Mr George Harvard plays the part of Henry Steyne, the hero, in a masterly manner; Billy Brewer, a drunken stoker, was ably acted by Mr Fred G. Evison; Mr Alec Colves as Leonard Royle, an African explorer, and Mr Arthur Gilroy as Hassan Padisha, a Turkish adventurer, ably fill the rôles of a pair of villains; Miss Mildred Carr shows great histrionic ability as Nancy Brewer; and Miss Ada Oakley as Mary Steyne is excellent.

Empire Palace.—Secretary, Mr W. Pratt.—The programme for the week at this popular house is a varied one. The Misses Cooke and Clinton, American lady sharpshooters, prove a great draw. Tom Collins, vocal comedian, contributes some taking songs. Charles Ulrick, the barrel king, gives a clever entertainment, Ernie Mayne, eccentric comedian, gains applause. The New York Quartet, lady vocalists and acrobatic dancers, afford much satisfaction. Kitts and Windrum, society entertainers, introduce an amusing satire, The Entr'acte. Other excellent turns are given by Beattie Kent, soubrette; Barrett and Knowles, comedians and patterers; Smith and Johnson, cultured coloured couple; and Nash and Noel, speciality artists.

PRESTON.

Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr Stephen Pritt.—Mr C. Lubbock's company is presenting The Flood Tide here this week. Mr Wm. Seguin fills the part of Captain Jack Champion with great success, and Mr Alec Flood gives a most effective portrayal of Dick Champion. George Wellington Clipp has a mirth-provoking representative in Mr Maitland Marler; Macnaughton is cleverly depicted by Mr W. Maule-Cole; Mr Horace Pollock is well placed as the Earl of Sutton; Mr Graham Wentworth is a lifelike Colonel Sir Russell Corry; and Mr W. Roberts is good as Sir Valentine De Relique. Miss Marie Wright wins much favour by her spirited impersonation of Polly Champion; Miss Seymour Hodges is a pleasing exponent of Mabel Corry; Miss Kathleen Russell is seen to advantage as Marie Pitchioli; and Madame De Naucaze displays the dramatic ability needed in the rôle of the Baroness Pitchioli.

RAMSGATE.

Amphitheatre.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; General Manager, Mr H. Bowman.—Although the Parliamentary election, with its multitude of meetings, has formed a counter-attraction to the local places of amusement, there have been good audiences at the Amphitheatre this week to witness excellent performances of the musical farcical comedy, One of the Family, by Mr H. Eglington's company. Miss Madeline Du Val is a great success as Kate Denny, and Mr Henry Eglington contributes greatly to the success as Terry O'Flanagan. The part of the Tired Man is sustained in admirable fashion by Mr H. Ray. The contributions of the Geronds to the programme are among the most popular features of the show.

Royal Victoria Pavilion.—Proprietors, Ramsgate Corporation; Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Herbert Jay; Business Manager, Mr Geo. Richter.—At the Pavilion during the week a variety programme of marked merit has been presented. Prince Kokin, Japanese juggler and illusionist, has given clever turns; Miss Daisy Ray proves herself a smart little songstress and dancer; the Sisters Neilson, acrobatic dancers, have had a great reception; E. W. Selman, comedian, has justified his title of "sorrow-shifter;" Les Kyasyas have amazed the audiences by their wonderful feats of strength; Miss Odeyne, a talented artist, has elicited much applause; J. P. Dane has been thoroughly diverting; and Williams and Brown, the "cross-talk" comedians, have given extremely amusing turns. Altogether a capital show.

RAWTENSTALL.

Grand Theatre.—Co-Proprietors and Lessees, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr J. Ellis Miller.—Mr S. F. Cody's Klondyke Nugget company is this week giving excellent performances and receiving unstinted applause for their thrilling interpretation. As Sam Deats Mr Edward Leroy submits a strong impersonation; Mr Vivian Cody as Joe Smith is excellent in every respect; and Mr Leon Cody as Waco also proves thoroughly fitted for the part. As Paddy O'Donohue Mr Tom Gilmore is well placed, his clever acrobatic feats being performed in a most laughable manner. Miss Edith B. Mumford as Rosie Lee, the heroine of the plot, is also good. The remaining characters were well sustained. During the performance Messrs V. and L. Cody give a remarkable display of their skill with the rifle. The scenic effects are realistic and novel.

READING.

Royal County Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr W. E. Barnett; Secretary, Mr Reginald Taylor.—Charley's Aunt is once more delighting large audiences here. Mr Edwin H. Wynne gives a most mirthful impersonation of the undergraduate who masquerades as Donna Lucia from Brazil. Mr Aubrey Mallalieu and Mr Mark Wylton play excellently as the college chums, Jack Chesney and Charlie Wykeham; Mr Walter Pemberton is amusing as Spettigue; Mr E. Savery gives a good rendering of Sir Francis Chesney; Mr F. Epitaux plays characteristically as the college scout; Miss Mary Morrison is effective as the real Donna Lucia; and the Misses B. Fitzgerald, Marie Grogan, and Mary Mallalieu appear to advantage in their respective characters of Kitty Verdun, Amy Spettigue, and Ela Delahay. The one-act drama An Idea is played as a curtain-raiser.

ROCHDALE.

New Theatre Royal, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr W. Robinson; General Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr Charles Clucas.—The Golden Ladder is the attraction here this week. Mr Harry Cullenford sustains with power the part of Rev. Frank Thornhill; Mr John Owen acts with effect Samuel Peckaby; Mr E. Vivian Edmonds cleverly portrays the unscrupulous Michael Severn; Mr Graham Winsford is all that could be desired as M. Peranza; and Mr Joseph Rowland skilfully acts the part of Jim Dixon. Miss Mary Austin acts with womanly feeling Lilian Grant; and Miss Nellie Graham makes a motherly Mrs Peckaby.

Circus of Varieties.—Proprietors, Messrs Smith and Lee; Business-Manager, Mr S. L. Lee.—An excellent all-round company here includes the Dayton Family, pedestal and Risley acrobats; Chas. Woodward, character comedian; Stern and Elton, vocalists, dancers, &c.; Boldi and Bolda, in Aerial Navvies, or Fun in the Air; Les Valdos, acrobats and tumblers; the Three Milfords, tight rope performers; M'Askell, comic conjuror; and Juno Salmo, the golden Mephisto.

ROTHERHAM.

Theatre Royal, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr W. Manning.—Mr John F. Preston and company are here this week with The Rogues of the Turf. Mr A. Hartley scores as Sir Gerald Heathcote; Mr Ernest R. Allen is a manly Arthur Somerton; and Mr Geo. R. Montford as the chief rogue, Captain Dudley Clifton, is received with marked disapproval, being ably seconded by Mr Harry G. Rignold as Moses Solomons. Mr Charlie Jackson is a success as Mr Peter Dawson; Mr Alfred Wade is seen to advantage as Steve Burton; Mr Harry Benson is smart as Sam Flaxman his songs and dances being received with well-deserved applause; Mr John F. Preston as Joe Flaxman gives a highly finished representation of the part of a trainer; Miss Hilda Shirley is very pleasing as Nellie Flaxman; and Miss Mabelle F. Barlow is a sprightly Phyllis Warzell. Miss Gertrude Godart as Marion, Lady Heathcote, also does well.

Town Hall Assembly Rooms.—Mr John H. Tomkinson is here with the Royal Gipsy Children and coon minstrels, who are being received with great enthusiasm. Special mention must be made of Misses Ada Lorne, Gracie Bard, Pattie Burton, May Bishop, Evie Lynn, Alice Dunn, and Letta Star; and Messrs Fred Maclean, Sam Paul, and Maurice Lindley. Special turns which meet with marked approval are given by the Florida Troupe, Elsie Rubina, the Musical Keiths, the Minster Glee Singers, and the Lizzette Troupe.

RUGBY.

Theatre Royal, Limited.—Managing Director, Mr A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Kingsley.—The attraction this week is Mr Charles Majilton and company in Round the Clock and The Plumber. In Round the Clock Mr Charles Majilton displays ability as Gabriel Gadforth; Mr Herbert Ashmore as Old Gewgaw is excellent in every way; and Mr Fred Wilson as Denby is good. Mr Dickie Clare does not miss an opportunity in the part of Bartle Burke; as the Policeman Mr P. A. White is excellent; and Mr Charles Sweeney as the Cabman is worthy of commendation. Miss Madeline Majilton plays the part of Mdlle. Salprunelle with marked grace and ability; and as the Servant Miss Carrie Foy is smart and amusing. Miss Nellie Clare is capital as Mrs Gadforth, and as Georgina Gewgaw Miss B. Brownie is charming and effective. Miss M. Brownie impersonates Bertie in a manner worthy of the highest praise, and Miss Harriet Round does well as Miss Bingle.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.

New Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr A. C. Harrison.—Mr Edmund Tearle, supported by Miss Kate Clinton and his capable company, made a welcome reappearance here on Monday. The week's repertory includes Virginius, Julius Cæsar, Merry Wives of Windsor, The Three Musketeers, Ingomar, and Jeanie Deans, in the order named. On Monday, before a capital house, the five-act tragedy Virginius was presented in an admirable manner. As the Roman father Mr Tearle displayed all his usual dramatic power, and his efforts met with warm approbation. Virginia was artistically drawn by Miss Esther Tearle. Notable members of the company were Mr Wm. J. Miller as Appius Claudius, Mr J. V. Fairley as Caius, Mr Edmund Grogan as Icilius, Mr Walter Baynham as Numitorious, Mr T. W. Benson as Dentatus, and Miss Mary Campbell as Servia.

SEACOMBE.

Irving Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr James Kiernan.—Mr Leslie Norman's company is in occupation here this week with the popular musical comedy A Trip to Chinatown. Mr Charles Seguin is seen to advantage as Welland Strong, his quips causing much amusement. Mr Jerrold Manville gives a highly humorous presentment of Ben Gay, his facial expression alone being a capital study. Mr Leslie Norman as Rashleigh Gay and Mr Oswald Gray as Saxon Blood are both good in their respective parts, and Miss Francis Errol presents a smart little Willie Grow. Noah Heap, a waiter, is capitally personated by Mr Will Smith, Slavia Payne being in the capable hands of Mr S. Champion. Pride of place amongst the ladies must be given to Miss Harriet Fawn, who gives a vivacious and clever rendering of Mrs Guyer, the widow. Flirt, Mrs Guyer's maid, is presented with characteristic French pertness by Miss Dorothy Vicott. Miss Florrie M'Innes and Miss Winifred Davies are both good as Tiny Gay and Isabel Dame respectively. The scenery, dresses, and music are excellent, and the minor parts are in capable hands.

SOUTHPORT.

Opera House (Winter Gardens).—General Manager, Mr Alfred Hemming.—An attractive and amusing entertainment is provided here this week by Mr C. Lubbock's company (by arrangement with Messrs Gatti and Frohman) in the new musical play The Cherry Girl, which made its initial appearance here on Monday evening. Foremost amongst the capable company engaged were Miss Dorothy Frostick, in the part of Mdlle. Pas Bas; Miss Ethel Newman, the Queen; and Mr Frank Lincoln, Moonshine and Happy Joe. A feature of the production was supplied by Miss Lottie Stone's troupe of dancers, the Four Chameleons.

SALFORD.

Prince of Wales's.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr Harold Goulden.—Otto the Outcast is being played here by the popular Harry Starr and company. Mr Richard Harris did well in the triple characters of Vidocq, Dr. Coquedille, and Prince Ranjani; Mr William Miller as Daddy Bruneau sustained his part admirably; Mr Conrad Clarke as Otto's uncle is well placed; Miss Ethel Danbury and Miss Edna Lester as the flower girl and a Parisian coquette are effective; and Miss Rita Roslyn as Corinne Jarbeau successfully handles the part.

Regent Theatre of Varieties, Limited.—Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford; Licensee, Mr James M. Hardie; Secretary and Manager, Mr C. Shayler.—Mr H. Houdini, the handcuff king, continues to draw largely here; the Brothers Artois, in their bar act, are exceedingly funny; Sibb and Sibb come in for applause from an appreciative audience; Mr Russell Wallett causes great amusement; Arthur Boyne is laughable; and Dave Marion causes mirth. Other turns include J. W. Bray, who sings well; Gilbert and May, vocalists and dancers; and Kitty Marion. The pictures are excellent.

Royal Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr Wm. B. Broadhead.—Harmar and James, foot equilibrists, are very good; Texas Bill does some good shooting; the Continental Stilt Walkers are very funny indeed; and Robins and Collier are amusing. The Sisters Aindow give a nice turn as musicians; Carl Mysto, the monarch of manacles, is introducing a speciality in the shape of prison cell breaking; Martin Conway does well; Frank Staley, actor-vocalist, is appreciated; Young Alec M'Nulty receives encouragement; J. P. Carroll, the military tambourinist, has a good reception; and the Pender Troupe of pantomimists evoke fun with a laughable absurdity.

L. and N.W. Palace of Varieties.—Proprietress, Mrs S. A. Higham; Manager, Mr Sam Higham.—The company engaged here includes Mr Bob Wilson, tenor, from Dare's Minstrels, Isle of Man; Olga Featherstone, comedienne and ballad vocalist; Mr Bert Hicks, descriptive vocalist and humourist; Mr Frank Bennett, baritone; and Mr Sam Higham.

SHEERNESS.

Victoria Palace Theatre.—Manager, Mr T. C. Dorling.—The attraction for this week is furnished by the visit of Joseph Pocle's Myriorama accompanied by an excellent variety company. Amongst the principal artistes appearing are Victor Howlett's Royal Marionettes; Zelda, lady instrumentalist; Wall Owen, eccentric juggler; Sulli and Saroni, vaudeville duettists; Mr Harry Sullivan, eccentric comedian; and the Magnets, sketch company, in their laughable farce The Looking-glass.

Palace of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr P. Reymond.—Another excellent programme here comprises the Calden combination, in the sketch, The Root of all Evil. The Sisters Fry, coon impersonators and dancers, are much appreciated; and other turns include T. W. Queen, eccentric comedian; Miss Jennie Rossitty, comedienne; Miss Rhoda Dendon, ballad vocalist; and Mr H. C. Boon, comedian.

Transfield's Hippodrome.—Sole Proprietor, Mr T. G. Transfield; Secretary and Manager, Mr Charles Melvin.—Good companies still continue the rule here. Professor Inman Hocking presents a capital hypnotic and electrical entertainment, which is much appreciated. The Brewsters, lady acrobatic dancers, are well received, and Miss Frederica, with her troupe of toy terriers, is highly amusing. A capital performance of dismounting a field gun by a naval gun's crew is also much appreciated. The popular Little Valdo and Little Bishop cause endless fun. The Misses Transfield in a variety of musical selections; Harry Drewe, baritone; John Yelding, equestrian; and Harry Martell, comedian, are also among the attractions.

SHEFFIELD.

Theatre Royal.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr F. W. Purcell; Acting-Manager, Mr T. S. Carter.—The bright and amusing musical play, A Chinese Honeymoon, is again being performed to good houses by Mr George Dance's company. That old favourite, Mr Martin Adeson, is the life of the piece, from a humorous point of view, as the amorous Pineapple, and he keeps the audience in roars of laughter. Mr Frank Crimp is a manly and unaffected Tom Atherton, Mr Philip Hayden makes an imposing Emperor, and the saturnine Chipple Chop is cleverly represented by Mr Ernest Laws. Mr Fred Payne is a funny Hi Lung. Miss Madge Temple is the incarnation of girlish charm as Soo-Soo, and she sings with taste and expression. Miss Eva Bevington makes a lively Mrs Pineapple, and her well-rendered songs and graceful dancing are universally appreciated. Miss Holford Berenger is grimly amusing as Mrs Brown, and Miss Vere Vere makes a hit in the part of Fi-Fi.

Lyceum Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr John Hart; General Manager and Treasurer, Mr J. E. B. Beaumont.—The cultured and intellectual dramatic interpretations of Mr Forbes Robertson are so justly famed that it was not surprising to find the Lyceum well filled on Monday with an audience of earnest theatre-goers when the celebrated artist appeared as Mark Embury in the delightful comedy Mice and Men. Mr Robertson's reading of a part so thoroughly suited to his personality and methods gave the utmost delight to his many admirers, and he was repeatedly and heartily applauded. Miss Gertrude Elliott was a pretty and naive representative of the wayward but lovable Peggy. Mr Frank Gillmore submitted a characteristic eighteenth century study, and all the other parts were impersonated with finish and impressment. The dresses and scenery were admirable, and the stage-management was perfect. On Wednesday The Light that Failed was acted.

Alexandra Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr C. W. Ramsay.—Following the big success of Mr Walter Melville's Her Second Time on Earth came as a fitting successor the thrilling modern drama Between Two Women, written and produced by Mr Frederick, of that ilk. The name of either of the talented Melvilles is a guarantee with local audiences that the fare submitted will be A1 at Lloyd's; and this was demonstrated again on Monday, when a crowded audience lustily applauded play, company, and scenery. Miss Marie Robson won sympathetic applause as the hero's wife Violet, and the beautiful and fascinating Carmen De Savereaux was impersonated in a finished manner by Miss Monita Valdar. Mr Albert Ward acted in an earnest and convincing way as the young clergyman. A firm bit of dramatic work was the Earl of Mr Sydney Price, and plenty of amusement was caused by Mr Tubby Edlin as Jack Pringle.

Empire Palace.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr A. W. Young.—The star this week is the well-known serio, Marie Lloyd; and other favourites on the bill are Marba and Verity, comic entertainers; the De Kock Brothers, in a novel act; the Brothers Edgar, Negro comedians; George Formby, a mirth-provoking comedian; the St. James's Quintet of vocalists, &c.; Cassie Walmer, coon vocalist; and Mr Gilbert Rogers, an old Sheffield favourite.

Grand Palace of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten.—The company here includes the Brothers Lupino; the Four Jumels; Stern and Stern, in a smart act; Miss Lydia Dudley, serio; Teddy Denham, comique, &c.

Albert Hall.—Manager, Mr Auguste Lyons.—Last Saturday appeared to a large audience Yapp and Napp, burlesque artists; Carr and Carl, duettists; Sisters Parez, musical artists; the Fays, mystifiers; Professor Le Phred, Alex. Fay, and the Sisters Bingham.

SHREWSBURY.

Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Business Manager, Mr W. C. Dornton.—Mr Chas. Maodona's bright company played Three Little Maids here on the first three nights of the week, with a matinée on Wednesday. As the three vicar's daughters the Misses Vera Vallis, Nellie Groves, and Doris Trevor, were attractive and talented. Madame Ilma Norina was successful as Lady St. Mallory; Miss May Wright was amusing and vivacious as Gretchen, and her Dutch character dance was well executed. Miss Iris Coley as Lady Rosemary Beaulieu, Miss Margery Douglas as Venetia Crafton, Miss Eva Swinborne as Lady Marjory Crichton, and Miss Marie Herve were all good in their respective parts. Mr Frank Henderson as Lord Cheyne was exceedingly droll and sang effectively; Mr H. A. Welchman played with easy refinement as Brian Molyneux; Mr W. P. Morgan as the Vicar did what he had to do efficiently; Mr Ridgwood Barry was the life and soul of the play as Cupid, and his dance with Gretchen was a feature of the play; and Mr Jules Charmettes acted with considerable talent as M. De l'Orme, his artistic 'cello solo in the last act being a delightful contribution, which was thoroughly appreciated.

SMETHWICK.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr C. Barnard; Manager, Mr E. Hewitson.—Although now eight years old, Two Little Vagabonds is as great an attraction as ever. Once more it is cordially received. The pretty story of the two urchins is presented in a realistic manner by Messrs Hardie and Von Leer's company. Miss Freda Ettrick as Dick and Miss Violet Carr as Wally are exceptionally good, and they create a great impression in their portrayal of the waifs. George Thornton is skilfully interpreted by Mr Talbot Homewood, and a very acceptable reading of the part of Captain Darville is forthcoming from Mr Douglas Cecil. Sufficiently villainous are the portrayals by Messrs. H. Hesslegrave and Charles T. Doe of Bill Mullins and Dido Bunce, and the characters of Coughdrop and Lesson receive able treatment at the hands of Messrs Charles H. Hughes and C. W. Crowe. Miss Elene Lonsdale is an artist of much ability and her impersonation of the sorely tried Marion Thornton is of considerable merit. Of the pretty and sympathetic rôle of Barbara Scarth a good exponent is found in Miss Edna Eden.

SOUTHAMPTON.

Grand.—The first visit of Miss Ellen Terry and her répertoire company has proved a tremendous attraction, and excellent business has been done. On Monday The Merchant of Venice was presented with conspicuous success, Miss Terry giving an admirable performance as Portia. She was well supported by Mr Alfred Bucklaw, whose Shylock was a great artistic triumph; Mr Matheson Lang as the amorous Bassanio, and Antonio was well played by Mr Charles Thursby. The other members who supported Miss Terry were excellent in their respective parts. The staging was on a sumptuous scale. On Monday Miss Terry was many times recalled and enthusiastically applauded by the large house. Much Ado About Nothing was given on Tuesday, and Miss Terry's assumption of Beatrice was delightful. The Good Hope and Nance Oldfield are also included in the repertory.

Prince of Wales's.—Mr J. F. Elliston's company is appearing here in the old favourite drama, In Old Kentucky, with real thoroughbreds and jockeys all complete. The variety portion of the entertainment is decidedly smart, the star turn being given by Mr Jimmie James, an old favourite, whose "bone playing and juggling" are remarkably smart, and bring down the house. Mr Harry Leander also wins tumultuous applause for his comicalities. Miss Amy Hermann, a talented actress, is good as the heroine; and Mr Alf S. Bankes gives a typical portrayal of the Yankee Colonel. Mr Geo. F. Steel, Mr Eric Hudson, and Mr Gerald Kennedy are also deserving of praise for sterling work.

Palace.—One of the best companies we have seen for a considerable time is appearing this week. Edwin Boyde is first favourite, his droll songs and sayings causing endless amusement. Another popular comedian is J. W. Rickaby, whose impersonation of a policeman is very clever. Maggie Duggan also scores her usual great success in "That's what you're afraid of" and "Faces we miss from the stage." Queen and Le Brun excel as dancers; and Angeline, female juggler, gains plenty of applause for her clever juggling act. Leighton and Mona, Connie Williams, and Harry Seymour all add their quota to an excellent bill.

Philharmonic.—Mr David Devant's "Mysteries of Egypt" are attracting huge crowds here, and little wonder, for the entertainment is artistic and very refined. The Chamounix Alpine Orchestra play several excellent musical selections, and the performance is extra good from start to finish.

Pier Pavilion.—That favourite entertainer Mr Reuben More is this week bringing a successful season to a close here with his company known as "The Dons and the Dunce," who give a clever and refined show. Special mention must be made of the admirable singing of Mr F. Maxwell Stewart, who has been the recipient of hearty applause at every performance. Miss Clara Pierse (contralto) and Miss Elsa Brull (comedienne) have also won golden opinions for their excellent contributions to the programme. Mr John E. Nester, humourist and mimic, scores in his novel chapeaugraphy entertainment. Mr Hugh E Wright, a capital humourist; Mr Penystone Miles, an expert pianist; and last, but not least, Mr Reuben More, elocutionist, &c., also appear with the greatest possible success.

SOUTH SHIELDS.

Theatre Royal.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs J. and F. Coulson.—When London Sleeps is being presented by Mr Lester Collingwood's company. Mr W. H. Sams confidently handles David Engleheart; Miss Maudie Hastings is a charming supporter as Queenie; the unscrupulous Captain Rodney Haynes (Mr Franklyn Graham) rouses the ire of the gods to a high pitch; and one of the best played parts in the piece is the Mr Furnaby Fuller of Mr Ernest C. Edwards. An artistic interpretation of Hilda Carrode is given by Miss Mary Brammer; Miss E. Magna France is a sprightly and animated Maudie De Frere; and the comedy is well accounted for by Mr Frank Eden (the Hon. Bertie), Mr Victor Mason (Sammy Blyth), Miss Bella Power (Signorina Robertio Jonesio), and Miss Effie Macintosh (Carrie Jones).

Empire Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr Richard Thornton; General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Resident Manager, Mr Geo. F. Thompson.—Rousby's In Paris is of a charming and elaborate character, and myriads of electric lights are shown in the Champ De Mars scene. Bros. Poluski in Motor Mania are as eccentric as usual. Phil Ray, who did not appear on Monday, was ably represented by Hume, Ross, and Lewis, musical entertainers, in a good sketch; the American Bioscope with "Off for the Holidays" elicits screams of laughter. Different styles of walking by Will English are good, and the charming ballad vocalist Florence Esdaile upholds her reputation. Kavados appears in a neat juggling and cannon ball performance, and Bert Dansie, vocal comedian, and Flo Melville, burlesque artist, considerably strengthen the bill.

Tivoli.—Proprietors, Councillor J. K. Hall and Mr Jos. Sweeney.—The Sisters Russell head an attractive programme here as exponents of low comedy. The vocal speciality entertainment, furnished by the Atkins Trio, has an air of refinement which is keenly relished; Prince Ishmael, East Indian illusionist, assisted by Mam Sahab Rani, finds favour; Grapho and Jackson submit a droll sketch; James Brady, a mirth-provoker, is much appreciated; "The Storm Fiend" is ably rendered by Fred Clifford; and the caricatures of well-known celebrities by Bert Kemp afford pleasure; and Flo Banks, a bright descriptive vocalist, concludes the bill.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr F. W. Marlow; Manager, Mr F. Marlow.—Mr Bert Coote's company is here this week with The Fatal Wedding. Mr Wilfred Payne displays much ability in the part of Howard Wilson; Mr Leyton Cancellor as Curtis is quite at home in his representation; the humorous element is well sustained by Mr Charles H. Kenney as Toto and Miss Harriett Clifton as Bridget; and Mr Fred Dobell plays Peter admirably. Mr Henry Welbeck is a favourite as O'Reilly; Miss Ida Valli makes an intelligent "little mother" (Jessie); Cora, the adventuress, is skilfully played by Miss Beatrix De Burgh; and Miss Marie Houseley represents the deeply wronged Mabel with much delicacy.

PIER PAVILION.—Sole Lessee, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—Mr Frank Curzon is presenting in capital style this week the farce, in three acts, entitled Glittering Gloria. Mr John Campbell well expounds the character of Jack Jones, being ably supported by Mr Stanley Arthur in the rôle of Archie Toddleby. Mr Haughton Macauley gives an excellent portrayal of Zebedee Posket; Colonel Pasquali is well impersonated by Mr J. Worldley Hulse; Mr Gerald Clark and Mr Chas. Williams as Algernon Entwistle and Mr Griddleton respectively display humour; Miss Stanley Ronalds as Gloria Grant earns well-merited admiration for her excellent acting; and the Misses Lillian Williams, Peggy Harrington, and Mary Bune creditably maintain their respective characters.

THE KURSAAL.—Manager, Mr J. Sydney Childs.—Those contributing towards a capital programme this week are Mr Ferguson, comedian; Les Laurens, who give a magnificent statuary act; Ena Richards, Canadian comedienne and dancer; Tom Berrick, a popular comedian; Mill May, the clever quick-change artiste; Rose Newport, charming vocalist and dancer; and Miss Unity Vezzey, who still merits great favour by her concertina playing and her well-trained musical dogs. The Bioscope has more new and interesting films, which are excellently shown.

SPENNYMOOR.

CAMBRIDGE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr Harding Thomas; Resident Manager, Mr Herbert Vere.—On the Stroke of Twelve is making its first appearance in Spennymoor, and is being favourably received. Messrs Fred Darcy and Fred J. Little's company is entrusted with the task of interpreting the play, a task that is performed with both skill and vigour. Mr H. Creagh Hunt succeeds in giving an effective representation of James Horton; Marie Bergerre finds an accomplished representative in Miss Elma C. Turner; as Moses Levi Mr Karl H. Edwards creates much mirth; the dyspeptic Negro, Jasper, affords Mr Little full scope to display sterling abilities as a comedian; Miss St. Ruth, in the rôle of Doris, shows artistic skill; Miss Nellie Moore does good work as Jess, dancing gracefully and prettily; Messrs Fred Rivers and Fred Guinness are both well placed as Jack Rutledge and George Bainbridge; Mr Will Bass as Pat Cahill supplies a fund of merry patter; and Mr Henry C. Robinson does well as Henry Rutledge.

STALYBRIDGE.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr J. Leighton Rooke.—Miss Emma Litchfield's company is here this week with A London Actress. Hilda Mannering is well represented by Miss Emma Litchfield; Miss Alice Capel makes a good Phyllis Crawford; Miss Louise Millward as Biddy Maloney and Miss Maud Steeples as Mrs Skinner are both seen to advantage; Clyde Crawford has a clever exponent in Mr Stuart Cleveland; and Mr Fred Tenaur as Mendoza, Mr Chas. E. Leicester as Lieut. Kingston, Mr Sam Wilford as Pat Maloney, and Mr John Worth as Captain Mannering complete a good all-round company.

ST. HELENS.

THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr M'Leod Loader.—A Little Coquette, capitally played by Mr J. Gar Kiddie's company, is paying us a return visit. Miss Lizzie Payne makes a charming and dainty Celia and Miss Flo Warner a dashing and attractive Robin Adair. Mr George Hestor as Simon Scrapps proves himself a comedian of more than average ability; Mr J. W. Groves keeps the house in roars of laughter; Messrs Clarence and Bell as Pipeclay and Sharp shoot are highly amusing; Mr Forsyth Bruce is well suited as Gabriel Grabbe; and the same may be said of Mr E. H. Bertram as Captain Nevermind and Miss Nellie Butt as Charlie Crowquille. The Milstead Quartet of dancers are deservedly applauded.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs Barrasford, Sley, and Willmot; Resident-Manager, Mr A. V. Carnell.—Jackson's Eight Lancashire Lads top the bill here this week and sing and dance themselves into favour. Mirzah, "the man in green" banjoist, is heartily applauded. Mr H. O. Wills, comedian, has made a big hit, and others in a good programme include Davis and Davis, comedians; the Two Woods, acrobats; Mr Kit Keen, comedian; Mr George Bernard, vocalist; and the Abd'el Kader Trio.

STOCKPORT.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr Wm Revill.—The first visit of Amorelle, presented by Mr C. P. Levilly's excellent company, was on Monday night greeted with marked enthusiasm by a large audience.—Mr Leon Simkin as Dr. Crow was exceedingly mirth-provoking, and Mr Fred Carrington was a capital Dotard. As Jules Mr Arthur Cozens sang pleasingly; and Mr Horace Manger made an effective Francois. Miss Empsie Bowman as Amorelle sang and acted delightfully; whilst Miss Adah Grey charmingly filled the character of Lesbia. Miss Von Bargen was clever and amusing as Marina.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs Weldon Watts; General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr R. G. Elder.—Mr E. Hill-Mitchelson and company are this week appearing in the sensational Russian drama The Assassin. As Prince Demetri Mr Hill-Mitchelson gives a clever delineation; Mr John C. Carlyle is a manly Ivan Spanoff; and the Duke Karl of Mr Theo Balfour is played with excellent judgment. Mr Arthur M'Culloch's General Nicholai has the necessary bluff officialism about it, and Mr Fred Wilberforce as Captain O'Neil is well suited. Miss Ruth Shepherd's Countess Wanda is played with much realism and charm; Miss Alice Barber's Connie Jonathan is effective; and Miss Grace Aimer's Nita is satisfactory.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr John Batty; Manager, Mr W. Batty.—The programme for the week here includes the Terras Brothers in their acrobatic show; W. H. Downes, the favourite coloured vocalist; Rich and Rich, funny patterers, &c.; Gerald Mount, a refined singer of good songs; Brother Lloddge in their athletic display; Elsie Robey, in "The Slavey at the Piano;" and Barnard's clever marionette performance, &c.

STROUD.

SUBSCRIPTION ROOMS.—Manager, Mr H. J. Twitchett.—Miss Inez Howard's company, under the direction of Mr Henry Chattell, was here on Monday with the drama, Between Two Women. Mr James Chippendale as Henry, Earl of Millard and Mr Gilbert Ainslie as Harry Millard give capital studies of their respective parts. Mr W. H. Baker is excellent as the Rev. Philip Carton. Mr G. M. Hancock displays ability as James Durwood, Mr Albert B. Mann as Jack Pringle and Miss Jennie Mansell as Polly Popp amuse the audience. Miss Irma Farrington plays the part of Violet Thornton with the right touch of feeling. Miss Edith Cruikshanks as Carmen De Savereaux is effective. The blind boy is touchingly acted by Miss Emmie Barton.

STOKE.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr P. Collins; Manager, Mr Frank Egerton.—Miss Ethel Arden and company head the bill this week in the successful sketch, Three of a Kind. It is admirably put on; the situations are uproariously funny. The Six Lancashire Lassies sing and dance cleverly, their clog dancing speciality being exceedingly good; Sid Bandon has two clever songs; Len Lever, coon artist, sings in a most acceptable manner; Francis and Melli contribute quite a potpourri entertainment; the Sisters Valmore sing and dance well; Dan Karnell tells his stories well, and causes much laughter; and Alf Bishop as a dancer is first-class.

STOURBRIDGE.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton.—This week we have a departure from the usual drama, a musical comedy, The Girl from Bond-street, appearing for six nights under the direction of Messrs Woodbridge and Rondelle. Miss Phyllis Manners as Mrs Harvey caused much amusement, as did Mr Fred A. Ellis as Mickey Malvarney. Miss Violet Varcoe undertook the leading character of Lucy Harvey (the Girl from Bond-street) with credit, and the Lady Fielding of Miss Belle Bartleet was also good. Miss Lilian Bartleet worked hard with good effect in the rôle of Lottie Harvey, and Jobson was entrusted to the able hands of Mr Tony Greenland.

SUNDERLAND.

AVENUE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr Percival Craig.—Miss Emma Hutchison's company in The Ticket-of-Leave Man is appearing here this week. Mr Henry Neville as Bob Brierley was seen at his best on Monday night. Miss Evelyn Weedon gave a sympathetic and graceful rendering of the part of May Edwards. Melter Moss was capably represented by Mr F. G. Thurstans, and Mr L. Cory Thomas made an ideal detective as Hawkshaw. Mr Wm. Devereux as James Dalton gave a first-rate representation.

ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr Percival Craig.—Messrs Armadale and Warren's company in The Face at the Window occupies the boards here this week. Mr E. H. Armadale appeared in the rôle of Le Loup with great success; Mr T. W. Dunscombe was realistic as Paul Gouffet; Miss Marie Florence made a charming Marie De Brisson; and Miss Jeannie Dempster as Le Pinau and Miss Lizzie Chambers as Babette were all that could be desired.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Managing-Directors, Messrs Livermore Bros.; Acting-Manager, Mr George V. Wybrow; Secretary, Mr Alfred Browne.—Mr John Lawson heads the bill this week in the Sally in Our Alley episode. Ella Retford, comedienne, is much appreciated; the Bon-Bons, in their pantomime trap scene, Hot Time for One; the Sylvines Trio, the Manzanares, Charles Bayman, Negro comedian; and Alma Jones, vocalist, also contribute.

SWANSEA.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs David Allen and Sons; Lessee and Manager, Mr Frank Boyce.—Mr George Dance's company is here with a spirited performance of A Country Girl. Mr Fred W. Pattrick is excellent as the Rajah of Bheng; Mr Francis Ludlow is a capable Geoffrey Chaloner; and Mr H. C. Morton does well as Sir Joseph. Mr Harry Buss as Barry and Miss Rosie Begarnie as Sophy are an excellent pair, and are responsible for a large share of the amusement, winning much deserved applause. Miss Kathryn Comber (Margery), Miss Ernestine Desborough (Princess), and Miss Nellie Cozens (Nan) are excellent in their respective rôles and their singing most praiseworthy. The chorus is a remarkably good one, and with Mr W. F. Hulley's excellent orchestra, conducted by Mr Otto Manns, the performance is thoroughly enjoyed by full houses, who show their appreciation in the heartiest manner. The staging and mounting are admirable.

NEW STAR.—Lessee and Manager, Mr T. Morton Powell; Acting-Manager, Mr William Coutts.—Here we have had Mr C. Lubbock's company for the week giving some very successful and enjoyable performances of The Cherry Girl, which have been highly appreciated.

NEW EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Albert Mitchell.—A good all-round performance is contributed to by Ernest Shand, Nina Martino, the Ohms, with their dogs and ponies; De Dio, the Harvey Boys, the Three Laurels, clever acrobats and jugglers; Bros. W. W. Ethairlen, eccentrics; Miss Maud Mortimer, in her historical scena, "Destiny;" and Tom Edwards, a clever ventriloquist.

SWINDON.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Responsible Manager, Mr Alfred Manners.—The success that has attended Mr Alfred B. Cross and his capable company's tours with the dramatic version of "The Manxman" was fully endorsed by a large and appreciative audience at this theatre on Monday. This popular play has the advantage of careful staging, under the direction of Mr Hilton Francis. Naturally, the chief interest centres in Mr Alfred B. Cross's study of Pete, a part he plays very finely. Miss Minnie Watersford submits a most effective and telling impersonation of Kate Cregeen, and Mr Richard Vane deserves a full measure of credit for his admirable embodiment of Philip Christian. Mr Hilton Francis is conspicuously successful as Cæsar Cregeen, and Miss Muriel Clay as Miss Christian and Miss Rose Kearns as Nancy undertook their parts with commendable judgment. Messrs Edw. M'Lean, Edw. Cartell, Douglass Cottell, and John Allen each deserve a word of praise for their good work. The tour is under the business management of Mr Alfred H. Hook.

TON-Y-PANDY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees, Messrs Arthur Carlton and S. Duckworth; General Manager, Mr Sam Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry Counsell.—The attraction here this week is Mr J. H. Clyndes's company in A Royal Revenge. Mr Clyndes is admirable as Estevan Alvarez, and very successful is Mr John M'Farlane as the King of Spain. Miss Bessie Elma as Inés Alvarez and Miss Evelyn Ommundsen as Cora Casilda play with sweetness and power.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs Carlton and Duckworth; General Manager, Mr Sam Duckworth; Resident Manager, Mr Frank Burland.—Prominent in the bill here are the Three Sisters Mouiller, triple bar artistes; Andy Brown, comedian; the Clarions; and O'Connor and Brady.

TORQUAY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr R. Smerdon; Secretary, Mr Arthur Pearce.—Mr Arthur Hart's My Lady Molly company a very welcome return visit this week. Most excellently staged, the performance was repeatedly applauded. Miss Mabel Lait was a very graceful and acceptable Lady Molly, well supported by Miss Sybil Thorne, whilst Miss Maud Thorne made a pretty, arch Alice Coverdale, and sang sweetly. Mr George Grundy lost none of his former popularity as Captain Harry Rodney. Mr Arthur Powell provoked considerable laughter as Micky O'Dowd, Alice's governess and suitor finding admirable exponents in Miss Lottie Sargent and Mr Frank Stather.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.

OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Lessee, Captain Welton Dale; Acting-Manager, Mr F. Edgar Manaton.—The Dandy Doctor (Mr Edward Marris's company) has been well received during the present week. The honours are shared by Mr J. Salter, Mr J. Danvers, Miss Florence Smithers, and Miss Lizzie Primmer, while among the variety turns the acrobatic dancing of the Dandy Belles and the cake-walking of Mr Ben Rowe and Miss Holden deserve special mention, as does a skit on Paderewski which Mr Danvers introduces in the third act, assisted by Miss Otto.

WAKEFIELD.

ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Mr Bert Coote's company in the play The Fatal Wedding opened to a crowded house on Monday evening. The part of Howard Wilson is capitally filled by Mr Stuart Lomath; Mr Creagh Henry does justice to the rôle of Robert Curtiss; Mr Edward Morgan is excellent as Toto; Mr Walter Westwood is satisfactory as Peter Schwartz; the part of Mabel Nelson is admirably portrayed by Miss Madge Flynn; Miss Gertrude Harrison makes a dignified Cora Williams; Miss Marie Hassell acts well as Bridget; and Miss Rosie Dane displays charm as Jessie, the Little Mother.

WALSALL.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE, LIMITED.—General Manager and Secretary, Mr W. H. Westwood.—A return visit is being paid here by Mr William Greet's company in The Lady Slavey. Mr Allen Morris, who is the possessor of a fine baritone voice, acquits himself capitally as Vincent A. Evelyn; Mr Frank Sherlock appears as Roberts, the sheriff's officer, and much satisfaction is expressed with his portrayal; Mr Walter T. Hybert creates roars of laughter in his eccentricities as Lord Lavender; Mr Harry Walsh is remarkably good as Major O'Neill; Miss Addie Lenrard, in the title-rôle, is charming, her singing and dancing being exceptionally clever and attractive; as Flo Honeydew Miss Millicent Marsden is all that can be desired; and Miss Jean Van Dalle as Maude, and Miss Ethel Ashton as Beatrice are well placed.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Walsall Theatres Company, Limited; General Manager and Secretary, Mr W. H. Westwood.—Mr James Hare's company in The Golden Chance is occupying the boards here this week. Mr Herbert M. King makes a capital Hubert Zac, Mr James Hare portrays the villainies of Stephen Clinton well, as Isaac Shelberg Mr Tom Arkinstall is amusing. The comedy element is supplied by Mr John A. Stimson and Miss Jenny Hallworth as Susan Brown. Miss Agatha Halford is a charming Lydia Hastings, and Miss Irene Clifford in the dual-rôle of Mother Hawk and Viva Zac is exceedingly clever.

WALTHAMSTOW.

KING'S THEATRE.—The unstinted applause of discriminating audiences follows this week the performance of Mr C. A. Clarke's stirring military drama Current Cash, by Mr Charles Freeman and company. As Captain Mark Milton Mr Freeman plays in the prologue with force and vigour, while in the play proper his performance as the mysterious "One Eye" marks him as a character-actor of great ability. Miss Florence Tench, looking very sweet, plays the much-tried wife, Grace, with much charm. Mr Walter Graham gives a good account of the villainously-inclined Major Gordon Challis; Mr T. B. Lloyd extracts much humour from the part of Ned Booles; Miss May Garlton is a pretty and intelligent child, Sybil; Miss Nesta Sandford is handsome and earnest as Della Challis. Other parts are carefully acted by Mr Harry Hiller, Mr Harry Gilmore, Mr Robert Sellers, and Mr George Ashley; while Miss Ivy Derry is an engaging Sybil Milton, "grown up."

PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr G. Adney Payne; Manager, Mr Arthur J. Barclay; Acting-Manager, Mr Geo. F. Slatter.—The contributors to the entertainment this week include Miss Gladys Archbutt, a pretty and tasteful speciality dancer; and Major Newell, who is applauded for some clever skate dances. Miss Alexandra Dagmar charms her hearers, and has been enthusiastically received at every performance. Mr L. B. Athol is a clever character comedian, and Miss Dolly Golden a dancer of distinct merit. Conan and Doyle do not require a Sherlock Holmes to detect the humour of their comedy and the neatness of their dancing, and Mr Charles V. Adams is an exceptionally good comedian. The great feature of the bill, however, is that well-known laugh-provoking extravaganza Saturday to Monday, played by Mr Fred Karno's company, with Mr Fred Kitchen as the bewildered bridegroom, John Willie Jagga.

WARRINGTON.

ROYAL COURT.—Proprietors, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter.—A Path of Thorns is proving a rare attraction here this week, as played by Hardie and Von Leer's company. Mr Claude King especially gains high encomiums for his faithful rendering of John Edmonds; Mr Cyril W. Mackey imparts the true ring of honesty to his portrayal of the good cleric; and Mr Cecil Du Gué is a success as Jonas Deane. All the good qualities of Sam Hallett are brought out by Mr Alfred Lester, and in direct contrast the Sykes-like nature of Jim Price is admirably portrayed by Mr J. H. Booth. Mr W. L. Rignold submits a clever sketch of Ratty Gabbits, a remark which also applies to Mr H. F. Wright as De Gaye. Miss Violet Luddington impresses all with her faithful rendering of Bessie Edmunds, and true pathos is shown by Miss M. Stanley Burt as Millie Hallett. Miss Mary Raby is excellent as Constance Howard, and a vivacious Jane Adelaide is Miss Amy Rogerson. Little Mabel May is a natural and pleasing representative of Lucy. The staging is very effective.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr F. Willmott.—Another excellent company is here this week. Barton and Franklin, who head the bill, are rightly defined "Scottish pioneers of music." Pete and Juno are original coloured comedians, and Professor Stark is an expert magician. Robert Gilbert, with his troupe of dogs and cats, delights all, and Maggie Rimmer is a refined comedienne. Rolando Martin, comedian; Charlie Craston, comedian; Flo Wood, burlesque artiste; and the Royal Bioscope make up one of the best programmes seen here for some time.

WEDNESBURY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr Harry Battersby; Acting-Manager, Mr W. J. Cranston.—Mr Penrhyn Forster and company are successfully presenting the sensational drama, The Break of Day, here this week. Mr James English as Richard Thornycroft and Mr Denis Hennessey as Arthur Fletcher are responsible for some excellent work. Mr Robert N. Davidson as the Rev. Ernest Brand scores successfully, and as Marmaduke Manners Mr Ernest Shiel Porter is well suited to the part. Mr T. E. Conover creates amusement in his humorous portrayal of Jeremiah Stubbs. Miss Rose Ralph gives an artistic rendering of Daisy Thornycroft, and as Phillis Thornycroft Miss Ida Thompson evokes loud applause. Miss Ethel Stalman as Mrs Amelia Peck is well worthy of mention. Miss Annie Thomas as Henrietta Stubbs and Miss Doris Regan as Violet Brand also render valuable assistance in their respective representations.

WEXFORD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr E. P. Ronan.—Mr Henry Johnston's company opened a three nights' engagement here on Monday with The Houp-La Girl, and met with much success. The Prince of Felsenberg was capitally played by Mr Thomas Berry, and the part of Major Davenport was entrusted to Mr Eric Dalvere, who scored a success. Mr Launcelot Usher found the rôle of Lieut. Lambton a most congenial one, and kept the house in a continuous roar of laughter, and Mr Jack Durant as Frank Saville left nothing to be desired. La Belle Rosiere was impersonated by Miss Florence Brandon. She sang her numbers with much taste, and was loudly applauded; while Miss Edith Haley as Dick danced gracefully and sang charmingly. Miss Harland made a stately Duchess, and Miss Maggie Fraser was vivacious as Isobel. Miss Bella Fossette was quaint as Miss Matilda Birkins, and a number of minor parts were interpreted by clever and pretty ladies. The Rosie Rice Quartet gave some capital exhibitions of dancing, and were several times recalled.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.

PALACE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr Frank Macnaghten.—The Charcassen Troupe of vocalists and whirlwind dancers tops the bill here in their clever show. O'Neil and Forp are two of the most eccentric acrobats and jugglers imaginable; the comedy sketch of Burg, Haud, and Wise, acrobats, is very funny indeed; and another really smart and bright act is given by Doody and Wright, who are recalled nightly. Arthur Aldridge, tenor, is delighting all, and Walter Emerson, comedian, is enjoying the greatest popularity. The Ferraris are clever cosmopolitan dancers, and these, with Gracie Vernon, comedienne, complete a good bill. The first of a series of winter matinées was given on Wednesday.

GRAND.—Manager (for Mrs Weldon Watts), Mr Fred Conneaux.—Domestic drama is ruling here this week, Mr John A. Atkin and Mr Walter Howe presenting A Victim of Villainy to good houses. The cast is a strong one. Mr Walter Howe, the author, is appearing with success in the part of Frank Manton, Mr Sydney Arnold interpreting the character of the villain vividly. As the heroine one could not desire a better artiste than Miss Mariette Hyde, who shares the honours with Miss Helena Walbran, a powerful actress. Miss H. E. Russell skilfully represents the good old landlady.

WEST STANLEY.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Mark H. Lindon.—Mr T. Edward Ward's company is here in the drama Her Fatal Past. Mr Joseph Millane is efficient in the part of Mark Desmond, and Mr Edward De Vere is good as Leonard Fernside. Mr W. Coleman in the part of Gilbert Fernside proves himself an able actor; and Mr T. Edward Ward as Jonathan Buckstone Nobbs and Mr Algie Spalding as Dicky Bird evoke much laughter. Miss Helen Ingledon in the dual rôle of Ruth Fernside and Belle De Lara is highly satisfactory, and as Honor Symes Miss Ward plays with great feeling. Miss Ettie Spalding also acquits herself with ability in the part of Martha Springwell, whilst a word of praise is due to Little Miss Dor Tully Hole as Little Leonard.

VICTORIA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr T. C. Rawes; Resident Manager, Mr David Williams.—Mr J. K. Murray and Miss Dawson's company is here with Driven From Home.

WIGAN.

ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Company; Managing-Director, Mr John Worswick.—Kitty Grey has been presented here this week by Mr C. St. John Denton's company. Miss Hilda Guiver as Kitty Grey enacts the part charmingly. Mr Robert Whyte, jun., as the King of Illyria, Mr Robert Selby as Sir John Binfield, and Mr Leslie Harris as Lord Plantagenet give admirable representations. Lady Binfield is capitally impersonated by Miss Eily Helene; and Miss Emily Stevens as Mrs Bright and Miss Constance Hamilton as Sadie De Poulson are excellent.

GRAND THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Company; Managing-Director, Mr J. Worswick.—The George Bonhair Gregory Troupe, in their great risley performance, and the Earles, intrumentalists (including Miss Fanny Earle, clever banjoist), are the great attractions here this week. Kloof and Ramsey, musical eccentrics; Harry Gold, in his novel act "Animated Sovereigns;" Hicks' Clerks, vocalists and comedians; and Wirson, pyramid and hand equilibrist, are very entertaining. Walter Munroe, in character songs; Jack and Evelyn, youthful entertainers; Joab Heteb, wizard; and Harry Lawson, eccentric comedian, complete the list of performers.

EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Manager, Mr W. Burchill. This popular place of amusement reopened on Monday, when a good programme was provided. T. B. Fayme and Alden, comedians, are very popular; and the Lisbon Troupe of acrobats give a clever performance. Edmunds, ventriloquist; Hinton, in a novel wire act; and Professor Derwin, conjuror, are well received. Ethel Mohr, ballad vocalist; Powell, in a smart vaulting act; and Rosie Morn, comedienne, give acceptable turns.

WINDSOR.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Governing Director, Mr Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry Nash.—When the Lights are Low, by E. Hill Mitchelson, which Mr Henry Eglington's No. 1 company has been presenting here this week, under the management of Mr Tom R. Seymour, is a remarkable blend of love and tragedy. Mr Horace Booth as Guy Goldsworthy makes a fine manly hero. Mr Edward Avinal as Rowland Goldsworthy presents an excellent conception of the scheming villain. Mr Tom R. Seymour's representation of Ikey Isaacson is highly diverting. Mr Dick Seddon as Wilkie Williams, Mr Fred Carlton as Tom Wilkins, and Mr J. P. Marsden as Donald Macpherson are distinctly clever and intensely amusing. The Admiral Goldsworthy of Mr Tom Roberts is a good impersonation of a bluff but dignified officer. Miss Adalina Mercandalli enacts the rôle of Nancy Christie with artistic skill; the part of Violet Christie, the unscrupulous sister, is vividly rendered by Miss Kate Froude; Miss Cissie Williams's Stella Goldsworthy is a finished study of a blind child; and Miss Maude Leonard elicits continuous and well-merited applause as the lively and humorous Kathleen Terry.

WOLVERHAMPTON.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr E. H. Bull and Mr Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy Percival.—This week's attraction consists of that well-known play, In the Ranks, which is admirably performed by Messrs Arthur Carlton and H. Armitage's company. The principal characters are in efficient hands, Mr Edward Lloyd, Mr Cecil Clayton, Mr Walter H. Wilson, Miss Edith Blair Staples, and Miss Ella Wilmer being seen to advantage in their respective rôles.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Sole Lessees, Mr Fred Benton and Mr Fred J. Little; Manager, Mr Fred Benton.—This week The Drama of Life is staged here, the play being well performed by Messrs Carson and Granville's company.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. Barnard; General Manager, Mr W. H. Lennon.—This week's bill includes Lydia Dreams, in a ventriloquial entertainment; the Mannons, comedy troupe, in Uncle Yank; Will Musgrave, comedian; the Sisters Redfern, banjo and dance duettists; the Howards, cornet players; Master Harry Avery, vocalist; and Russell's Bioscope.

WORCESTER.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr Arthur Carlton; Manager, Mr Louis Karpe; Assistant-Manager, Mr Albert J. Lewis.—Florodora is having a very popular reception here this week upon its return visit, the performances by Messrs H. J. Callan and Wentworth Croke's company attracting crowded houses. Miss Violet Bronson is admirable as Dolores, her singing being much appreciated. Miss May Yates as Angela Gilfain is charming, and Miss Dorothy Sephton is clever as Lady Holyrood. A smart song and dance by Miss May Yates is one of the best features of the performance, and her whistling is also good. Mr Wm. Everard is a capital Lord Abercoed, and his singing of "O, my Dolores," is particularly effective. Mr Arthur Lenville is extremely droll as Tweedlepunch, and Mr Frank Grans thoroughly efficient as Captain Donegal. Mr C. F. Fixott is very good as Cyrus Gilfain. The chorus do their work remarkably well.

WORKINGTON.

QUEEN'S OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Stanley Rogers.—On Monday night there was a large and appreciative house to witness the presentation of The Priest of Temple by Mr Charles March and his company. As Valerius Mr March played with vigour, grace, and effect, and he was ably supported by Mr Ronald Bayne as Fronto. Mr H. Moxon gave a fine rendering of Applus, and the general support was excellent. Miss Evelyn Hope as Polita acted with spirit. Miss Marie North was charming as Præstantia.

WREXHAM.

EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr J. J. Scott; Manager, Mr Herbert Nicholls.—This week the following have appeared:—Les Prinellas, speciality artistes, in A Country Flirtation; the Two Danvils, with illustrated songs; Fred Land, eccentric comedian; Geo. Russell, character comedian; May Tudor, ballad vocalist; and Harry Manchester, comedian and dancer.

YORK.

ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr T. H. Barrow.—Amateurs appeared on Monday in Liberty Hall, and for the remainder of the week The 10 30 Down Express was given.

OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr W. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr Sidney Brooke.—Malcolm Scott had a tremendous reception on Monday, his monologue being full of witty patter. Miss Ada Blanche and party appeared in Becky Bounder, and Texas Hattie gave a clever tight-rope performance. The Pueblo Bros. are dancers of a high standard of merit, and Mdlle De Rose sings well. Mr J. H. Hawtrey, actor-vocalist; the Two Errols in a clever leaping act; Ara, Zebra, and Vora; and the Morrison Sisters complete a strong bill.

"FOR THE WOMAN HE LOVES," by Myles Wallerton and Francis Gilbert. Wire, Wire, Wire.

WANTED, Oct. 10 (Vacant through obliging), Oct 10. Managers who have not seen this Play as now being Toured, kindly read the following:—Empire Theatre, Oxford, Sept. 17, 1904. Dear Mr Gordon,—Allow me to congratulate you on your drama, "For the Woman he Loves." I am very pleased with the play, and am sure it should prove a money-maker. It is rare now to meet a drama in which pathos and comedy are so happily blended. There is a story told throughout which appeals to all classes, whilst the finish of the last act is quite a new departure and a welcome one. The hearty reception our audiences accorded the piece must be a gratifying proof to you that you have reached the popular taste. I shall be happy to offer you a week for next Autumn. Wishing you the success you deserve on your tour, Yours very truly, ALBANY WARD. Unexpectedly Vacant Oct. 10, wire; also Oct. 17, Nov. 14 and 21. Only Vacant Dates this year. STANLEY S. NEW DRAMATIC FILM.

THE PIRATES.

SCENE 1.

Shows the old miser at home, and a young bluejacket pleading with him for his daughter's hand. Suddenly the door is burst open, and the piratical crew rush in, rob and murder the old man, and compel the young man to accompany them aboard the pirate brig.

SCENE 2.

The ruffianly gang are seen dragging the Jack Tar through the woods down to the shore. He puts up a most tremendous fight, and, seizing a pistol from one of the crew, puts several men hors de combat, but is finally overpowered and forcibly led away.

SCENE 3.

Is taken on the deck of the pirate brig, and shows the pirates trying to deceive a British cruiser in the offing by hoisting the British ensign. Our hero, at the risk of his life, springs forward, and, hauling down the misleading flag, hoists the "skull and cross bones," thus informing the man-of-war of the true character of the craft, but is seized by the pirates and compelled to "walk the plank."

SCENE 4.

Is a most beautiful finale, showing a fleet of the good old "Wooden Walls of Old England" surrounding the pirate, and discharging broadsides at close range. After being dismasted and set on fire, the pirate brig blows up and the miscreant crew are destroyed.

THE STORY OF A PIECE OF SLATE.

This picture shows the complete history of a block of slate, from the time that it is hewn from the solid rock till it is neatly packed in a railway truck ready to be delivered to the builder. In the opening of the picture there is a pretty view of the tunnel-like entrance to one of the "levels" leading to the underground slate workings. A battered-looking one-armed man—eloquent testimony to the dangers of slate quarrying—emerges at the head of a train of trucks; tied to his breast is a lantern, whose feeble rays have illuminated his path through the tunnel. A weary-looking horse draws the train of rough trucks, on each of which one or two huge blocks of slate are packed. Each truck halts for an instant on a weighing platform in order that a rough record of the slate quarried may be kept. The train winds slowly along to the sawing sheds, and as it passes we get an excellent panoramic view of the quarry. Next we see one of the trucks tilted over and a huge block of slate weighing several tons is thrown to the ground. With hammer and chisel the workmen quickly split it into huge thick slabs, and these are carried away to be sawn into blocks. A big circular saw slowly cleaves its way through the slate, and then the blocks come into the hands of the splitters. These men very deftly split each block first into halves, then quarters, and then finally into thin sheets, which are used for roofing and many other purposes. The thin sheets, all jagged and uneven, are carried to the trimming sheds and placed for an instant with their rough edges against a quickly-revolving knife, which, in four movements, chips each uneven slate into rectangular shape. Then the slates are carried in bundles to the trucks, into which they are loaded, and each truck as it is filled is shot rapidly down a terrifically steep incline to the lower "levels," where it is taken away by railroad to the various builders' yards. The film throughout is of remarkably excellent quality, and even the interior scenes are wonderfully good.

Length 300ft. Price £6 5s.
